The Monroe A. C. met and easily defeated the Laurel A. C. on Saturday afternoon by a score of 18 to 2. Next Saturday afternoon the Monroe A. C. hook up with the fast going Iolas and a contest is anticipated.

The Clinton Avenues will play the West Ends of Somerville on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and the fans are expecting a lively game from start to finish. The Somerset county boys will be accompanied by the usual large number of rooters.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, is trying to arrange a game with the Newark Eastern League team for Saturday, September 26, on Crescent Oval.

In the recent series at Chicago between the Cubs and the Giants it is said that the Giants share was between 75,000 and 80,000 paid admissions for the three games, which is a new record for attendance.

Herzog, who has taken Larry Doyle's place temporarily at second base for the Giants, is proving his worth in every game. He is unquestionably the fastest base-runner in either league.

According to McGraw, Crandall will develope into another Mathewson.

The fans wonder why Manager Newhouse, of the Bound Brook team, will not give Manager Eastman, of the Y. M. C. A. club, another game. Was it because the association boys defeated Somerville?

By the way Manager Dorflinger tried to schedule a game with Bound Brook, but Manager Newhouse could not find a date.

Towels For Porch Chairs.

The careful housewife who religiously adorns the backs of the porch chairs with white crash towels may unpin these articles and transfer them to more useful ends. There is now in the shops a special little chairback towel to protect the back of the chair from leaning heads—or the back of the head from backs of chairs, however you put it.

It is a small oblong of Turkish toweling, a serviceable dark brown in color, with a gay bit of border, all finished and ready to put on the chair.

They're inexpensive and so practical that even the summer boarding house window of plaza chairs might afford to equip themselves therewith.

Plainfield, (N. J.), Sept. 15, 1908.

Mr. Bryan is in New Jersey today. On November 4 he will be somewhere on the Salt river.

The interest of the taxpayers demand that the probe into the charges made against the superintendent of the Industrial Home be thorough and without favor. If the complaint is well founded, the defendant should be dismissed without delay.

As Sam Bernard would say we have had "sufficiency" so far as the luxuries of municipal government are concerned, but when are we to have municipal collection and disposal of garbage, good trolley service, an east end fire house and other necessities?

Cars No. 135, 139 and 141, on the local lines are altogether too valuable relics of pioneer trolley days to be in service. Some museum would be glad to pay a good price to the P. S. C. for these and others in use here, but we would not like to part with them until those new ones promised for January 1, 1908, come along about January 1, 1910.

The result of the State election in Maine yesterday has no significance as to the National campaign. The Presidential issue did not enter into the contest at all for there the battle was made solely on the liquor question. Party lines were much split, but notwithstanding the Republican candidate for governor received the flattering majority of 8,000.

THIEF BREAKS ANKLE.

Jumps Off Porch When Discovered by Policeman, but is Caught.

While on post yesterday morning about 4 o'clock Special Policeman William Howell at Summit saw a man working at a window from the roof of the porch of the house owned by John H. Wisner, and occupied for the season by Luke Burke, a New York contractor, in Hobart avenue. The policeman was seen by the man, who jumped to the ground, a distance of fifteen feet, and started to run.

Howell fired three shots in the air, and the man dropped to the ground. Howell's shots brought Policeman Sheridan, and they obtained a wagon and took the man to the police station. Dr. W. J. Lamson found the man had broken his ankle in jumping, and that when he tried to run away the broken bone had badly lacerated the flesh.

The prisoner gave his name as James McCann, 62 years old, and said he came from Easton. He told the police that he had gone up on the porch to sleep. The window was found to be partly open, and an inch chisel was found on the ground near the house.

Think They Have Old Crook.

In the arrest of Charles Krueger, who says he lives in New York and Philadelphia, the police of Belleville and Newark believe they have one of the burglars who have been operating so extensively in Essex county towns. Krueger was captured by the police of this town after having robbed the home of Arthur L. Sayre, in Rutger street, Belleville.

INDICT CRIMINAL LAWYER IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Henry H. Cook, Middlesex county's most prominent criminal lawyer, was indicted by the Grand Jury at New Brunswick yesterday, charged with attempted extortion. It is alleged that Mr. Cook, being an officer of the court, demanded a sum of money from one Mary Guillon, of South River, under threat of criminal prosecution of the woman, without any authority of his office so to do.

Mr. Cook has practiced in the courts at New Brunswick for many years, and is to defend a murder case today and another next week. The charge caused a big sensation in court circles yesterday. It is understood that the matter was brought to the attention of the rand Jury by Mrs. Guillon's husband.

The Guillons allege that the charge, which was to be suppressed if they would pay the money, was selling liquor without a license.

RAILROAD STATION IS ROBBED DURING NIGHT.

When Station Agent Elwell opened the Central Railroad station at Califon yesterday, he found the office had been ransacked by thieves during the night.

Entrance had been effected by removing a pane of window glass and unlocking the sash. Express packages were opened and the contents taken. The value of the packages are yet undetermined. A small amount of change was overlooked.

Last week theieves entered the freight station and stole a box of bologna. The next day the box and part of the contents were found in the woods, near the tracks between Califon and Hoffmans. A fire had been kindled there, and it was thought the theft was the work of tramps. Friday night thieves entered the Middle Valley freight station and stole twelve hams and two cases of corned beef. Entrance was effected by forcing the door.

Isaac H. Hoffman's creamery at Hoffmans, was also entered by forcing a lock Friday night. The thieves helped themselves liberally to milk and carried away some lactometers and measuring rods.

Military Prisoner Escapes.

Sergeant Arthur Rice, who is under a three years' military prison sentence for forgery, escaped from the guardhouse at Fort Hancock on Saturday night. He has not yet been captured. Rice was recently court martialled and found guilty of having issued forged brass checks, such as are used at the post exchange for payment of purchases and often circulated as coin among the men.

Clothing Makers on Strike.

All of the employes in Eisner's clothing factory, numbering about three hundred, have gone on a strike on account of a cut in wages. The factory has now closed down. There are a number of girls from Red Bank and neighboring towns who work in the factory. When they went to work this morning the Italians would not permit them to enter the factory.

SANITARY BED COMFORTABLES.

Most people are particular about their bed covering and it is to such people that we want to tell about our "Perfection" Comfortables. They are made in an absolutely sanitary, non-sweatshop factory, are filled with clean white new cotton, entirely free from waste and shoddy. By a special process the filling is carded in one sheet, making it very fluffy and light; the covering is silkoline and sateen nicely tufted in light aud dark colors. It's really hard to tell them from a home-made comfortable. They range in price as follows:

1.19, 1.59, 1 98, 2.25, 2.39, 3.25 and 4.50.

WOMEN'S TAILORED SUITS

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A party was given last night by Mrs. Attlee on the occasion of her son Victor's birthday. The rooms were beautifully decorated with a profusion of fern and autumn leaves. Refreshments and games occupied the hours until midnight. The following were among the invited guests: Mr. and Russell Pyatt, Gladys Thorne, Pearl Shrope, Lorena and Lloyd Harris, Edward Teeple, Elwood Johnson, Laura Teeple, Edward Norman, William Teeple, Lizzie Geary, Edward Hannon, Mabel Pace, Andrew McDonough, John Miller.

Laurence Gerrity, a New York boy, who has been spending the summer with Mrs. Samuel Pyatt, has returned home. Mrs. Pyatt is suffering from a nervous collapse brought about through her anxiety over her son's accident.

A peach and cream festival followed by a dance will be given by the Young People's Social Club this evening in Washington hall.

Mr. and Miss Fitzgerald, who have been staying at Brookside during the summer, returned to their home in New York.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet for its September session at the Baptist parsonage at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"Vacation Experiences" will be the topic of the prayer meeting this evening at the Baptist church.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The low branches on the shade trees along Front street are being cut off. The work is being done by the Township Committee. The trimming out will make a decided improvement, both in the looks of the trees and by allowing the electric lights to shed some of the light on the sidewalks.

The Township Committee are arranging to have the grove at the head of Front street cleared of the poles and hydrant, teh intention being to throw the space into the roadway so as to give more room on the corner for vehicles and automobiles.

The local ball team play the Rahway F. C. at Rahway Saturday afternoon. The locals won the first game in the series by a score of 7-4. While the Rahways defeated the Clinton Avenue team Saturday by the score of 3-0.

Miss Louise Meyer, who has been ill for two weeks with appendicitis, is convalescent and is able to leave her room for a time now each day.

The Misses Wormsers, of Sterling, have been visiting their aunt, Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street.

Rev. and Mrs. Franklin Mathiews, of the manse, have been entertaining out-of-town friends.

PERSONAL.

Fred Haynes, of the First National Bank, has returned from his annual vacation.

Miss Anna L. Case, of Madison avenue, has returned from her summer vacation.

William H. Abbott, of West Eighth street, who is ill with typhoid fever, is improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss I. Minton, of East Sixth street, have returned from a sojourn at the seashore.

Miss Elinor Kennedy, of New York, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James J. Shappe, of John street.

Miss Florence Cutting and mother are spending a few days visiitng friends in Brooklyn and New York.

Miss Maude E. Swilling, of Lavonia, Georgia, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Frank W. Morse, of Central avenue.

Mrs. Amanda Maxson and daughter, Miss Mabel Maxson, of West Fifth street, have returned home from their summer vacation.

Miss Emma H. Ryno, of Codington avenue, and Miss Stella Kline, of Somerset street, returned yesterday from Stanton, N. J., where they have been for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Frank B. Bostwick and son, of Gibraltar, are en route for Plainfield, where they will spend some time with Mrs. Bostwick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Muser, of New York, left today on the Kaiser Wilhelm II for a two months' trip abroad. Mrs. Muser is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, accompanied by their niece, Miss C. L. Frost, of Canada, will sail on the Majestic for England tomorrow. They expect to return before Christmas.

Mrs. C. E. Ketcham and son, Donald, of Sanford avenue, retuned Saturday from Potsdam, N. Y., where they have been spending the summer with Mrs. Ketcham's mother, Mrs. Thomas Charters.

Nurse (announcing the expected) —Professor, it's a little boy.

Professor (absent-mindedly) — Well, ask him what he wants.—Boston Transcript.

SPEAK YOUR MIND ONCE IN A WHILE.

If we "talk over" our friends' faults and failings with other people we forget the right to find fault with them direct. And to be on such a footing with the people near to you that you can find friendly fault with them and they with you is good for every one concerned.

There are times when you must speak; when you ought to speak, when it will clear the air and put things on a better footing if you do speak.

We can't go far wrong if, when we find fault, we remember that if the tables were turned hard things might quite truly be said about ourselves. We are all living in houses of glass—but we should never make any progress if we waited to be perfect before finding fault with other people who are not perfect, either.

When we have learned to give and to take criticism with entire good humor, "with malice toward none and charity toward all," we shall be several steps on the way toward being comfortable people to live with.

For bottled-up grievances make it exceedingly difficult to live in love and charity with our neighbors. They are irritated with us—we don't know what and they don't know why we are cool to them. Obviously, it would be much better if they could speak out, and we could speak out, too.

What happens generally is that in some moment of irritation they speak very plainly. And we retaliate in "you're another" sort of way, trotting out a grievance of our own to show that certainly they have no reason to find fault.

Killed at Grade Crossing.

One of the four dangerous grade crossings at Seabright claimed another victim yesterday morning, when Rose O'Hara, a laundress, employed at the summer home of E. Fliteman, was struck and instantly killed by the express train due at the Seabright station at 6:59 o'clock

USE ALL THE LINENS IN ROTATION.

How provoking it is to find certain of the sheets and napkins wearing out before the rest and from too steady use, so that when you want a large number for company occasions you find they do not match in appearance.

Equally inconvenient is it to find one or two of each of your garments—Shoes, collars and shirtwaists—becoming suddenly too worthless to keep rotating at the laundry. Perhaps this is because we always pick out our favorite, or, in the case of the household linens, it may be that we use the same sets over and over by mere chance.

The solution to the difficulty is explained by the bride of a year. She says: "My husband taught me the trick of keeping everything rotating He had at least six pairs of everyday shoes, which he kept in a row in the closet, and each night he put the pair of shoes he had worn that day at the extreme end of the row, and pushed the row along; then the next morning he started out with the pair from the near end. Of course, once in a while a pair grew too thing for further use, but he always bought a new pair and worked them into line. It was just the same with his collars and cuffs and shirts and all—the ones that came home from the laundry each week he put at the bottom of the pile, and so he was always carrying out the plan of rotation in his belongings—only I do it now for him.

"I remember visiting once where the hostess took me into her linen closet while she put away the clean things, and she put the fresh sheets and pillow slips and towels at the bottom; only I think she kept everything in dozens, for I remember her saying that it brought the 'wear'—as she called it—more evenly on eacvh of the dozen pieces. I've been doing that way myself ever since."

PRETTY SIDEBOARD COVERS IN COLORS.

Useful covers for table and sideboards are of blue linen, hemstitched, and edged with Irish peasant lace.

The linen may—in fact, must—be coarse, and it is very inexpensive Blue does not soil easily, while the lace is all that could be desired—made of linen thread and quite inexpensive.

If the cover is intended for the sideboard the lace and hemstitching need be on only three sides; the selvage serving for the side nearest the wall. The hems of these covers should be about two inches broad.

Covers in colors are praticularly adapted to seashore and country houses, but covers of natural linen, edged with white lace, are handsome enough to be used anywhere.

The Irish peasant lace is a really beautiful fabric, though it is too heavy for any purpose save for household furnishing.

IF YOU NEED A NEW HAT NOW.

If occasion demands a new hat, not one of fall type, but a new one for general wear to take the place of the dilapidated summer one, then get one of the rough white straw hats with the Charlotte Corday crown. It should be trimmed with ruffles of ribbon, and if white plumes are worn the hat will be given a much neater appearance, though some hats lately seen have depended wholly upon glossy white satin ribbon upon the dull white foundation for all necessary trimming, and certainly it is a style to be recommended. However, in recommending this hat one must bear in mind that the coiffure must be considered, for the hair must be padded by artificial means to fill out the spaces below the hat brim, which would look somewhat grotesque unless the finishing touch was imparted by the wearer.

The Ever Popular Shantung.

As was only to be expected, the neat tailor-made shantung suit has gone apace, and has successfully achieved all the eclat predicted. Even the heavier ribbed quality, which, truth to tell, tailors far and away the best, is the perfection of coolness, as the extra substance enables a lining to be dispensed with. The colorings, more particularly the green and cinnamon tones, are so admirable, and our best couturieres do not so far evince any inclination to be other than severe in style with these shantung suits, eschewing the elaborated vague voatee in favor of a moderate length cutaway style fitting the figure closely .

Bad Gin.

Mrs. Podunk—I dew think it's outrageous to send our fleets over to Japan.

Mr. Podunk—Oh, shaw, ma! It's jest on a friendly visit. Why is it outrageous?

Mrs. Podunk—Why, them sailors will be full on them Japanese Jinrikishas the hull time.—Judge.

Wasn't Precociously Bright.

Judge—Madam, this court as indisputable proof that your age is 30, yet you say you are only 24. How do you explain this?

Witness—Well, your honor, I can only say that I was 6 before I learned to count.—Boston Transcript.

William Jones, of East Third street, has returned from Boston, where he spent a part of his vacation.

GRANDMOTHER'S GINGERBREAD

A well-made gingerbread is much better cake on certain occasions than a fruit cake, and is quite superior to a coarsely made cake. A chocolate icing is particularly nice on a molasses sponge cake flavored with ginger. To make this cake put into a pan two cupfuls of molasses, a cup and three-quarters lard and butter mixed or all butter, a tablespoonful of ginger and the same amount of hot water poured over a tablespoonful of soda. Stir in enough flour to make a batter about as stiff as for a sponge cake.

It should be soft enough to spread out when poured in a biscuit pan. As gingerbread burns easily, it should protected at top and bottom. An asbestos griddle set under the pan is a protection against scorch. When the cake is done lift the pan out of the oven without jarring, and let it remain in the tin until nearly cold. For the icing, stir two squares of unsweetened grated chocolate with two to five tablespoonfuls sugar. Add three tablespoonfuls of boiling water and stir the mixture over the fire until smooth and glossy. Spread on evenly while the cake is a trifle warm, then let it remain in the pan until cold. Cut in squares and, when the icing is hard, lift it out.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out paragraph 3 of section I, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding that office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII, three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State, or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division, who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI, of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragrapns 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms, and may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

CHAS. HOWARD MONTAGUE AND C. W. DYAR

(Copyright, by The Cassell Publishing Co.)

"To be sure I did," said the inspector, "and she expresses complete ignorance. I think I'll make some inquiries of Stackhouse as to whether there was any such man to his knowledge associated with North in business, before giving the thing to the newspapers."

"To be sure," said the inspector; "but it's doubtful. Apparently North attached no importance to the communication, for if he had made any talk about it, we should have heard of the thing before."

With the letter in his pocket, Inspector Applebee set out at once in quest of the junior partner.

Inspector Applebee, however, had some difficulty in finding Thornton Stackhouse.

The fact was that at this moment he was engaged in an earnest conference with Detective John Lamm at the latter's office.

"I have come to you, Mr. Lamm," Mr. Stackhouse had said, as soon as Mr. Lamm had closed the door of the inner office, "for the purpose of giving you a little information with reference to personal matters, which I ought, perhaps, to have mentioned to you before."

Stackhouse looked rather perturbed, and refrained from meeting the steady gaze of the man whom he addressed.

"I trust," said Lamm, "that it is not too late now."

"No," rejoined Stackhouse, nervously; "no, it is not too late for you; for me it may be."

There was something despondently apprehensive in the tones of the man as he said these words, but overcoming with apparent effort his tendency to despair, he went on at once in a tone of forced briskness:

"Mr. Lamm, I intrusted you in the first place with all that occurred to me to have any special bearing upon the North case, when I engaged you."

The detective's raised eyebrows evidently conveyed his surprise at this statement, for Stackhouse went on immediately: "Yes; it is not about that, but about things immediately growing out of it that I have come to speak to you now, Mr. Lamm; in other words of my serious domestic troubles. And, believe me, I could not say to you what I now do if I did not know that I am speaking to a trustworthy man in absolute confidence."

Mr. Lamm made an appreciative gesture.

"The truth is, sir, that I am utterly unable to account for the extraordinary conduct of my wife. Up to the day of this murder, sir, since the time that I married her, Mr. Lamm, we have been on the best of terms—the best of terms," he repeated, reflectively, as if half losing himself in dreamy reminiscence.

"And since?" the detective insinuated.

Mr. Stackhouse's reply involved a substantially accurate description of the scene which had followed his arrival at home on the afternoon of the 17th of June, a statement which it may naturally be conceived caused the detective far less astonishment than it might have in some circumstances. But John Lamm was delighted to have an opportunity to discuss this matter with his client.

"And how do you account for this?" he queried.

"I don't account for it," answered Stackhouse. "I cannot account for it. It is a great and frightful nightmare; the puzzle of my whole life. Believe me, sir, you know absolutely as much about it as I do."

"Still," suggested Mr. Lamm, "you might have means of surmising which I do not possess."

"Ah, indeed," returned Stackhouse, "and if it were not for that fact I should not have come here. Yes, indeed, I do have means of surmising, Mr. Lamm. My wife, as an explanation of her impossible conduct, simply uttered a name which, I am sorry to say, I know altogether too well—"

"The name was—?"

"Marie Moissot."

"Ah!" said the detective. "A curious name; French?"

"No, curse her," returned Stackhouse, vindictively. "She was a Creole, I tell you, Lamm, and a jealous, dangerous woman. I knew her years ago, but certainly had almost forgotten her existence until this day, when I find her name upon my wife's lips."

"Plainly," said the detective, as Stackhouse hesitated, "what did you know of this woman?"

Stackhouse averted his eyes and drummed moodily upon the desk with his fingers for a considerable space without replying.

"Mr. Lamm," he said at last, "the Moissot episode in my experience is one I am not fond of calling to mind. I met the girl when she was about 16 years old—where it matters not—I thought I was fond of her—and was caught in the snares of her pretty face. My acquaintance with her did not last long. The vindictive temper and insane jealousy of the girl, who was more of a woman than most of our northern females of twice her age, warned me that I had made a mistake."

"The parting was not voluntary on her part?"

Stackhouse ground his teeth; his lips were dry and feverish; under the table his fists, the detective noticed, were clenched.

"Certainly not," said Stackhouse. "That would have been impossible."

"Ah!" said the detective. "Unfortunate."

"Unfortunate!" echoed Stackhouse. "Good heavens, man, it was madness—insanity!"

"And—poor policy," added the detective, significantly. "But bygones are irretrievable. And so it is this woman whom you suspect to have poisoned your wife's mind against you? Well, sir, have you told me all that is necessary for me to know?"

"There is nothing else of the past that concerns you and me, Mr. Lamm," said Stackhouse, nervously, wiping the perspiration from his brow, "except this. Eight years ago I accidentally heard that Marie Moissot was living in New York under another name. A few years later an adventuress blazed into notoriety in the great metropolis under the name of Mme. Perle, who tallied well with the description of this Marie. That she was the same person I am unable definitely to determine. I have only seen her photograph. I did not investigate nearer."

Detective Lamm was becoming hugely interested.

"So, so," he exclaimed. "Well, and what have you done?"

"Done!" echoed Stackhouse, giving him a startled look.

"Yes, I mean recently, since the trouble with your wife—with reference to obtaining information concerning this woman."

"I'll be entirely frank with you," said Stackhouse. "I hesitated about making anybody a confidant in this purely personal matter. I therefore inserted an advertisement in Monday morning's papers, offering to pay for information of this woman. That advertisement was answered, and it brought me to a house in Shawmut avenue, where I have excellent reasons for believing that this woman has been; which shows conclusively that my surmises in regard to her having poisoned my wife's mind in person were correct. But my efforts to see this Marie have been baffled by the intervention of a cunning demon in petticoats whom she deputed to meet me. I have written to her, but receiving no reply am obliged to place the matter in your hands. Mr. Lamm, do you think you can help me?"

Nothing could conceal the intense anxiety, the almost hungry look of supplication in the junior partner's face.

"Ah!" said the detective to himself, "whatever this man's past may have been, one thing of his present life is eminently plain. He loves his wife."

"And you, then, don't suspect," he said, aloud, "this woman of complicity in the murder of your partner?"

"I suspect her of nothing that is good and everything that is bad," said Stackhouse, bitterly. "I know that this woman hates me with one of those hatreds that will never forget nor forgive. Wherever I am so long as she lives I am in danger. She is revengeful, and, more than all, accomplished and unscrupulous."

"Accomplished?" repeated Lamm, quickly. "Do you use that word intentionally, Mr. Stackhouse?"

"I certainly do," replied Thornton Stackhouse. "She has all the native ability of a naturally shrewd and cunning woman, who has lost less by the neglect of her education in letters than she has gained through her direct contact with the world."

"Well, then," said Lamm, drawing a full breath, "I cannot work in the dark. I must have the fullest possible description of Marie Moissot at the very latest hour known to you."

"Of course," said Stackhouse, quickly, "I knew that and came prepared. I have brought you the photograph I spoke of. It was obtained for me seven years ago by a friend of mine—the photograph of Mme. Perle! All I can say of it is that if Mme. Perle be not Marie Moissot, the resemblance between the two women is strange and striking indeed."

John Lamm had some difficulty to conceal his delight as Thornton Stackhouse placed upon the table before his eyes the counterfeit presentment of the object of Thornton Stackhouse's fears.

There was no question about it. Mme. Perle was Mme. Raymond!

When Thornton Stackhouse reissued from John Lamm's den the efficient custodians who kept him constantly under surveillance had already notified Inspector Applebee of his whereabouts. Mr. Stackhouse was therefore surprised to find a hand laid lightly upon his shoulder.

"One thing," said the voice of the inspector in his ear; "just one thing, Mr. Stackhouse. I won't detain you a moment. Do you know, or have you ever known, a person calling himself Albert Runyon?"

Stackhouse staggered and steadied himself against the building for support. He fairly gasped for breath.

"What's the matter?" said the inspector, with quick suspicion.

"It is my heart," said Stackhouse, hurriedly. "A sudden start you gave me. I have trouble that way. The life insurance physicians have warned me."

"Excuse me," apologized the inspector. "I didn't mean to startle you The object of my inquiry you will find by reading this letter, which seems to have been sent anonymously to your partner about six weeks ago."

Stackhouse took the letter and read it, and at the end his agitation had almost vanished. He gave it back, coolly, to the officer.

"I am sorry I cannot help you," he said; "the man is an utter stranger to me."

CHAPTER XIX.

THE HEAD OF THE SERPENT.

Without denying that the press, in these days of sharp news competition, occasionally clogs the wheels of justice in the effort to supply the public with the latest news in great criminal affairs (in little ones, where the interest is not great, there is little fault to be found), it must none the less be said that in most cases the extreme publicity given to the details becomes in itself a mighty engine of detection. Possessed of all the facts, the entire public is resolved into a detective force. The salient points of the case, which in other countries are kept profoundly secret among a few men, are in everybody's mouth. The people are made familiar with the appearance, the histories, the peculiar facts in the lives of the victim, and of those suspected of complicity in the crime. The result is that a few hours after the publication of the important details of a mysterious crime people begin to flock to the offices of the great newspapers, eager to contribute the mite of information which they possess. As time goes on, and the facts gain a wider and wider circulation, even that ever-lessening circle which poverty, ignorance or stupidity isolates from the fountain-head of general information, the newspaper, is reached, and if there is any suspicious fact known to any disinterested person in the community it is more than likely to be brought to light through the same peculiar channel.

The North case was certainly not an anomaly in this respect. North & Stackhouse were too well known through their dealings with the public not to have left all sorts of "clews" and suspicious circumstances in the past, which were sure to come out as soon as the dreadful crime set everybody talking about them. To Thomas were referred daily several people who came to the Globe office for the purpose of affording, through that journal, some assistance in carrying on the important investigation, which, though as yet so little successful, had set everybody agog with wonder. From these people the reporter learned that North and Stackhouse had many enemies, more or less bitter and personal, rising from their questionable business transactions; but there was nothing which impressed him as sufficiently promising to be important until the morning of Saturday, June 25, a gentleman called who related a little circumstance which seemed to him pregnant with possible significance. It certainly lacked no element of romantic and mysterious interest.

It was an episode in a Boston broker's office in which a very pretty woman figured. The man could not recall all the details, but he recollected that this woman had preceded him in the occupancy of an inner office, and that while he was waiting for her to come out he heard scraps of a very animated conversation of which North & Stackhouse were the subject. In the partition between the outer and inner office were a series of large windows, which were generally in various degrees of openness. As he stood with his back against the partition, the narrator could not well avoid hearing the conversation between the broker and his fair client, and after the glimpse he had caught of the latter his curiosity was considerably aroused. The broker seemed to have been defending the reputation of North & Stackhouse, on the ground that it was necessary to expect just such phenomena in the stock market, but the woman, who seemed to have been a heavy loser in the Nicaragua Midland, was unsparing in her denunciations of the firm, which she delivered in not especially choice English with a slight foreign accent, but in the bitterest and most vindictive tone imaginable.

"Hush!" said the broker, suddenly; "there is Mr. Stackhouse now." And sure enough, the junior partner of the aforesaid firm was crossing the office at that minute. Immediately there was a suppressed scream, followed by a rustle of silk, and the door between the inner and outer offices closed with a violence that caused the listener to rebound from the partition. The clerks looked up from their writing. Stackhouse himself appeared slightly startled, but he seemed to be in a hurry and transacted his business and hastened out in a short space of time. Meanwhile in the inner office the broker was addressing his client in tones of solicitous alarm. What was the matter?

"And do you mean to tell me that that man was this Mr. Stackhouse, of North & Stackhouse?" the woman said, hurriedly.

"To be sure he is," answered the broker.

"And it is to that man that I was intrusting my money?"

There was such a dangerous inflection in the woman's voice that the broker was apparently surprised into silence, and immediately she broke out in the most violent imprecations and epithets which the listener had ever heard pass a woman's lips.

GOLF.

"This is the reign of the personal equation in American golf courses," says the Philadelphia North American. "The amateur championship which began yesterday gains in interest because it is over the reconstructed course of the Garden City Golf Club, a transformation in which the committee accepted the ideas of and left most of the work to Walter J. Travis.

"The open championship at Myopia recently was over a course synonymous with the ideas of Herbert C. Leeds. On Peconic bay the national golf course is being made ready on principles laid down by Charles B. Macdonald, the result of his observation in this country and abroad.

"He has the backing of a wealthy group of golfers, but the rich men are also gaining or planning courses on their own account, for John D. Rockfeller has two of them, and John W. Gates has announced that he will lay out the finest course in the world on a Texas property. Should the course afford an opportunity to gratify the other sporting tastes said to be possessed by its sponsor, the Gates links certainly will be unique.

"On a course intended merely for private use—the picnic form of golf—the public, save when attracted by the odd or unique has no need to concern itself with the arrangements. It is the reverse on courses that are in line to be called on at any time to hold national championships. Then the golfers have the right to ask if the making of the hazards has been to really make the course more attractive or if the work has been done to enhance the chances to win of a favorite son of the green.

"The club to yield too much to the latter influence will seldom admit it. For one thing, wherever a club has developed a favorite golfing son it has as surely created in its ranks as moths rush to the flame a group of his imitators. They accept all the ideas of the favorite son as gospel truth, and cannot perceive that he has made a string of hazards to suit his own game, when they suit their own games nearly as well.

"Besides, the club committee has at all times the crushing reply to make of 'progression' and to claim that tomorrow other clubs will be imitating their work. A national tournament bestows on every participant a right of open criticism of the course that is not conferred to the guest at an invitation tournament. If the personal equation has resulted in a selfish arrangement of hazards, it is the duty of the participant from without the fold to proclaim his opinions, so that the hazards before there is another national tournament may be changed to treat with fairness the game of the greater number.

"But although Travis has dominated the making of the Garden City Golf Club's course, the charge is not justified that he has been actuated by the consideration of his own strength or weakness in the game.

"Travis wins more often there than on any other green, a statement that proclaims he is the ruling favorite for the pending tournament, but it is exceptional that a golfer is not four to five strokes better each round on his own course than elsewhere. The home course is most often the chosen place of his practice or pleasure rounds, and it would be strange, indeed, if Travis were not hard to beat at Garden City."

BASEBALL.

Many of the fans believe that Frank Farrell made a mistake when he picked Elberfield as a manager, instead of Willie Keeler.

Cecil Ferguson, of Boston, has three times forced runners home this season by giving passes.

Cleveland, it is said, is willing to give practically the whole team for Hal. Chase, but there is nothing doing.

MEN'S SINGLES RESULTS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

The men's singles championship tennis tournament was started at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, when the preliminary, first and second rounds were played. In the preliminary round H. L. De Forest defeated H. S. Brown, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated H. J. Cochran, 6-1, 7-5, and T. M. Day won from J. D. Williams by default.

In the first round W. L. Righter deefated W. Lester Glenney, 8-6, 6-1; Owen H. Fleming, defeated Daniel Runkle, 6-0, 6-0; J. R. Shoemaker deefated C. A. King, 6-1, 6-3; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated H. E. De Forest, 6-0, 6-0; C. B. Tyler defeated T. M. Day, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1; W. Wadsworth defeated L. M. Mead, 6-2, 6-1; A. D Beers deefated Arthur Lovell, 6-0, 6-1, and S. W. Merrihew, defeated T. M. Day, 3d, 6-2, 6-0.

In the second round W. L. Righter defeated Owen H. Fleming, 6-2, 6-1; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated J. R. Shoemaker, 6-0, 6-0; W. Wadsworth defeated C. B. Tyler, 6-3, 6-3, and A. D. Beers, 6-2, 6-1. The semi-finals and finals will be played on Saturday.

Abbott Did Not Qualify.

Robert Abbott, of the Plainfield Country Club, failed to qualify in the opening eighteen holes of medal play for the fourteenth amateur championship yesterday at Garden City. He returned a score of 92 He was not alone, however, for some of the best players in the country also failed to get below that score.

Women's Tennis Tournament.

Play for the women's singles championship tennis tournament will begin on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. All entries should be made to Miss Sarah Schuyler, 319 East Seventh street, telephone number 265-J, not later than Friday night.

Montclair Horse Show.

The third annual horse show at Montclair will be held at that place on Saturday, October 10. There are twenty-three events on the program and in addition to the cups and money prizes the usual ribbons will be awarded to the first, second and third in each event.

Ends Life to Escape Suffering.

Driven to despair by intense suffering from eczema, with which he had suffered for the last two years, George F. VanDerveer, a brother of former Assemblyman E. I. VanDerveer, committed suicide by cutting his throat in the yard of his home at Freehold, in East Main street, yesterday. The body was found by his wife about 8 o'clock this morning. Beside him lay a razor, with a handkerchief wrapped about the handle, and a note addressed to his wife.

Three Held in Robbery.

Three young men, all of whom said their homes were in Manahttan, were held yesterday in the First Criminal Court, Jersey City, on suspicion of being concerned in the robbing of James W. Carroll in the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Jersey City on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Carroll is from Gastonia, N. C., and had been visiting Atlantic City. While in the Pennsylvania station some one stole $150 from him.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday night.

ENGAGE SEWER ENGINEER

Hering and Hall to Make Survey for the Proposed Trunk Line Sewer Syetem.

NEW COMMITTEE IS NAMED.

Chairman Mygatt Appoints Representatives to Look After Work—Contract Price Agreed On.

Substantial progress was made last night with the propcsition to establish a trunk line sewer to include Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook and East Bound Brook, as previously outlined. Although Somerville and Raritan were not represented, assurances were received that these towns want to join in the movement and will arrange to attend future conferences.

Upon the recommendation of the finance committee appointed a week ago to investigate the question, it was unanimously decided to engage Hering & Fuller, of New York, as engineers to make the priliminary survey, in preference to Alexander Potter, who offered to do the work for $600. Hering & Fuller's price for all the towns, exclusive of Somerville and Raritan was $1,200 and $1,500 if these two towns are included. The recommendation of the committee, which was reported by Chairman R. I. Tolles, was adopted through a resolution offered by Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield.

This apportionment of the expense for the preliminary investigation was approved by a vote:

Plainfield, $500; North Plinafield, $300; Dunellen, $100; Bound Brook, $225; East Bound Brook, $25; Somerville, $225; Raritan, $125. If Somerville and Raritan withdraw the apportionment will be as follows Plainfield, $525; North North Plainfield,, $325; Dunellen, $125; Bound Brook and East Bound Brook, $225, which makes a total of $1,200. Under the first named apportionment the expense will be $1,500.

It is understood that Hering & Fuller are to look to each municipality for its share of the expense, and it is further agreed that this amount is to be added to the general cost of the trunk sewer if it is decided to build the same.

It was suggested that an engineering committee to be comprised of a representative from each municipality, be appointed by Chairman F. E. Mygatt, and he made the following selections: Plainfield, Councilman C. C. Randolph; North Plainfield, Joseph O. Osgood; Dunellen, Lewis T. Churchill; Bound Brook, E. A. Lloyd; East Bound Brook, Hugh Pierce. Later this committee met and organized by selecting Mr. Osgood ac chairman. It will be the duty of the committee to confer with Hering & Fuller and furnishing the firm such information as it may desire. The firm will meet the committee tomorrow night when steps will be taken toward starting the work.

Upon the recommendation of Mayor Townsend, the chairman will also appoint a legal committee at his pleasure to handle such questions as may arise from time to time. As nothing further can be accomplished until a report is received from Hering & Fuller, it was decided to hold further conference at the call of the chair.

The work of Hering & Fuller will not only include a preliminary survey of the territory to be includded by the trunk sewer, but the report will contain facts and figures as to the feasibility and advisability of the scheme and the question as to the best location for sewage disposal.

Charged With Speed Violation.

Kall S. Batrounyi, an Assyrian shiemaker, who has an auto delivery wagon, was arrested on Park avenue, this morning, for exceeding the speed limit with his machine. According to Patrolman Dobson, wro preferred the charge against him, the vehicle was skimming over the brick pavement at the rate of eighteen miles an hour. Batrounyi engaged Walter L. Hetfield as counsel but owing to the latter's inability to get to court this morning the matter was adjourned until tomorrow.

County Valuation Increase.

In publishing the county valuations and Plainfield's tax rate yesterday, The Daily Press stated the total valuation of Plainfield to be $22,706,569, an increase of four and half millions over that of last year. The four and half millions increase is in the county valuation and not the city. The county valuation is $18,971,114.

FORCE OF HABIT LANDS GROCERY CLERK IN COURT

Force of habit was responsible for the appearance in the city court, this morning, of Joseph E. Plum, a grocery clerk, who was arraigned on Patrolman Saffron's charge that he had hitched his horse to a tree in violation of the city ordinance.

"I'm guilty, your Honor," Plum said when asked to plead, "and there is no excuse for me because I know the law."

That certainly is an honest admission," was Judge Runyon's comment, "but how came you to do it?"

"Simply force of habit, Your Honor. I've tied my horse to that same tree twice a day for the past four years and I've gotten so accustomed to doing it that I believe I could do it with my eyes shut."

The novel excuse made good with the judge and Plum was discharged with a warning to put a string on his finger to remind him to pass by the tree that has been a hitching post for so long.

DR. WM. BARBER CHOICE OF 5TH DIST. DEMOCRATS

According to James Martine, who was pitted against Charles N. Fowler two years ago, former State Senator William Barber, of Phillipsburg, will be the unanimous choice of the Fifth District Democrats for the congressional nomination. "'I had a long talk with Dr. Barber on Tuesday," said Martine today, "and from what I learn I feel satisfied that he will be the unanimous choice of our party. He would make a most credi table candidate."

The nomination goes to Warren this time by the custom of rotation among the three counties. It is said to be quite likely that at the invitation of Warren, Mr. Martine will place Dr. Barber in nomination.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET TO APPEAR IN PLAINFEILD SOON

Joseph McIntyre, of Watchung avenue, whose chamber music concerts last season attracted such widespread interest among lovers of music, announces that he will give four concerts this winter at the Casino, the first of which will be on Thursday, November 19. There will be the usual trio with an assisting artist.

There will be unusual interest in the announcement that Mr. McIntyre has arranged to bring the famous Kneisel quartet to Plainfied on Wednesday evening, December 16, and judging by the number of subscriptions received the quartet will be breeted by a capacity audience. The quartet appeared here ten years ago. It is considered the best now appearing in this part of the country.

The dates for the other two concerts have not been definitely decided upon as yet, but they will be given early in the New eYar, and will be of as high character as those in the past. Mr. McIntyre expects to bring several prominent soloists here which will add to the attractiveness of the concerts.

Bad Spots in Brick Pave.

Several bad spots have been noticed in the brick pavement, especially on West Front street, and it is the opinion of those interested that they should be repaired before they grow worse from the constant travel. Contractor C. M. Meeker is still under bonds to reapir the pavement where it is needed and before that bond expires the Councilmanic street committee will probably see that the work is done.

A Record Quarry Blast.

One of the largest blasts ever set off at the Smalley stone quarry in the Notch, was fired yesterday afternoon. The charge comprised 250 pounds of dynamite and dislodged an amount of solid rock estimated at 8,000 tons. The blast was witnessed by a large number of city and borough men who were invited up by former Mayor N. B. Smalley.

Mrs. Weber's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. George Weber was held yesterday afternoon at her late home on Stebbins place. The service was in charge of Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and burial was at Hillside. The floral tributes included a set piece from the trolley employes, Mr. Weber being a motorman on the Fourth street line.

Says "Dump" Is All Right.

Daniel Conway, who has charge of the "city dump" on Dunellen, denies that there are any foul odors coming from the stuff dumped there. He says that the dump is kept in first-class condition and adds that the complaints come from residents in the vicinity who object to their neighbors dumping garbage there.

DR. FRANK S. WELLS WEDS

Miss Anna T. Wooden, Dentist's Bride, Ceremony Being Performed by Rev. Mr. Shaw.

WAS A QUIET CEREMONY.

Only Attendants a Niece and Nephew of the Bride—Coupe to Reside on Grant Avenue.

Miss Anna T. Wooden, daughter of Mrs. Eliza Ann Wooden, of Orchard place, and Dr. Frank S. Wells, of Grant avenue, were married at 6 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's mother in the presence of about fifty guests. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which the bride and groom are both members. The only attendants were Dorothy Wooden, as flower girl, and George Wooden, as page. The former is a neice and the latter a nephew of the bride.

The bride was gowned in white Liberty satin and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The couple, preceded by the flower girl and page, entered the parlor while the Loehengrin Wedding March was rendered on the piano by Miss Ethel Morris, a niece of the groom. After the ceremony congratulations were offered and supper was served. Later Dr. and Mrs. Wells left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and Washington. They will reside on Grant avenue upon their return.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion, there being a profusion of palms and potted plants, the color scheme being green and white. In the parlor where the ceremoney was performed there was a large wedding bell of green and white.

The bride received a large collection of gifts, including a handsome diamond pin from the groom, silverware, cut-glass, goldware and linen.

The groom has been a resident of this city for many years and is engaged in the practice of dentistry. He is prominent as a member and worker at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Mrs. Wells is also active in church work and both have a host of friends.

Middlekauff Case Adjourned.

The case of E. D. Middlekauff, who is charged with running his automobile at a reckless rate of speed on East Front street several weeks ago at which time the machine was in collision with a tree, was called in the city court this morning. It was stated by former Judge William A Coddington, counsel for the defendant, that no word had been received from the State commissioner of motor vehicles, who is investigating the accident with a view to revoking the license, and he asked that an adjournment be made until this report is completed. Judge Runyon accordingly put the matter over for two weeks.

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Reception.

Extensive alterations are being made in the Y. M. C. A. at present. The boys rooms are being refitted with handsome rugs and new window seats. New games have been bought and a pool table has been set up in the amusement room. The work is expected to be completed October 1, and on that day a reception will be held for the members and their friends. About the same time an announcement of the work for the boys' department will be mad.

Attended State Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welsh were the delegates from Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, who attended the State Council convention held at Asbury Park on Tuesday, and George B. YOUNG LAWYER MISSING

HE HAS LEFT NO WORD.

May Have Left to Pursue Medical Course—No News at Office Where He was Employed.

Friends are alarmed over the continued absence of Louis Olson Barton a well-known local lawyer, who has not been seen here since Monday. The last seen of the young barrister was on Monday morning when he was observed boarding a train at the North avenue station for Philadelphia. Mr. Barton, it is said, has been separated from his wife for several months, but no reason is assigned for his sudden disappearance.

For several years Mr. Barton has been acting as an assistant in the law offices of Reed & Coddington. Only a few months ago he received his counsellor's papers. Recently he has talked much, it is said, about pursuing a course in medicine and was attraced to the prospectus of Temple College, Philadelphia.

According to reliable authority he was seen to go into the office of Reed & Coddington on Monday morning and to leave in a few minutes later. He left no word of his intention to go away and no one seems to know his whereabouts.

Mr. Barton is twenty-seven years of age, slender build and of light complexion. He has a quiet disposition.

FIREMEN OVERCOME AT A BOROUGH BLAZE

Two firemen were badly overcome by smoke and several others had narrow escapes in a blaze discovered shortly after 11 o'clock last night in the double-house at 20 and 22 Whitewood avenue, owned by John C. Cooper. The North Plainfield department fought the flames for nearly an hour before they were extinguished but kept them practically confined to one side of the structure. The loss is placed at $800, of which $600 is on the building and the remainder on contents.

Patrick McDonough and James De Camp were the firemen who were overcome and both had to be dragged out by Chief Woolston and Captain Terry. They were hard at work where the flames were burning the fiercest while the smoke was so dense that it was almost impossible to keep inside the house. Restoratives were applied when they were gotten to safety but they did not fully recover during the night.

The house is occupied by the families of Arthur Scott and James Polon and the blaze had is origin in the apartments of the latter. It is supposed to have started in a defective flue and was burning fiercely when discovered by the tenant. Polon telephoned to fire headquarters and a house alarm had just been sounded when a passerby pulled box 134. The department was greatly hampered in its work by the low water pressure due to the great amount of hose laid Fully 1,300 feet was required before the house could be reached.

Chief Howard Woolston was on the scene soon after the alarm was sounded and good work was accomplished. The flames had gotten a big start and worked up to the third floor of the Polon side but were headed off in their progress around the Scott apartment. The loss on the house is covered by insurance but the tenants will have no reimbursement for the damage to their furniture most of it caused by water.

Planning to Extend Work.

The preparation of Tarvia and "Asphaltoilene," which has been used on some of the streets in the city is meeting with such favor that probably the Councilmanisc street committee will plan to extend it another year. In the opinion of the committee two coats of the preparation should last three years and if this would do away with street sprinkling a considerable sum would be saved the taxpayers. Not a single complaint has been heard from residents along the streets that have been treated.

Helpful Meeting Tonight.

Adjutant and Mrs. E. J. Atkinson will conduct the meeting tonight in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street at 8 o'clock, assisted by the New Brunswick workers, preceded by a street service, corner Park avenue and Second street, at 7:30 o'clock. Special music and singing will be features. All are welcome.

LOSES $5,000 BY FIRE

Blaze at Eugene Van Court's, Oak Tree, Supposed to be of Incendiary Origin.

THE SUSPECT A COLORED MAN.

Investigation Being Made by Authorities—Two Horses and and a Cow Were Killed.

Fire, believed to be of incendiary origin was responsible for the loss of the large barn of Eugene VanCourt, at Oak Tree, at midnight last night, and two valuable horses, a cow, several wagons and farming implements were all destroyed by the flames before they could be rescued. The loss is estimated at $5,000. While the cause for the blaze is not definitely known, suspicion points to a colored man, formerly employed by Mr. Van Court, and who was discharged a few days ago.

The man in question would occasionally go on a spree and when in this condition was considered a dangerous character about the neighborhood. Since he was discharged he had not been seen in the vicinity of his former place of employment, but it is said that he was angered because of the fact that he lost his job. Mr. VanCourt has reported the matter to the authorities and they have been requested to be on the lookout for the man, who is described as being tall and slender and unusually black. His clothes are ordinary and the man has the appearance of being rather shiftless.

It was about midnight that Mr. VanCourt was awakened by the fire in his barn and hurriedly dressing himself he at once aroused his neighbors as best he could. Within a short time the people in the immediate vicinity had gathered, but despite their best efforts they were unable to save any of the contents of the structure. It is believed that the fire had been burning at least ten minutes before it was discovered by Mr. VanCourt and this gave it such a headway that it was impossible to extinguish it, especially as there was no adequate water supply available. The blaze illuminated the sky for miles around and was plainly visible in this city.

Mr. VanCourt is one of the best known citizens at Oak Tree, being engaged in the coal and farming business there. It is said that he discharged the colored man because of inefficiency.

Gave a Birthday Party.

A surprise party was given H. Lester Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Johns, of Duer street, Monday afternoon, in celebration of the eleventh anniversary of his birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games and vocal and instrumental music was a feature. Several piano selections were rendered by the Misses Edith Wheeler, Irma Coddington and Nellie Culver, after which refreshments were served. A birthday cake, bearing eleven lighted candles, was a feature. Master Johns received a number of gifts in honor of the event.

Hope Endeavorers Business Meeting.

At a business meeting of the Hope chapel Christian Endeavor Society last night, Peter C. Sweeny was elected delegate to the State convention of Endeavorers to be held at Atlantic City, October 7, 8 and 9. Miss Clara Hunter was elected a representative to the finance committee of the Plainfield Christion Endeavor Union and Frank Rimmer as special representative to the same organization. The society also voted to take charge of the regular evening church service on Rally day, the first Sunday in October.

Colered People Entertain.

Several young colored women of the East End tendered a reception and farewell dinner last night to a number of their friends who are soon to return to college. The affair was held on Berckman street, and the hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion. After dinner dancing was enjoyed. Those in charge were the Misses Elizabeth Bowzer, Anna Saunders, Mabel Peterson, Elvertso Marcellus, Mamie Gordon, Albertis Gordon, Gretta Crudup, Lottie Smith and Caroline Somerset.

FRED B. TALLAMY WEDS MISS EMMA F. BALDWIN

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends in the Dunellen Presbyterian church at 7 o'clock last evening, Miss Emma Edna Baldwin, daughter of Mrs. Emma L. Baldwin, of Dunellen, and Frederick Burgess Tallamy, son of William Tallamy, of West Front street, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Casselberry, the bride's pastor, with a double ring service.

Miss Baldwin was attended by her sister, Miss Annetta H. Baldwin, as maid of honor, while Percy Henry, of New York, cousin of the groom, was best man. The Misses Anna Ace and Iva Dayton, both of Dunellen acted as bridesmaids and the ushers were Bertram F., William J., and Louis V. Tallamy, brothers of the groom, and George F. Miller, of Dunellen. The bridal party was completed by John Cole, of Newark, uncle of the bride, who gave her in marriage. The wedding march was rendered by Robert Humpston, brother-in-law to the groom.

Miss Baldwin's gown was of Lear lace over white taffeta, trimmed with Lear lace and insertion. She wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor wore white net trimmed with valenciennes lace and insertion and carried white carnations. The bridesmaids wore sussine silk over pink taffeta and carried pink carnations.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. R. Hetfield, of North avenue, Dunellen. It was attended by many guests from Plainfield, Dunellen and other places and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Tallamy left for a brief honeymoon trip. On returning they will reside temporarily with the groom's parents and later will make their home on Morris street.

The decorations at the church were of potted plants and ferns while at the house they were of smilax and pink and white carnations.

Mr. Tallamy is a mason by occupation and is associated with his brothers in business. He has a wide local reputation as a vocalist and at the present time is tenor soloist in the North Presbyterian church, 143d street, New York. His bride has always been a resident of Dunellen.

In an exchange of gifts in the bridal party, the groom gave the bride a ruby ring, the best man pearl cuff buttons, the ushers pearl scarf pins and the organist an amethyst scarf pin. The bride's gifts to her attendants were pearl brooches

Enter New York University.

Roy Woodruff and John Wesley Dutcher, graduates of the Plainfield High School, and William Whitfield Giddes, graduate and valedictorian of the Dunellen High School, have entered New York University, where they will take a classical course. Giddes has been studying for the ministry under the supervision of Rev. E. C. Dutcher, pastor of the Dunellen M. E. church. John Dutcher will prepare himself to take a position as school principal. The young men have received scholarships from Chancellor Henry McCracken, of New York University. Mr. Giddes will preach in the Dunellen Methodist church Sunday night, his subject being 'Paul's Advice to Young Timothy." The pastor, Rev. E. C. Dutcher, will preach in the evening.

EXAMINES P. O. SITE BIDS

Commissioner Field, of Washington, Spends Two Days Looking Over the Ground.

OFFERS ARE MUCH TOO HIGH.

Government May Order Condemnation Proceedings—Only One Bid Within the Limit as Submitted.

William Fletcher Field, commissioner from the Treasury department at Washington, arrived in Plainfield yesterday for the purpose of inspecting various sites for the proposed Federal building to be located here, with the purpose of making a recommendation to the Government. There are six bona-fide offers of sites, but in all but one instance the prices asked far exceed the amount allowed for the purpose of a site, which is twenty per cent. of the $100,000 appropriated by Congress.

The only available site, considering the price, is the Embury property at East Front and Church streets, which can be had for $8,936. This property is 111.7x167 and is on the southeast corner of East Front street. The other offers are as follows:

Watchung avenue, East Second and East Third street, 375x150, offered by Charles S. Lyman, $300 a foot. East Second street, between Park and Watchung avenues, 160x147, offered by David T. Kenney, $42,000. Another offer by Mr. Kenney of the above property, but with a passage way to East Front street. 160x147, offered for $5[illegible],500. Northeast corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street, 160x147, known as the Durlach property, $60,000. One property offered, though not considered, was that of John Manley on the East corner of the driveway to the railroad station and Park avenue, 143x157, the price being $60,000. The reasons for not considering this site is that it is not on a corner, as required by the proposals.

As is to be expected, Mr. Field did not discuss the relative merits of the different properties offered as sites, neither did he give any idea as to which one he would favor. The only information he gave out was that the Embury property was the only available one when the price is considered. He thought that for $20,000 sufficient land could be obtained at East Front and Church streets upon which the building could be built. This would leave $80,000 for the building.

Of the large number of proposals contained in the Act of Congress authorizing the purchase of lands for the erection of Federal buildings, the one referring to Plainfield is the only one in which the Comptroller of the Treasury is authorized to acquire land by purchase or through condemnation proceedings and contract for the erection of the building and the equipment of the same. This is interpreted to mean that once the site is obtained the work of putting up a building would be comparatively easy so far as the letting of contracts, etc.

When asked how the offers here compared with those in other places, Mr. Field said that he found them to be much higher in Plainfield. He said that some people seem to think that as soon as it becomes known that the Government wants a site for a Federal building they immediately jump the prices, believing that they are going to get a big thing out of the sale.

It was explained by Mr. Field that the Government can condemn property desired for a site and in this way get land for much less money. He said that this was an easy matter. In cases where larger sums than authorized are recommended for the purchase of property, Mr. Field said that Congress is always waiting to investigate and learn the reasons therefore. For this reason the department always prefers to get property within the specified figures and negotiate a bargain on that basis. This obviates considerable trouble and expedites the work of erecting a Federal building.

Mr. Field will leave Plainfield tonight for Westfield, Mass., where he will inspect sites for a Federal building to be erected in that city.

Panhandler Gets Sixty Days.

William Esplin, a Scotchman who has been using a Masonic lodge membership as a means for panhandling, was sent to jail for sixty days by Judge Runyon this morning. He was arrested by Patrolman McDonald early today, after he had seen him hold up a young man on Park avenue and solicit a dime. Esplin claimed to have wealthy relatives in Scotland and declared that he was waiting for them to send him some money by cable. He spenged on a good-natured Scotchman for his bed last night and took his last ten cents for a drink this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Whiteneck and Mrs. Peters, of West High street, returned yesterday from Wernersville, Pa., where they spent two weeks.

W. M. Hepenstahl has returned from a four months' trip to Europe and is moving to his new home on North Bridge street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hyde have returned to their home on Altamont place, after spending the summer at New Germantown.

Mrs. Brokaw, Mrs. Smith and son, of Virginia, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John V. D. Brokaw, at Belle Mead.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harper Smith have returned from their automobile trip through the New England States.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. William P. Snyder are spending a week at Atlantic City.

George Farlee, of Newark, has been spending a month with his grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Conover.

Mrs. William Harris and son John, of Middaugh street, are spending this week at Lake Hopatcong.

Mrs. H. W. Reussing, of Utica, has been spending several days with Mrs. Fetterly, on Cliff street.

Dr. and Mrs. B. B. Zandt, of Harlingen, are entertaining her mother, Mrs. Benson, of Erie, Pa.

Mrs. Mary Dunham, of Bridge street, is a guest of her sister at New Germantown.

Mrs. H. P. Mason, of Grove street, is spending a week with her daughter in Passaic.

Miss Anna Ranmuller, of Phelpsburg, is a guest of Miss Anna Burkett.

NORTH BRANCH.

Mrs. Abigail Ten Eyck, of South Branch, celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of her birth the other day by entertaining a family party at her home. She was the recipient of many presents from her children and was also tendered a shower of postcards. Notwithstanding her extreme age, she enjoys good health and is in the possession of all her faculties. There were four generations present. There are three children living, Mrs. Jacob Hall and two unmarried daughters, all of South Branch; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated a few days ago at the parsonage of the Reformed church at Neshanic, when Theodore D. Allshouse and Miss Eleanor Skillman, daughter of the late Howard Skillman, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Hart, the pastor, in the presence of a few friends of the couple. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Allshouse will reside at Harlingen.

Frank M. DuMont and family, of North Branch, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Young and son, Harold Young, of Somerville, for a few days.

Mrs. Henry Johnson, of North Branch, is spending some time in Raritan with her son, Michael Johnson.

RARITAN.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Detmar announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith May, to Otto Ernest Neess.

Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, of New York, are spending two weeks at the home of Oscar Smith.

Miss Lillian Haberell, of Carrington, O., is a guest of Mr. and Mrs Frank Beardslee.

Miss Mollie Spratzner, of Newark, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hehn.

James J. Cunningham has gone to Cuba, where he expects to remain several months.

Misses Margaret and Gertrude McWilliam are spending a week at Atlantic City.

Albert Smythe started on Monday for Seattle, where he expects to make his home.

Mrs. George W. Hope and daughters are staying at Atlantic City.

Miss May Ehni is a guest of Miss P. Casterline, at Morristown.

Miss Sarah Rush, of Hopewell, is a guest of Mrs. Richards.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Frank Chapen and daughter, Miss Bessie Chapen, of Elizabeth, and Miss Cadekia Tonley, of Newark, were entertained Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexandrew C. Crater, in Cedar street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Christopher Favere and daughters, the Misses Lizzie and Catherine Favere, of East Second street, Bound Brook, are visiting relatives in Elizabeth.

Mrs. Matthew Atfield and Mrs. Arthur Nutting, of West Main street, Bound Brook, spent yesterday at the home of their sister, Mrs. Harry White, in Raritan.

Frederick Coriell, of Morristown, was lately a guest at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Coriell, in East Union avenue, Bound Brook.

Miss Margaret VanDerveer, of Washington, D. C., is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bent, in Church street, Bound Brook.

Mrs. Harriet Polhemus, of West Union avenue, Bound Brook, is spending several days with friends in New Brunswick.

Miss Margaret Apgar, of Cedar street, South Bound Brook, has returned from a visit to friends in New Brunswick.

Miss Bertha Brown, of Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook, is spending a week with relatives in Flemington.

Lewis Kreyling is having four houses erected on his property in West Main street, Bound Brook.

WESTFIELD.

It was discovered that through an error in figures of another bidder, W. H. Weldon was the lowest bidder for the contract to pave Broad street, Westfield, with vitrified brick. The contract has been awarded to him.

Temporary headquarters have been obtained by the Westfield Good Government Club in the Modern shop building in Prospect street. There will be permanent headquarters secured after election.

The body of Matthias Townley, who for many years was a resident of Westfield, and who died at Dover this week, was brought here for interment in Fairview cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, of Westfield, announce that their daughter, Ethel, and Harry A. Johnson were married at Troy, N. Y., last week.

W. B. Toucey, Westfield's recorder, is on a two weeks' vacation, visiting his son at Detroit, Mich.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Although youthful both in appearance and ambitions Mr. James Young, whom the Shubert's offer in the title role of Brown of Harvard at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night is, by training and association an actor of the most varied experience, bringing to the study of a part written for him by his wife, Rida Johnston Young, the technique gained under the tutelage of the two greatest Masters of our time, Augustin Daly and Sir Henry Irving. His versatility has been tested by his performance of roles ranging from the light romantic juveniles of Shakespeare with Viola Allen to the sombre, crabbed heavies of Ibsen with Mrs. Fiske and his engagement here should interest all critical play-goers.

Probably the greatest dramatic event of the season will be the presentation of "The Great Divide," which is announced for the New Plainfield Theatre next Monday night when Henry Miller will present a superb company of distinguished players in William Vaughn Moody's masterful drama of American life. The entire production and scenic equipment will be given here precisely the same as during the two years' engagement in New York.

Considerable interest is manifest, especially in social circles, in the approaching engagement at the New Plainfield Theatre of Mr. John Griffith, who will appear Tuesday night in an elaborate production of Shakespeare's tragic masterpiece, "Othello." This interest is occasioned, not alone by the recognized high position occupied by Mr. Griffith as foremost among the greatest of present day tragedians, but from the fact that so large a portion of the local public are able to appreciate the poetic beauty of Shakespeare's grand plays and are eager to witness Griffith's reputed excellent performance. The version of "Othello" presented by Mr. Griffith is that used by Edwin Booth—with whom he was associated many years ago—and closely follows the text of Charles Knight's standard edition, which is based on the folio of 1623. It will be found by the student of Shakespeare to differ somewhat from other stage copies of the piece; to present certain novel features of treatment, which are thought to be improvements; and to be full, adequate, correct and satisfying presentation of Shakespeare's magnificent work.

When Charles E. Blaney's latest success, entitled "From Sing Sing to Liberty," which was written by the actor-author, Harry Clay Blaney, comes to the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night the patrons of this house will be treated to a decided novelty as the leading man of the company (who by the way is a celever actor) is none other than the celebrated Jack Dorris, the great jail breaker, who mystifies everyone, who sees him by the ease with which he can get out of prison cells and handcuffs.

Jack Dorris invites the police or public to bring handcuffs to the theatre during his engagement and lock him up in them. Padlocks and chains are also desired by him.

He defies any business house to nail him in a packing box from which he cannot escape in a few minutes without breaking a board or pulling a nail. He will permit himself to be locked in a trunk furnished by any local store, and will make his escape without injuring the trunk in any way. His work has mystified police officials in the leading cities of the world. In the play which he appears in here next week, he escapes from a steel cage with the regulation prison locks and also from a straight jacket which is the same as used in the insane ward of Bellevue Hospital, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Woodhull and family, of West Front street, are home from Lake Hopatcong, where they spent the summer.

FALL MILLINERY OPENING

THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY OF THIS WEEK

Showing copies of the latest arrivals from Europe's fashion centres some just as the original models—others, subdued to meet the tastes of the more conservative dressers.

The millinery work-rooms is headed by Miss Root, of New York, an artist of high reputation, which is well earned, as her work will attest. YOU ARE EXPECTED TO ATTEND and see the beautiful bonnets, there is no insistance to purchase, you are our guests on these opening days, and Miss Root will be on the floor to greet you. There are some surprises in special values on a limited number of the most stunning models for opening day buyers, don't forget to see these, as they will positively not be duplicated, and, are put out only as an advertisement to this department. BY ALL MEANS COME.

Showing the New Fall Dress Goods

The biggest selection to be seen hereabouts, and our claim is that the values are better than you can duplicate, not only in Plainfield, but in Newark and New York, take our samples for comparision, and you will surely buy here.

The great attraction to local baseball Saturday afternoon will be the game at Crescent Oval, between the Clinton Avenues and the West Ends of Somerville. The three contests played by these teams this season show that they are evenly matched. The locals took the first two games by a score of 3 to 1, and then lost the third one by a score of 2 to 1. The contest Saturday will be a great test of strength and will probably be witnessed by the largest crowd of the season.

It will be Clifford Randolph against "Jimmie" Montross at the Oval Saturday, and judging by past performances, it will be a pitchers' battle.

Somerville is confident of taking Saturday's game and the last victory over Clinton Avenue has given the Somerset county boys great confidence. Manager Conklin says that the team will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

Phil. Smith has been doing good work for Bound Brook this season and has been ably supported behind the rubber by Walter Nelson. By the way Manager Dorflinger tried to get Nelson for the local team earlier in the season and many fans think that the clever catcher made a mistake in not coming to Plainfield.

Hundreds of local fans are watching the close race in the National League with intense interest. The display of the returns on The Daily Press bulletin every night is watched by large crowds of people. The majority of those interested are anxious to see the Giants win out.

Pitcher Marquard, of Indianapolis, for whom the New York Baseball Club, paid $11,000, reported at the Polo grounds, yesterday. There is a bare possibility that he may get a chance to show his ability before the season closes.

Herzog, who is substituting at second base for the Giants, has won the thousands of baseball fans who witness the games at the Polo grounds by his brilliant work. He is conceded to be the fastest man on bases in either league.

The Eastern League pennant race lies between Baltimore and Providence, and either team is likely to capture the rag before the season closes. Newark is a close third.

HIS PARTNER ARRESTED.

Prisoner Charged with Robbing Friend Knocked Senseless by Auto.

Julius Kaplan, a cattle buyer, of Trenton, lies in St. Francis Hospital in that city, a hopeless paralytic as the result of being struck by an auto mobile on Sept. 5 in the Edinburgh road, and his partner, Harris Cohen, of Union street, was arrested yesterday on the charge of picking Kaplan's pockets while he lay unconscious in the road.

The two men went to Edinburgh to buy cattle, and while driving them home Kaplan, who is said to have had $35 in his pocket, was struck by an automobile. Two men were in the machine, and they never slackened speed.

It is charged that after the accident Cohen moved the body of his partner up to the side of the road and then went through his pockets for the money. He reported the accident, and an ambulance from the hospital responded, but the money was not in Kaplan's pocket.

TRAP BURGLARS AT WORK.

Orange Police Climb Through Win- with Drawn Revolvers.

While tow burglars were at work last night in the residence of George E. Spottiswood in Central avenue, Orange, Henry Crane saw that a window was open and notified George E. Jones a relative of Mr. Spottiswood. Jones notified Police Sergeant Rinehart, who sent out Policeman Giordano.

Kiordano picked up Detective Drabell and Roundsman Brown in the street, and when they got to the house Giordano climbed in through the same window which the thieves had left open and soon covered the men with his revolver. Drabell and Brown followed and the burglars were taken in custody. They had already packed up a lot of clothing and household goods, ready to take them away.

The prisoners said they were Otto Raetz of East Forty-fourth street and Richard Plau, of 94 Division street, Manhattan.

POLITICAL NOTES.

United States Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, of Michigan, was the principal speaker at a big mass meeting held at the Krueger auditorium Newark, last night to launch the Taft-Sherman boom in New Jersey. The Michigan senator assailed Bryan's campaign arguments. The meeting was arrainged by the New Jersey Republican candidates and the only other speaker besides Senator Burrows was ex-Judge Thomas L. Raymond, the opponent of State Senator Everett Colby for the Republican nomination, all others being excluded. The leaders of the New Idea party charged the state committee with unjustly discriminating against Colby and they planned to have their senatorial candidate attend the meeting and insist upon making an appeal to the voters. Colby went to the auditorium, but refrained from carrying out the scheme of his followers.

Local Optionists here are making a campaign against Assemblyman A. E. Kirstein, of Rahway, who seeks a Republican nomination, out of the fact that the liquor interests are with him. The current issue of Justice the liquor men's organ, places him in its "honor" role, while it urges the voters to work against renominations for Carlton B. Pierce, of Union and W. W. Smalley, of Somerset. Pierct and Smalley are said to be both sure of renomination although Kirstein's chances are considered slim.

It is announced that Eugene B. Debs, Socialists candidate for President, will be in Jersey City on October 14, when he will speak in Elk's Hall. He will arrive on the "Red Special,' a train which has been hired to conduct him through the country on his speech-mking tour.

The Democrats up in Warren county are anxious to have ex-Senator Barber nominated for Congress to run against Congressman Fowler. Dr. Barber is very popular in Warren and has represented his county twice in the Senate, serving three years each term. He was elected in 1896 and in 1902 and was very satisfactory to his constituents.

Senator Cornish will be the Democratic candidate for Senator from Warren.

The liquor interests of New Jersey are bitterly opposed to a renomination for Assemblyman Charles E. Hendrickson, of Hudson. Mr. Hendrickson is the type of Democrat needed in the Legislature for a fighting minority and his defeat would be a blow to good government.

James E. Martine will meet William Jennings Bryan in New York tomorrow.

"Uncle Dan" Voorhees is living up to his agreement with C. N. Fowler. On Tuesday he acted as proxy for former Senator Walsh at the Congressional committee's meeting in Elizabeth. "There are no flies on 'Uncle Dan,'"

Senator Everett Colby, who is putting up the fight of his life for renomination as a member of the New Jersey Senate, sail yesterday at his home in Orange that he was "ou for blood." "I was as regular as 'Sam Hill' last year when they wanted me to campaign for Governor Fort but I am not considered regular now," he said. "But I am out for blood. I am going to fight and am confident of victory. There is nothing the matter with the Republican party but its active management fails into the hands of men who want to use this power for their personal ends."

Petitions for nominations for members of Congress were filed in the Secretary of State's office yesterday at Trenton for the Socialist party by John D. Henderson, of Camden, for the First district, and Bordeaux Wilson Stokes, of Dover, for the Fifth district. Daniel F. Dwyer, of Jersey City, filed petitions for Congress in the National Independence party, Union Labor party and Independent party. Mr. Dwyer, it appears, has been selected by the three parties named to make the run for Congress in the Tenth district.

James E. Martine will be the principal speaker at the banner-raising ceremonies at the Martine Club in Elizabeth tomorrow night. The banner will bear the portraits of Bryan, Kern and Martine. The club has 500 members.

ELIZABETH HAS A NEW FLIER.

Inventor Promises to Go Like a Bird Within a Month.

Everybody wants to fly now in Elizabeth. Carl Semreo of 633 Norwood Terrace in that city who has been working on a flying machine for four months steadily, declares that within a month he will be winging his way all over Jersey.

If and one suggests the possibility that the machine won't fly, the inventor is hurt. It has wings that measure eighteen feet from tip to to tip. It will weigh 300 pounds when completed, but will have a lifting power of 600 pounds.

Mr. Semreo speaks lightly of the Wright aeroplane as compared with his flying bird. He says that he worked at his model for years, at odd times, until his savings gave out, and then he worked outside his shop for money to finish it.

SANITARY BED COMFORTABLES.

Most people are particular about their bed covering and it is to such people that we want to tell about our "Perfection" Comfortables. They are made in an absolutely sanitary, non-sweatshop factory, are filled with clean white new cotton, entirely free from waste and shoddy. By a special process the filling is carded in one sheet, making it very fluffy and light; the covering is silkoline and sateen nicely tufted in light aud dark colors. It's really hard to tell them from a home-made comfortable. They range in price as follows:

1.19, 1.59, 1 98, 2.25, 2.39, 3.25 and 4.50.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW JERSEY IS FORMALLY OPENED.

With appropriate ceremonies the University of New Jersey, a new pharmaceutical institution, was formally opened last night at Jackson and Clinton avenue, Jersey City, in the building erected by the Royal Arcanum and occupied by them for several years. Dr. Albenesius is president of the institution and Herman J. Lohmann dean. Both are Jersey City men.

The university opens with forty students, divided into three classes—juniors, seniors and post-graduates. At the opening exercises Dr Albenesius presided. Eugene Kinkead, president of the Jersey City Board of Aldermen, welcomed the university to the city for Mayor Wittpenn. Dr. George White, president of the State Board of Pharmacy, and the Rev. William Brush also made addresses.

EMPEROR'S GIFT TO JERSEY.

Francis Joseph Remembers Work of Former Subject.

Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary has sent a neat sum of money for the benefit of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church of South River, of which the Rev. Victor von Kubanyi, a nobleman, is the rector.

The Rev. Mr. Von Kubanyi is the author of a book entitled "King of Rome," about which there has been much comment. A copy of the book was sent to his majesty some time ago. The South River rector was formerly a subject of the Austrian Emperor.

State Patrolmen in Session.

The State convention of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of New Jersey was held in Jersey City yesterday. About three hundred delegates were present, representing every city in the State. These officers were elected: President, Henry C. Weller; vice-president, John Beggone; secretary, M. J. McLaughlin; treasurer, E. Longstreet. Before the convention the delegates paraded and were received at the City Hall by Mayor Wittpenn.

Doomed to Die After Two-Day Trial.

Paul Herman, who killed Nicola Melnik at Rossevelt on June 10 last, was convicted of muredr in the first degree by a jury yesterday at New Brunswick and sentenced by Justice Bergen to die in the electric chair during the week of November 2. It was a speedy trial, only occupying two days, and is the fourth conviction for murder in the first degree in Prosecutor Berdine's term, a record.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fred Heitrick and Thomas Sellers spent yesterday fishing at Echo Lake. This is as they tell it—Caught five fine bass and four pickerel while they were endeavoring to coax more of the finny tribe from the lake a wandering cat came along and devoured what they had already landed, this they claim discouraged them and they decided to return home without any fish but a good excuse.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company held its monthly meeting at its new premises yesterday. The principal matter considered was the coming ball. It was found that the arrangements were complete and it is evident that on Friday evening Washington will be crowded. An extra stage will be run from the corner of Front street and Park avenue at 7:30 p. m., for the accommodation of the Plainfield guests.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church met at the parsonage yesterday for its September meeting. The treasurer's report showed a balance of over $100; a part of which will be the nucleus of a fund for recovering the cushions of the church. It was decided to arrange for an entertainment and sociable to be held in October, the exact date to be fixed later.

Two cars which ran off the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks just outside the depot at 8 o'clock on Tuesday night could not be removed until midnight as it was impossible to collect a crew to man the steam crane at that hour of the night.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen F. C. will play the strong St. Mary team, of Plainfield, on Saturday. After the game the Dunellen team will disband for the season. The local team has only been deefated three times this season, having won eleven contests. Among the teams they have defeated are the Highlanders, of Plainfield, by a score of 5 to 3. Conover and Dodwell do the battery work for Dunellen Saturday.

LENIENT ON SUNDAY BASEBALL.

New Brunswick Pastor Tolerates Boys Playing, but Deplores Professional Games.

At a meeting held in the First Baptist church, of New Brunswick, Tuesday evening the pastor, Rev. E. F. Garret, paid his compliments to professional Sunday baseball. Mr. Garrett said he did not advocate a Puritan Sunday.

If boys wanted to play ball on that day and their parents were willing, and they could find a place where their game would not disturb other people, he had nothing to say. He thought every one who cared for the good name of the city should object the making of this place the centre for professional ball games on Sunday. He said Philadelphia had become the worst city in the country, because the Quaker population, which was originally dominant, did not believe in trying to influence public matters.

Mr. Garrett thought that the people of New Brunswick who had convictions as to what was for the best interest of all, and who had sufficient strength of character to breast a fleeting wave of popularity, should make themselves felt in public matters.

Get Battle Monument Sites.

Former Sheriff William H. H. Wyckoff, William H. Cawley and Thomas N. Stuot, of Somerville, have returned from the battlefields of Spotsylvania and Salem Heights, Va. where they went to select sites for two monuments, which the last Legislature authorized to be erected to their old regiment, the Fifteenth New Jersey Veteran Volunteers.

Stolen Loving Cups Recovered.

The police at Glen Ridge found three silver cups that had been stolen from the home of R. B. Colson, a member of the Glen Ridge Golf Club, on Tuesday morning. The cups had been won by Colson in golf events on the links. The Colson home, in Ridgewood avenue, was robbed of $600 worth of goods.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

An effort is on foot to make Wednesday, September 30, the day of the unveiling of the tea burner's monument at Greenwich, a general holiday throughout Cumberland county.

Auguste P. Montant, of Oyster Bay, who said he is a personal friend of the President, obtained a non-resident funner's license from County Clerk Patterson, at Camden, yesterday.

On an indictment charging him with breaking the jaw, the arm and otherwise injuring James Sharp, William Weber was convicted before Judge Joline in the Criminal Court at Camden yesterday.

Charles E. Bray, a young Vineland business man, who had the bones of one leg broken in a trolley accident ner Merchantville last May has entered suit through a Camden attorney for $10,000 damages.

The automobile of L. N. Shreve, an undertaker, of Glassboro, was run into by a garbage cart in Cooper street, Woodbury, yesterday, and disabled to the extent that the owner did not get out of town until late in the afternoon.

In a collision in Camden between a trolley car and a wogan, in which were riding Robert Watson and William Johnson, the men were thrown out of the vehicle and severely injured yesterday. A physician dressed their injuries.

By making a timely visit to his cellar, Benajah P. Wills, of Mt. Holly saved his handsome residence from being destroyed by fire. A hanging shelf was found charred and the fire was about to take hold of the flooring. Hot ashes started the trouble.

Dislike for school is believed to have been the cause for the disappearance of Theodore Frasch, a fifteen year old school boy, of Wildwood, who has been employed during the summer months in a Wildwood drug store, but who has not been seen by his parents since Monday, when he started for school.

Mrs. Mary Boyle, ninety-five years old, mother of Captain of Police Hugh Boyle, held a reception yesterday at the home of Captain Boyle, 594 Carman street, Camden. There was a shower of postal cards and nearly 100 guests attended. Mrs. Boyle was born at Quinton Bridge, now known as Quinton, in Salem county.

With the object of undergoing many repairs, the auxiliary cruiser Vixen, which was damaged by being run into by the tugboat Ogontz of the Reading Line, was taken to the company's yard at Mifflin street, Camden, yesterday. It is thought the Vixen will be in shape to participate in the pageant on the river during the Founders' Week celebration.

Charged with systematically robbing the home of Oscar Eastlack, a business man, of Broadway and Walnut street, Camden, Nathan Hooper and Lizzie Stanley, colored, of 331 Joint alley, were committed to the county jail in default of $500 bail by Justice of the Peace Walsh last night. It is alleged that the woman, while employed as a servant, has been robbing Mr. Eastlack for the past nine months, while the man got rid of the loot. The goods included silverware dishes, linen and various articles of considerable value.

Judge Joline, in the Camden Criminal Court, yesterday, sentenced Frederick Lenz and Harry Sayboth, of Philadelphia, to seventeen years at hard labor in the State prison. They pleaded guilty to three indictments charging them with robbing the home of Edmund E. Read, president of the Board of Education, at 602 Cooper street; attempting to break into the home of Harry R. Jones, deputy collector of internal revenue, at 604 Cooper street, and opposing Policemen George Horner and Howard Smith, who subsequently arrested the men.

WANT SUPREME COURT TO REVIEW MURDER CASE.

Alan H. Strong, of New Brunswick, proposes applying for a writ of certiorari before the Supreme Court at Trenton Friday morning for a review of the Fred Lang murder case by that court. Mr. Strong wishes to have reviewed the insanity proceedings recently held there, when Lang was declared by a jury to be sane.

Justice Garrison's branch will hear the case, and Prosecutor George Berdine stated yesterday morning that he had been given notice, and would be there. Mr. Strong, who is Lang's counsel, is also considering the matter of applying for an order committing Lang to the asylum, notwithstanding the verdict of the jury that he is sane. Judge Booraem can hear this motion. Hangman Van Hise, of Newark, is preparing for the hanging on September 25 and taking measurements of the jail ward and buildings so as to erect the gallows. Lang was convicted before the law providing for electrocution was enacted. No session of the Court of Pardons to hear the case has been called. The offense for which he is sentenced to die was the killing of his niece Katie.

Bayonne Adopts Civil Service.

The Bayonne Council voted yesterday to take advantage of the Civil Service act. It will pass an ordinance adopting the same, which will protect from removal for political reasons all city employes except the heads of departments.

HUNTING THE ANTELOPE

BY

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1885, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

DURING the morning I came in sight of several small bands or pairs of antelope. Most of them saw me as soon as or before I saw them, and after watching me with intense curiosity as long as I was in sight and at a distance, made off at once as soon as I went into a hollow or appeared to be approaching too near. Twice, in scanning the country narrowly with the glasses, from behind a sheltering divide, bands of prong-horn were seen that had not discovered me.

In each case the horse was at once left to graze, while I started off after the game, nearly a mile distant. For the first half mile I could walk upright or go along half stooping; then, as the distance grew closer, I had to crawl on all fours and keep behind any little broken bank, or take advantage of a small, dry watercourse; and toward the end work my way flat on my face, wriggling like a serpent, using every stunted sagebrush or patch of cactus as a cover, bareheaded under the blazing sun. In each case, after nearly an hour's irksome, thirsty work, the stalk failed. One band simply ran off without a second's warning, alarmed at some awkward movement on my part, and without giving a chance for a shot.

In the other instance, while still at very long and uncertain range, I heard the sharp barking alarm-note of one of the prong-horn; the whole band instantly raising their heads and gazing intently at their would-be destroyer. They were a very long way off; but, seeing it was hopeless to try to get nearer I rested my rifle over a little mound of earth and fired. The dust came up in a puff to one side of the nearest antelope; the whole band took a few jumps and turned again; the second shot struck at their feet, and they went off like so many race-horses, being missed again as they ran. I sat up by a sage-brush thinking they would of course not come back, when to my surprise I saw them wheel round with the precision of a cavalry squadron, all in line and fronting me, the white and brown markings on their heads and throats showing like the facings on soldiers' uniforms; and then back they came charging up till again within long range, when they wheeled their line as if on a pivot and once more made off, this time for good, not heeding an ineffectual fusillade from the Winchester.

Antelope often go through a series of regular evolutions, like so many trained horsemen, wheeling, turning, halting, and running as if under command; and their coming back to again run the (as it proved very harmless) gauntlet of my fire was due either to curiosity or to one of those panicky freaks which occasionally seize those ordinarily wary animals, and cause them to run into danger easily avoided by creatures commonly much more readily approached than they are. I had fired half a dozen shots without effect; but while no one ever gets over his feeling of self indignation at missing an easy shot at close quarters, any one who hunts antelope and is not of a disposition so timid as never to take chances, soon learns that he has to expect to expend a good deal of powder and lead before bagging his game.

By mid-day we reached a dry creek and followed up its course for a mile or so, till a small spot of green in the side of a bank showed the presence of water, a little pool of which lay underneath. The ground was so rotten that it was with difficulty I could get Manitou down where he could drink; but at last both of us satisfied our thirst, and he was turned loose to graze, with his saddle off, so as to cool his back, and I, after eating a biscuit, lay on my face on the ground—there was no shade of any sort near—and dozed until a couple of hours' rest and feed had put the horse in good trim for the afternoon ride. When it came to crossing over the dry creek on whose bank we had rested, we almost went down in a quicksand, and it was only by frantic struggles and floundering that we managed to get over.

On account of these quicksands and mud-holes, crossing the creeks on the prairie is often very disagreeable work. Even when apparently perfectly dry the bottom may have merely a thin crust of hard mud and underneath a fathomless bed of slime. If the grass appears wet and with here and there a few tussocks of taller blades in it, it is well to avoid it. Often a man may have to go along a creek nearly a mile before he can find a safe crossing, or else run the risk of seeing his horse mired hard and fast. When a horse is once in a mud-hole it will perhaps so exhaust itself by its first desperate and fruitless struggle that it is almost impossible to get it out. Its bridle and saddle have to be taken off; if another horse is along the lariat is drawn from the pommel of the latter's saddle to the neck of the one that is in, and it is hauled out by main force. Otherwise a man may have to work half a day, fixing the horse's legs in the right position and then taking it by the forelock and endeavoring to get it to make a plunge; each plunge bringing it perhaps a few inches nearer the firm ground. Quicksands are even more dangerous than these mud-holes, as, if at all deep, a creature that cannot get out immediately is sure to be speedily engulfed. Many parts of the Little Missouri are impassable on account of these quicksands. Always in crossing unknown ground that looks dangerous it is best to feel your way very cautiously along and, if possible, to find out some cattle trail or even game trail which can be followed.

For some time after leaving the creek nothing was seen; until, on coming over the crest of the next great divide, I came in sight of a band of six or eight prong-horn about a quarter of a mile off to my right hand. There was a slight breeze from the southeast, which blew diagonally across my path towards the antelopes. The latter, after staring at me a minute, as I rode slowly on, suddenly started at full speed to run directly up wind, and therefore in a direction that would cut the line of my course less than half a mile ahead of where I was. Knowing that when antelope begin running in a straight line they are very hard to turn, and seeing that they would have to run a longer distance than my horse would to intercept them, I clapped spurs into Manitou, and the game old fellow, a very fleet runner, stretched himself down to the ground and seemed to go almost as fast as the quarry. As I had expected, the latter, when they saw me running, merely straightened themselves out and went on, possibly even faster than before, without changing the line of their flight, keeping right up wind. Both horse and antelope fairly flew over the ground, their courses being at an angle that would certainly bring them together. Two of the antelope led, by some fifty yards or so, the others, who were all bunched together. Nearer and nearer we came, Manitou, in spite of carrying myself and the pack behind the saddle, gamely holding his own, while the antelope, with outstretched necks, went at an even, regular gait that offered a strong contrast to the springing bounds with which a deer run. At last the two leading animals crossed the line of my flight ahead of me; when I pulled short up, leaped from Manitou's back, and blazed into the band as they went by not forty yards off, aiming well ahead of a fine buck who was on the side nearest me.

An antelope's gait is so even that it offers a good running mark; and as the smoke blew off I saw the buck roll over like a rabbit, with both shoulders broken. I then emptied the Winchester at the rest of the band, breaking one hind leg of a young buck. Hastily cutting the throat of, and opening, the dead buck, I again mounted and started off after the wounded one. But, though only on three legs, it went astonishingly fast, having had a good start; and after following it over a mile I gave up the pursuit, though I had gained a good deal; for the heat was very great, and I did not deem it well to tire the horse at the beginning of the trip. Returning to the carcass, I cut off the hams and strung them beside the saddle; an antelope is so spare that there is very little more meat on the body.

This trick of running in a straight line is another of the antelope's peculiar characteristics which frequently lead it into danger. Although with so much sharper eyes than a deer, antelope are in many ways far stupider animals, more like sheep, and they especially resemble the latter in their habit of following a leader, and in their foolish obstinacy in keeping to a course they have once adopted. If a horseman starts to head off a deer the latter will always turn long before he has come within range, but quite often an antelope will merely increase his speed and try to pass ahead of his foe. Almost always, however, one if alone will keep out of gunshot, owing to the speed at which he goes, but if there are several in a band which is well strung out, the leader only cares for his own safety and passes well ahead himself. The others follow like sheep, without turning in the least from the line the first followed, and thus may pass within close range. If the leader bounds into the air, those following will often go through exactly the same motions; and if he turns, the others are very apt to each in succession run up and turn in the same place, unless the whole band are manoeuvring together, like a squadron of cavalry under orders, as has already been spoken of.

After securing the buck's hams and head (the latter for the sake of the horns, which were unusually long and fine), I pushed rapidly on without stopping to hunt, to reach some large creek which should contain both wood and water, for even in summer a fire is greatly to the comfort and cosiness of a night camp. When the sun had nearly set we went over a divide and came in sight of a creek fulfilling the required conditions. It wound its way through a valley of rich bottom land, cotton-wood trees of no great height or size growing in thick groves along its banks, while its bed contained many deep pools of water, some of it fresh and good. I rode into a great bend, with a grove of trees on its right and containing excellent feed. Manitou was loosed, with the lariat round his neck, to feed where he wished until I went to bed, when he was to be taken to a place where the grass was thick and succulent, and tethered out for the night. There was any amount of wood with which a fire was started for cheerfulness, and some of the coals were soon raked off apart to cook over. The horse blanket was spread on the ground with the oil-skin over it as a bed, underneath a spreading cotton-wood tree, while the regular blanket served as covering. The metal cup was soon filled with water and simmering over the coals to make tea, while an antelope steak was roasting on a forked stick.

Breaking camp is a simple operation for one man; and but a few minutes after breakfast Manitou and I were off. I headed the horse towards the more rolling country where the prairies begin to break off into the edges of the Bad Lands. Several bands of antelope were seen, and I tried one unsuccessful stalk, not being able to come within rifle range; but towards evening, when only about a mile from a wooded creek on whose banks I intended to sleep, I came across a solitary buck, just as I was topping the ridge of the last divide.

As I was keeping a sharp lookout at the time, I reined in the horse the instant the head of the antelope came in sight, and jumping off crept up till I could see his whole body, when I dropped on my knee and took steady aim. He was a long way off (three hundred yards by actual pacing), and not having made out exactly what we were he stood still, looking intently in our direction and broadside to us. I held well over his shoulder, and at the report he dropped like a shot, the ball having broken his neck. It was a very good shot; the best I ever made at antelope, of which game, as already said, I have killed but very few individuals. Taking the hams and saddle I rode on down to the creek and again went into camp among timber.

Thus on this trip I was never successful in outwitting antelope on the several occasions when I pitted my craft and skill against their wariness and keen senses, always either failing to get within range or else missing them; but nevertheless I got two by taking advantage of the stupidity and curiosity which they occasionally show.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 20, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Commending our society.—II. By supplying church workers.—II Tim. ii, 1-2; Prov. xxii, 6.

The first method suggested for commending the Christian Endeavor society was that of church attendance. Church attendance naturally suggests church work as a second means of commendation. Church attendance should always be associated with church work. It should and will inspire us to this end. No one can worship God long "with sincerity and truth" without desiring to enlist in the Lord's work in the church. The work of the church and the need of workers will frequently be emphasized from the pulpit, and then will come the opportunity of the true hearted Christian Endeavorer to offer himself in the Lord's service.

To have a part in the upbuilding of a church spiritually is a great privilege. It is nothing that should seem irksome to us. It is nothing of which we need be ashamed, for "we are colaborers with God" and with the best Christian saints who have ever lived. As in the days of the Master, "the harvest is great and the laborers are few."

It is not possible to elect every member of a church to some office, nor, indeed, to give each one a definite work to perform. But to those who are willing work will come. God wastes no fit material. If we need and want a secular position we seek it, but how seldom we do this in the church! We are like the idlers on the street who in Christ's parable said they were idle because no man gave them work—a poor excuse. Work does not usually seek men; they must seek it. But why will we be idlers in God's house for this poor excuse? If you are given no specific duty to perform, seek work.

A zealous young man wanted a Sunday class of boys in a certain church. He decided to seek a class. Nor did he go to the slums. He had one scholar in view in the best section of his church, and around him he gathered six or seven others. He taught them faithfully and led every one of them to Christ. He is now an elder in his church, and his boys, now young men, are teachers in the Sabbath school and leaders in the Christian Endeavor society.

Do not say there is no church work for you to do. Don't wait for something to turn up. Turn it up. Do you miss any one from the church services? Visit him, and if he is sick or in trouble tell the pastor. Have young people come into the church, call upon them and make them welcome. Are there "shut ins" in your congregation? Visit them with a few flowers, a kindly smile, and read and pray with them. Does the Sunday school superintendent need teachers? Go and offer your services to him and help train up the children and teach others what you know about Christ and the Bible. If you can't find anything else to do, go to your pastor and say, "Pastor, if there is anything that you want done and no one else wants to do it, I'm the one to do it for you." If real live, active Christian Endeavorers were thus working along lines initiated by themselves and performing duties assigned to them, the church would soon wake up to the fact that Christian Endeavor means something. Every church organization is but a part of the church life. It is not an end in itself, but a means to an end—the building up of a church. What is your society? Is it living for itself or for the entire church?

BIBLE READINGS.

Zech. iv, 6-10; Eccl. ix, 10; xii, 1; Mark ix, 38-41; Matt. xxv, 31-46; Acts i, 1-11; John ix, 4; I Cor. xv, 58; Gal. vi, 1-10; I Cor. v, 12-13.

The C. E. Parent Church.

The very striking "charge to the church" made by Dr. Smith Baker when Rev. Jesse Hill was installed as pastor of the Williston church, Portland, Me., contained the following sentences concerning the position of that church as the parent church of our society:

"Williston church is the most historic Protestant church in the world today. Its name is repeated all over the earth by seven millions of young people in forty different nations. It stands for the old evangelical truths, not because of its greatness or wealth or age, but because in the providence of God it was the birthplace of the greatest evangelical movement for the spiritual culture of young people in the history of the world. On the Pacific coast, in the teeming west, in the sunny south, in England, Scotland, Germany, France, China, Japan, Africa, South America, Mexico and the islands of the sea, Williston is repeated ten times more than any other church as standing for the old faith of Christ and the church."

Aggressive Evangelism.

The Christian Endeavor society has had twenty-seven years of unprecedented victory, but the best years are yet to come, says the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman of Philadelphia. I have no hesitation in saying that from my point of view the door of opportunity which is widest open is that which leads into aggressive evangelistic effort. Every pastor may be strengthened and every church inspired to better service with a Christian Endeavor society on fire with a passion for souls.

Endeavor.

One made life's flowering field a trampled plot,
A hideous battleground,
Where evil hosts were slain.
Another came and found
A dreary, desolate plain
And made a garden spot.

"Who's at the bottom of your conspiracy now?" Thomas whispered, triumphantly. "Ah, my boy, you'll have to revise your facts to fit these circumstances."

The detective checked him with a warning look, and immediately addressed the maid:

"You say Mrs. Stackhouse went out last evening. Do you know why?"

"Well, you may be sure I do. If not, I can guess," returned the maid. "She spent all the afternoon trying to write a letter. She must have torn up a dozen, for the waste basket was half full of scraps. And she went to the post office and put it in with her own hand, for Moffett saw her."

"Indeed!" said Lamm; "and we, I suppose, have no means of knowing for whom that letter was meant?"

"Yes, indeed, we have," returned the maid, with an air of self-conscious shrewdness. "I happened to be in at the time she was going out. It was a big square, cream-white envelope, such as she always writes on, and was written to Thornton Stackhouse, Adams House, Boston."

"Umph! And so she at last answered him, Thomas," he whispered in his friend's ear; "we must have that letter or the ones that she didn't send. It may give us the whole story."

Thomas nodded.

"And this, I suppose, is all?" asked the detective, turning again to the young woman.

Mollie White shrugged her shoulders and actually tittered in her delight.

"Well, I guess not. Well, I guess not," she exclaimed, and enjoyed the huge anticipation and wonder to be read in the faces of the two men.

"Mollie, you're a jewel," said John Lamm, with genuine admiration. "If you keep on this way I'll get brother John's salary raised. Now, what is it?"

"Well, you see, sir, to begin with, Miss Harwood went out last evening to visit a friend of hers, and while she was gone Mrs. Marion had a visitor."

"Was this before or after the letter was written?"

"This was after it was written, but before it was posted, sir. He only stayed half an hour, and afterward she went right and carried the letter."

"By he, of course you mean 'the friend of the family,' Mr. Fetridge?"

The girl tossed her head with a contemptuous sniff.

"Friend of the family, indeed! Well, the family with him consists of one person, I can tell you; and that person don't scarcely be in a position to return his affections."

"Eh? Eh? What's this?" said Lamm. "Love-making!"

"No wonder you're surprised, Mr. Lamm, and she a married woman! Well, you may be sure I was; and if it wasn't for you I'd give my notice at once. Never till last night did I really suspect the baseness of such a monster; but then I saw with my own eyes and heard with my own ears."

"So you listened to their conversation, did you?"

"And what harm? If it was me they suspected of thieving they'd have no hesitancy, ladies and gentlemen though they consider themselves to be. Before this, you see, I haven't a-dared to risk it, on account of Miss Harwood, but last night, the old lady being out and nobody on the floor but myself, I just quietly sidled up to the portiere and peeked in. You see, it was warm, and the light in the hall hadn't been turned on, and it was so dark you could scarcely see your hand, but the glass doors leading from the parlor to the veranda were opened, and the missis and her fine gentleman were sitting in the full stream of moonlight."

"Umha! How interesting you are, Miss White! Describe their attitude as near as you can remember."

"Well, sir, she was fidgety and drawn away; but he was tender and kept coming nearer on the sofa. 'You know what the obstacles are?' said she. 'And if there were no obstacles?' says he. 'Oh, Richard, I am a very wretched woman!' says she, which was true enough in all conscience. She kept tapping her foot on the carpet, with her face turned away from him, and he getting nearer and bolder all the time, and finally he caught her hand. 'You are making yourself miserable, Marion,' says he. But she pulled herself away and got up and nearly froze him with her look.

'You forget, sir!' says she. 'Everything but my mad love for you, yes,' says he. And as he was getting on his knees she put out her hands in front of her as if to ward him off, and says: 'Oh, Richard! Richard! Am I not wretched enough already without your making me worse?' But I guess he thought not, for he kept on making her a great deal worse."

"And, as I understand it," said the detective, "she was not so tremendously angry, after all?"

"Well, not what I call angry," returned the parlor maid, promptly. "If it had been me, and me a married woman, I'd have knocked him down; but she only seemed to get on her guard to keep him just so far, and no nearer. But then, you know, she says she ain't married, and I suppose if she's got that notion, it makes a difference. 'And ah, Richard!' she says, 'when I think of what we two have lost because of our own miserable folly'—I can swear to them words miserable folly—says she, 'when I think of it I almost go mad. I have punished myself by a year of torment, and a wasted, ruined life, and you—' And then she covered her face with her hands and began to cry."

"What! Marion Stackhouse! Cry! Impossible!" exclaimed the detective.

"Cry!" echoed the parlor maid. "And why not? I've seen the tears come into her eyes for very spite. Oh, I guess you don't know that woman. She can cuddle up and be as cunning as a kitten, if she wants to. Well, she was very melancholy then, and sat down and cried for a long time, and he tried to console her, and she kept saying it was 'useless,' to 'leave her alone,' to have 'pity on her'—and that sort. And says he: 'But what's the harm, Marion, after all, since you know the truth and I know it, why can't we go a long way from here and be happy yet?' But she wouldn't hear to it. 'No,' she says, 'there's no happiness for me anywhere,' and I guess that's true enough, too, for she's not the kind that would ever be happy, if she had the run of everything. 'Oh,' she says, 'you don't know me, Richard Fetridge, or you'd repulse me, instead of sitting beside me.'"

"Did she say that? Are you sure?" broke in Thomas.

"That, or something awfully near it, sir. I'm not taking my oath to every word; but I'll take my chances on getting the sense out of a thing once I hear it good. 'I know you, Marion,' says he, 'very well. You're reckless, and impulsive, and proud, but you mean to do right. You have carried your pride before this to the brink of ruining your own happiness and making a wreck of my life, but I'll answer for your meaning to do your duty.' And she says to him: 'What you call my pride, Richard Fetridge, is the evil in me. Do you know, I sometimes believe my mother—' and there she stopped and said: 'At times I feel as if I was possessed of the devil.' And I thought to myself, others in your service have thought so besides you, young lady. But the way she said it, I can tell you, gentlemen, half beneath her breath, was enough to give one the creeps. It even seemed to scare him for the minute. And then he tried to cheer her up, and she began to go on about her sister Stella, and to say she believed she'd been the death of that girl. And right in the middle of it she had regular hysterics, and she just sat on the sofa and wrung her hands and screams out: 'Oh, I'm wicked! wicked! wicked! I'd give my life to undo what I have done! Oh, will nothing come to my relief? Oh, I'm dying by inches.'"

Thomas and Lamm exchanged puzzled and startled glances.

"There is no question," said the detective, in a low voice, "that Marion accused herself in such language?"

"Not the faintest," said Miss White, positively. "That part of it is quite certain. She cried it out so loud it's a wonder folk in the street didn't hear her. And then he grasps her hand and says: 'Come, Marion; you must no longer keep me in the dark. You must tell me everything—even if it does criminate him whom the world calls your husband.'"

"No!" interrupted both men at once. "He didn't say that, did he?"

"He used them words," said Miss White, with a positiveness that set at defiance both doubt and syntax. "And he was very particular about it, too. I can tell you, I had both my ears wide open about that time. And she didn't seem to hear him, but kept right on. 'And, oh! Richard,' she said, 'do you suppose anything, any provocation, the worst treatment you can imagine a person to have received at another person's hands, would justify a mean and cowardly crime?' And with that he starts away from her, and she shrieks out: 'Oh, for pity's sake, don't cast me off! I am tortured beyond bearing!' 'Confess,' he says, and she threw her arms right around his neck and whisperd in his ear. And just at that moment I was nearly frightened to death by hearing the latch lock. I knew if I stayed I'd be caught the next minute, and so I ran. It was Miss Harwood, and I was none too soon, either, for she lit the hall."

"Confound Miss Harwood!" said the detective, heartily. "She has spoiled everything for us."

"Yes, and for them, too," said the parlor maid. "For Mr. Fetridge did not stay five minutes after she came."

"Did you see him when he went? How did he act?" Lamm hastened to ask.

"Just as usual; only a bit excited. I'm sure of one thing, sir. Whatever she whispered to him, it didn't set him against her, for if he didn't squeeze her hand and look into her eyes the way he had no business to when he left her—then I'm no judge of such things."

The rest of that which the parlor maid had to tell was merely accumulative and corroboratory of what she had already told. Mr. Lamm satisfied himself of this fact by a cross-examination, interspersed with sly compliments, and sent the wide-awake Mollie White away at last, well pleased with herself, to resume, with increased vigilance, her watch of Marion Stackhouse.

"And now," said the detective, hastily, turning to Thomas, as soon as they were alone, "it remains for us to find out what Mrs. Marion has written, and meant to write, to her husband. I must say it is a very unpromising task, but it is so important that it must be attempted."

"Very well," said Thomas, "if you'll attend to the letters which she destroyed, I'll turn my attention to the one she mailed. It is but 11 o'clock, and I doubt whether Stackhouse has received it yet."

"You had better be in a hurry, then."

"I am going," said Thomas.

CHAPTER XXI.

DRAWING THE NET.

And now Reporter Thomas was making a determined though apparently hopeless effort to obtain possession of the letter which Marion Stackhouse had written to her husband. Not only hopeless the quest seemed but dangerous. In the ordinary routine of his duties he would unhesitatingly have rejected an enterprise of so obnoxious and disagreeable a nature. But the case was becoming desperate and it was no longer a business, no longer even a personal interest. The mournful pleading of the big blue eyes of Stella North nerved him for the ignoble task. The remembrance of some tears which he had seen that morning trembling on the long lashes stimulated him to unprecedented effort. He was in that mood where to obtain success he would stop at nothing short of crime. He hardly knew himself in this new role; but he played the spy and the sneak that day as he never played it before or since.

It was easy enough to assure himself of the existence of the letter.

Fifteen minutes after holding conference with Detective Lamm at the latter's office, Kingman Thomas was walking boldly to the desk at the Adams house.

"Good morning," said the clerk, for it was not yet noon of this eventful Saturday.

"Good morning," said Thomas. "Can you tell me whether Mr. Stackhouse is in the hotel?"

"Not in his room," returned the clerk, with a queer smile. "His key is here."

"Curious!" said Thomas, with an assumption of troubled reflection. "I wonder if he's got my letter. I wrote him a letter last night and posted it at Swampscott," he continued by way of explanation. "Can you tell me whether he has it yet?"

The clerk took a look in the pigeon hole marked "S" and Thomas caught a momentary glimpse of a square, white envelope in his hand. But the clerk cast it back immediately and turned to the reporter.

"There is a letter for him here with the Swampscott postmark," he said. "It may be yours."

"A square, cream white envelope?" queried Thomas, "that looks like a piece of woman's stationery?"

"Yes."

"Ah, that's the one! He hasn't got it. Thank you."

"Are you going to wait and see him?" the clerk inquired, with another smile.

"Why?" asked Thomas, scenting something unusual.

"Only there are a dozen or so ahead of you; that's all. I thought I'd let you know."

"Indeed! And where are they all?"

"Oh, waiting about here."

"Business men?"

"Well, they have that look. Since the failture Mr. Stackhouse seems to have been considerably in demand."

"Oh, I see."

"Consequently, if it's anything important you'd do well to hunt him up, as this letter is likely to be here some time."

Thomas thanked his informant. As he turned away from the desk a daring subterfuge by which he might obtain possession of the letter came into his mind, but he dismissed it with impatient horror.

"What am I thinking of?" he exclaimed, mentally. "Forgery! Tampering with the mail! I must season my impetuosity with a little reason."

GOLF.

This is ideal weather for playing golf and both the Plainfield Country Club and Park Golf Club links are popular places for lovers of the game. It is admitted that both courses are in the pink of condition and it is a poor novice who cannot make a fairly good score under such conditions.

In the amateur championship golf tournament at Garden City on Tuesday, Walter J. Travis achieved one of the best scores ever made there, a competition record of 74, that was a triumph of sound mental and muscular work, but in the match play the veteran unexpectedly showed the other sort of golf and Chadwick Sawyer had more than one opportunity to beat him. The youngster exhibited an unusual streak of missing and Travis pulled the match from the fire by 2 up.

In combination with Travis' score of Monday he had 153 as the low score in the thirty-six hole qualifying round. He won the silver salver given by the United States Golf Association, and, besides new eighteen and thirty-six hole competitive records, Travis established the sequence of six wins in the qualifying round since 1900. Two of the years he kept on and gained the title, a performance many think he will repeat this time. To do so Travis will have to play better than against Sawyer. Incidents were the defeat of Findlay S. Douglas, the 1898 champion, by John M. Ward, who had an astounding three by holing an approach on the 513 yard thirteenth hole.

Dudley H. Barrows is one of the best players at the Plainfield Country Club who has not devoted much time to the game this fall. He is expected to resume playing soon.

In addition to the weekly dinner-dances at the Plainfield Country Club, the house committee, of which Willard Wadsworth is the chairman, is planning several social functions for this fall. The social features at the clubhouse are the delight of many members and friends.

Social features have been greatly enjoyed at the Park Golf Club, this fall, and there are a number who not caring to play golf find much pleasure in the occasional teas and other functions held at the clubhouse.

Will Play at Westfield.

Manager Listman has scheduled a game for Saturday with the Westfield team at the latter place. They will face Ortleib, who has been pitching fine ball this season. It is commonly reported that the Westfield team was organized chiefly to defeat Scotch Plains and they did take three straight games from Manager Frentz's aggregation. Peacock or Scott will pitch for the association boys.

Matinee Race Meet Saturday.

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club will hold a matinee race meet at the driving park, Saturday afternoon. There will be a running race and three trotting races. A number of post-entries have been received already. Admission will be free. On Saturday, September 26, there will be a race meet for prizes, and an admission will be charged.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Baraca Class of Faith chapel held its first fall meeting Tuesday night, with a good attendance. After the transaction of routine business and a discussion of plans for the winter, refreshments were served.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance will hold its weekly meeting at 100 Madison avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Sadie Lawton, of Cranford, will be the leader. Miss Lawton will also address the meeting of the Rescue Mission in the evening.

The first annual autumnal revival at the Ebenezer Baptist church will be held at the church on East Third street, on Sunday, which the pastors of several nearby towns will take part. Rev. David W. Cannon, pastor of the local church, will be in charge and it is proposed to raise $1,000 by October 31, to secure the property and pay off standing obligations.

CORNERSTONE ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT SOMERVILLE.

On Sunday the twenty-fifth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Church of the Immaculate Conception will be fittingly celebrated in Somerville. It is expected that a large number of people from Raritan, Bound Brook, New Brunswick and Plainfield will attend. A solemn high mass will be celebrated at 10:30 a. m., in the presence of Rt. Rev. Bishop McFaul, who will preach. The Battman's mass in C will be sung for the first time by the choir.

In the evening there will be special musical program, including a sacred concert by several priests and laymen and a lecture by Rt. Rev. Mgr. Fox, V. G., closing with the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Will Talk on Newspaper Work.

George T. Hughes, city editor of The Evening Mail, of New York, who has been spending the summer at Watchung, will address the pupils of the North Plainfield High School tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock on the subject of "Newspaper Work."

MILLIONAIRE LEONARD SHOT AT MONTCLAIR

John Leonard, the millionaire head of the iron and steel firm of John Leonard & Co., 149 Broadway, New York, was shot and killed yesterday in his fine mansion at 88 Maple avenue, Montclair. The police arrested Mr. Leonard's private secretary, Walter C. Phillips, who was alone with Mr. Leonard in the library of his home when he was shot. The police were not satisfied with his explanation. The secretary says he was examining an old revolver, and it was accidentally discharged.

Mystery enshrouds the tragedy. It was learned that Phillips, who lives in New York, had been in the habit of going to Montclair each business day to attend to the correspondence of Mr. Leonard. He was one of the several secretaries employed in the vast business interests of Mr. Leonard, but he was believed to have had more confidential relations with his rich employer than the others.

Phillips said that on the way to the Leonard home from the Lackawanna station he found a loaded pistol in a field which he passed. He said he called the attention of a grass cutter at work there to his find, and then passed on. When he reached the Leonard home he went immediately to the library, where he found Mr. Leonard awaiting him. In the hall he passed Mrs. Leonard.

Inside the library he closed the door behind him, as was his custom. A few second later Mrs. Leonard and other members of the family and several servants heard a shot, and rushed into the library. There they found Mr. Leonard unconscious on the floor, dying from a bullet wound in his breast.

Phillips declared that when he entered the room he took the pistol from his pocket and said to Mr. Leonard:

"See here, what do you think of that?"

Before he could tell his employer of finding the weapon, Phillips said, Mr. Leonard made a quick motion to take the pistol from him, and that it exploded, the bullet piercing the millionaire's body. When Dr. M. F. Sinnott reached the house Leonard was dead, the bullet having penetrated his heart.

Chief of Police Hugh Galagher and Deputy County Physician Muta were called. Phillips repeated his story, and the police started out with him to verify his statement that he had called the attention of a grass cutter to the finding of the pistol.

At the Leonard home the excitement following the tragedy became so intense that the police were able to obtain very little information. So far as they could learn, Phillips and Mr. Leonard had not quarreled.

Leonard did not know at first that he had been shot, exclaiming, according to Phillips, that the bullet had struck his New York volunteer fireman's badge.

Mrs. Leonard and a trained nurse who had been attending Mr. Leonard, were outside the bedroom when the shooting occurred, and both said that had heard no angry words between Mr. Leonard and Mr. Phillips. Chief Gallagher said that from what he had learned there seemed to be no ground for supposing that the shooting was anything but accidental. Mr. Phillips is between fifty and sixty years of age. Mr. Leonard was much older.

Politics, Ministers, Religion.

The annual meeting of the Raritan Ministerial Association will be held in the chapel of the First Reformed church in Somerville next Monday morning commencing at ten o'clock. A paper will be read by Rev. A. B. Cooper, who will have for his subject "Politics, Ministers and Religion." Officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Ten Years for Killing Father.

Lawrence Messerole, who was indicted for killing his father with a cobblestone, pleaded non vult to murder in the second degree yesterday in the Middlesex county court, and was sentenced by Judge Bergen to ten years at hard labor in state prison. The extreme penalty is thirty years.

Must Sell Melville Park.

Vice-Chancellor Walker ordered the sale yesterday of Melville Park an amusement resort at Bayonne, on October 1. The order was issued on petition of Thomas G. Haight, of Jersey City, receiver of the place. There are numerous creditors. Frank Melville was manager of the place.

Charles Potter Titsworth, of West Seventh street, has returned from Leonardsville, N. Y., where he attended the funeral service of Mrs. Henry D. Babcock, mother of Miss Sarah Babcock, to whom his engagement was recently announced.

C. N. FOWLER OPENS HIS OWN CAMPAIGN

Congressman Newell Fowler made his first address of his campaign before the Sixth Ward Republican Club of Elizabeth, last night. He referred principally to the great good that would accrue as a result of the direct primary system, and declared that he hoped the time would come when Congressmen would be named by direct vote of the people.

"The new primary law," he said, "is a recall to the principles on which the government was founded We are again coming to recognize the fact that the man is the cornerstone of government, for if you can't trust the people the days of this republic are numbered. I am a Republican and a partisan. I see no reason to change. I do not know of any reason why I should be a Democrat, and the only ground I should have from divorcing myself from my party would be on a moral question."

Mr. Fowler said that for the fourteen years he had been in public life he had never made a personal appointment. The nomination of Governor Hughes in New York State, he said, proved that the Republican party never took a backward step, especially on a moral issue. He concluded his speech by stating that he had made a study during his term in Congress of the currency question and referred to the fact that he had to stand alone when it came to a vote on the financial bill.

Former Assemblyman John R. Moxon, Mayoralty Candidate Robert Cassel and Augustus W. Schwartz, Richard Henry and Frank C. Stutzlen, candidates for Assembly, also spoke. Mr. Henry advocated the redistricting of the city so that the Republican would have better representation in the Council. Mr. Stutzlen, who is a druggist, declared himself in favor of more liberal legislation for the druggists.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, who spent the summer at Westerly, R. I., with Mr. Babcock's mother, are now visiting Mrs. Babcock's parents at Alfred, N. Y., to which place they made the trip in an automobile. When their house on Madison avenue is completed they will reside there for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Rogers, of Madison avenue, have returned from the Adirondacks where they occupied their new bungalow for the first time. During their summer outing they enjoyed a three hundred mile carriage drive. Their bungalow is situated at Long Lake, adjoining that of Dr. and Mrs. Henry M. Maxson.

DUNELLEN WOMAN GETS A LEGACY OF $1,000.

According to the provisions of the will of the late Jacob A. Henry, of Joliet, Ill., whose death occurred six weeks ago, three sisters of Mr. Henry, one of whom is Mrs. Rebecca Swackhamer, of Dunellen, will each receive $1,000. Mrs. Swackhamer is the mother of Mayor Harry Swackhamer, of Dunellen. The other two sisters are Mrs. Ellen White, of Joliet, Ill., and Mrs. Lydia Lowe, of Fredericksburg, Ohio.

Mr. Henry was one of the prominent and wealthy citizens of Joliet. He owned the traction company holdings in that city, as well as the theatre, the fair grounds and for many years was president of the Wills County National Bank, one of the largest in that part of the country. He was reputed to be worth a fortune. He is survived by a wife, who is now in Europe, and one daughter, Mrs. Helen Folk, of Joliet, besides the three sisters.

The bulk of the large estate was left to his wife and daughter, but among the bequests to relatives were those of $1,000 each to the sisters. About a week ago Mrs. Swackhamer received information that she was one of the heirs of the will, but she had no knowledge of the amount of money left her by her brother until today.

THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Beer was the Steady Drink of the Teutons Who Conquered It.

Pure beer never hurt anybody. On the other hand, it has put back into many a worn out body, health, strength, energy and hope.

The Teutons, who conquered the Roman Empire, were examples of what good beer will do. These men, who drank beer and plenty of it daily, were strong, powerful, sturdy men, quick and brave in battle, and with a constitution that could endure without fatigue the longest marches and continuous outdoor exposure.

When you drink beer, drink Rienzi, the famous Rochester brew of the Bartholomay Brewery Co. It will do you good, because it is pure and honestly brewed. Besides being a refreshing and delightful drink for social occasions, it is a sensible tonic and maker of pure, rich blood.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he has many satisfied customers who will gladly praise its health giving qualities.

His address is 68 Somerset street, but you can call him up by 'phone, No. 229, and he will fill your order on time, every time. Drink Rienzi. It's better. 9 17 3

REBUKES SOCIETY WOMEN

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson Says Some Drink Wine, Smoke Cigarettes and Gamble.

SHE IS GREATLY SHOCKED.

W. C. T. U. Head Repeats Story that Some Plainfield Church Women Put Wine in Their Sauce and Drink Liquor.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of this city, president of the Union County Women's Christian Temperance Union, in an address before the twenty-fourth annual convention of the union in St. Paul's M. E. church, Cranford, yesterday, denounced the use of liquor in sauces and the drinking of wine by women.

She deplored the fact that this was being done by women who are members of churches, and said that an officer of the union, who lives in Plainfield, and who was present at the convention, informed her only a few days ago that she was greatly surprised to hear of church women in Plainfield who not only drank wine but used it freely in sauces and the making of pies.

The remarks by Mrs. Tomlinson were construed by a reporter attending the meeting as though a member of the organization, who lives in Plainfield and who was in the audience, put liquor in her sauces and also drank wine. In an interview with Mrs. Tomlinson, this morning, the county president, denied absolutely the story which appeared in the New York newspapers this morning in which she was quoted as accusing a member of the union of using liquor. She said she "could truthfully say without fear of contradiction that there is not a single member of the union in Plainfield who would be guilty of such practice, and she added, the story in the New York newspapers on this subject is a deliberate falsehood."

"I know the reporter who attended the meeting and furnished the story," said Mrs. Tomlinson, "and I was one of the first to give him a welcome. I regret now that he was present. The statement is a ridiculous one and if it were not for the fact that it places not only myself but the union in such a false light, I would not make the effort to deny the story."

The county president in her remarks to the convention did denounce in no uncertain terms the playing of bridge whist by women, adding that it is a common occurrence for them to gamble in this game. She urged that indulgence in root beer be stopped, and that physicians in prescribing this beverage as well as cider for their patients were often responsible for placing them on the road to drunkenness as a confirmed habit. The cigarette habit among women also was sharply condemned.

In referring to the efforts being made in behalf of local option and prohibition, she declared that the saloons were responsible for several thousand murders a year, the making of thousands of criminals and that it was time the church awoke to the fact.

Mrs. E. C. Dutcher, president of the Dunellen Union, also spoke about women and girl cigarette smokers, and said that this practice had grown to such an extent as to sadden her heart; that here was work for women.

Rev. Stanley Davis, of Elizabeth, made the address last night, his subject being, "The Modern Demetrius." In the course of his remarks he attacked Gen. Dennis F. Collins, Democratic candidate for the mayoralty nomination in Elizabeth, citing the fact that he is an officer of the Peter Breidt Brewing Company, of Elizabeth. His candidacy is bitterly opposed by the Elizabeth branch of the Anti-Saloon League, of which Mr. Davis is secretary.

The report of Corresponding Secretary Mr. M. L. Rarick, of Dunellen, indicated that 157 local meetings had been held during the year just ended and that fifty-seven public meetings had taken place. The work of the Willard W. C. T. U. at Elizabeth during Old Home Week was spoken of, and the report referred to the fact that the work of the year had been assisted by 31 speakers.

The report of Mrs. Mary T. Cox, of Cranford, the treasurer, showed that the union now has 500 members; that the receipts for the year amounted to $322.43, and the expenditures $284.78, leaving a balance on hand of $37.65.

The following officers were reelected for the coming year: President, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, Plainfield; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. L. Rarick, Dunellen; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. Mary T. Cox, Cranford. Honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. Scriven-Stoddard, Elizabeth; Miss Julia A. Barker, Rahway.

CANDIDATE HENSEY ADDRESSES THE "PEEPUL"

John Hensey, of West Second street, who is a candidate for the city council on the Independent ticket, is waging a vigorous campaign in the Fourth ward. He has been hustling for votes ever since his candidacy was announced and last night conducted the first of a series of meetings by which he has planned to get his views on municipal matters before the "peepul."

Mr. Hensy announced to all his constituents that he would address them from the porch roof of the "Muldoon" building at Third and Liberty streets, and he wan on hand promptly at 7:30 last night. A big crowd was in waiting and he was given an enthusiastic reception. He spoke for half an hour on the necessity of "the workingmen standing together in order to get their rights" and if applause counts for anything that's the sentiment of a large portion of the West End's population. At the conclusion of his address Mr. Hensey announced that he would again address the multitude some night next week.

The candidate is a contracting painter and during a long residence on upper North avenue, was known as the "Mayor of Netherwood."

EXCISE COMMISSION ASKS PUBLIC'S VIEWS

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, president of the State Excise Commission, before starting on a week end trip to the Adirondacks last night, stated that it is the uprpose of the excise commission not only to report its findings with recommendations to Governor Fort but to so frame its proposals that a measure may be drawn up for submission to the Legislature early in December.

"We are anxious to make our report as thorough and as satisfactory to all the people as it is possible and appeal to all who may have any ideas on the subject to give us the benefit of their views next week," said Mr. Fisk. I wish that anyone, who may desire to be heard and who has not received a direct invitation, will write to that effect to either Secretary Dengler or to me as early as possible so that we can allot each one ample time to be heard. Mr. Dengler is charged with the work of sending out invitations generally. On Monday, we propose to listen to the Mayors and other local officials, all of whom are asked to be present; on Tuesday the ministers, officers of dioceses, conferences, synods and other religious bodies as well as the Prohibitionists and the local optionists will be heard, and on Wednesday we'll give the brewers, the saloonkeepers and liquor men generally their turn. If necessary we will sit all week. At any rate no one will be denied a full and attentive audience by us. The members of this commission are giving up their own valuable time, without reward from the State, and are anxious to make a report which will furnish the most satisfactory solution of this great question. I appeal to the newspapers to give as much publicity as possible to our invitation to the hearings."

Wise ones at Trenton express the belief that the State Excise Commission in its report to the Governor will recommend that the control of the liquor question so far as possible be given into the hands of the local authorities subject only to a general supervision on the part of the State. In other words, it is now supposed that as a result of what it has learned that the people through the State as a rule want to legislate for themselves and to establish such rules as may be necessary in a given community or section. The report will not be filed until December, but will be compiled. It is said, as early as possible in order that the necessary proposed bills may be drawn in conformity with its recommendations should the governor approve of the commission's suggestions.

Rally Day at Trinity.

The Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church will observe rally day Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at which time the afternoon sessions will be resumed for the winter. BOROUGH TAX RATE IS FIXED AT $1.88

Official announcement was made today that the tax rate in North Plainfield for the coming year will be $1.88, a twenty per cent. decrease over that of last year, when it was $2.68. The rate is made up from the following figures: County tax, 54 cents; State school tax, 20 cents; Borough school tax, 66 cents; special school tax, 48 cents.

The fact that there is a substantial decrease in the borough rate is gratifying to the taxpayers. Mayor Samuel Townsend has frequently been in session with the Somerset County Tax Board and with the assistance of Dr. Justus H. Cooley, the borough assessors, made every effort to bring the rate down.

There has been a notable increase in valuations throughout the whole county. North Plainfield's real and personal valuation is announced to be $4,482,700.

COURT HOUSE RAPIDLY NEARING COMPLETION

Work on Somerset county's new white marble court house has progressed so rapidly during the past few weeks that it is quite possible that the contractor will have finished his job in about a month, if the work moves on in that time as swiftly as it has recently. This does not mean, however, that the edifice will be ready for occupancy in four weeks because there are many things to be done before the new structure is ready for use. It is expected, nevertheless that the December term of the county court will be held in the new court house.

Work on the steps leading to the main entrance is being completed this week and the copper covering to the dome is still to be put on, besides the finishing of a number of other portions of the building. The new structure makes a most imposing appearance and is the admiration of all visitors to the county seat. Motorists on a sight seeing tour invariably stop and for a few moments view the magnificent building.

Yesterday one or two of the historic elms in front of the court house were removed so that a better view of the structure could be had from Main street. It is understood that the remainder of the trees are to be allowed to remain, as they form a landmark in that portion of the town.

The building committee in charge of the work on the new court house is already making preparations for the furnishings. Recently, at a meeting in the offices of the architect in New York, the contract for the furniture was awarded to the Deby Desk Company of Boston at its bid of $16,800, the lowest. There were many bidders and the bids ranged from that sum up to $26,000.

It is said the cost of the new court house complete will be about $325,000.

Will Investigate Water Pressure.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of the borough, has decided to investigate the reported condition of an inadequate water pressure at the fire on Whitewood avenue, Wednesday night. It is said that a line of hose, about 1,300 feet in length was used, it being attached to the nearest hydrant, and that a stream of not more than thirty feet was thrown. The fact was reported to the Mayor by Chief Woolston, of the fire department, and the latter in turn will take it up with the fire committee from the Borough Council.

Walked to Munsey, N. Y.

Leslie Powlison and Wilbur Dunning, enjoyed a novel outing a few days ago, when they walked from this city to Munsey, N. Y. The distance required two days. The young men left here at 5 o'clock in the morning and reached Paterson at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, where they remained until the following morning when they continued their journey.

Fanwood Club Dance.

The Fanwood Country Club held its first dance for the season last night which proved to be an enjoyable affair. The feature of the evening was a cotillion led by Louis de Brigard, who introduced a number of new and very pretty figures. There were about thirty couples.

DENIED HER A DIVORCE

Throwing Old Shoe at Hubby, Fatal to Mrs. Dunn's Petition in Chancery Court.

MR. DUNN WAS THE VICTIM.

Chancellor Says That He Was the Object of All the Cruelty—Her Testimony Disproven.

In the Court of Chancery at Newark, yesterday, Vice Chancellor Stevens handed down a decree denying Mrs. Olive Blanche Dunn's suit for divorce against her husband, Wesley J. Dunn, a driver in the Plainfield fire department. The petition was asked for on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

In rendering his opinion in the case, the vice-chancellor stated that instead of Mrs. Dunn being a very much abused person, the husband had been a victim of considerable cruelty. Dunn stated in court that his wife had thrown an old shoe at him on one occasion and that she would not allow him to spend any money for individual wants. Mrs. Dunn vigorously denied his allegations and said that he squandered a great deal of the family's income in saloons every week. This he declared to be false. There were counter charges of infidelity and at one point in the taking of testimony, the vice-chancellor and Plainfield physicians became involved in a lengthy argument over the submission of medical testimony. The court intimated that one of the doctor had given wrong dates in connection with his treatment of Mrs. Dunn.

The case has been pending for a long time and the decree was handed down only after a careful conisderation of all the testimony submitted. Mrs. Dunn was represented by W. S. Angleman and W. G. DeMezae, while Codington & Swackhamer looked after the huband's interests.

Mrs. Dunn is at present living with her mother, Mrs. Henry J. Bickel, at 574 West 182d street, New York, and Dunn resides at 62 Westervelt avenue, this city. The Bickels were also formerly local residents.

WARREN'S WORKERS GATHER FOR A PICNIC

The members of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel, to the number of thirty-one enjoyed an all-day picnic at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gavett in Washington Valley, yesterday, making the trip to and from the chapel in a large stage. The women left the chapel at 9:30 o'clock, arriving at their destination in good time.

Mrs. Gavett was waiting for her guests having arranged a day of pleasure for them. During the forenoon the women spent the time playing all sorts of games; at noon all adjourned to an attractive spot on the grounds where a box luncheon was enjoyed. Mrs. Gavett in addition provided hot coffee. After lunch the company listened to several excellent stories read aloud by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, after which other games were played, while some of the guests found pleasure in a ramble about the mountains. Before the start for home was made Mrs. Gavett supplied her guests with great quantities of beautiful flowers from her garden. It was nearly five o'clock when the party reached home, but all agreed that the day had been one of great pleasure. This afternoon the society holds its first fall meeting in the chapel.

Plainfield Seminary Re-Opens.

The Plainfield Seminary for young women re-opened yesterday for the fall and inter terms, and the prospects for a successful year are bright. A number of the former have returned and many more have registered. There are still several pupils who have not yet returned from their summer vacation, but they are expected within the next week or so. There were no special features in connection with the resumption of studies and the work is going along smoothly.

Tower Operators Changed.

Fred Harding, who has been the tower operator at Roselle on the New Jersey Central, has been transferred to the town near Berckman street, and Frank Naylor has been transferred to Cranford Junction.

TOURING CAR RUNS OVER WAGON DRIVER

A large, red touring car, turning the corner at Park avenue and Fourth street shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, knocked down Fred Stewart, of New street, an ice wagon driver, who was standing near his vehicle. No warning sound came from the auto and Stewart was hit before he could make a step to get out of the way. Both wheels of the machine on the right side ran over his legs just above the knee and he was rendered helpless for the time being.

The chauffeur continued on after the accident but stopped after he had gone a block. He returned to Stewart but did not give him his name. The number of his machine was 29,804 and it was reported to the police by the injured man after he had recovered sufficiently. Stewart lives at 414 New street and he went home after his visit to police headquarters.

EMBURY TRACT SITE FOR P. O. BUILDING?

Considering the question of a site for the Federal building in this city, there is some comment concerning the difference in the prices as submitted by the owners of the Embury property at East Front and Church street and the one owned by the Durlach estate at East Front street and Watchung avenue. The Embury property is offered for $8,936 or $80 a foot. The Durlach property, which is a block away, is offered for $60,000, or $400 a foot.

By purchasing an additional strip of land adjoining the Embury property, making the whole purchase price about $20,000, it is alleged that a satisfactory site for the Federal building could be obtained. According to report Commissioner W. F. Field, who was in town this week for the purpose of inspecting the various site for recommendation, will likely favor the Embury property. The Durlach land could be obtained through condemnation proceedings, but the Government, it is said, dislikes to follow that method for obtaining land. The Durlach property is assessed at $20,000, which is supposed to represent the total value under the law.

During his stay in the city, Mr. Field called on real estate men and many others who are interested in the proposition, including the merchants, with a view to learning their opinions regarding a suitable site for the postoffice building. These opinions will have considerable weight in the recommendation to be made.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. ISAAC W. RUSHMORE.

Mrs. Sarah M. Rushmore, wife of Isaac W. Rushmore, died suddenly at her home on West Seventh street, last evening. She had been in failing health for several months but the end was not expected. Heart failure is ascribed as the cause.

Mrs. Rushmore was born in Yorktown, N. Y., seventy-one years ago, her maiden name being Sarah Mekeel. She had made her home here for a long time and had been active in the charities of the city, especially in the Children's Home. She was also identified with the affairs of the Crescent Avenue church, of which she was a member.

Mrs. Rushmore was twice married and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James W. Murray, by her first union, and Mrs. Edward Patterson. There are also two step-sons, Robert and Townsend Rushmore, of Plainfield, and a step-daughter, Mrs. Edmund Wood, of Trenton.

The funeral will be held at her late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the burial will be private.

In the City Court.

George Renny, a young Scotchman living on West Third street, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct at his home yesterday noon. He was arrested by Patrolman Saffron on his wife's complaint. The hearing brought out the fact that Renny has been driven to drink because he believed that another man had been intruding in his home and Judge Runyon decided to give him a chance. Sentence was suspended with a warning to behave himself or go to jail the next time his wife had occasion to complain against him.

OLD ASSAULT CHARGE HEARD IN CITY COURT

An echo of an assault committed last July was heard in the city court this morning, when John Kuhn, or "Cooney," was arraigned on a charge preferred by Charles Smith, an auto driver. The complainant went to the police the day after the affair took place but "Cooney" was not apprehended and Smith had to go to New England with his employer for the summer. He returned to town a few days ago.

According to the story told Judge Runyon, this morning, Smith and "Cooney" made some bets on a pool game and the former lost out. He paid part of his wager and the remainder, amounting to about $60, he said he would make good as soon as he got it. "Cooney" refused to wait and told Smith that if he didn't produce the mabuma he would "beat him up" every time he saw him. He kept his promise by thumping the chaffeur on two occasions and another time threatening him as he was in the automobile with his employer.

"Cooney" pleaded guilty to the charge when asked for his side of the story but explained that he wanted to scare Smith more than anything else. He was held in $150 bonds to keep the peace.

PROSECUTOR HUNTS FOR ALLEGED INCENDIARY

Subsequent developments concerning the destruction of Eugene VanCourt's barn at Oak Tree, by fire yesterday, it is said, point strongly to Lem Markine, a colored man who was formerly employed by Mr. VanCourt and who was discharged last week as the man responsible for it. Later in the morning Mr. VanCourt's brother-in-law, William Randolph, entered the cellar of the house to get some pails to carry water to put out the buring embers, and found that the lock had been torn from the cellar door. Going down the steps he discovered that a fire had been started at the foot of the stairs, but had smouldered out. Investigating further, he found that a fire had also been started with newspapers at each end of a swinging shelf. Fortunately the wood was damp and failed to catch.

Mr. VanCourt told a reporter for The Daily Press that he had no doubt whatever but that the colored man set fire to his barn and also tried to burn the house. He also declared that Markine, while in his employ, tried to separate him and his wife. The VanCourts had a boarder, Frank Willis, with whom Markine also had trouble. Willis left Tuesday for the South. A postal card dated Baltimore was received from him Wednesday night.

Markine is about six feet tall, curly hair, mixed with gray and mustache, also mixed with gray. He wore a pepper and salt coat over a blouse, a soft hat, creased in the centre, and cotton pants with a small stripe and had on a new pair of shoes.

Prosecutor Berdine, of New Brunswick, has taken up the case and warnings have been sent broadcast to look for Markine. It is said that after being discharged Friday he came back to Oak Tree on Monday, leaving that evening for New York.

W. L. SMALLEY, JR., SELLS HIS PROPERTY, "SUNNYSIDE."

Councilmanic candidate William L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough, yesterday completed negotiations for the sale of all but a small part of his property, "Sunnyside," located on Greenbrook road. The purchaser is T. H. Harrington, a New York wholesale butcher, who will take possession within a month.

The deal includes the residence on the place which was formerly the Stine homestead and which Mr. Smalley had entirely remodelled and fitted with all modern improvements. The farm comprises sixty acres but the former owner reserved twelve acres directly at the corner of Greenbrook road and West End avenue where he will reside. The location is an ideal one, as a beautiful grove of trees will be in the front yard, and Mr. Smalley will build an artificial lake in a hollow on the west side of the site for the house.

The deal was consummated through the agencies of Charles H. Lyman and Armstrong Mulford.

NEW TROLLEY CAR MYTH

P.S.C. Officials Consider Present Ramshackle Ones are Good Enough for Plainfield.

TO IMPROVE THE SCHEDULE.

To Make Change of Station a Fixture by Having All Cars Meet at Fourth Street and Watchung Avenue.

Upon the invitation of the Councilmanic committee on public affairs, which has undertaken the difficult task of obtaining a satisfactory trolley schedule for the local city lines, Superintendent Gettings and Mr. Gilmour, of the Public Service Corporation, attended a meeting of the committee last night. Aside from the fact that the officials agreed to rearrange the local schedule so that the Netherwood, Fourth and Somerset street and Arlington avenue cars will connect at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, they would promise nothing.

Their attention was called to the dilapitated condition of some of the cars on the local lines, but the officials had the courage to declare that these cars are of good type and are satisfactory to the company. They failed to see where the people of Plainfield have any "kick coming," and alleged that the service is first class and the condition of the cars are all right.

The attitude of the company's officials was a surprise to the committee and is taken to mean that Plainfielders are getting all that they can expect in the way of improvements. The committee, however, is on the warpath and before it gets through with the Public Service Corporation there may be a change in the situation.

One member of the committee in speaking of the matter, said that the Common Council has sufficient power and authority to bring the company to terms and as soon as it learns the true condition of affairs it will be in a position to act. It is common knowledge that the company is not strictly living up to the terms of the franchise granted by the city and there are ways and methods of making it do so.

Superintendent Gettings informed the committee that all of the cars operated in the city are of the double truck type, but he did not explain the rickety and dirty condition of these cars.

As to the change in the schedule whereby the Plainfield cars will meet at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, this will not interfere with the operation of the Netherwood cars through to Grant avenue during certain hours of the day. The change is made chiefly for the benefit of the school children who are obliged to use the trolleys, and who have had trouble in connecting with the Arlington avenue cars on their way to the High School. The public affairs committee will continue its investigation and when a report is made it will be a complete and thorough one touching every phase of trolley conditions in the city.

Made Supervising Engineer.

Hervey K. Doane, son of Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, who has been in the employ of Burns & McDonald, contractors of Kansas City, Missouri, has just been promoted to the position of supervising engineer, and has been put in charge of the construction of a big water plant at Cottonwood Dolls, Kan. The work will involve the laying of six miles of iron pipe, the erection of a powerhouse and the installation of a steel reservoir, sixty-five feet high and one hundred feet in diameter. It will require about four months to complete the job. Mr. Doane was graduated from Rutgers College, two years ago and since then has made rapid progress in his profession as civil engineer. For a time he was empolyed by the Pennsylvania Railroad on their tunnel work in New York. His recent promotion is considered a high honor.

TRENTON FAIR.

For Monday, September 28, the opening day of the Great Inter-State Fair, the management has programmed a $1,000 baby show and parade that will not only be a distinct feature of the Fair, but an event that will rank with anything of the kind ever promoted in this country. The classes are as follows: Baby show—handsomest, fattest, smallest, twins, triplets. Baby Parade—baby coach, including costume of child, doll coach and go-carts, novelty vehicles, any decoration, costumes in fancy dress, costumes in burlesque. Four to six prizes, consisting of valuable articles of jewelry, etc., are given in each class. The winners also receive the coveted blue ribbon. Each child entered will receive a souvenir prize. No entrance fee is charged. Parents are given free admission to the grounds and grand stand. Entry blanks and information in relation to the show and parade can be secured by addressing Frank McCullough, box 717, Trenton, N J.

The running races will present fast polo ponies for valuable trophies. The best runners of this class in New Jersey and Pennsylvania have been entered and some fine sport is assured.

The vaudeville program for the week is about completed. It is made up of such star acts as Dare-Devil Schreyer in his leap from a bicycle through space into a shallow tank of water; medley of popular songs by Winkler's Second Regiment Band; the Three Tumbling Toms; America's first balloon race for cash prizes; real charoit race for cash purses; genuine Western relay races with lady riders going four miles and changing mounts at the end of each mile; New York Scottish Highlanders' Pipe and Drum Band; Hassen Ben Ali's Whirlwind Bedouin Arabs; the Lorre Troupe in comedy acrobatic acts; the three Renards, aerial human whirling tops; the five Boises, world's greatest long leaping and casting artists, late with Ringling Brothers' Circus, and Mme. Norick in a triple somersault automobile act, the sensation of Europe and the first performances in the United States.

FALL MILLINERY OPENING

THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY OF THIS WEEK

Showing copies of the latest arrivals from Europe's fashion centres some just as the original models—others, subdued to meet the tastes of the more conservative dressers.

The millinery work-rooms is headed by Miss Root, of New York, an artist of high reputation, which is well earned, as her work will attest. YOU ARE EXPECTED TO ATTEND and see the beautiful bonnets, there is no insistance to purchase, you are our guests on these opening days, and Miss Root will be on the floor to greet you. There are some surprises in special values on a limited number of the most stunning models for opening day buyers, don't forget to see these, as they will positively not be duplicated, and, are put out only as an advertisement to this department. BY ALL MEANS COME.

Showing the New Fall Dress Goods

The biggest selection to be seen hereabouts, and our claim is that the values are better than you can duplicate, not only in Plainfield, but in Newark and New York, take our samples for comparision, and you will surely buy here.

Distinctive Fall Suits and Overcoats

For Men and Young Men

Your Summer apparel has done good service, and it's time now that you had a New Fall Suit. You'll soon need a Fall Overcoat, too, so who not have it ready?

The two distinguished characteristics of M. & B. Garments are their individuality and their shapeliness. They're built in. They're permanent.

This season the fabrics are more varied in coloring than ever. Every fashionable model and every new effect is here from the most conservative to the most radical.

Fall Suits and Overcoats, $10 to $35.

Unusual Fall Suits for Boys

Something more than merely good materials, strongly put together, are found in our Boys' Clothing. These are very essential, of course—but fit, style, appropriateness—all come in for their rightfull share of attention at this store. That's why these Fall Suits for Boys are unusual.

Sizes 2½ to 10 years, $3 to $16.

All roads will lead to Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon when the Clinton Avenues will battle with the West Ends of Somerville in the fourth game of the series. There will be plenty of excitement for the most rabid fan and both teams will play their best game to win.

Clinton Avenue has a slight advantage in having won two of the three games played, but still this does not prove that they will win tomorrow. "Jimmie" Montross, who will pitch for Somerville, has a happy faculty of fooling the best batters and that he is lucky no one will deny. This will be the first opportunity local fans have had to see "Jimmie" pitch on the Oval this season and there is no use concealing the fact everyone wants to see him make good.

Randolph has been pitching remarkable ball this season and besides numerous victories, he has a no-hit-no-run game to his credit, Scotch Plains being the victim. That was a great game and Randolph can be depended upon to do his best tomorrow, while the whole Plainfield team will be right there with the goods.

The Y. M. C. team will go to Westfield tomorrow for the first time this season and they are counting on a victory. They will face Ortleib, who has won many games this year.

The Giants are certainly making a fine record this season, their long string of victories being remarkable in more ways than one. The injury to Doyle was expected to have a disastrous effect, but Herzog, who took his place at second base, has been playing a phenomenal game, and in fact every member of the team has been working as one man to land the pennant. The real test will come when the Chicagos and Pittsburgs visit the Polo Grounds for the final games.

"Red" Waller, who has been signed by McGraw, is said to have had the most successful season in his career, winning a large majority of his games. Last Sunday he pitched a tie game against the Reserve Giants and his work attracted considerable attention. Many local fans remember when "Red" was the thorn in the flesh for the Plainfield team.

It is a remarkable fact that considering the great number of ball players in Plainfield there are so few good pitchers, the kind that are expected to develop into first class twirlers. No doubt many aspire to become a Mathewson, a Wiltse and acheive fame, but there are no considerable number in sight at present.

GOLF.

Walter J. Travis met his match at the Garden City tournament on Thursday in one of the most exciting competitions ever witnessed, when H. H. Wilder, of Harvard, defeated "Foxy Grandpa," the finals scores being 166 to 168. It was a forty-one hole match, the longest on record in an American championship. It was a test of endurance and golfing courage that aroused the greatest enthusiasm among the onlookers, who walked seven or eight miles to watch every shot.

The two players, who could not cut across corners, walked about twelve miles, but in the fury of the game it seemed no more than a city block. There was a forty hole match between Byers and Ward, equalling the long distance record made by Walter Fairbanks at Onwentsia in the amateur championship of 1899, when he beat H. P. Toler. Byers was 3 up and 4 to go, but Ward brought the match to the eighteenth hole and squared it there by a win in 2. The gallery just in from the Travis and Wilder match, saw the finish and trooped out again for a tramp of another mile in the gloaming.

The events scheduled at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow include the weekly competition for the Fall Handicap cups, classes A and B, and there will be a dinner-dance at the clubhouse in the evening.

Besides the play for the challenge trophies at the Park Golf Club tomorrow, there will be the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups. A large field is expected to take part in the events.

Robert Abbott may engage in some of the events at the Plainfield Country Club this fall. His friends would like to see him back in his old-time form when he won the intercollegiate championship.

Martha Washington Council, Daughters of America, will hold a regular meeting tomorrow night.

Plainfield, N. J., September 18, 1908.

"Bob" Davis grossly libels New Jersey when he predicts that it will give Bryan a majority.

It will be a matter for considerable regret should the Government decide to acquire the Embury property as a site for the proposed postoffice building. By all means such a structure should be more centrally located.

The Paterson Evening News is wrong when it says that every other city petitioned for a special election on the voting machine agitation. Plainfield is among a number where there was no expressed desire for such an election.

A ballot cast for sentimental reasons is a ballot wrongfully used and therefore a vote against the Republican candidate for sheriff, who possesses the necessary business qualifications, would be an abuse of the greatet power placed in the hands of a citizen of this free country.

Those in other parts of the State who are watching the progress of the State Senatorial campaign in Somerset should have no misgivings as to the result. Mr. Frelinghuysen has more than demonstrated his ability to act as the representative of that prosperous rural district in the upper house at Trenton and by his deeds has convinced the voters tha he is the right man in the right place

When "the dear public" was told last fall by the city government that as a result of favors granted the P. S. C., it could expect new trolley cars by Jan. 1, 1908, it was greatly deceived. This deception was proven last night when officials of that corporation served notice that the present junk is good enough for Plainfield. The cars now in use are a disgrace to Plainfield. It is suggested that the Plainfield Protective Association, which has a faculty of doing effective work without wishy-washy methods, take a hand in the matter.

CANDIDATE THOMPSON TELLS WHERE HE STANDS

Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, a candidate for the Assembly nomination on the regular Republican ticket at the primaries on Tuesday, yesterday issued a statement in which he clearly sets forth his attitude toward the office which he seeks. Having served through several terms of elective offices in his home town. Mr. Thompson says that the experience has served to deepen his convictions "that there is no office within the gift of the people, under a representative government, the duties and obligations of which may be lightly regarded or indifferently performed by any one worthy of the people's suffrages."

Since he has been in public life, Mr. Thompson has been a staunch advocate of popular representation. His view on this question is concisely expressed in his statement. He says: "If nominated and elected I shall feel called upon to render an account of my legislative action to the people. This is the attitude in which I seek the opportunity to serve the Legislature, and it is the attitude I shall maintain if the opportunity is afforded."

The primary elections here this year will be tame, there being but one local contest on, and this is a little personal squabble in the Second ward over the selection of three members of the local Republican executive committee. Arthur N. Pierson, a Committeeman, will be opposed by Robert L. Smitley. The latter has the backing of the Second Ward Good Government Club, and a lively battle will be fought, with the odds in Mr. Smitley's favor, it is declared.

Because of the keen interest manifest throughout the county, however, in the result of the primary elections for the Assembly, it is expected that the local Republicans will poll a record vote for their favorite son, Mr. Thompson. The Westfield aspirant is very popular in his home town, having served for three terms as town clerk, and twice being elected to that office without opposition. He has the solid support of the local Republican organization, and of the Good Government Club. Besides attending to a large law practice, Mr. Thompson finds time to take an active part in many business organizations of the town. Republicans here regard his chances of nomination as very good. He is one of seven candidates, but it is expected that the vote on the four Elizabeth candidates will be scattered, and that Thompson will poll a big vote in town and cities outside of Elizabeth.

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE OF WESTFIELD REPUBLICANS.

For the purpose of conducting a campaign on behalf of the national candidates, William Howard Taft and J. S. Sherman, Charles N. Codding, chairman of the Westfield Republican executive committee, has appointed a committee of forty Republicans, ten from each ward in the town. This committee will be known as the Taft and Sherman Campaign Committee, and is as follows:

First Ward—Hugh Talbet, W. J. Kennedy, Andrew A. Smith, George B. Dickerson, M. B. Dutcher, James O. Clark, J. Fred Wright, Wray Edwards, George T. Cruttenden, Dr. C. M. F. Egel.

Second Ward—Sidney L. Knifen, Harold Thompson, E. S. F. Randolph, Curtis Beard, Jr., A. A. Moser, Theodore R. Harvey, Robert L. Smitley, Isaac Seeley, Walter J. Lee, William Affleck.

Third Ward—A. L. Russell, Fred N. Brush, R. T. Mills, J. G. Ten Eyck, George H. L. Morton, A. H. Meyer, L. M. Pearsall, R. P. Grant, John McCormick, L. G. Venn, Louis C. Ganzel.

Fourth Ward—George Gabler, Ed. C. Winter, John Ledley, George Peek, Jr., Charles D. Losee, John C. Hall, Charles C. Hall, Charles Clotworthy, Mark Webster, Jerry Wright, Preston W. Ross.

President McCrea Inspects Canal.

President James McCrea, Vice-President Charles E. Pugh, General Superintendent F. L. Shephard, Assistant Engineer Parker and other officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, visited New Brunswick yesterday. They were met by Robert L. Hoagland, local ticket agent, who were escorted them to the Pennsylvania Railroad tug Reller for a trip through the Delaware and Raritan Canal. The fact that the Raritan River Railroad was included in the trip revived the old story that this line was really owned by the Pennsylvania and would soon be connected with the Pennsylvania's main line here. The last Legislature adopted a resolution for a joint commission to investigate conditions along the canal. A Senate committee was named, but no House committee, and the legislation is still in the air. The visit of the railroad chiefs yesterday, it is thought, may have some bearing on the matter, and it is hoped that it may lead to an improvement of the canal facilities.

Laborer Lives with Crushed Skull.

Although his skull was crushed when an emery wheel burst while he was at work, Albert Kubilus, of Newark, retained consciousness when he was admitted to the City Hospital there last night. He was hurled several feet across the workroom floor, but got to his feet before fellow workmen reached him. He collapsed, however, but retained full control of his senses when examined by the doctors. His skull is fractured and the doctors say he may not live.

Widow Says Boys Cut off Curls.

With the spot where she was minus two of her blond curls prominently displayed, Mrs. Ida Rosenberg, of No. 156 South Orange avenue, Newark, appeared in the 4th Precinct police court there yesterday and charged Gustave Helman, of the same address, and Philip Seidenberg, of No. 28 Hayes street, both eleven years old, with cutting her hair while she sat on her stoop with seventy years old and a widow for two years, having married when she thirteen years old. The Helman boy admitted his guilt.

Victor Talking Machines

It is with pleasure we announce the opening of a department devoted to the Exhibition and Sale of the famous "Victor Talking Machines" and Records. Before taking up the line we looked into and investigated thoroughly the merits of the various makes of talking machines and found the "Victor" to be king of them all. The familiar picture of the little "Victor" dog listening to "His Master's Voice" represents a combination of classic, refinement and popular entertainment which is found in no other instrument in the world. No other has the clear musical tone or brings from far-off and from the past the living voices of such great artists, and the performances of such musical organizations. No other has such perfect records, or is so perfectly made and finished in every detail.

The "VICTOR TALKING MACHINES" range in prices from 25.00, 30.00, 40.00, 50 00, 60.00 and up to 200.00.

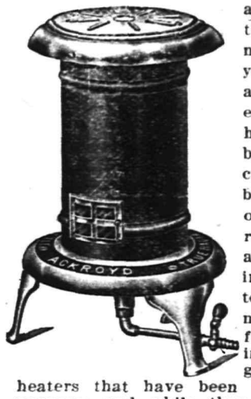
and we sell them on the "Easy Payment" plan and make the payments so easy that most anyone can afford to own one of these wonderful instruments.

We extend a cordial invitation to all to come and hear the "Victor" sing and play.

THE ACKROYD GAS HEATERS



are just the thing to take the chill off the room night and morning before you start your heating apparatus. Some of the excellent features of this heater are that it heats by radiation, not by air circulation. Perfect combustion; positively no odor whatever; the heat is radiated from the sides and thrown near the floor instead of going directly to the ceiling. Five times more heat produced than from other heaters burning the same amount of gas. We have about 25 heaters that have been used for demonstrating purposes and while they last we'll sell them special for..... $1.98

Men's Shoes in Fall Styles

Our ever increasing Men's business has encouraged us to plan this season's stock on much broader lines than heretofore—more shapes and designs—a greater variety of makes—a wider range of prices, and the results we know will be as advantageous to you as to us. There are many practical reasons why you should buy shoes here—the style and finish you can see—the wear is in them and comparison will prove that the price is right—all sizes and widths insure a perfect fit. These are inducements we offer.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN OF EDWARD M. WALDRON.

Aroused by the crackling of flames, Frank Taylor, a colored coachman, with his family, barely escaped from their living apartment in the barn of Edward M. Waldron, once candidate for Mayor of Newark, on his estate near Lyons Station, about midnight, Wednesday night. The barn was totally destroyed, and firemen had hard work to save the Waldron residence, which is about one hundred feet from the burned structure.

Taylor and his family were sound asleep when the flames awoke them, and, finding his egress from the doors cut off, the coachman raised the front window, and, with his family, jumped through it to the ground. None of them were injured, and Taylor speedily sounded an alaram and awoke the Waldron family.

How the blaze started is not known. The coachman was unable to save any of his household effects.

Three horses, a pony, two cows and several carriages and coaches were consumed in the flames. Firemen from Basking Ridge and Bernardsville were summoned, and upon arriving at the balze, directed their streams upon the house.

Pending the arrival of the firemen, neighbors assisted in removing the furniture from the residence and piled it at the extreme end of the lawn. Mr. Waldron's two children were taken to the home of Willian J. Kearn nearby and sheltered and neighbors secured from the dairy of Luther Childs a number of buckets These were utilized by a bucket brigade to enable water being dashed against the heat blistered side of the house nearest the barn.

The loss is placed by Mr. Waldron at about thirty-five hundred dollars, covered by insurance.

MAY DIE FROM AUTO CRASH.

Summit Laundryman Held Pending Result of Companion's Injuries.

Two young girls and a man were injured early yesterday morning, when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a Roseville car at Orange and Plane streets, Newark. One of the girls is so badly injured that it is feared she will not recover. All three are in the City Hospital.

The automobile was owned and being driven by James F. Gray, of Summit, when the accident occurred. With him in the machine at the time were Marcella Connell, seventeen years old, of Sussix avenue; Estelle Traphagen, nineteen years old, of No. 404 South 11th street, and Andrew Harris, twenty-nine years old, of the Beachwood Hotel, Summit. Gray was the only one of the party to escape injury. Miss Connell had her left arm broken and received many injuries about the head and body. Miss Traphagen was badly cut about the head and body, and it is said at the City Hospital that her skull is fractured. Harris sustained injuries about the head and body.

As far as the police have been able to learn from Gray, who was arrested and held to await the result of the injuries to Miss Traphagen, they had been riding about town for two hours and were returning home when the accident happened.

Passengers on the trolley car say the party in the automobile were singing and lauging just before the collision. None of those in the car was injured.

Soon to Be Married.

The marriage of William A. Mettler, of Somerville, and Miss Ida F. Koetz, of Vineland, will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koetz, at Vineland, Wednesday, October 7, at 6 o'clock.

MAY SEND TROOPS TO THE QUAKER CITY

If the balance in the emergency appropriation is sufficient, and if Governor Fort will sanction the proposition, New Jersey will be well represented by troops in the big parade in Philadelphia during the week beginning October 4, when the 225th anniversary of the founding of the city will be observed.

The matter was discussed at a meeting of the State Military Board yesterday and the opinion was expressed that the State should be represented at the celebration by the Third regiment, Battery B., and the Second battalion of the naval reserve, all having headquarters in Camden.

The board also favored a proposition to have the Fifth regiment of Paterson participate in ceremonies attending the unveiling of the monument to heroes of the revolution at Fort Lee, September 26.

"Ole Jeff," Negro Soldier, Dead.

Thomas Jefferson Morris, popularly known as "Ole Jeff," the oldest living negro Union soldier, died Wednesday night at Morris Plains at the age of ninety-seven years. "Jeff" Morris was dismissed from the army for insubordination, but in some way obtained a pension, which was revoked in the Cleveland administration. Both Senator Kean and Representative Fowler took an interest in the old negro's welfare and tried to have the pension renewed. Their efforts were in vain.

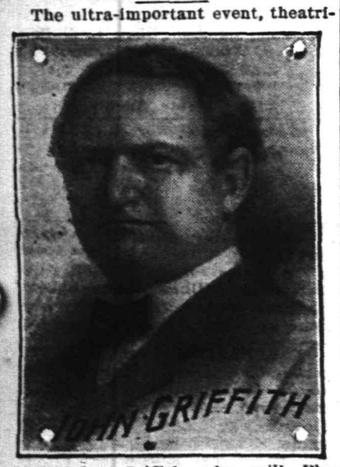
James Young in "Brown of Harvard" at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

Miss Edyth Totten, Leading Lady With Mr. John Griffith at New Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

All lovers of healthy, wholesome dramatic art will welcome "The Great Divide," William Vaughn Moody's masterful drama of Western life, which the leading dramatic reviewers have hailed as "the long awaited great American play." The distinguished actor-manager, Henry Miller, will present a superb company with the entire production and a magnificent scenic equipment which will be precisely the same in every detail just as presented during the phenomenal run of over 600 performances in New York city. Manager Counihan of the New Plainfield theatre announces "The Great Divide" as the attraction for next Monday night.

The ultra-important event, theatrically and socially, of the coming week will be the appearance at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night of the great Shakesperian star, John Griffith, who will present the ever popular tragic romance of "Othello." Those to whom the poetic drama appeals are not frequently given the opportunity to witness a local presentation of plays of "the immortal bard," and this fact combines with the recognized excellence of Mr. Griffith's portrayals of Shakespeare's famous characters, to render his engagement here of double importance. In the role of Othello, the Moorish military officer of tradition, Griffith is credited with having duplicated his several previous successes in the enactment of others of Shakespeare's roles. No better endorsement than this could be offered, for his impersonation last season of "Richard III," the deformed, crown-crazed English king, and his previous portrayals of the equally exacting character of "Macbeth," were favorably comparied by Shakesperian students and critics, with the best efforts of the great tragedians of the past century. A notably strong company supports Mr. Griffith this season, including several prominent players who have long been identified with other great tragic stars. Miss Edyth Totten, a young actress of much more than ordinary histrionic achievement, is the leading lady. She will appear in the role of Desdemona, for which she is said to be eminently well fitted by nature, possessing as she does, not only great dramatic ability, but youth and physical charm—all of which are necessary to the perfect portraiture of Shakespeare's most most lovable feminine character.



Mr. John Griffith who will Play "Othello," at the New Plainfield Theatre Sept. 22.

Charles E. Blaney's latest sensational melodrama success, entitled "From Sing Sing to Liberty," with Jack Dorris, the Jail Breaker as its star, will be the offering at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night. Mr. Blaney remarked after finishing this play: "I have accomplished something and am very proud of it." It is a hard matter to please everyone. Mr. Blaney has supplied the wants of the popular priced theatre-goers for many years and has met no failures. His past success is a guarantee of his efforts in the future. This play consists of four acts and six elaborate scenes.

THE GREAT RIVALRY.

Candidate, he come along,
Talkin' night an' noon.
Glee club sing a purty song;
We jines in de tune,
Hab a mos' convincin' way;
Specks dey mus' speak true,
"Mistah Candidate," I say,
"I gwineter vote for you!"

'Nuther candidate draws nigh;
Has a band dat's great.
Say dat opposition try
To swamp de ship o' state!
An' now de question dat I note
A risin' th'oo de land,
Is dis: "Which wins, de people's vote, de glee club or de band?"

GOV. FORT WILL BE "AT HOME" SOON AGAIN.

Next Tuesday Governor Fort will be "at home" again in the State house at Trenton. During his absence the rooms of the executive department have been redecorated and otherwise improved and the finishing touches are now being put on.

By Saturday night the Governor's private room, and the rooms of the private secretary and executive clerk will be ready for occupancy. The improvements in the large reception room will not be completed until a week later.

The walls of the Governor's room have been painted a light chocolate, and the ceiling a delicate cream color. Plain, but artistic frescoing embellishes both. A new oak floor, of narrow boards placed in herring-bone fashion, has been laid. Around it is a border of cedar. The floor will be highly polished and partly covered with a handsome rug.

No new furniture is to be bought for any of the rooms, but the old has been newly upholstered and otherwise rejuvenated.

The rooms of the secretary and clerk have been considerably brightened. The walls and ceilings have been painted in terra cotta and cream and new carpets will be laid.

The reception room is to have a new floor and new rugs. Its walls have been painted bronze green and the ceiling will be cream color.

Although the department will present a beautiful appearance in its new dress the cost of the improvement will not be large.

Philadelphia Pepperpot.

Take a knuckle of veal and six pounds of mixed tripe that has been soaked in salt water for an hour or two. Boil in large separate pots well covered with water, to which a little salt and half a small red pepper have been added. Boil gently until tender; it will take nearly all day for the tripe. When cold (and it is a good plan to leave the tripe in the water in which it was cooked over night), cut in pieces the size of large dice, add some of the veal. Skim the grease from the two broths and put together in one large pot. Flour the meat well and put in with the liquor. Add six large white potatoes and four onions cut in pieces, with a bouquet of soup herbs containing plenty of sweet marjoram, sweet basil and summer savory. Add also a dozen and a half each cloves and allspice.

Cook about two hours. About half an hour before serving add dumplings about the size of marbles, made by mixing flour, shortening, salt and water. These should not be too stiff. Thicken the soup with flour and butter rubbed together. It should be about the consistency of rich cream when done, and full of the vegetables seasonings and dumplings.

Golden Jubilee 50th Celebration

MILLINERY MEMENTOES
OF OUR 50TH ANNIVERSARY.

You are bound to remember our Golden Jubilee pleasantly if you secure any of the good things we are offering our patrons in a millinery way. Especially is this true of tomorrow's attractions.

Trimmed Hats at $4.75—worth $8 to $10—These hats are the product of our own milliners; many of them are in original designs conceived by our experts, and others are copies of the work of the best French and American artists. The trimmings employed, while not the finest, are good both in quality and color, and enable us to give you all the effect that you find in much higher priced hats at minimum cost. People who are in the habit of paying $8 and $10 for their early Fall Hats will find satisfactory models in this collection at the wonderfully low price we have placed upon them $4.75

Other lines of Hats are here at $7.75, $9.75, $12.50 and upwards all remarkably good values.

THE SUITS
Made to Your Measure
At 17.50 and 25.00.

When we first announced this offer a week ago and emphasized the fact that these prices actually meant a saving of $5 and $7.50 respectively, it was simply an experiment to induce early business.

The number of orders we have taken for these suits in the past week has greatly exceeded our expectations; furthermore, it has proved conclusively—

That the Suits were $22.50 and $32.50 values.
That the Saving of $5.00 and $7.50 was bonafide.
That the Styles to choose from were satisfactory.
That the Materials were every bit as good as advertised.
That the Linings and Trimmings were the best.

And now that these are established facts, this offer should appeal to every woman desiring a high grade suit at a moderate price.

Come and see the beatiful cloths, including cheviots, serges and fancy mixtures in plain colors and novelty weaves that you may choose from.

You may select the style that pleases you from a number of the newest and most distinctive models.

FOR EXAMPLE—

Here is a beautiful suit made of striped worsted. The coat is 26 inches in length, has the much favored pointed effects, collarless but is trimmed with a fold of velvet and a band of satin, open sides and back, trimmed with satin fold and buttons and lined with Skinner's celebrated satin. The skirt is the new button front style trimmed with fold and satin band to correspond with the coat. Made to your measure at $25.

Another pretty suit shows the military effect. It is made of broadcloth and may be had in all the new fall shades. The coat is handsomely trimmed with braid and satin, it is open on the seam and is lined with a fine grade of satin. The skirt shows the new circular flare effect and has a fold trimmed with satin and braid to correspond with the coat. Made to order at $25.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Gibbstown powder works have started on an immense order for the Panama Canal, and a number of additional hands have been taken on.

A monument will be erected to mark the resting place of Conrad Hurff, progenitor of the Hurff family, in the Episcopal Cemetery at Chew's Landing.

Colonel John A. Mather, of the Third Regiment, has ordered the Camden companies to participate in the business men's carnival in South Camden September 30.

Employes of leading merchants of Atlantic City will have shorter hours under a decision made yesterday to close all stores except those on the Boardwalk at 6 p. m.

The absence from home of John Hibbs, a Trenton potter, is thought to be due to his having become temporarily deranged by brooding over the recent death of his mother.

Farmers in Salem county have already commenced cutting up and husking their corn one month ahead of the usual time. The crop is the heaviest in years, and the quality was never better.

The directors of the new First National Bank of Bordentown have decided to purchase the Herron property adjoining the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, on Farnsworth avenue, for their bank.

The widow of Edward Ford, who was murdered in Bordentown by Joseph Hoover, his neighbor, on August 27, has been presented with a purse of money by some employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Stacey Lippincott, indicted by the Burlington county grand jury in February last and who was a fugitive from justice, was captured on a farm near Doylestown, Pa., by Detective Park and Marshal Thorn yesterday.

Enraged by the unfaithfulness of his wife and her frank admission that she loved another better than she did him, and that she would not return to his home, Walter Stockley, a negro, of Mannington Township, fatally slashed his wife's throat yesterday with a razor.

Because he failed to keep a promise to return to his wife and children if sentence on conviction of misconduct with another woman was suspended, Harry Hauling, of Second and Pearl streets, was sentenced to State's prison for one year by Judge Joline, in Camden, yesterday.

Struck by a train near his home at Merchantville yesterday afternoon, George Kleintz, the two-year-old son of Expressman Kleintz, sustained a fracture of the skull and other injuries. The little fellow was removed to the Cooper Hospital, in Camden, where he died last night.

Five thousand colored Odd Fellows at Atlantic City for the meeting of their grand lodge, turned out on parade today with uniformed lodges in full regalia. The parade will be followed by a big ball, to be held on the million dollar pier, where meetings of the grand lodge are being held.

A plot to rob the postoffice and the National bank at Lambertville by three men Tuesday night was frustrated by the alertness of the police. Their plans were overheard and reported to the police, who placed an extra force of watchmen on the two places, but no attempt was made to enter either.

After working hard over the plans and specifications for some time, the building committee awarded the contract for the erection of the new Young Men's Christion Association building in Camden to J. E. & A. L. Pennock, of Philadelphia, the papers having been filed at the county clerk's office yesterday. The price on the general contract is $136,853.

Since its mate was killed by a wagon Tuesday, a cat belonging to Mrs. Mary Hubert, housekeeper for Policeman Donavon, at Eighth and Chestnut streets, Camden, has refused to eat. The cats were together almost all the time and were the pets of the household. The policeman will consult a physician in an effort to save the animal from starvation.

New Fall Suits.

Empire and directoire effects are decidedly a feature of the advanced fall suits, while braid and buttons are the favored trimmings. Soutache is uesed extensively and large handsome buttons are added as decorations.

The skirts are in many cases pleated, differing very little from those worn last year, and the coats are long—averaging three-quarter length—the fronts cut away to display a vest, but straight up and down.

There is no rounding off at the corner at lower front edges.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, is gradually regaining the strength in the wrist which was broken while playing in the South last winter, but it is doubtful whether he will be able to make any great showing this year on the links. The injury which has bothered him to a considerable extent kept him out of several important tournaments.

PLAINFIELD AGAINST SOMERVILLE TOMORROW.

It will be Plainfield against Somerville at Crescent Oval, tomorrow, and the fans will turn out by the hundreds to see the battle. Rumors were flying about the city last night that Manager Conklin had reconstructed his team and among those to be seen in the lineup tomorrow would be Al. Pardee, the Newark Eastern League pitcher, and several other league players. This was a good "pipe," but there were others who refused to fall for such a wierd tale.

When seen today, Manager Bogart Conklin, of the Somervile team, informed a reporter for The Daily Press, that "Smiling Jimmie" Montross would pitch, and the only changes in his lineup would be at third base and in centre-field. The third sacker will come from Elizabeth and the centre-fielder from Trenton. It will be remembered that the regular third baseman nearly lost the West Ends the last game at Somerville, and of necessity the position has been strengthened. Otherwise the team will appear as before.

The game will be called promptly at 3:30 so that if extra innings have to be played, the contest can be finished before dark. The West Ends will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters and they will be given a warm reception. The Clinton Avenues will lineup as follows:

Barnes, 1b; B. Martin, 2b; Emery, 3b; J. Martin, ss; Boelzley, c, O'Loughlin or Gilman, rf; Scott, cf; Schott, lf; Randolph, p.

PLAINFIELD A. C. DEFEATS ALL-PLAINFIELD, 11 TO 9.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the All-Plainfield team on Crescent yesterday afternoon, by a score of 11 to 9. Will Russell twirled for the Plainfield A. C., and besides fanning ten men, he allowed but three passes. Miller, of the Scotch Plains team, who opposed him, struck out six men and walked three. The game was a slugging match from start to finish. Both teams hit the ball hard. The contest was witnessed by a good crowd. The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Plain A. C.	3	3	0
2 0 1 2 0 0—11	15	4
All Plain..	0	4	0
3 1 1 0 0 0—9	14	6

Bateries—Russell and Mullen; Miller and Schropfer.

Two-base hits—Miller (2), T. Mullen, L. Ayers. Bases on balls—Off Russell, 3; off Miller, 3. Struck out—By Russell, 10; by Miller, 6. Left on bases—Plainfield A. C., 4; All-Plainfield, 8. Umpire—Edward Brittan.

Baseball Games Tomorrow.

The baseball games scheduled to be played in Plainfield and vicinity tomorrow are as follows: Clinton Avenues against West Ends, of Somerville, Crescent Oval; Plainfield A. C. against Highland A. The game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

Great Pianist Engaged.

The Plainfield Musical Club has just announced that it has engaged the great pianist, Mme. Fanny Bloomfield-Zeisler, to give a recital at the Casino on December 8. This is an opportunity for music lovers to hear an artist of world-wide reputation who usualy appears only in the large cities. Mme. Bloomfield-Zeisler ranks easily as one of three or four greatest pianists of the present time.

Sixieth Wedding Anniversary.

Captain and Mrs. T. C. Edwards, of Branchport avenue, celebrated the sixieth anniversary of their marriage yesterday at Long Branch. Captain Edwards is in his eighty-second year. His wife is eighty. Captain Edwards has been an oysterman since he was twenty years old.

When the political pot first began to boil at Vineland in August scraps was the daily bill of fare. Then Councilman Joseph Neale alleged that Frank V. L. Turner, Superintendent of Public Works, was not attending to his duties. Next came a street fight between Neale and Joseph Rigoli. Yesterday Turner brought suit in the Supreme Court against Neale for $10,000 damages, charging slander.

Total of 900,000 Patents to Date.

Washington, Sept. 18.—The statement was made at the Patent Office yesterday that the record of patents issued since the first one was recorded, on January 15, 1836, up to the present time, shows a total of over nine hundred thousand patents. The first one recorded was issued to J. Beverly Allen for "improvements in a box for packing tobacco." During the first year the Patent Office was in existence 110 patents were issued.

Prospective Citizens Under Test.

The Union County Court of Common Pleas was crowded yesterday with applicants desiring to obtain naturalization papers. The examination was conducted before County Judge Edward S. Atwater. James Briggs, United States naturalization examiner, propounded the test questions to the applicants. Only a small number of persons yesterday had satisfactorily passed the examination.

Right Up to Date.

A citizen of culture and poetic taste went to a public library and asked for Shelley's "Prometheus Unbound."

He was rather taken back when the librarian replied with great hauteur:

"We don't keep any unbound books in this library."—Youth's Companion.

Experienced.

"Never mind, dear," he said, reassuringly, as she raised her sweet face from his shoulder, and they both saw the white blur on his coat; "it will all brush off."

"Oh, Charlie," she burst off, sobbing, hiding her face again upon his whitey shoulder; "how do you know?"—Somerville Journal.

Wedding Invitations Out.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Powelson, of Pluckemin, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Van Eps Powelson, to Theodore Grey Rowe, of Newark. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride on Saturday afternoon, September 26, at 4 o'clock.

THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Beer was the Steady Drink of the Teutons Who Conquered It.

Pure beer never hurt anybody. On the other hand, it has put back into many a worn out body, health, strength, energy and hope.

The Teutons, who conquered the Roman Empire, were examples of what good beer will do. These men, who drank beer and plenty of it daily, were strong, powerful, sturdy men, quick and brave in battle, and with a constitution that could endure without fatigue the longest marches and continuous outdoor exposure.

When you drink beer, drink Rienzi, the famous Rochester brew of the Bartholomay Brewery Co. It will do you good, because it is pure and honestly brewed. Besides being a refreshing and delightful drink for social occasions, it is a sensible tonic and maker of pure, rich blood.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he has many satisfied customers who will gladly praise its health giving qualities.

His address is 68 Somerset street, but you can call him up by 'phone, No. 229, and he will fill your order on time, every time. Drink Rienzi. It's better. 9 17 3

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Under the auspices of the Epworth League a bazaar and entertainment will be held in Grace M. E. church tonight.

A harvest home and rally was held Wednesday night and last night for the benefit of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church on the church grounds. Among the features was an old-fashioned country dinner. An open air concert was held each evening which was a popular attraction.

To Renominate Wood Sept. 24.

Congressman Ira W. Wood, of Trenton, will be renominated by the Republicans of the Fourth Congressional District, embracing Mercer, Hunterdon and Somerset counties, at a convention to be held next Thursday at noon in Somerville. Mr. Wood will be escorted to the vonventior by the Trenton Republican Club, o which he is a former president, an a band of music. He has no opposition for the nomination and is practically sure to be elected.

Escaped from Asylum.

Charles Hope, of North Plainfield, who was committed to the State Insane Asylum some months ago, escaped yesterday. The man was not considered dangerous and was allowed to work in the asylum yard. Yesterday he disappeared. He was located at his old home in North Plainfield. Chief Weiss notified the asylum authorities and two men were sent down to take him back.

Eberhardt's Trial Begins Monday.

The trial of Gustave Eberhard, indicted for the murder of his aunt, Mrs. Ottilie Eberhard, is set down to begin at Hackensack next Monday morning before Justice Parker, of the Supreme Court.

—The Board of Trade will not meet until the regular date in October, by which time a majority of the members will be home.

WRITTEN IN RED

By CHAS. HOWARD MONTAGUE AND C. W. DYAR

(Copyright, by The Cassell Publishing Co.)

He sauntered out as far as the doorway, and stood there in a brown study.

"No, there is nothing for me to do," he thought, "but to wait here for the man to claim his letter, however long that may be. I must trust to luck and a determined effort to get me a glance at it after he has read it."

The warning of the clerk made the outcome look dubious. These men waiting about here must be creditors or business associates who had pressing reasons to see Stackhouse. The clerk's significant air had insinuated that the junior partner was avoiding them. He was not then to be found at the office of North & Stackhouse? Evidently not, or these men would not come here to wait for him. Nevertheless if his wife had sent the letter thither, it must be because he had directed her to do so. If he deemed it a matter of so much importance, as John Lamm imagined, would he not find some way of obtaining his mail without calling?

It was at the precise moment when this thought was taking form in the reporter's mind that he observed a district messenger boy leaving the office. The boy was just putting his hat upon his head, and Thomas caught a fleeting glimpse of a square, white envelope.

In an instant he comprehended what must have taken place since he had left the desk. Thornton Stackhouse had sent a requisition to the clerk for his mail. A word at the desk confirmed the reporter's suspicions, and in another minute he was upon the heels of the messenger. His task at present seemed simplicity itself. To follow this messenger boy till he was finally led into the presence of the man whose commission he executed was a task that certainly called for none of the higher expedients of Mr. Thomas' genius.

The boy took a course southward and continued straight up Washington street until he reached Union Park street, when he turned short to the right, and a few minues afterward entered the door of a drinking saloon in Shawmut avenue. Thomas had no special associations with the place, though he knew of it in a general way. Taking the precaution not to enter it immediately and thus give anybody who might be on the watch an idea that there was anything other than a coincidence in his arrival on the heels of the messenger boy, Thomas loitered into the place and passed directly into the bar, where he called for a drink. There were two or three men standing at the bar, but at the moment of his entrance nothing was to be seen either of the messenger or of Thornton Stackhouse. A number of booths ranged along the side of the room opposite the bar, however, attracted his attention, and, in accordance with his surmises, Mr. Thomas was pleased very shortly to see the messenger emerge from one of these places. The boy had scarcely passed out when the reporter, swallowing at a gulp the beverage which he had ordered, placed the payment therefor upon the counter, and lounged down past the compartment from which the boy had issued.

His expectations were entirely correct. There sat Thornton Stackhouse reading—devouring would be a more accurate word—the letter which had been posted at Swampscott the night before. Fearful of attracting attention, Thomas increased his pace, but precautions were needless. The man was absorbed, completely oblivious to all his surroundings. Even in the momentary glimpse he had of him the reporter was startled into the belief that the contents of the letter had utterly overwhelmed and dazed the man who had received it. The paper was crumpled fiercely between his hands, and he was glaring at it with scarcely the look of sanity in his eyes.

Thomas slipped hastily into the next booth. The brief vision which had just been granted him was certainly not calculated to lessen his idea of the importance of the document of which he was in quest, or to shake his determination to become possessed of it.

But how?

This was a problem which might well puzzle Mr. Thomas. The greater the importance of the letter the more carefully would its possessor guard it. If he destroyed it, there was little hope that so shrewd a man as Stackhouse would be satisfied with leaving it in a condition which would not preclude its restoration. If he carried it away with him, under what possible pretense could the reporter get it? He certainly could not ask him for it; he was scarcely prepared even in his present fever of eagerness to resort to violence. Were he so inclined, how could he even hope for the opportunity of stealing it? Nevertheless, Thomas compressed his lips and waited patiently the unpredictable course of events.

He had not long to wait for a change in the situation. He heard Stackhouse crushing the paper and murmuring undistinguishable words below his breath.

Then again, he fancied, from the sounds, that the man had risen to his feet and was leaving the booth. A cautious reconnoitering assured the reporter that he was correct in this surmise. Stackhouse had passed to the bar, and he heard him in no very steady voice asking for brandy. Where was the letter? Actuated by an absurd hope, the reporter slipped into the booth which Stackhouse had just vacated. A minute's search assured him that Stackhouse had not committed the unpardonable indiscretion of leaving even the remnants of the document upon the floor. Undoubtedly he had not torn it up, but had replaced it bodily in his pocket.

After drinking the brandy, Stackhouse went out, and the reporter followed him from the saloon. Thomas was not, however, so absorbed in the actions of his intended victim that he was oblivious to other things. It was quite obvious to him that two of the men who had been lounging at the bar suddenly became alert and lost all interest in the place as soon as Stackhouse had left it. So eager were they to get into the street that they jostled Mr. Thomas on their way. They were ordinary-looking men. Nothing about them was calculated to linger in the memory or to attract a second glance. One of them sauntered over to the other side of the street. The other kept along just in front of Thomas.

The reporter frowned. These details were no enigma to him. He recognized at once the precautionary measures of the police department. These, then, were Thomas Stackhouse's constant companions, and the reporter realized that their presence made his quest, if not more dangerous, at least vastly more difficult.

Still he went on. The detectives followed Stackhouse. Thomas followed the detectives. Did Stackhouse know of his double espionage? There were no evidences that he did or that he cared one way or the other. He went forward at a good pace, his eyes always downward or straight ahead. What a walk he was leading them! Apparently he had forgotten that there were any means of conveyance about the city. Ignoring alike horse cars and cabs, Thornton Stackhouse went from the barroom in Shawmut avenue to the Chelsea ferry, at the foot of Hanover street. The four men, who were not all conscious of their association of interest, passed upon the ferry-boat together.

After the boat was out in the stream, for the first time Stackhouse's conduct became suspicious. He glanced about him, and wandered from point to point, apparently with two objects in view. He seemed to be trying to get as far as possible from other people, and as near as possible to the rail.

A dark suspicion entered the reporter's mind. Was Thornton Stackhouse contemplating suicide? Whether or not, it was not at all necessary for him to interfere. Circumstances happily enabled him to watch the proceedings from a safe distance, for the two detectives, doubtless imbued with the same suspicion which had occurred to Thomas, kept close upon the heels of the unfortunate man. Evidently they had no intention of permitting their prey to escape them, even through the medium of violent death. Justice inexorably endeavors to close even this door of refuge to the victims whom she proposes to sacrifice.

Stackhouse once lost his temper. He turned hotly upon one of his tormentors.

"Come, sir!" he said, in a voice of suppressed passion. "End this farce. If my safety is so important to you, arrest me and have done with it!"

The man regarded him with a cold stare.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, gruffly. "I don't know you."

The officer shrugged his shoulders, and turned indifferently to a view of the landscape. Stackhouse bit his lip; his anger vanished; he became moody. His eyes were cast down, and he no longer looked about him.

When the ferryboat reached the other side, the ruined banker disembarked, and for a time wandered aimlessly about the water front. His hands were clasped behind him and his head hung down. He walked like an old man.

With the same outward bearing he took a ferry-boat back to the city, and set out once more upon one of his interminable walks. There was a new feature added to his conduct. At nearly every drinking saloon he stopped and ordered liquor. His walk became unsteady, but he went on like a man who had a definite end in view. The frequent visits to the saloons puzzled Thomas at first. Suddenly he had an inspiration.

"The letter from his wife was a terrible blow to him. He seeks oblivion. This is his second effort to obtain it. The first was death, and it was denied him. The second, though temporary, is quite as effective, and will be secured when he has imbibed a sufficient quantity of alcohol!"

Thomas began to have a vague hope. His suspicions became certainty very soon. Thornton Stackhouse entered at last a third-class hotel at the North End, and paid for a room. The call boy came down after a few minutes for a bottle of brandy, and Stackhouse locked himself in the room with it.

Even the experienced Thomas shuddered. That a man who had occupied the position in the world of the late junior partner of North & Stackhouse should be reduced to an extremity of this kind, filled him with a feeling akin to pity. But nothing shook his resolution. Whether it tended to save this miserable exile from respectability or to give him the final kick which should destroy his last hold of the bushes on the brink of the precipice, the bit of evidence now in Stackhouse's possession must be secured.

A private word or two in the ear of the proprietor secured the reporter a room on the second floor, immediately adjoining that occupied by the man in whom all his interest centered. There was a communicating door, but it was locked on the other side. Against this door the reporter remained listening, conjecturing, planning, for quite two hours. The audible evidences of Stackhouse's presence had for some time ceased. Thomas realized that it was time to act.

He began a great clamor upon the door. There was not a sound in answer. Thomas left his room, and sought out the proprietor.

"You know me, don't you—Thomas, of the Globe? Ah! Well, I want to save you trouble. There is every reason to believe that that man in the room next to mine has made away with himself."

"No!" exclaimed the proprietor, aghast.

"Quite so, sir. I have suspected him for some time. I can account for the sounds I have heard in no other manner. They suddenly ceased, and for some time I have been making noise enough to raise the dead. He doesn't respond."

Within four minutes the door of Mr. Stackhouse's room was forced, and half a dozen men rushed into the chamber. Stackhouse lay upon the bed, motionless. His coat and vest were thrown carelessly over the chair.

"He is drunk!" cried one of the detectives.

"He is dying," said Thomas. "Where are his papers? We must have his name."

With admirable coolness before them all Thomas took a pocket-book from the coat which lay upon the chair, and was proceeding to investigate its contents.

An authoritative hand was suddenly laid upon his shoulder, and one of the detectives whispered in his ear:

"Are you crazy, Thomas? What is the matter with you? You know well enough who the man is. None of your tricks, please. Put back that pocket-book."

The reporter had a faint flush in his cheeks, but he yielded without protest.

The square white envelope was already in his possession.

An hour later he read the letter. Its contents filled him with astonishment and excitement. It was certainly not what he expected, but it seemed to him pregnant with possibilities. He hastened to find John Lamm; but the office of the detective was closed, and he was unable to locate him.

"It's fate!" cried Thomas. "I shall act alone, and, fortune helping me, I shall save Stella North and her sister Marion!"

And that Saturday evening he took the train for Swampscott.

CHAPTER XXII.

"NAME THE MAN."

Monday morning, 11 days exactly from that last and memorable meeting of the directors of the Nicaragua Midland, when Paul North's coming was awaited in vain, Thornton Stackhouse staggered into the office of Detective Lamm.

ONE HAND CLUTCHING A PEN AND IN THE OTHER A REVOLVER FROM WHICH A TINY WREATH OF SMOKE WAS CURLING.

A few hours had wrought a great change in the man—a change for the worst. Careworn before, he was now absolutely haggard. But one look was needed to assure Mr. Lamm that his visitor had passed a sleepless, wretched night.

Unmistakable signs of debauch, too, were to be observed. His lips twitched strangely; the lines of his anxious face were more deeply drawn; an unhealthy blotched redness had taken the place of once healthy color, and there was an incessant trembling of the hands, unusual and ominous.

Mr. Lamm, with a good deal of concern expressed in his look, sprang up to greet him, and assisted the man to a chair.

"Why, Mr. Stackhouse," he exclaimed, "you are not well. Why did you come down town this morning? You should have sent for me. You are in no condition to be out in the street on such a warm day. Let me call a carriage. I will go down to your room at the Adams house and talk with you there, if you like."

Thornton Stackhouse shook his head and put out a trembling hand.

PULLMAN CAR TEST FOR A REAL LADY.

A man once observed that if ever he was in any doubt as to whether or not a woman was a lady he always asked her to lunch with him. Table manners, he asserted, were one of the surest indications of breeding, or lack of it. Personally, I do not agree with him in his contention that table manners are an unfailing sign of gentle birth and loveliness of character, for I have seen harpies with faultless table manners, and I once saw an Italian countess chase a few peas around a saucer with her forefinger until she landed them on her fork.

A surer test than the luncheon table, I think, is the dressing room of a Pullman car. If a woman has a yellow streak it is sure to come out there. She is hot and tired and uncomfortable. She is among strangers whom she will never see again, and for whose opinion she cares nothing, and if there is anything "piggy" in her nature it is going to assert itself.

There are two kinds of women who help to make a Pullman car dressing room a nightmare. One type is represented by the woman who is knowingly selfish, ill mannered and indelicate, and the other by the woman who is ignorantly so.

For instance, there is the woman who leaves the water sloshing in the washbasin when she has finished bathing her face, and the soap soaking in the bottom. When we were urchins, most of us, I fancy, have been well "cuffed" for just such tricks as this, but one grown woman after another will do this sort of thing in a dressing-room. In one case because she does not care, and in the other because she does not know. But whatever the reason, the task of cleansing and wiping the basin is more than unpleasant for her successor.

There's the woman who uses the drinking glass for her tooth brush with quite the freedom that she would were it her individual glass. Instead of pouring the water upon her brush she dips the brush in the water, leaving, when she has finished, a rim of tooth powder or paste around the glass for some one else to remove.

Hair may be a woman's crowning glory, but the only condition under which it can be regarded as such is when it is attached to her head. If there is any thing more nauseating than loose hair I do not happen to think of it, and the woman who leaves her combings in the public comb or brush or in wads upon the shelf should be taken by the ear and made to dispose of it.

The lady who draped her red-roan or iron-gray switch over the faucet of the ice tank does not appeal to one, nor does she who covers the hooks with her petticoats and monopolizes the one chair with a traveling bag the size of a young trunk.

There's the woman who stands in front of the mirror, arms akimbo, her numerous toilette articles spread out on the crowded shelf, arranging a ball-room coiffure of braids and puffs, while less self-assertive souls, with their "straight-fronts" in one hand and their suit cases in the other wait wearily for a chance to jump in and twist their hair up in a doughnut.

Cleanliness is always admirable, but, somehow, it seems less so when a large and conscientious lady gets up at day-break to take a sponge bath in a two by twice dressing room and prolongs the operation until the last call for breakfast.

There's the woman who uses a fresh towel each time she wets the tip of her fingers. She seems intoxicated by the sight of so much clean linen. The dressing room may be crowded with women who also hope to use towels, but the towel fiend makes inroads on the supply in the rack until economy is necessary.

There's the woman who glares at each newcomer as though she were an intruder, and the one who loses her jewelry and stares suspiciously at the occupants of the room to see upon which one's face guilt is written.

There's the woman who explains carefully and in detail why traveling makes her ill, and the lady who cherishes the belief that the whole world is trying to get on speaking terms with her.

The woman who takes awful smelling medicine out of the drinking glass does not contribute to the happiness of the occupants of the dressing-room, nor does the lady who uses her atomizer with the abandon of a fireman at a blaze.

The majority of women travelers have an idea that the way to dress in comfort is to get up early, very early. This would be entirely satisfactory if every other woman did not have the same theory. I tried it once myself and found every other woman in the car dressing room at 4:30. It made the day twenty-four hours long and we nearly fainted before breakfast was ready.

As a matter of fact, one has more room if she waits until the last minute to make her dash for the dressing room; and while the place may look as though a cyclone had struck it, it is infinitely better than being elbowed into a corner by women travelers who mean to "have their rights."—Philadelphia Press.

THE STORY OF "SUNNY" EMPRESS OF RUSSIA.

"The most beautiful queen on any throne," she has long been called." Kellogg Durland thus begins his life story of the Tsaritsa of Russia in the Woman's Home Companion. "She is tall and stately; her hair is luxuriant and rich in color. Eyes that some call blue and some call gray look out through long, dark lashes, and in them lies a great sadness, an appealing wistfulness touched with regret, a silent melancholy. Yet as a child she was known as 'Sunny.'

"The life story of 'Sunny' has never been told in English. This is curious, because there probably is not a person in the world who would not like to hear the wonderful romance of how a poor little German princess became a great sovereign, the co-ruler of one of the vastest empires on earth, the mistress of a fabulously rich and bewilderingly extravagant court, and perhaps the most powerful woman in Europe. 'Sunny' was the childhood nickname of this poor little princess, and after a quiet girlhood, where there was a constant struggle to maintain appearances, she was courted by a wayward gallant, who was heir to a mighy crown. 'Sunny' lost her heart to the royal wooer, and he, putting aside the less noble loves of his reckless, youthful days, pledged himself to her—persistently courted her against wide opposition—turned a deaf ear to the councils of emperors and queens, who tried to discourage the match, and, after years of battling with diplomatic intrigue and personal restraint, he carried his purpose, married the German princess, who was truly the bride of his heart, and raised her from the obscurity and poverty of her own home to the rank of Empress. This is the story of Princess Alix of Hesse, whom Nicholas II made Tsaritsa of Russia.'

THE SECRET OF ONE MILLINER'S SUCCESS.

An Eastern millinery establishment made its success by placarding the price tags, "We will tell you the truth." It was soon discovered that the clerks in charge were young women of exceptional artistic temperament whose chief business in the establishment was to tell customers the truth regarding hats. If a would be purchaser placed a hat upon her head she was told it was not becoming—if it happened not to be—and even when it was pleasing to the person most concerned. "Why," asked a patron, "do you do this?" "Because," came the reply, "women are tired, soul sick of being told so many flattering things about the purchase of a new hat. If we can't please a woman we do not want to sell her a hat, for she will do us more injury than good." "I presume you have the artist here who matches the hat to the soul?"

The dealer smiled. "No, we are not fortunate enough to have her, but we have girls who match the hat to the head, eyes, hair and complexion, something that many women are unable to do for themselves. Now here we have a soft white hat trimmed with green. It is something that practically any woman with a clear complexion could wear. A brunette with a swarthy complexion would add ten years to her age to wear the hat. We know the ones who can wear all colors. Our girls have studied the color schemes." And hasten the day that this method may become general. Only a few weeks and the question of a hat will again confront us. But really some of them are altogether charming. I saw some good hats last week with high crowns, narrow tilted brims, and the ribbon and quill trimming at the left side was particularly good

Sashes Gaining Favor.

About mid-spring were first worn in Paris, over the blue serge sheath skirts, those pretty Neapolitan sashes that have such a cachet of elegance They were generally made in soft black satin wound round the waist and brought forward to fall very low in front after being lightly looped or knotted half-way. The coloring was indiscreet, black or dark blue blending harmoniously into a happy effect. Now, all at once, seashore coquettes are wearing these scarf belts over their white dresses and have taken in violet colors—deep violet or blue or black, contrasting strongly with the quiet pongee, tussore or pure white linen.

An Alibi.

"Emerson," said the Boston mother, sternly, "you've been in the pantry. I found your schools books there."

"Mater," replied the wise boy, "I'm surprised at your lack of acumen. You have frequently observed that I get as far away from my books as possible during recreation hours. Ergo, if my books were in the pantry I must have been elsewhere."—Philadelphia Press.

RESOLUTIONS OF W.C.T.U.

Women Temperance Workers Approve of "Home Rule" in Excise Matters.

THEY PRAISE GOVERNOR FORT.

Demand Enforcement of Anti-Cigarette Law—Mrs. Tomlinson Hits the Saloonkeepers.

Resolutions urging the adoption of a local option law in New Jersey, a curfew for the different municipalities, endorsing Governor J. Franklin Fort, especially in his vigorous measures against "spiritual wickedness in high places,' at Atlantic City, and urging the enforcement of the cigarette law, were adopted at the annual convention of the Union County W. C. T. U., at Cranford on Thursday.

In her remarks to the convention during the afternoon session, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, county president, said: "Too many of our legislators are not upon their knees before God, but the saloonkeepers have their ears to the ground and many of them believe that victory for the temperance forces is certain."

It was the sense of the convention that Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, should be supported in his efforts to obtain a renomination and re-election. On the other hand Assemblyman Albert F. Kirstein, of Rahway, was condemned, for the position he took on local option.

The election of department superintendents was as follows:

Local Temperance League secretary, Mrs. Erythe Currie, Cranford; work among foreigners, Mrs. L. Ussing, Cranford; anti-narcotics, Mrs. W. Andrews, Elizabeth; citizenship and franchise, Mrs. P. H. Bennett, Plainfield; evangelistic, Mrs. L. Manning, Dunellen; Flower Mission, Mrs. M. L. Underhill, Rahway; literature, Miss E. L. Starr, Westfield; medal contests, Mrs. E. H. Fuller, Rahway; mothers' meetings, Miss Barker, Rahway; medical temperance, Mrs. August Schmidt, Elizabeth; observance of Sabbath and Sunday schools, Mrs. M. Winter, Plainfield; press, Mrs. C. W. Scott, Elizabeth; unfermented wine, Mrs. Stoddard, Elizabeth; penal and reform, Miss Keron, Elizabeth; systematic giving, Mrs. Brewer, Westfield; railroad, motor and firemen, Mrs. E. A. Parse, Plainfield; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. L. L. Irving, Cranford; social meetings and red letter days, Mrs. William Francis, Elizabeth.

"BUSY BEES" TO ENTERTAN FOR DAY NURSERY'S BENEFIT.

Under the auspices of the "Busy Bees," an entertainment entitled "A. R. R.," will be given at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday night, September 25, at 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the Plainfield Day Nursery. The "Busy Bees" who will give the entertainment are as follows: The Misses Bernice McClintock, Elsa Schwed, Marguerite Woolston, Bessie Smith, Lucile Ewart, Margaret Ewart, Florence Berkhan, Helen Berkhan, Marguerite Berkhan, Marjorie Burtis, Gladys Brokaw, Emma Ryno, Anna Warnock, Margaret Russell, Loraine Dunn, Mildred Burnett, Natile Selby and Frances Caldwell. They will be assisted by the Misses Hazel Walters, Mary Woolston, Grace Woolston, Ethel Fowler, Florence Fowler, Helen Fowler, May Berkhan, Gertrude Berkhan, Myra Emmons, Ida Englehardt, Marguerite Barker, Marjorie Hart, Hattie Nischwitz. Miss Helen George will preside at the piano. A feature will be a "Dream Dance.'

Must Pay For Show Case Damage.

Howard Jones, a small boy, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Isaac Schneider, a Madison avenue storekeeper, with breaking a glass in one of his show cases. The boy stated that the glass had been accidently smashed by a baseball and Judge Runyon suspended sentence with the understanding that he pay for the damage.

Somerville's Tax Rate $1.53.

Assessor Bogart T. Conkling, of Bridgewater township, Somerset county, yesterday announced the tax rate in his district for 1908. It is many points lower all the way through. In Somerville the rate is $1.53. Last year it was $1.90. In other parts of the township $1 as against $1.22 last year.

Changes in Business.

L. Moldesky, the shoe dealer, and J. C. Greenwald, dealer in bicycles, have jointly leased U. B. Crane's store on East Front street, formerly occupied by George Miller as a candy store and will take possession at once.

MISS ROGERS' BROTHER IS IN SEARCH OF HER

Further inquiry has been made regarding the whereabouts of Miss Anna Rogers who, for a short time, was engaged as a teacher at the Drake Business College, and who suddenly disappeared from the city the latter part of July. The latest query comes from Rev. Clem L. Rogers, brother of Miss Rogers, who is pastor of the Sutherland Presbyterian church, Sutherland, Neb. He wrote to Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, and has evidently not learned that Miss Rogers was located at Muskeegon, Mich., where she is supposed to be teaching in a school.

The first inquiry about Miss Rogers came a week ago from her mother, Mrs. R. L. Rogers, of Virginia, who in a letter said that she had not heard from her daughter in several weeks and desired information as to her whereabouts. She appeared to be greatly disturbed about the matter. The letter was received by A. S. Herr, of the Plainfield Business College, and he turned it over to those in charge of the Drake Business College, having heard that Miss Rogers was employed there. Nothing aside from the fact that the woman left the city could be learned at the college, but later it was ascertained that the woman was in Muskeegon, Mich.

Miss Rogers was engaged at the Drake Business College about July 1 to teach typewriting and stenography. She appeared to be competent and was well liked. Just before August 1 she asked for her coming month's salary, explaining that she was in need of the money. The request was granted, and the following day she disappeared. While in town she boarded with Mrs. Owen at 215 East Fifth street, and while there she made many friends. However, it was noticed that at times she acted queerly, but nothing special was thought of this at the time. No explanation as to why she left Plainfield has been given.

YOUNG MAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED ASSAULT.

On a complaint preferred by Miss Eliza Voehl, daughter of Henry Voehl, of Somerset street, and issued from Justice David Smalley's office, Sergeant Overbaugh, of the city police force, late last night arrested Howard Higgins, eighteen years old, at his boarding place on West Fourth street. He was locked up at headquarters and will be arraigned before Justice Smalley tonight.

In Miss Voehl's charge it is alleged that Higgins attempted to assault her as they were walking along the Notch road near Wilson's stone quarry shortly after 8 o'clock last night. She escaped from him and ran to the home of a relative on Somerset street. The young man denies the allegation and claims that she accompanied him on a stroll and suddenly turned and ran down the road.

Higgins' home is in Allentown, Mercer county, and he has been in Plainfield but one month. He came here to work on the new Washington school contract.

Decision in Auto Speeding Case.

Sentence was suspended in the case of Kall S. Batrounyi, charged with speeding his automobile delivery wagon, when called in the city court, this morning. The defendant denied running the machine more than ten miles an hour but the officer making the arrest stated the speed to be at least eighteen. The fact that Batrounyi was on business bent at the time and not taking a joy ride was a factor in Judge Runyon's disposition of the complaint.

F. O. E.'s Annual Clambake.

Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., will hold its second annual outing and clambake in Leitner's grove, near Picton, tomorrow. The bake will be served in charge of Lew Morris. The committee of arrangements comprises Horace G. Adams, Thomas J. Kroner, Edward J. McCann, William Cleares and Herman Frowery.

Y. W. C. A. Tramp.

The members of the Y. W. C. A. will leave the rooms on East Front street at 3 o'clock this afternoon for their tramp to Washington Rock. They will take a trolley car to Dunellen from which place they will walk to the Rock, where they will have supper and return home early this evening.

New Music Store.

H. V. Lough will engage in the musical instrument business at 150 East Front street, Marcus Silbert's new building, about October 1. He will make a speciality of pianos, phonographs and records.

PLAN JUVENILE COURT

County Probation Officer Confers with Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely.

IDEA FAVORABLY RECEIVED.

Mrs. Williamson Takes Occasion to Reply to Some Criticisms —Explains Several Cases.

Mrs. Emily Williamson, the county probation officer, came to Plainfield this morning for the purpose of conferring with Judge Runyon and Chief of Police Kiely in regard to establishing a juvenile court in Plainfield. Mrs. Williamson explained that it would be much better to dispose of all youthful defendants here instead of sending them to Elizabeth and there coming in contact with hardened criminals. She expressed the opinion that one day a week, presumably Saturday, could be set aside for the purpose and that Judge Runyon be on the bench.

The plan met with the approval of both officials consulted and it is probable that the matter will be taken up at once by the county authorities. Heretofore, the nearest thing to a local juvenile court has been the appearance on Saturdays of Captain Irwin, Mrs. Williamson's assistant, to receive reports from probationers.

Following the conference, Mrs. Williamson took occasion to make reply to some of the criticisms directed toward her because of her interference in behalf of several Plainfield boys who the police wanted sent to the Jamesburg reform school. They were proven to be habitual offenders but when ready for committment would be released on probation, only to return to Plainfield to continue their old ways. One case in particular is that of Petman Robinson, the colored boy, who has committed a score of thefts. Mrs. Williamson declared that she was actuated by influential Plainfield people who harassed her to do something for an offender because the parents asked them to. She declared that she was frequently beset on every side and that she asked the judges to release the prisoners in her charge after she had been informed that facts in the cases were greatly misrepresented.

NEED NOT PRAY IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

State Superintendent C. J. Baxter, of the Public Schools, has just rendered a decision that children attending public schools need not participate in the religious exercises in the schools unless their parents wish to have them do so. He says that no child will be compelled to take part in the prayers in school if his parents object.

The decision is the outcome of a case brought by Arthur Watts, of River Edge, whose two children, aged 8 and 11 respectively, attend school there. He objected to their taking part in the prayers and Bible reading in the school, with the result that the children were told either to stay away from school or pray with the other children.

They stayed away from school and Mr. Watts carried the case up to the State Superintendent.

James Young at P. H. S.

James Young, who takes the leading role of "Tom Brown," in "Brown of Harvard," which appeared at the New Plainfield Theatre, last night, addressed the pupils of the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, on the subject, "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Young appeared at the high school upon the invitation of Principal Ira W. Travell, who knew that the actor was a student of Shakespeare. Mr. Young's talk was interesting and it was highly appreciated by all the pupils present.

Mrs. George W. Campbell.

Mrs. George W. Campbell, a former resident of this city, died yesterday at her home in Summit. The funeral will be held at her late residence Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock and the body will be brought to Plainfield for burial in Hillside cemetery.

Reading Room in the West End.

For the benefit of the men in the West End of the city, a reading room will soon be opened at the West End Tabernacle, where may be found periodicals pertaining to all branches of work. Further notice as to the time of opening the reading room will be announced.

WOULD HAVE SEPT. 30 NAMED AS A HOLIDAY

A movement has been started by members of the Greenwick Tea-Burning Monument commission to have September 30, which is the date of the dedication of their monument, declared a general holiday, so as to enable the patriotic societies of the state to attend the parade planned As the situation stands just at present, many of the societies which desire a full attendance in the parade on that day, find that a large number will be unable to get the "day off," and they do not desire to be represented by a few of their members.

The monument is to commemorate the memorable occasion at Greenwick, when the first blow was struck by New Jersey against the crown. During the summer of 1774 a cargo of tea, on board the ship Grayhound, in command of a Captain Allen, came up Delaware bay, bound for Philadelphia. The captain, however, fearing the displeasure of the Philadelphia patroits, ran his ship up Cohansey creek, which runs through Cumberland county, and stopped at Greenwich, where the tea was stored in the cellar of one Daniel Bowen.

Here it remained until late in November, when a party of young men of the town, disguised as Indian "braves," a la their Boston neighbors, gathered at Bowen's house, and hustling the tea from the house, they offered it upon an adjoining lot as a fitting holocaust.

Later on, the matter was taken up by the Philadelphia merchants, owners of the tea, and prosecution instituted, but the jurymen who presided proved to be too good patriots to bring in a verdict in favor of the Tories.

Descendants of the Ewing boys, who took part in that adventure of the early revolution, afterward moved to the vicinity of this city, where many of their children are found today.

Poisoned Eating Toadstools.

William DeWaldy, a well known contractor at Stirling, and a foreman in his employ, are both seriously ill as the result of eating a quantity of toadstools, thinking they were mushrooms. The men had the supposed mushrooms for dinner yesterday, eating heartily of them. In a few hours they were taken violently ill. Dr. Bebout, the local physician, was summoned, and he gave heroic treatment in an effort to save the lives of the men. Mr. DeWaldy is improving slowly, but last night it was feared that the foreman could not survive.

Thirty-one True Bills.

The Somerset county grand jury, drawn at the opening day of the September term of the Somerset county courts on Tuesday and which had been in session since that time, finished its labors at a late hour yesterday afternoon, having investigated ninety-six cases in all, all of them complains for minor offenses. Thirty-one true bills were found and it is expected that some of the offenders will be brought up to plead next Monday morning. Judge Schenck dismissed the jurors with thanks.

Violated Shade Tree Ordinance.

Mrs. C. H. French, of Westfield, has the distinction of being the first woman to be arraigned in the city court on a charge of violating the shade tree ordinance. She tied her horse to a tree on East Second street, near Watchung avenue, this morning, and was "spotted" by Patrolman Dobson. She pleaded ignorance of the law to Judge Runyon and the magistrate suspended sentence after explaining the ordinance.

Public School Teachers to Meet.

The members of the Teachers' Retirement Fund, of Union county, will meet in Public School, No. 2, Morrell street, Elizabeth, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which time two delegates will be elected to attend the annual State convention to be held in Trenton on Saturday, September 26. All teachers in the county who began teaching since January 1 last, are eligible to attend the meeting.

Elected County President.

Mrs. James Curren, of Elizabeth, was elected county president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Ancient Order Hibernians, at a meeting of the Union County Board, last night. The term is for two years. The next meeting will be in January.

HIS "RED TOP" WAS AFIRE

Wire to "Hoist's" Office Still Working But Carvalho's Barn is Gone.

THE TOTAL LOSS IS $10,000.

Barns and Outbuildings at Home of General Manager of Hearst Papers Destroyed By Fire.

The barn and all of the outbuildings at "Red Top," the home of S. S. Carvalho, near Metuchen, together with the contents, were destroyed by fire at 6:45 o'clock this morning. The only things rescued from the blaze were six horses and three cows. The total loss is estimated at $10,000 and the fire is believed to have been due to spontaneous combustion in a large quantity of new hay recently placed in the structure.

The fire was discovered as members of the family were preparing for breakfast and a telephone message brought the Metuchen fire department to the scene. The firemen worked at a great disadvantage owing to the fact that it was necessary to run a line of hose 1,800 feet from the nearest hydrant, which is located on the border line of the borough, the burning property being outside of the municipality.

The firemen worked bravely and were assisted by hundreds of neighbors who were attracted to the place. At one time there were fully 1,500 people on the grounds. The barn, which was comparatively new, cost $6,500 to build, and besides thirty tons of new hay there was destroyed a large number of valuable farming implements, besides the several outbuildings nearby.

It was with the greatest difficult that the firemen and neighbors saved the dwelling house from the flames. Men were stationed about the roof and with the aid of ropes pails of water were carried to them and in this way the flames were prevented from setting fire to the house.

Mr. Carvalho is the general manager for all of William Randolph Hearst's newspapers, with headquarters in New York. He and his family have resided at "Red Top" for some time, and their home is considered one of the show places in the vicinity of Metuchen. He did not carry a heavy insurance on the barn and outbuildings. He will rebuild.

SOME JERSEY DRIVERS TO ATTACK AUTO LAWS

George E. Blakeslee, a prominent automobilist and club member of Jersey City, stated that the Joseph S. Frelinghuysen bill would be attacked, and, if necessary, it would be carried into the United States Supreme Court, as automobilists of New Jersey are convinced that the license fee, fixed by the law at $15, is excessive and an unjust tax on those entering the State, who must pay the tax as an admission fee.

"If you live in New York and want to come into New Jersey," he said, "you must hand up this license fee of $15 if you only drive a block. We can drive in any State except Pennsylvania without paying a fee, and if other States accord this privilege to New Jersey auto owners, we contend that New Jersey should make the same concession. We feel, too, that the license fee is too high. There is no reason why we should pay a $15 license fee for a 30-horsepower car when trucks and other heavy vehicles drive over the roads without being required to pay any license fee. We do no more damage to the roads than they do.

"A committee of eight has been appointed, five from the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey and three from the State Dealers' Trade Association, which has thoroughly canvassed the situation. We have retained ex-Governor Griggs and Thaddeus Terry, of New York, to test the constitutionality of the New Jersey law, and we are prepared and determined, in case of adverse decisions, to carry it through to the United States Supreme Court. We are confident of winning, for we have carefully gone over the ground with counsel."

GOP'S FAILURE TO SPEAK ANGERS AMERICAN CITIZEN

Roundsman Morris Higgins was proceeding along Park avenue minding his own business, late last night, when his ears were assailed by a succesion of loud remarks evidently meant for him. Some of them included a few cuss words intended as adjectives and he went back to investigate.

Between North avenue and Second street, the officer came upon a group of men who had been moved to the sidewalk by the 11 o'clock alarm in a booze camp and among them was Edward Washington, the celebrated chef and Lake Hopatcong oarsman. Ed had been sampling a new brand of gin and his tongue was as loose as a jumping-jack.

"Say," he snorted, when the roundsman approached, "what do you mean by passing by a respectable colored gentleman and an American citizen without speaking to him?

Higgins replied that if he had failed to pass the time of day with him it was an oversight, but whether it was or not he didn't propose to be bawled at a block away. Ed went off into his ranting again and when he finished a long spiel he was in a cell over on Sycamore street.

When arraigned in court, this morning, the prisoner failed to recall any circumstance regarding his arrest but stated that if he had said anything out of the way to the officer he most humbly begged his pardon. The Roundsman accepted the apology and Judge Runyon suspended sentence. He advised Ed as he moved away to show his chagrin in some other form the next time Cop Higgins ignored him on the street.

UNCLE SHOOTS AT HIS NEPHEW TWICE.

Both Bullets Go Through Coat Sleeve of Boy, Who Then Disarms His Relative.

Elia Grossi, 20 years old, of 725 Adams street, Hoboken, was shot at twice by his uncle, Alessandro Grossi of 110 Monroe street, on Hoboken avenue, Jersey City, yesterday. Both bullets went through the youth's coat sleeve, barely missing the skin. Grossi, according to eyewitnesses, grappled with his uncle, and after a struggle, got the revolver away from him. He then hastened to the Court House, but when he returned with an officer his uncle had decamped.

Young Grossi said his uncle and his father had dissolved partnership in the excavating business, and that he called on his uncle to insist on the payment of $50 which his father had invested in the business.

Freeholders to Examine Bridge.

At the request of Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, the bridge committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, and the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, will meet him at the Washington avenue bridge, Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of examining the structure with a view to making repairs. Several complaints regarding the bridge have been received by Mr. Townsend and he is anxious that the freeholders shall inspect it and learn what is needed.

PEDEFLOUS MUST ANSWER

Proprietor of Mountain Resort Indicted for Selling Liquor on Sunday.

HIS HOTEL IS WELL KNOWN.

Owner of Popular Hostelry Patronized by Automobile Parties, to Appear in Court Next Saturday.

Included in a batch of indictments returned by the Somerset county grand jury at the conclusion of its session, yesterday afternoon, was one which has caused a mild sensation locally. It is against Henry Pedeflous, proprietor of the hotel on the Warrenville road, which is famous througout the metropolitan district for its mushroom dinners and which has been a resort for automobile parties since suburban outings became popular.

The indictment charges Maison Henry Pedeflous with violating the excise law in dispensing liquor on Sundays, the offense constituting a "disorderly house." Several instances are specified. The investigation has been conducted with absolute secrecy and when the announcement came today it occasioned no little surprise. County Detective George Totten was in the city this morning for the purpose of proceeding to the hotel and notifying the proporietor but it was said over the 'phone from the hostelry that no official word had been received up to 2 o'clock. It is understood that Mr. Pedeflous will be summoned to appear at Somerville to answer to the charges one week from today.

The Pedeflous place is one of the best known in the State and gained fame by the admirable mushroom dinners prepared by its chef. The mushrooms are raised on the premises and are also sold throughout the city. When the Bishop's bill was passed it was currently rumored that it was not observed on the valley road as strictly as its originators would have it but there was never any attempt at official investigation. The Excise Commission, of which Mayor Fisk is the president, did not make any inquiries in this vicinity in its tour of the State but Madame Grundy worked overtime in declaring that the mushroom farm would get into the limelight somewhere along the route. The commission passed it by, however, and nothing more was heard until yesterday's indictment.

CHARLES J. PAWSON DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Following a long illness from a complication of troubles, Charles J. Pawson died yesterday at his home on East Second street, near Berckman. He was twenty-seven years old and was the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Pawson, of West Second street. He was a machinist by trade and up to the time his illness began was employed at the Scott factory.

Mr. Pawson was a member of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, and for many years was a fife player with the Independent Fife and Drum Corps. He is survived by a wife and one child, the former before her marriage being Miss Louise Fisher. He also leaves a brother, Arthur Pawson.

The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock and burial will be at Newark.

Epworth League Bazaar.

Grace M. E. church was the scene of a fine bazaar, given by the members of the Epworth League last night. The auditorium was attractively decorated with asters and great bunches of goldenrod which were twined around the booths. The cake and lemonade booths proved the popular ones and the Misses Nettie Bauersachs, Lucetta Clark and Anna Hoagland in the cake booth and the Misses May Steiner, Grace Clark and Mabel Stevens in the lemonade booth, were kept busy. Two piano duets were rendered by the Misses Edith Major and Agnes Bailey, and two recitations were given by Miss Helen Wooley. Miss Agnes Bailey sang a solo. Benjamin Schuck acted as master of ceremonies.

A. W. Johnson Injured.

A twelve-inch tin furnace pipe broke away from its fastenings in the cellar of B. J. Shreve's home on Duer street, on Thursday, and fell on the right hand of A. W. Johnson, of Duer street, inflicting an ugly gash between the thumb and index finger. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan is attending the case and no serious results are anticipated.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

Mrs. John Barrett, of North Branch, whose husband passed away a few weeks ago very suddenly from heart disease, has asked Bridgewater Council, No. 1375, Royal Arcanum, of Somerville, to collect a death benefit of $3,000 held by her late husband in Dexter Council, No. 1020, in Chicago. Mr. Barrett was fifty-six years old and he was employed in the Union stock yards in Chicago, when he joined Dexter Council on August 12, 1898. Shortly after that he became a traveling salesman, with headquarters in the East. He had always kept his dues paid. Because of the distance it is away and the necessary formalities to be gone through with to secure the money from the Chicago council, Mrs. Barrett placed the matter in the hands of the Somerville Council, which is already at work on the case.

Miss Ella Lane, of Pluckemin, who graduated last spring from the State Normal School in Trenton, has gone to Long Branch, where she has taken a position in the public schools as a teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hight, of North Branch, have been spending a few days with their daughter, Mrs. Peter Van Camp, near Whitehouse Station.

The ladies' prayer-meeting of the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Amerman.

WIFE FIGHTS TO SAVE HER HOME.

Accuses Husband and His Friend of Conspiracy to Foreclose a Mortgage.

Charging that her husband, John Dolton, assisted by his friend, Harry B. Sickles, also of Trenton, has been endeavoring by conspiracy to sell her home from over her head without her knowledge, Mrs. Dolton has filed a petition in the Court of Chancery to have set aside a foreclosure of the mortgage on the property. In her petition she declares that she was never served with a summons in the proceedings.

Mrs. Dolton declares that the first she knew of the foreclosure was when she read an advertisement that the property was to be sold by the Sheriff. She investigated and found that her husband had had the mortgage assigned to Sickles, and the latter had instituted foreclosure proceedings.

She asserts that when a constable was sent from the court to serve notice of the suit on herself and husband he was met by her husband, who said that she was ill and could not be seen; that her husband took the summons from the constable and later told that officer that he had read one of them to his wife.

Mrs. Bolton further charges that Sickles was in the deal with full knowledge of its import, her husband having got him to secure the mortgage for the express purpose of bringing the foreclosure proceeding. She asserts that she and her husband have not been on particularly friendly terms for some time and attributes his action in this case to his ill-will.

Miss Ethel Smith, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stephen Higham, of West Sixth street, have returned from their trip to Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Spicer and daughter, Miss Ida Spicer, of West Fifth street, have returned from a few days' visit with friends between North Branch and Readington.

EXPECTS TO PERFORM 1,000TH WEDDING SOON.

The Rev. G. Andrae, of Jersey City, Has Married 939 Couples in Twenty-five Years.

Some time in the future, probably in 1909, the Rev. Gottlieb Andrae, pastor of St. John's German church, in Fairview avenue, Jersey City, expects to perform his one thousandth wedding since he became pastor of the church twenty-five years ago.

"My record," he said last night, "shows that I have had 939 weddings, 1,205 funerals and 1,695 baptisms since I have been here. There are other ministers in town who have performed more wedding ceremonies than I have, so I don't think there is anything remarkable in my record."

Dr. Andrae denied the report that he had used his wedding fees for the purpose of sending his children to school and college. He said the fees would not go far toward paying tuition charges.

IMPROVE APPEARANCE OF THE ARMS.

Oh, the awfulness of some of the arms that the elbow sleeve fashion reveals. An eye for the artistic would say, "Cover them up!"

By way of compromise, why not improve the arms? It can be done by massage; more simply by flexing exercises. The latter can be done at any hour of the day, and costs nothing.

Raise the arms parallel to the shoulders, with tightly clinched fists; count slowly one, two, three, four, and at every alternate count violently open or close the fingers. Spread them as far apart as they will go.

Repeat the flexing with the arms held over the head or straight out from the chest.

The woman who practises these flexing movements at short intervals many times a day will soon cease to lament scrawny, sinewy forearms.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Miss Dora Shropshire, of Haleyville, has been elected teacher of physics at the State Normal School, Trenton.

Leading South Vineland citizens have decided to install a canning plant. The capital is to be $30,000, of which $12,000 was subscribed.

The Atlantic City Dog Show, the seventh annual exhibit of the Atlantic City Kennel Club, opened yesterday on the Steeplechase Pier with 700 entries. It will close today.

Four cases of typhoid fever have been reported to the Millville Board of Health, and the authorities find that all of the patients had just returned from vacations at a seashore resort.

The Charles G. Roebling Republican Club, composed of employes of the Roebling plant at Trenton, was organized Wednesday night and expects to have 500 marchers for parades.

The First Italian Republican League of Camden opened its new $8,000 clubhouse, 813 South Fourth street, last night, with many city and county officials present. A banquet marked the opening.

During a game of ball at Clayton, yesterday afternoon, a patron threw a brickbat at the umpire and struck Louis Batten, a spectator, in the head, cutting a gash that required eight stitches to close the wound.

After twenty-four years' service in the Camden Fire Department, William Morris, engineer of Engine Company No. 2, has gone on the retired list. He is a veteran of the Civil War, and has been a resident of Camden thirty-five years.

For striking the six-year-old daugher of Jerry Collins, of 55 South Twenty-fourth street, Camden, over the head with a cane as she was playing in the street, Michael Kelly was sent to jail for three months yesterday.

It leaked out yesterday that Miss Margaret Hankins, daughter of H. R. Hankins, of Millville, and Lewis Shaw, a business man, were married at Atlantic City two weeks ago. The couple intended to keep their secret for two months.

The wife of Mayor E. S. Fogg, of Woodstown, ran a piece of glass in her hand some time ago. A doctor got it out and the wound healed nicely, but a few days ago it began paining her again, and now she has all the symptoms of blood-poisoning.

Enoch Hill, Thomas Brennan and Benjamin Moss, boys, were yesterday held in $300 bail each by Justice Symington at Gloucester on a charge of stealing or destroying about $300 worth of produce on the farm of Joseph Gambetti, in the suburbs of that city.

In a game of baseball at Beverly yesterday, Walter Fogarty, an outfielder, struck Edgar Heisler, the opposing pitcher, with his fist and rendered him unconscious for five minutes. Fogarty was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Cramer.

The Camden police were asked yesterday to pick up a woman who engaged board at the home of Mrs. Bessie Sherman, 1125 Marion street, that city, Tuesday, and disappeared Wednesday, after which a $25 set of gold bracelets were found to be missing.

Grand Chancellor Abram Klenert, of the Knights of Pythias of New Jersey, has appointed William T. Hillard, of Forrest Lodge of Salem, one of the supreme representatives to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. DeWitt C. Cobb, of Salem, who was recently made grand prelate.

While the shearers of the Pierce glass factory at Clayton were making the last melt before starting the blast for the season Wednesday evening, four of the five pots in the furnace broke, allowing all the glass to escape. This will delay starting for a week or ten days. The firm will sustain a loss of about $1,800.

In the Atlantic County Naturalization Court at May's Landing yesterday, only five applicants passed the rigid examination of Jerome Shear, naturalization examiner, out of over thirty, nearly all Italians. The others were unable to answer the questions and were rejected.

Two hundred feet above the ground, several young women stood on the giant chimney just completed for an industrial establishment at Front and Cooper streets, Camden, and waved American flags yesterday. They made the ascent in a bucket. The chimney is exactly 208 feet tall and ten feet in diameter at the top.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will hold rally-day exercises tomorrow afternoon.

THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Beer was the Steady Drink of the Teutons Who Conquered It.

Pure beer never hurt anybody. On the other hand, it has put back into many a worn out body, health, strength, energy and hope.

The Teutons, who conquered the Roman Empire, were examples of what good beer will do. These men, who drank beer and plenty of it daily, were strong, powerful, sturdy men, quick and brave in battle, and with a constitution that could endure without fatigue the longest marches and continuous outdoor exposure.

When you drink beer, drink Rienzi, the famous Rochester brew of the Bartholomay Brewery Co. It will do you good, because it is pure and honestly brewed. Besides being a refreshing and delightful drink for social occasions, it is a sensible tonic and maker of pure, rich blood.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he has many satisfied customers who will gladly praise its health giving qualities.

His address is 68 Somerset street, but you can call him up by 'phone, No. 229, and he will fill your order on time, every time. Drink Rienzi. It's better. 9 17 3

Manager Bogart Conklin, of the West Ends, had a fine opportunity to strengthen up for today's contest and at little expense. He was practically offered a whole new team of leaguers, but he declined the offer, preferring to play his regular club, with but a couple of changes.

Fully fifty local fans witnessed the double-header at the Polo Grounds yesterday between the Giants and Pittsburg. There is almost as much interest here in proportion to the size of the city as in New York, regarding the outcome of the National League race.

Manager Dorflinger has given up the idea of bringing the Newark Eastern League team here for a game. The Newarkers want $150 guarantee and this sum is considered too large.

If the West Ends take today's contest from Clinton Avenue, a fifth game will be scheduled to decide the supremacy of the teams. In such an event the contest would probably be played on the Oval.

The Clinton Avenues are anxious to play Westfield, and if Manager Dorflinger can arrange it, a game will be scheduled soon.

"Warry" MacLaughlin will pitch for Scotch Plains today against Rahway, at the latter place. Clark will twirl for Rahway. By the way Clark certainly has the goods. Holding the Elizabeth Stars down to four hits is no joke and the pitcher has perfect control.

"Billy" O'Loughlin, who broke a finger at Rahway a week ago, may not be able to play in the outfield for Clinton Avenue, and Gilman may take his place. Gilman says that he is in perfect condition and has regained the sight of his eyes which were troubled with cataracts.

FOOTBALL.

Tad Jones, who was all-American quarterback last fall, arrived at New Haven Thursday, and took charge for the season of coaching the Yale backfield. Two men who were in uniform today for the first time and which added strength to the backfield squad are Wheaton and Daly. Wheaton arrived this morning from Maine and is in first class condition. He is the best drop kicker Yale has.

All the old men are now back except Carroll Cooney, who was centre and guard last year, and Arthur Brides, who was guard and halfback. Both are expected soon. Afternoon practice was taken up with punting, passing and falling on the ball for about an hour and then there was half an hour's signal drill. On the first team were Logan, left end; Lilley, left tackle; Hobbs, left guard; Hyde, centre; Goebel, right guard; Hobbs, right tackle; Burch, right end; Bingham, quarterback; Murphy, left halfback; Philbin, right halfback, and Coy, fullback.

Hopkins, who was quarterback on the freshman team last year, arrived today. For running back punts he is a star, and though very light is fast and clever. He may be the one to general the team this fall.

G. G. Browne, the veteran end reported for the Harvard fall squad Thursday morning. He is in fine trim and weighs 175 pounds. Another recruit was Roger Cutler, stroke and captain of the last year's Harvard freshman crew. He played on his class football team in the fall and is a promising candidate for the backfield.

The squad was worked out both morning and afternoon and the coaches spent a lot of time on punting forward passing and a few simple plays. The plays were all run from a kicking formation. Kennard dropped back from tackle to punt and forward passes and fine bunts were variously tried. Houston and Crowley handled the forward passes very accurately.

A tentative backfield was picked for the varsity. It was composed of Browne, quarterback; Smith and Corbett, fullback; The combination worked well, although it will doubtless be changed. Daly spent a lot of time in working with Browne, whom he hopes to develop into a quarter. Greene, the centre on Campbell's team, joined the coaching force today and worked with the centres. Parker, last year's captain, also helped with the coaching. Ex-Captain McCormick of the last year's Princeton eleven was on the side lines and expressed himself as pleased with the appearance of the Harvard squad.

TWAIN, IN A RAGE, LASHES BURGLARS.

Famous Humorist Loses His Temper When He Faces the Robbers of His House.

Redding, Conn., Sept. 19.—Mark Twain appeared in a new role yesterday in the home of the local justice of the peace to prosecute the two burglars who robbed his villa Thursday night. The thieves were captured after a battle with Sheriff Banks, of Danbury, and a posse on board a New Haven train. In the fight Sheriff Banks was shot in the leg and Henry Williams, one of the burglars, was wounded in the head. Mary Twain's silver was recovered.

The two prisoners, Williams and Chas. Hoffman, were taken to Bridgeport and held for trial. When Mr. Clemens saw the men he flew into a rage and abused them savagely. He evidently took Hoffman for a Jew, and said:

"I am surprised and pained that a man of your race, for whom I have always said a good word and defended, would perpetrate such an outrage on me."

Hoffman hung his head and made no reply. There will be a speedy trial of the prisoners.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will hold a regular meeting Tuesday night and discuss plans for the winter. It is proposed to make the meetings unusually attractive with music and interesting speakers.

Miss Ethel Huff, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Centreville.

AMUSEMENTS.

No actor ever started on his career as a star with greater eclat than Mr. George Arliss at the Belasco. Beyond all the sensational developments as to the American rights of "The Devil" and the remarkable impression left by the Hungarian play itself, lies the personal artistic triumph of Mr. Arliss. If the author had had an intimate knowledge of Mr. Arliss's gifts and methods, he could not have devised a character that gives him more subtle opportunities than this insinuating and fascinating Prince of Pleasure and Evil in modern guise. It is safe to predict that the association of Mr. Arliss and "The Devil" will be a long one, for the demand for seats at the Belasco breaks all records.

One of the means by which David Belasco arrives at the incomparable artistic finish characterzing all his plays lies in the perfect harmony which obtains at rehearsals. A case in point is daily illustrated during the preparation of "The Fighting Hope," the play by William J. Hurlburt in which Mr. Belasco is to present Blanche Bates this season, for its metropolitan premiere at the Belasco Stuyvesant theatre, September 21. Not only does Mr. Belasco supervise every detail of production, but, as in the writing of his plays, when he actually lives the characters his imagination creates, he becomes an actor to the finger tips and instills his enthusiasm into his fellow players.

The sixth season of the Hudson Theatre has been inaugurated by Henry B. Harris by the presentation of Robert Edeson in "The Call of the North." Mr. Harris who is responsible for the presentation of James Forbes' comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," the biggest hit of several years, has followed this up by placing another big success to his credit in Mr. Edeson's new vehicle. "The Call of the North" which is in four acts with its locality in the most northerly part of the Hudson Bay Company's territory, was written by Mr. George Broadhurst, and is founded on Stewart Edward White's story, "Conjuror's House." Mr. Harris has given the play one of his usual fine scenic productions and has gathered together a cast to support Mr. Edeson which is one of the best of the year. These players include De Witt Jennings, Francis Byrne, Lawrence Eddinger, David Torrence, Macey Harlam, Grant Mitchell and Burke Clarke; Marjorie Wood who will have the chief feminine role, Olive Oliver, Beatrice Prentice, and Helen Dahl.

At Proctor's Newark Theatre during the week commencing Monday, Sept. 21, Mr. Robert Hilliard and company in a powerful dramatic sketch full of heart interest and pathos entitled "Convict 973." Mr. Hilliard's portrayal of the released convict struggling against the inevitable "ticket of leave" is without a peer in the realm of vaudeville. The Six Musical Cutty's in their incomparable musical melange. This talented family play various string and brass instruments with a dash and vim that makes them prime favorites weherever they appear. The Mirzkoff Troupe are five whirlwind dancers who have electrified Europe with a series of dancers peculiar to their native Russian Steppes. Ward and Curran, will be seen in the latest edition of their side splitting travesty, "The Terrible Judge." Mathews and Astly will present a worthy successor to their "Smash up in Chinatown," with brand new parodies. Barry and Walvers, two clever conversational comedians, the Flying Martins in a rapid fire trapeze act, Burt and Bertha Crant, colored singers and dancers, and new animated pictures.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK ALREADY A CITIZEN.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, the great contralto, whose place of residence is in Caldwell, appeared in a new role yesterday. Without flourish or announcement of any kind she made her entrance before Judge Ten Eyck, in the Court of Common Pleas at Newark, and applied for citizenship papers.

The diva tried to get papers last June, but was told then that they were not necessary as she was married to an American and so became an American also.

Former Judge Algernon T. Sweeney, her counsel, however, made the application as a matter of form, and Judge Ten Eyck ruled, as stated a the time he would, that such a ste was unnecessary for the reason stated.

When called to the witness stand also as a matter of form, the great singer was asked a few questions as to her marriage to William Rapp which she said took place in Chicag about three years ago. She said i her rich voice, softly modulated for the occasion, that she was born in Austria and had been in this country about ten years. She wanted th papers in her own name, she explained, so that an inheritance due to he son may be obtained from Germany.

"I know that I am a citizen now," added the great singer, "but this i such a glorious country that I weul really like to feel that I was a par of it myself."

After former Judge Sweeney ha submitted briefs, she departed wit her husband, who had also sworn to her marriage, and Henry Wolfsohn, her manager.

Jury Gives Damages Against Lackawanna Railroad for Policeman Vosler's Death.

Flemington, Sept. 19.—The jury in the case of Emma K. Vosler, of New York,, who brought action to recover $30,000 damages from the Lackawanna Railroad because of alleged negligence of the company in not providing a light on the platform of its Washington, N. J., station, on the night of December 20 last, when her late husband, Urian Vosler, fell down a stairway and was killed, rendered a verdict for $7,500 for the plaintiff yesterday.

Vosler was a New York policeman, was thirty-nine years old, and formerly resided at Washington. He received a salary of $1,400 a year. It was claimed that on the night of December 20 last he went to the Washington station to take the 5:46 o'clock train for New York. In leaving the waiting room he passed out of a door leading to his train and not seeing the stairway, stepped off into space. No one saw him fall, but his lifeless body was found three hours later at the bottom of the steps.

The company claimed that the stairway leading to the cellar was properly constructed and sufficiently protected by guard rails. It was said that lights shone directly upon the guard rails from two windows, and if Vosler fell down the flight of stairs it was by his own negligence.

The jurors will return September 28 to try indictments. The indictments will be pleaded to before Judge John L. Connet Monday.

The Inter-State Fair.

For Monday, September 28, the opening day of the Great Inter-State Fair, the management has programmed a $1,000 baby show and parade that will not only be a distinct feature of the fair, but an event that will rank with anything of the kind ever promoted in this country. The classes are as follows: Baby show—handsomest, fattest, smallest, twin, triplets. Baby praade—baby coach including costume of child, doll coach and go-carts, novelty vehicles, any decoration, costumes in fancy dress, costumes in burlesque. Four to six prizes, consisting of valuable articles of jeyelry, etc., are given in each class. The winners also receive the coveted blue ribbon. Each child entered will receive a souvenir prize. No entrance fee is charged. Parents are given free admission to the grounds and grand stand. Entry blanks and information in relation to the show and parade can be secured by addressing Frank McCullough, box 717, Trenton, N. J.

FOR HOME RULE.

If, as appears to be the prevailing feeling, the State Excise Commission will advise "home rule," the most intelligent move will be taken towards the solution of this vexing problem. Local control, subject to a necessary general supervision on the part of the State, whether it be by commission or otherwise, appears to represent the consensus of opinion among the great majority of the people who have given any thought or study to the matter and who consequently realize that "prohibition is a failure" and the best interests of the public demand strict regulation with high license.

It must be granted, that, as Governor Fort said some time ago, Plainfield is probably the best regulated town in Jersey so far as the excise question is concerned. In fact, the Bishops' bill was modeled after its ordinances to a very considerably extent. But what would do for Plainfield, it should be conceded would not serve the purposes in many other towns. Plainfield is a peculiar community; one where a large proportion of the inhabitants is the commuter element. Conditions are far different in Atlantic City and just as much so in Elizabeth. The city fathers of those places know what is best for their communities and if they do not the people themselves at the polls will make it clear to them. The purpose of the State supervisor and general regulation would be to see that a statute prohibiting Sunday selling, dives and such evils be rigidly enforced. This would be but right and proper and would no doubt form a part of the proposed plan which has "home rule" as its primary object.

Thus far in the campaign, which is now in the eleventh hour, there has been no individual to stand sponsor for the nomination of Kirstein for the Assembly. Party custom may decree one thing but the will of the voters is another, but in his case there is apparently no one to lend a helping hand. Kirstein's record does not entitle him to any consideration.

How "Uncle Dan" must have laughed when he read in the newspapers Mr. Charles Newell Fowler's assertion that he had never asked the support of a political "machine." If the State Treasurer, boss of Morris county, etc., etc., is not a machine all by himself, in heaven's name tell us what constitutes a machine?

The attention of Republican voters is called to a clear, concise and unequivocal statement made in our advertising columns today by Charles A. Trimble, of Elizabeth. Mr. Trimble is a candidate for Assembly nomination and is anxious to let his fellow Republicans know just where he stands so that there may be no misunderstandings.

As yet, no one has come forward with any sane reason why Joseph S. Frelinghuysen should not be returned to the State Senate. Perhaps some of those reckless "auto-devils" may desire his defeat, but they should remember that the corrupting influence of the dollar cuts less figure in Jersey than in New York.

An exchange remarks that Miss Maloney's method of getting rid of a titled suitor has some original merits. That may be so, but just suppose that the much advertised Miss Maloney had been of poor parentage, then what?

For the sake of good government, at the primaries on Tuesday do not neglect to support C. B. Pierce and to scratch from your ballot the name of A. F. Kirstein.

Lost—The Plainfield Republican Club. Reward and no questions asked nor information given if returned to "Apathy," care of Over-confidence.

Mr. Carvalho should have known better than to have piled up some of those "yellows" in that barn of his.

Ohio's "fire-alarm" is no false-alarm, but Hitchcock's brigade may be depended upon to extinguish it.

Do the Departed Know Their Friends on Earth?

Tenth of a Series on Heaven by REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

We are told in the twelfth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews that the departed are so interested in our lives that they are about us as a great cloud of witnesses. The picture is that of a great race course with its runners and spectators. We on earth are the runners and the departed are the witnesses. They are more than spectators, for the word in Greek is "martures" from which we get our word "martyrs." They witnessed for God while on earth. Therefore they are inspirations to us. We see the result of their heroic faith and it inspires us, but the picture that the writer of the Epistle presents, tells us more than that the record of their lives is an inspiration to us. They are interested in the race we are running and therefore they are gathered about it in such numbers that it seems in the writer's vision like one of those gatherings about the Greek games. One of the reasons for their interest is given in the last verse of the preceding chapter, "They without us shall not be made perfect." The departed, therefore, are interested in us. They are interested in us for our work is related to them. They are interested in our success for they are blessed with us. Paul said to the Ephesians that the angels and principalities in the heavenly places learn through the church the manifold wisdom of God. The eyes of the angels and the saints are upon the progress of God's Kingdom on earth.

Saints that pass out of this world into that glorious land do not forget about us. They cannot. It is no evidence that because we do not know our friends departed, they do not know us. They have risen to a higher life and have been endowed with new faculties. We look down on the lower orders of creation and understand them where they do not understand us. It is probable that our friends from their higher plane look down and see and understand us a great deal better than we can understand them and their glory.

May it not be that our friends who have but shortly passed over have such intimate relations with the older saints in that world and with the angels of God that they are instructed by them in spiritual things and the plans of God regarding us. We believe that our friends are interested in us today because "love never faileth." "What God hath joined together, no man can put asunder, not even the grave." Love abides in the other world. More than that. Love will be intensified and perfected in that plane. If our departed ones love us, they will also be interested in us. The early church held this as an important article of their faith and therefore embodied it in the creed. They included this thought when they said, "I believe in the communion of saints."

Cyprian of Carthage after a great pestilence had stricken his city, spoke to his people these words of comfort: "Why hasten we not to see our country, to salute our parents? There a vast multitude of them that are dear to us, await our arrival, a multitude of parents, brethren and children, who are now secure in their own salvation, and anxious only about ours." Perhaps our friends are unseen around us for

"Millions of spiritual creatures walk the earth
Unseen both when we walk and when we sleep."

But says someone, if my friends are interested in my welfare, why is it that I have no more definite knowledge of it? Why do they not communicate with me? Perhaps they cannot.

We are imprisoned in that planet. Heaven will be the place of our liberation. We are assured that the spiritual world is around us but our eyes are sealed. There is no reason why those in that higher plane of existence should not know us for in that world they are freed from the limitations of this life.

You question, I know, the perfect happiness of our friends in the other world if they have knowledge of our present condition, for such knowledge must include our sufferings and our sins. Would it not be better for them not to know us in our troubles? Perhaps this will answer the question. They think of us probably as the mother thinks of the troubles of her little girl who has broken her doll. It seems a great loss to the little child but the mother knows the real loss and that when her little girl grows older she will smile at her childish grief. The loss of the doll is not really a great loss. Our dear ones see our sorrow in the light of God's great plan. The mother comforts the little girl in her sorrow but that sorrow does not break her heart because she knows. Our friends know of our sorrow as a passing sorrow because they see what life in all its fullness means.

It is absolutely incredible that our friends should forget us after they have passed over. What should you think of a man here who had been suddenly elevated to a position of trust forgetting his old associates. Life here is continuous with life there. If so then the same old but holy interests will continue in that world.

are just the thing to take the chill off the room night and morning before you start your heating apparatus. Some of the excellent features of this heater are that it heats by radiation, not by air circulation. Perfect combustion; positively no odor whatever; the heat is radiated from the sides and thrown near the floor instead of going directly to the ceiling. Five times more heat produced than from other heaters burning the same amount of gas. We have about 25 heaters that have been used for demonstrating purposes and while they last we'll sell them special for..... $1.98

ANNOUNCEMENT of CANDIDACY and DECLARATION of PRINCIPLES MADE BY

CHARLES A. TRIMBLE

OF ELIZABETH, N. J.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN ASSEMBLY NOMINATION

"TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF UNION COUNTY:

"Having signed an agreement to accept the Republican nomination for member of the General Assembly, on a petition which has been signed by one hundred and twenty-five of my friends, I feel that I owe as a duty to those who will vote at the primary, a frank expression of my views on a number of subjects that may come before the coming session of the Legislature for consideration, and if these views meet with your approval I most respectfully solicit your support at the polls.

TAXATION.

"Taxes ought never to be made burdensome and every taxpayer should be able to see a return for every dollar invested in the payment thereof. To that end the administration of the affairs of the State and of every municipality within the State, should be with an eye single to the welfare of the people, and to securing a maximum of results for a minimum of cost.

"In the opinion of many persons familiar with the subject of taxation, a statute can be enacted which will successfully stand the test of the courts, whereby second-class railroad property can be assessed by local assessors, rather than by the State Board as at present. If this end can be accomplished I believe that it will accrue to the advantage of the several municipalities of the State.

"Much has been said about the revaluation of first-class railroad property, commonly known as the main stem property. In the light of what has been shown there should be a frequent revaluation of this class of property so that the State can receive the benefit arising from the ever enhancing value of this most valuable class of all railroad property as a taxable asset.

Election Laws.

"The extension of the Direct Primary Act should, in my opinion, be deferred until the operation of the law can be tested to the satisfaction of the people in an off year, when a full and complete opportunity to judge its merits will be presented.

"I believe, however, that our election laws should be revised and codified so that an ordinary layman may be able to understand their various complexities.

Public Utilities.

"The public utilities corporations operating in this State should be under such State control and supervision that any and all alleged excessive rates, unfair discriminations, inadequacy and insufficiency of service, could be promptly and efficiently investigated and if improper conditions be found to exist, fearlessly remedied, to the end that users be fairly and equitably treated and public safety be conserved.

Grade Crossings.

"All grade crossings over the main lines of railroads should be abolished as promptly as an equitable and fair method to that end can be devised.

Anti-Monopoly Laws.

"There are no statutes of this State under which the authorities can take legal steps to prevent illegal combinations formed for the purpose of fixing prices for various commodities or restricting their output. Other States have enacted statutes to protect their citizens in this respect and New Jersey would do well to follow their example by enacting a fair and just law for this purpose.

Employer's Liability.

"A number of States have assumed the initiative in this direction and it is my belief that an honest, equitable measure of this character, that will be fair to both the employer and the employe should be enacted.

Bi-monthly Payroll.

"Thousands of toilers in this State receive their wages but once a month. When current expenses are paid, ofttimes but little remains, and in numerous cases that have come to my attention considerable hardship has been worked, and families have been practically without funds for days at a time. This also works a hardship on the merchants who supply these persons with the necessaries of life on credit, having frequently but small means themselves, and it seems to me that all employers of labor should be compelled by law to make up their pay roll at least twice in every month, and in favor of such legislation I shall stand unequivocally.

Excise Question.

"The Governor of this State has appointed a commission composed of public-spirited and honest men to investigate and report excise conditions in this State, and as a result of such report as they may make to him he will undoubtedly make some recommendation to the Legislature as to what legislation may be needed to better conditions. Until such report is made and such recommendation submitted, I deem that it would be discourteous to the Governor to exploit any 'cure-all' for the excise situation, but it seems to me that after all the question of liquor regulation might well be left with each municipality to vote upon under the general principles of home rule, as so many questions of lesser importance are now disposed of. In other words, I think that this question is as properly a question of local option as the question as to whether we should use the voting machine or support a public library.

Find Spring Water Poisoned.

Paris green has been discovered in the Arch street spring at Butler, near Paterson, and the Board of Health has ordered an investigation. The spring has been used by residents of Butler for twenty years. It is on the property of Joseph McLean. Charles M. Noble, a former owner, erected a wall around the spring several years ago. The presence of the paris green in the spring is a mystery.

Thief Takes Watches Overlooks Cash

After John E. Gilbert, of Mount Holly, superintendent of the Burlington County Railway Company, retired at a late hour last night a burglar, who it is believed was already secreted in the house, got his gold and silver watches but over looked a sum of money after taking Mr. Gilbert's suit of clothes from his bedroom to the yard.

TWO-CENT POSTAGE WITH ENGLAND SOON

As the result of an agreement between this country and Great Britain the letter postage rate between the United States and Great Britain has been reduced, and beginning October 1, the rate demanded will be two cents an ounce or fraction of an ounce. The following order has been received by Postmaster Elias H. Bird from G. V. L. Meyer, Postmaster-General:

"Order No. 1667—It is hereby ordered that commencing on the 1st day of October, 1908, the postage rate applicable to letters mailed in the United States, addressed for delivery at any place in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, shall be two cents an ounce or fraction of an ounce.

"Letters unpaid or short-paid shall be dispatched to desination, but double the deficient postage calculated at said rate shall be collectable of the addresses upon the delivery of the unpaid or short-paid letters."

Postmaster Bird says that this reduction in the postage rate between the two countries will undoubtedly greatly increase the volume of business.

The matter of a "penny postage," as it is called in England, has been under consideration for some time, and as far back as last July President Roosevelt approved Postmaster-General Meyer's course in urging a "restricted union with England."

Scene From "The Great Divide" at New Plainfield Theatre Monday Night

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The mere announcement that "The Great Divide" has been booked for an engagement at the New Plainfield Theatre next Monday night will probably create an unprecedented "run" on Manager Counihan's box office, as everyone who keeps in touch with things theatrical will welcome a chance to see this phenomenally successful dramatic offering. No play ever written by an American dramatist has won such widely heralded approbation by the foremost dramatic reviewers. Many critics have called it the "long awaited 'great American play;'" all theatrical writers have agreed that it marks an epoch in American literature, and it has never yet had an adverse criticism as a forceful, brilliant, and thoroughly American drama. "The Great Divide" comes here under the personal direction of Henry Miller, who presented the piece most of last season and all of the year before in New York, first at the Princess Theatre and Daly's Theatre, and later at the Academy of Music, for over 600 performances to capacity business. The production, including the entire scenic equipment, will be given here precisely the same as during the metropolitan engagement.

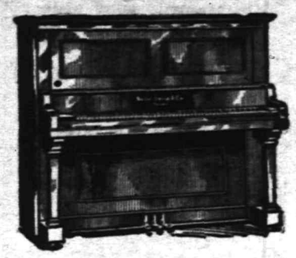
The most notable attraction booked for the coming week at the New Plainfield Theatre is the eminent tragedian, Mr. John Griffith, who, on next Tuesday evening, will present Shakespeare's great love tragedy, "Othello." The opportunity is seldom offered patrons of the classic drama to witness, locally, performances of Shakespeare's plays, and that fact combined with the recognized reputation of Mr. Griffith renders his engagement here next week doubly interesting. His portrayal of the Moorish general, Othello, is credited with being fully equal to his vivid impersonation of the tyranical King Richard, in which he appeared last season, or of Macbeth, in which he previously starred for several years. Many local play-goers have witnessed the masterful acting of this truly great tragedian during former seasons and will eagerly embrace the opportunity to see his performance of "Othello." Mr. Griffith's supporting company this season is said to be the strongest he has ever had, comprising a number of well known players who have previously been associated with other reputable tragic luminaries. Miss Edyth Totten is leading lady and in the role of Desdemona has shared equal honors with the star. Complete new scenic equipment was built during the past summer for Mr. Griffith's production, which is said to be on a scale of unusual magnitude.

Of all the innumerable branches in theatrical attractions today there is not one class of amusement that has lived in all parts of the world like melodrama. Melodrama always has been, and is today still in its infancy. Why? The reader may ask. Simply and purely because it is always built around some powerful heart-interesting story of an actual happening, generally elaborated of course for stage license, but nevertheless is so constructed by the author to vividly portray some great event in life, so life-like that the auditor is carried away by the big scenes and actions of the play. In Charles E. Blaney's latest offering "From Sing Sing to Liberty," with Jack Dorris, the jail breaker as its star, which will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre next Wednesday afternoon and night, there are some new and novel features introduced, such as a genuine steel cell, a reproduction of the ones used in Sing Sing Prison, New York State. The production is in four acts and six scenes, each one a master-piece.

Nanette Comstock, whom Manager William Muenster will present to the patrons of the New Plainfield Theatre next Friday night in her latest success "Jet," has scored the hit of her career it is said. The piece is by Louise Lovell, an author heretofore unknown, but in this her maiden effort has stamped herself a writer of first quality who will in all probability make some of our older authors sit up and take notice. It was produced for the first time in Washington a short time ago, where it received the highest commendation from the press and public. It is in four acts with the scenes laid in the cotton fields of Texas, and tells a pretty love romance. While the theme is sufficiently serious and pathetic, the play itself is replete with humorous incidents and clever characterizations. The story is pure and wholesome and teaches a strong moral. The most minute attention has been given the entire production and we are promised the same big cast which will be employed during its metropolitan engagement which is in the near future.

Some of Sousa's Characteristic Poses at New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday.

Miss Helena Updyke, of this city, is spending some time with Miss Jennie Updyke, of Blawenburg.



QUALITY and PRICE

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

LAUNDRY UTENSILS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

An ice cream freezer which is actually no bigger than the proverbial pint of cider is a fetching little piece of furniture. At first sight it suggests nothing more practical than the kitchen of a doll's house, and it doubtless would bring unbounded delight to a small girl. The little freezer isn't much to brag of, but even ever, for with it you can freeze a pint of cream as easily as you can beat up an egg, if not quite as quickly. As a family institution the pint freezer isn't much to brag of, but even that depends upon the size of the family. For just two, however the tiny can filled with delicious ice cream or sherbert would be very much better than none at all. To tell the truth, unless one of the two had the ice cream appetite of a small boy the supply would be abundant. The little freezer would be very much easier to handle than one of the big, clumsy affairs which will hold half enough ice cream for a Sunday school picnic, besides taking very much less cracked ice, a consideration which is worth noting, since the cracking of the ice is one of the most tedious parts of freezing the cream.

This little freezer, however, was not originally manufactured so much for the benefit of the cook as for the nurse. For the invalid who craves a little pure ice cream or frozen custard, it is invaluable. The nurse can easily crack the necessary amount of ice and freeze the cream herself. The price of the freezer is $1.25, and it may be found in the house furnishing department of a large down-town hardware store. On the same principle are those holding a quart. These, of course, require a little more ice, but they have the added advantage of being large enough for use for the family unless there are a large number to be served.

Among the other conveniences which have been designed to lighten the labors of the housewife is a mayonnaise mixer. This is not especially new, though there are many housekeepers who do not know that these convenient contrivances are to be had, and find it almost impossible to make mayonnaise without the assistance of a helper to pour the oil slowly.

This utensil has a funnel-shaped oil cup which allows the oil to be added a little at a time. The mixer may also be used for beating eggs or cream and has an advantage over the ordinary egg-beater in that it may be fastened firmly to the edge of the work table. With the old-fashioned egg-beater it is almost necessary to have a second person to steady the mixing bowl while using the egg-beater in order to avoid a catastrophe.

Frying in deep fat, if properly done, is a much more wholesome way of frying than the ordinary fry, or more properly, the "saute." Many cooks think this method troublesome because they lack the proper utensils. The ordinary wire baskets for this purpose are satisfactory if a convenient method of draining the food when done is provided. As soon as the potatoes or croquettes are brown the basket can be lifted immediately and adjusted at a height of several inches above the frying pan to allow the contents to drain. With the wire basket removed the pan can be used as an ordinary frying pan.

Flowers on the Table.

Those who have country houses or greenhouses attached to their houses in town are fortunate because they can always have a supply of flowering plants growing in pots both in and out of season, and there is no more charming decoration for the middle of the table and other parts of the house. But if these luxuries be denied us, the next best thing is to contract with a florist to keep the house supplied with flowering plants and cut flowers all the year round for a fixed sum. Then as soon as the blossoms begin to fall the pots will be taken away and replaced with fresh ones. A flowering plant in full bloom undoubtedly makes the best centrepiece for the table. The pot should be put into a silver, brass or china jardiniere, or if none of these be wicker baskets would look dainty and pretty and little glass vases full of cut flowers may be ranged round it.

What Mother Used.

The bride resolutely dried her eyes on her lace-trimmed handkerchief.

"So my muffins are not like mother used to make," she said significantly. "Well, tomorrow he shall have muffins like mother's."

"Now you have hit it!" exclaimed the young husband enthusiastically. "These muffins are exactly like mother used to make when I was a little chap. How did you do it, dearest?"

"I will give you the recipe," replied the bride coldly. "I used oleomarmarine for butter, cold-storage eggs, put alum in the flour and added chalk and water to the milk—for, if you will recall, your mother lived before the pure food laws."—Judge.

Handy Spiral Holder.

The spiral photograph holder is useful for holding letters. Fasten it on the wall and in it can be slipped the unanswered letters. It is very convenient for holding pencils and pens, also a small ruler. The same little contrivance fastened on the door under the sink will hold butcher knives, meat forks, egg lifters and other long handled kitchen articles one prefers keeping in the pot cupboard to displaying above the sink.

"NO—no," he said, huskily. "You are very good to think of it. Perhaps I should not have left my room. But the hotel is a horror to me, sir. I cannot set foot in the hall without meeting the scowling face of some creditor of North & Stackhouse. People point after me as I walk along, and talk under their breath about me. Fools! They think I do not see these things. I am followed here, there, and everywhere, hounded like an escaped convict. Saturday I lay down on a bed, and they broke open my room to make sure I had not escaped them! I thank you, Mr. Lamm, for all that you have done and meant to do for me. But I have made up my mind not to endure this life any longer. I am going away."

"Nonsense!" returned Mr. Lamm, cheerfully, with his hand on the man's shoulder, but looking anxiously, none the less, into his haggard face. "Stick to your colors a little longer. The fight is almost over."

"Almost over!" Stackhouse echoed the words with a curious, dull intonation. "My hopes of happiness are wrecked. The future is dark—all dark. The shadow of crime, once it falls on a man's life, can never be lifted. You know how terribly true that is, Mr. Lamm. This is no more than my just deserts. No more. Yes, I am going away. Whatever the risk I care not. Why should I stay in this city of torment?"

Mr. Lamm gave another friendly touch upon the shoulder of the dejected figure, but his own look of anxiety was only intensified.

"Wait!" said the detective, in tones of sympathy. "The truth is coming, and it is coming fast. You have trusted me so far. Don't cast my advice to the winds now."

"I do not care the turn of my hand whether the truth comes out to-day or to-morrow, or never," gloomily answered Stackhouse, looking at the face bent near his own, with hollow, despairing eyes. "I have no longer any interest in any possible event that may happen to me. But out of this horrible place and these horrible surroundings I mean to go, and without delay. Mr. Lamm, I thank you again for the noble way in which you have helped me."

"Don't speak of that," interposed Mr. Lamm.

"I must speak of it. In all my trouble and remorse I have not forgotten it. And now let me have your bill, Mr. Lamm, and I will draw my check for the amount at once—the last check that Thornton Stackhouse will ever fill out in Boston."

"My dear sir," Mr. Lamm remonstrated, "I have no bill to present. Why, my work is not done yet. When the proper time comes I shall not forget it, be sure of that," he added, with assumed lightness of manner.

Stackhouse got up rather unsteadily, but with a filled purpose in his look.

"Let me go into your inner office," he asked, "and make out a check if it's only as a matter of form. Besides, I want to write a moment on another matter, and I should like to be undisturbed by any chance caller you might have."

Mr. Lamm was at the door of his little "den" in a moment, opened his desk, and placed pen and paper at his visitor's disposal. Stackhouse sat down, and the detective went out, softly closing the door upon the client at his work.

Roused from certain regretful momentary meditations by the entrance of his trusted worker, "Bill," Mr. Lamm began to talk with him in an undertone.

In the very middle of their hushed conference both men started and looked wildly around.

The sound of an explosion came to their ears with terrible distinctness.

It was unmistakably a pistol shot.

Moved by a common impulse, both rushed toward the inner office. When Detective Lamm pushed open the door and went in, his subordinate was close behind.

The room was full of smoke. But the cloud lifted as the current of fresher air entered, and in an instant the two were staring into a face—a face that did not return their look of horror, the face of a dead man.

Dead! Sitting up in his chair at Mr. Lamm's desk, with one hand clutching a pen, and in the other a revolver, from which a tiny wreath of smoke was curling, was the form of Thornton Stackhouse.

So true had been his aim, that the transition from life to death could have taken scarcely a second of time. He had blown out his brains.

With a stifled cry Mr. Lamm's companion started back. His white face met at the outer door the frightened look of another man, a conveyancer, who had an office close by.

"A man has shot himself in there!" whispered Bill. The newcomer hurried out of the room. Others, alarmed at the report of the pistol, were hurrying to the scene; and in an incredibly short space of time every occupant of the building seemed to be possessed of the startling news.

John Lamm quickly regained his accustomed composure, and barred the outer door in advance of the rush of the excited throng which he knew was coming.

He returned, a moment later, to the little room, paying not the slightest heed to the crush without, or to the loud and reiterated demands: "Let us in! Let us in!"

In the dead man's clenched hand, which Mr. Lamm made no attempt to unclasp, was held a 32-caliber revolver. The other hand held a pen.

Written on the blotter of the desk was this, the last message of Thornton Stackhouse:

"Send for my wife, Marion Stackhouse.
"Tell her my death is my reparation.
"I can forgive her if she can forgive me. But I cannot live without her."

Mr. Lamm read the words, and gave a look full of pity at the motionless figure sitting there—so near him, yet in an awful sense so far removed.

The stentorian demand at the outer door had ceased when he reentered his main office, but there was a dull murmur, which grew to a very babel of excited sounds, when Mr. Lamm's form was seen on the threshold.

Two men were standing close to the door, having apparently been given that post of distinction by common consent of the crowd, who held back a little way.

Mr. Lamm knew his men at once.

"Gentlemen," he said, gravely, "you are outwitted!"

They made a pretense of misunderstanding him.

"What do you mean?" said the older man.

"I mean," returned the detective, quietly, "that you can inform your inspector that your services will be no longer necessary. The inner room, gentlemen."

He waved his hand for them to enter.

They hurried in. In another minute one of them came out, forced his way through the increasing throng which blocked the entrance, and hurried after Inspector Applebee.

Mr. Lamm turned gravely to his assistant.

"Go to Richard Fetridge's office," he said, in a low tone, "and have him here at once. Don't explain. Don't listen to any excuses for delay."

The man pushed through the crowd and was off like a shot.

Both messengers were signally successful.

To the immense satisfaction of the breathless officer in citizen's clothes, he met Inspector Applebee coming down the street holding his course directly in the line taken by Mr. Lamm's messenger.

Two words, and the inspector hurried toward the scene of death, and found his way through the press. Mr. Lamm, waiting at the door, bowed and admitted him at once.

With Inspector Applebee and his man, a great surge of excited humanity rushed into Mr. Lamm's office. Only by dint of the most active exertions could the police keep back the eager crowd from the little room.

Presently there was a stir at the outer door. Attention was diverted for the moment from what the little room contained of animate or inanimate humanity, as Mr. Fetridge, visibly excited, entered the office under the guidance of Mr. Lamm's messenger.

Mr. Lamm, counting upon his speedy coming, was on the watch, and with the cooperation of Inspector Applebee, to whom the detective deferred as being the representative in authority, Richard Fetridge was admitted to the inner room.

"A horrible sight!" he murmured, putting his hands before his face, and leaning against one of the officers. In a few moments he had recovered, but avoided, as much as he could, turning any glance toward the desk.

"Do you remember what Daniel Webster said once?" Fetridge spoke to Mr. Lamm under his breath, but not so low that the listening ear of Inspector Applebee did not catch every word: "There is no refuge for the murderer but suicide. And suicide is confession!'"

Hardly was the sentence uttered, when Inspector Applebee, as if aroused by some sudden thought, ordered the officers to clear the outer room and to prevent further blockade upon the stairway.

"Not you, of course," said the inspector, addressing generally the little group.

No word was spoken by them while the orders were carried out, not without some difficulty. When the room was cleared at last, the inspector motioned to one of his men to remain by the body, and led the way into the larger room, Mr. Lamm and Mr. Fetridge following in turn.

Taking no note of the detective, Inspector Applebee wheeled upon his companion and clapped a firm hand on his arm.

"I am sorry to have to say it, Mr. Fetridge, but I must take you into custody."

Richard Fetridge stood aghast, unable to articulate a syllable.

Self-poised as ever, Mr. Lamm took his cue to speak.

"Inspector Applebee," he said, very coolly, "it is not my business, perhaps, but you are sure that in arresting Mr. Fetridge you are not making a mistake?"

The inspector put on at once his invisible robe of official dignity.

"I think I know what I am about, Mr. Lamm." He was very curt.

"Oh, no doubt, no doubt, Mr. Inspector," responded the private detective.

"Of course, if you are possessed of any information, sir, the authorities will be glad to have you disclose it." Thus Inspector Applebee still, with his official manner emphasized.

"I do profess to some knowledge of this case, Mr. Inspector," returned Mr. Lamm, "and that is the reason why I made that suggestion just now about Mr. Fetridge here."

"Oh, we understand that this is a complicated affair," remarked Inspector Applebee. "We know very well that Richard Fetridge is not the only person in the case. It's not professional, perhaps, to tell you, Mr. Lamm, but it is a fact that headquarters have a man at Swampscott now, and another important arrest has already taken place. Mr. Fetridge, are you ready?"

"Another arrest!" he gasped. "In the name of heaven, who is it? Who? Not that unfortunate sufferer at the North villa?"

The inspector replied to this wild, impetuous appeal in no other way than by a very grim smile.

Mr. Lamm had stepped aside, and Inspector Applebee had already hooked his arm firmly in Mr. Fetridge's when a great noise at the door attracted their attention.

Angry remonstrance and determined assertion were contending for the upper hand, when Mr. Lamm recognized, or thought he recognized, one of the voices.

"I must go in! I must, I say!"

It was Kingman F. Thomas who spoke the words, and there was no doubt about it. Dismissing all formality, Mr. Lamm hastened to the support of his ally, tried and true.

Inspector Applebee, still attached to Richard Fetridge in this peculiarly "professional" manner, had not made up his mind whether or not to rebuke Mr. Lamm for his precipitate action, when Kingman F. Thomas entered the room and joined the trio.

Breathless from his verbal and physical contest with the guardian of the portal—himself panting and angry enough—Thomas could not speak for a moment.

"Well, Thomas," said the inspector, testily, "what is the matter with you?"

"Something will be the matter with you—in a minute—when I tell you what I know," gasped the reporter.

His manner was so unusual and excited that everybody began to have lively misapprehensions.

"What do you mean?" asked the inspector, hastily. "Do you refer to the North case?"

"Most assuredly I do," cried Thomas. "I am in possession of all the facts. Lock the doors, gentlemen. Everything must stay just as it is till I have told my story."

"There is no time for stories," said Applebee. "If you are in possession of all the facts, you know who committed the murder. Tell us in a word. Who was it? Name the man."

There was a profound silence in the room as Kingman F. Thomas, at last himself again, opened his mouth for a reply.

CHAPTER XXIII.

NOT WHAT THEY EXPECTED, BUT STILL—

"Inspector," returned Thomas, in a voice that trembled in spite of his efforts to the contrary, "I give you the solemn word of a man who at least believes that he speaks the truth. There has been no murder!"

But for the excited breathing of the living in the office of John Lamm, detective, there was no more sound in the moment following this utterance than there would have been if Thomas' auditors had suddenly become so many ingenious and lifelike pieces of waxwork.

The inspector was the first to recover sufficient command of himself to trust his voice.

"Do you mean to have us believe that it was a suicide?" he demanded, with a scornful incredulity.

"I do not," Thomas returned, decisively. "I mean to have you believe that Paul North died from accident, pure and simple, without the intervention of any second person in any possible way."

"And is this man," said the still incredulous inspector, with a toss of his head in Fetridge's direction, "supposed to have knowledge of this fact?"

"Me!" gasped Richard Fetridge. "I assure you, sir, that I haven't the faintest idea of what he is talking about."

"Umha! And the conspiracy?" murmured a reproachful voice close to the reporter's ear.

Thomas turned quickly to grasp Lamm's hand.

"My friend," he said, solemnly, "I am sorry to say that you were quite right. There was a conspiracy. You were shrewdly speculating here one day as to which person was at the head of it and which person carried it out; but you fell wide of the truth there. Lamm, Paul North himself was at the head of that conspiracy, and that pitiable woman, his adopted daughter, was the misguided instrument of perpetuating his vengeance."

Among those who stared at Thomas there was certainly none whose face expressed more of bewilderment, dumb and hopeless, than Richard Fetridge.

Thomas observed this, but the sight seemed to kindle his indignation.

"And as for the cause of the whole thing," he said, "it is easily to be found in the man who entered into an intrigue with an adventuress for purposes of his own to completely ruin the husband of Paul North's daughter."

"For the cause of truth and justice," interposed Fetridge in a faint voice. "For the family honor and—and my own."

Thomas turned from him with a contemptuous shrug of the shoulders. And yet was he wholly just in condemning this man, whose chief fault had been that he loved Marion North-Stackhouse too well to give her up so long as a chance remained of winning her? With what feverish eagerness Richard Fetridge must have seized upon the straw of hope which the revengeful Creole had brought into his office that fateful morning in May; and how he must have argued with his own conscience till he had justified his course to himself! But, then, allowance must be made for the frame of mind of Mr. Thomas, who was grievously dissatisfied with the outcome of the North case.

"And Thornton Stackhouse?" he asked. "To speak more plainly, perhaps, Albert Runyon. I was told that he was here."

"Thornton Stackhouse is dead," returned the inspector, impatiently. "He committed suicide this morning. We are wasting precious time, Mr. Thomas. If what you say is true, it is eminently important that I should be assured of it at once. Tell your story in the fewest possible words. In the first place, how did you become possessed of this information?"

"Dead!" murmured the reporter. He looked about him sharply and the truth seemed to come to him. He pointed toward the inner room. "In there?"

Lamm nodded.

"What a coincidence!"

Everybody noticed that the reporter's lips had turned white. For a short time he seemed vainly trying to articulate.

The inspector, unaware of the cause of his agitation, again reminded him impatiently of the flight of time. Thomas drew himself together with an effort.

"Permit me to sit down," he said; and dropped at once into the nearest chair. He began to search in an inner pocket, and drew therefrom a folded document.

"All necessary information is contained here," he said, his voice gaining strength. "I have obtained it. It is my property, and I stipulate but one thing, inspector—I am to dictate just how much of it is to be given to the press. Just enough of it may be presented to satisfy the public. No more. There is scandal enough in this affair at the best, without hearing the whole truth upon the heads of the unfortunate family."

"You know yourself whether your request is reasonable," returned Applebee. "If it is, you know very well that I shall only be too glad to comply with it, if I can do so without placing my department in a false light before the public."

"This," continued Thomas, unfolding the document, "is the sworn statement of Marion North."

"You mean Mrs. Stackhouse?" the inspector said.

"I mean Marion North, sir. As to how I obtained it, I may say that was partly by threat, partly by argument. I accidentally became possessed on Saturday of the cause of her separation from Thornton Stackhouse. The information I found in a letter written by her to him. I found her in the last agonies of a determined conflict between her pride and a sense of justice, which I am sure would eventually have ended in the surrender of pride, even without my intervention. At first she fought me off with all her strength, but I was fortunately possessed of a stronger argument than anybody else could have brought to bear upon her in the person of her sister."

REAPING BENEFIT.

From the Experience of Plainfield People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Plainfield residents on the following subject wil interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

R. H. Day, 108 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on different occasions for twelve years and do not know how I would get along without them. At times I was seized with severe pains in my back, brought on no doubt by over-work. A kidney disorder generally accompanied such attacks. Doan's Kidney Pills was the first remedy that ever took effect on my trouble and whenever I have appealed to them, they have always banished my suffering. Plenty more local proof like the above can be had at Randolph's Pharmacy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Seery Will Play Here.

Boelzley, the clever catcher on the Clinton Avenue team, will not be able to play this afternoon, owing to an injury to his hand while at work in the Singer Sewing Machine Works at Elizabethport yesterday. His hand was caught in a piece of machinery and his thumb was broken, which will put him out of the game for the rest of the season. Manager Dorflinger at once got busy and last night he engaged Seery, the crack catcher on the Elizabeth Stars, to finish the season with the local team. Seery is considered one of the best receivers in this part of the State and he will prove an acquisition to the club. He is also a good hitter.

Football at P. H. S.

The prospects for a fast football team at the Plainfield High School, this season, are bright. Fifteen prospective candidates attended a meeting yesterday, when Kenneth Phillips was elected temporary captain. The school will have to depend this year on practically all new material as a majority of the old players have not returned. During the coming week the candidates will get out for practice and a little later permanent officers, including a manager, will be chosen.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel, will hold its fall meeting, on Tuesday, October 6.

Rev. H. N. Jordan, of New Market, will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock and Mrs. John Manley will sing.

Rev. W. A. Therrell will conduct the services at Wilson Memorial chapel tomorrow night. The subject of his sermon will be, "The Way of Salvation from Sin."

At the morning service at Grace M. E. church tomorrow, Miss Josephine M. Martin, of this city, will sing, "The Good Shepherd," by Barri. In the evening Pastor Shoop will preach on "Christianity as Illustrated by Woman,' it being one of the series on this topic.

—Strictly high grade olive oil at Neuman Brothers. Imported from France and guaranteed to be the best in the city.

—The attendance at all the public schools shows a large increase over previous years, especially in the high schools. The enrollment at both the Plainfield and borough schools at the present time shows a large gain, and there are quite a number of last year's students who have not, as yet, entered.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Ninth Ward Republican Association of Jersey City has expelled from membership George T. Vickers, Assistant Prosecutor; Dr. J. Morgan Jones, Edward Johnson, chief inspector of the Motor Vehicle Department of the Secretary of State's office, and Andrew A. Overend. The allegation is that they are inactive and not in sympathy with the organization. Counsellor Marcus Higginbotham, former chairman of the ward association, who opposed the summary action and insisted that the accused members were entitled to a fair trial, resigned as a member of the association. Ex-Alderman David Allen presided at the meeting. The action of the association excited considerable comment yesterday, and it is likely that the county committee will discuss the matter at its next meeting as the four men dismissed are members of the county committee. The ward association filled three of the vacancies by naming George Jackson, Walter Colton and Richard Doherty, who will apply for admission to the county committee.

"Raymond is scared," said Senator Everett Colby yesterday, referring to the Assistant County Prosecutor, who is trying to wrest the Senatorship nomination from him. "I asked him to come out on the stump with me in the old-fashioned way and tell the people where he stands, but he has refused. He is running away all the time, and the best I can do is to get a glimpse of his back."

The Republicans name their electors on Sept. 25 and the Democrats on Sept. 28.

It is the general opinion that a Hunterdon county man will be the Democratic rival to Congressman Wood's ambition to be re-elected from the Fourth district this year. Since the present district, composed of Mercer, Hunterdon and Somerset counties, was formed, six years ago, Mercer, has furnished two candidates and Somerset one. Now it is considered to be Hunterdon's turn. The leaders of the latter county have not yet picked their man for the honor, but whoever he may be, it is calculated that he will have a better chance of defeating Mr. Wood than have any of the others who have matched their vote-getting qualities with him. The Democratic convention will take place in Flemington wihtin the next two weeks, at the call of the Fourth district Democratic committee, composed of former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of this city; Harry Stout, of Flemington, and John A. Frech, of Somerville.

The New Jersey Democratic Editorial association will meet in the Democratic State committee headquarters in Newark Saturday, September 26, to consider plans for enhancing the value of the work to be done by the party newspapers in the state during the remainder of the campaign. For the first time since 1892 every Democratic newspaper in New Jersey is giving sincere and loyal support to the presidential candidate, while a number of independent journals are furnishing more or less aid to Mr. Bryan's candidacy. H. B. Reiley, editor of the True American, is president of the association.

The Elizabeth Local Option League's report on investigation of Assembly candidates shows that C. B. Pierce, Lloyd Thompson, Frank C. Stutzlen, Charles A. Trimble and Richard F. Henry are favorable to its cause. Mr. Kirstein is unfavorable. All the Democratic candidates, it reports, are unfavorable.

TAX RATES IN COUNTY

Plainfield Lowest Among Cities, its Figure $1.40 Being Seven Points Decrease.

RAHWAY IS THE HIGHEST.

Small Boroughs and Townships Have a Small Increase—The Rates in Detail.

The Union County Board of Taxation, having completed its work in revising the assessments placed upon property in the county by local assessors, has announced the tax rate for the various municipalities. A general decrease is fixed in the larger cities, with the exception of Summit and Elizabeth. The rate for the former increases four points, and the rate in the latter remains the same as lasts year, 1.46.

Of the cities in Union county, Plainfield has the lowest tax rate, 1.40, a decrease of seven points from last year's rate. Rahway pays the highest rate in the county, 1.93. This is a decrease from 2.00 in 1907. Most of the smaller boroughs and townships throughout Union county have a small increase in tax rate.

The total valuation of property in the county this year is $118,971,114, as against $114,454,000 in 1907.

The report of the County Board of Taxation follows, showing comparative rates for each taxing district of Union county in 1908 and 1907:

COLORED MEN ENGAGE IN A SLUGGING MATCH.

Wade Jones and Charles Brown, colored men, took each others measure in a rough-and-tumble battle on West Third street, Saturday afternoon, and were battering faces out of all human semblance when somebody got word to Patrolman Saffron. The alarm was given just as the bluecoat hove in sight and the combatants separated. Jones made his escape but Brown was captured and locked up after his wounds had been dressed.

It was learned Saturday night that Jones was keeping in North Plainfield to avoid arrest and Chief Weiss was notified to pick him up on sight. One of the marshals did the trick and Jones was brought back over the lines. Because of a pressure of business in the city court this morning, Judge Runyon adjourned the case until tomorrow.

The fight took place nearly opposite the old hospital and both men were badly used up by the blows handed out. It is not known what caused the argument.

Grist from the City Court.

The following cases were disposed of in the city court this morning: Benjamin Green, arrested on West Front street by Patrolman O'Keefe for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, fined $3; James Walsh, arrested on West Front street, Saturday night, for fighting, fined $3; Patrick Jennings, arrested Saturday night for disorderly conduct, sentence suspended; Patrick Donovan, arrested on East Front street for helpless intoxication, committed to the Industrial Home; George Cullen, arrested on Watchung avenue at 3:30 yesterday morning for drunkenness, sentence suspended.

LaVere's Band for Montclair.

Ben La Vere, the local bandmaster, has been engaged to furnish the music for Montclair's annual horse show to be held on October 10. His selection was made through members of the executive committee who were greatly pleased with the band he provided for the Plainfield horse show. Mr. La Vere has had several notable engagements the past season, exclusive of his Sunday concerts at Lake Hopatcong which have become one of the features at the resort.

NEW JERSEY CENTRAL VETERANS ENJOY OUTING

Charles A. Schermerhorn and Joseph A. Haynes, of this city, were among the members who attended the annual reunion and clambake of the Veterans' Employes Association of the New Jersey Central, held at Pleasure Bay, Saturday. There were 150 members present from the New Jersey and the L. & S. Divisions.

Among the guests were Vice-President and General Manager W. G Besler, General Superintendent Huntington, General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope, General Freight Agent E M. Snyder and Benjamin Chapin, the last named of Newark. All of the invited guests made brief addresses, congratulating the members of the association. After enjoying a fine bake, a photograph of the group was taken and the afternoon spent in an informal manner.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY DAY EXERCISES

The Rally day services held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, was marked by the largest attendance in recent years, there being 433 members of the school present. The informal program was in charge of the superintendent, F. E. Smith. A feature was the rendition of several selections by an orchestra, composed of Miss Lillian A. Force, piano; C. L. Spier and Dyckman Winkler, violins. The orchestra also assisted in the singing of the hymns by the school.

Another feature was a soprano solo by Mrs. E. D. Young. Part of the program that was of great interest to all was the reading of a letter from Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, in which he deeply regretted his inability to be present and extending congratulations to every member of the school. There was also a short address by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor, and a ten-minute review led by Superintendent F. E. Smith. Last year the attendance at rally-day was 415 and the increased numbers yesterday was gratifying to all.

W. L. GLENNEY SCORES IN COUNTRY CLUB EVENT

The weekly competition for the Fall Handicap cups at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday attracted a large number of golfers to the course, and a number of fine scores were made. In the Class A event, W. Lester Glenney won first three points with the low score of 74 net, while H. D. Hibbard finished second with a 76 and C. C. Burke, Jr., was third with a 78. In Class B, A. E. Barclay finished first with a net score of 75, George S. Clay was second with an 80 and H. F. Fox third with an 86.

The best scores returned for the day were as follows:

Class A—W. Lester Glenney, 78. 4-74; H. D. Hibbard, 83, 7-76; C C. Burke, Jr., 93,15-78; J. A. Lane, 96, 15-81; S. H. Patterson, 98, 15-83.

Class B—A. E. Barclay, 96, 21-75, George S. Clay, 106, 26-80; Hugh F. Fox, 108, 22-86.

LARGE GATHERING AT CHARLES PAWSON'S FUNERAL

The funeral of Charles J. Pawson, whose death occurred after a long illness, was held yesterday afternoon at his late home on East Second street. The service was conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and was attended by a large gathering of relative and friends, including delegations from Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, of which he was a member. There were numerous handsome floral tributes. Burial was made today in Fairmount cemetery, Newark.

The young man was twenty-seven years old and beside his wife and mother, is survived by two brothers, Arthur and Joseph Pawson, and one sister, Miss Carrie Pawson.

Birthday Lawn Party.

In honor of the anniversary of her birthday, a lawn party was given to Miss Theresa Uhrhahn at her home on Regent street, Saturday night. There were about twenty-five guests, including several from New York. The lawn was attractively decorated and illuminated for the occasion. The company enjoyed playing games and an informal program of music was rendered. During the evening supper was served on the lawn. Miss Uhrhahn was the recipient of many gifts and the best wishes of all for many happy returns of the day.

UNION PRIMARY TICKETS

Candidates of Two Parties for Senator, Sheriff and Assemblymen.

G. O. P. ASSEMBLY CONTEST.

Seven Republicans Want to go to Lower House at Trenton and Three Will Be Chosen.

In Union county tomorrow, the voters will nominate candidates for State senator, assembly, sheriff, freeholders and coroner as well as delegates to the State and congressional conventions. The polls are open from 1 until 9 p. m., as told in another column. Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, is the Republican candidate, while Frederick C. Hyer, of Rahway, is the Democratic choice and both will be nominated.

There are seven candidates on the Republican ticket for General Assembly. They are Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth; Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield; Charles A. Trimble, of Elizabeth; A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway and Richard F. Henry and Frank C. Stutzlen, of Elizabeth. Mr. Pierce, for whom the regular organization made a successful fight against Randolph Perkins last year, is now the choice of all. The New Idea men also support Thompson, of Westfield and Stutzlen. The local optionists are opposed to Mr. Kirstein, who the regulars are supporting with Pierce and Schwartz. The regulars claim that Mr. Kirstein did as well as could be expected for a new member and is entitled by party custom to a renomination and election. The Democrats will nominate Wilbur F. Brower, Jeremiah A. Kiernan and Frederick Rieke.

The Republicans will nominate Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, for sheriff, and his opponent on election day will be James E. Martine, of this city.

DAVID DOW'S GOLIATH WINS "WEST END CUP"

Entries from the Watchung Hunt Club figured prominently in the inaugural race meet at Red Bank, Saturday, under the auspices of the newly organized Monmtuh County Pony and Steeplechase Association. The association is composed of society people in the neighborhood of Red Bank and with the exception of one race the horses were all ridden by the owners and their friends.

In the first race for the Rumson cup for polo ponies, Peter Hauck, Jr.'s Fancy (Wildey), finished second, and in the second race for the West End cup, two mile steeplechase, David Dow's Goliath, won; W. C. Eckerson's Rollo (Alpers), was second. In the fourth race for the Monmouth county challenge cup, three miles steeplechase, Chris. Comin's Maid of All Work (Fisk), finished second, and Peter Hauch, Jr.'s Modest (Wildey), was third. Wildey rode John Shield's Hunter Raine in the fifth race for the Deal cup for hacks and hunters, and came in second, and Fred Alpers up on Peter Hauck, Jr.'s Chinch, finished second in the sixth race for the Elberon cup. In the seventh and last race, Jersey Sweepstakes, Fred Alpers up on H. A. Bourne's Bessie Fullem, was second, and Rufus C. Finch's Demi-tasse finished third.

200 at Eagles' Clambake.

The annual outing and clambake of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., held at Leitner's grove, Picton, yesterday, was attended by 200 members of the order from Plainfield, Elizabeth and vicinity. Quoit matches and athletic games were enjoyed until the bake was served at 3:30 under the supervision of Lew Morris, of Perth Amboy. The committee in charge comprised Horace G. Adams, Thomas J. Kroner, Edward J. McCann, William Cleaves and Herman Frowery.

Mrs. Campbell's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. George W. Campbell, who died Friday after a long illness, was held at her late home in Summit this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The body will be brought to Plainfield for interment in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. Campbell had been a sufferer for over a year with a malignant complaint but bore her affliction with Christian fortitude. She was an only sister to Mrs. A. B. Summers, of Watchung avenue.

New Market Lad Injured.

Arthur Dayton, the ten-year-old son of Mahlon Dayton, of New Market, fell and broke his arm while playing near his home, this morning. He was brought to the office of Dr. E. W. Hedges on Watchung avenue, where the broken bones were set.

SENATOR ACKERMAN HOME

Returning from Trip Abroad, Lawmaker Pays Glowing Tribute to F. H. Smith.

"MODEL COUNTY CHAIRMAN."

Senator Delighted With His Visit to Ireland—He Had Perilous Homeward Voyage.

Giving every appearance that he had been greatly benefitted by his recent annual trip in foreign lands, State Senator E. R. Ackerman, of this city, arrived on the Mauretania on Saturday afternoon after the most perilous sea voyage in his twenty years' experience. He wore the usual smile and gave the accustomed hearty and sincere grasp of the hand to his friends when he got back to town and showed great interest in the local political news. Almost the first utterance of a political significance that the lawmaker made was about his friend Frank H. Smith and he showed plainly his elation when he remarked that he was "happy to see that Mr. Smith will be continued as county chairman."

To a representative of The Daily Press, Senator Ackerman said:

"I am glad that the situation as regards Frank H. Smith succeeding himself as county committeeman has been cleared up, for while there are many men in the Third ward who would make valuable members of that committee, yet Mr. Smith has had long experience in that position, and I have always found him to be fair, giving careful consideration to the opinions of others. I consider him to be a model chairman, just the opposite of a 'boss.'"

During his three months absence, Senator Ackerman traveled through Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Ireland and other lands. "I tell you," said he today, "Ireland is a beautiful country. Its grandeur even surpassed my expectations." The Senator had nothing to say about his own campaign, except to remark that Mr. Hyer, his opponent, is "a might fine fellow."

The Senator gave a graphic account today of the accident to the ship he was aboard. He declared that the shock as described in yesterday's papers was terrific and that the passengers were hurled across the decks. Many believed that the vessel had struck a submerged wreck.

YOUTH HELD WITHOUT BAIL ON YOUNG WOMAN'S CHARGE

Following a hearing in borough police headquarters before Justice David D. Smalley, Saturday night, Harry Higgins, of West Fourth street, was held without bail on Miss Eliza Voehl's charge that he had attempted to assault her. He was taken to Somerville but it is probable that his counsel, William G. DeMeza, will have bonds fixed by Judge Schenck today.

The hearing brought out the fact that Higgins and Miss Voehl have been close friends for several weeks and they had been out walking on several occasions. She has also been sending him postal cards, highly perfumed and silk-bedecked, at the rate of five and six a day. Her complain: is based on an occurrence that took place as they were strolling along upper Somerset street early Friday night. Higgins denied any criminal intent but admitted placing his arm around Miss Voehl's waist to embrace her.

The authorities do not regard the case in a serious light but as the young woman's father is persistent in pressing the charge they were compelled to conform with the legal phase of the matter which prohibits the justice fixing bail. The defendant is eighteen years old and his accuser is a few months his senior.

PLAINFIELD AND BRUNSWICK TEAMS BOTH FAIL TO SCORE.

The Plainfield A. A. played an exciting game of soccer football on the Clinton Avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon, with the New Brunswick eleven. After two forty minute halves, neither side had scored and the game was called. The weather was not ideal for the game, it being too worm. At the conclusion of play both teams showed the result plainly and the players were mighty glad to quit. The Plainfield A. A. lined up as follows:

Stevenson, goal; Craig and Gould, fullbacks; J. Craig, B. Eglinton and S. Turner, halfbacks; Jamieson, McComb, Sutton, Mitchell and Cooley, forwards. Next Saturday the Plainfield team will play Metuchen in this city.

C. Edward Krausse, of this city, is registered at the New Bingham Hotel, Philadelphia.

BRIDEGROOM-TO-BE IN JAIL

Cops Arrest John Toth on Theft Charge on Eve of His Wedding.

LANGUUISHES IN A CELL.

Admits Stealing Silverware From Truell Hall After Trunkfull Is Found in His Room.

John Toth, a young Austrian who is quite well known about the city, and Sophie Dabriski, a servant girl employed by a Netherwood family, were to have been married yesterday. Plans for the wedding were all complete and a large part of the guests came around to witness the ceremony but they were disappointed. Instead of playing the role of bridegroom, Toth became a prisoner late Saturday night and was locked up at police headquarters on a charge of stealing $500 worth of silverware from Truell Hall. He is still languishing in a cell while his lawyer, John P. Owens, is seeking a bondsman in order to have the ceremony take place some time this week.

Toth was employed by Mrs. Truell at the hall until three or four weeks ago. Last spring the hotel was robbed of a large amount of silverware and though the police gum-shoed around on the case for a long time they were unable to locate the thief. Chief Kiely did not give up the search entirely, however, and a few days ago got a tip that led him to believe that the missing silver might be found in Toth's room at the home of Joseph Kmosko, 1,321 North avenue, where he boarded.

On Saturday afternoon, the police head had Mr. Truell swear out a search warrant and with Detective-Sergeant Flynn he proceeded to the Kmosko place to make use of it. Practically all the missing property was located and Toth was immediately placed under arrest. He admitted his guilt at a hearing before Judge Runyon and bail was fixed at $500.

TENNIS TOURNEY AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The women's tennis tournament for the championship of the Plainfield Country Club, was begun on the club courts, Saturday morning when the preliminary, first and part of the second rounds were completed during the day. The result of the matches up to today is as follows:

Miss Helen Timpson defeated Miss Helen Harman, 6-3, 6-1; Miss Barbara Fleming won from Miss Katherine Titus by default; Miss Campbell defeated Miss Louise Booth, 6-0, 6-2; Miss Louise Andrews defeated Miss Eudora Sullivant, 6-3, 6-3; Mrs. Francis Frost defeated Miss Ursula Rowland, 6-2, 6-0; Mrs. R. S. Rowland defeated Miss Edna Brown, 6-0, 6-1; Mrs. S. F. Weaver defeated Miss Caroline Martin, 6-1, 6-2.

First round—Miss Campbell defeated Miss Andrews, 6-3, 6-3; Mrs. Francis Frost defeated Mrs. R. S Rowland, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3; Mrs. S. F. Weaver defeated Mrs. Daniel Runkle, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1; Miss Wadsworth defeated Miss Merrill, 6-1, 6-2; Miss Sarah E. Schuyler defated Miss Anna Barclay, 6-2, 6-3.

Second round—Miss Barbara Fleming defeated Miss Helen Timpson, 6-1, 6-3; Miss Sara E. Schuyler defeated Miss Wadsworth, 6-0, 6-1. The playing off will continue today.

Fined $5 for Stealing Apples.

Ephraim Boice's fine apple orchard at South Plainfield, has been the mecca for many lovers of the fruit, and he has suffered a great loss in consequence. A few daysago three men were observed in the orchard and they were filling sacks with the apples. Mr. Boice gave chase and succeeded in capturing one of the men. He was taken before Justice W. E. Smith at South Plainfield and a fine of $5 was imposed. The other two men are said to be known and it is expected they will be arrested within a day or two.

Trolley Car Ablaze.

The motor of the Somerset street trolley car leaving the Watchung avenue terminus at 7:35 last night, caught fire as the vehicle proceeded over the brook. The flames were shooting all about the trucks when they were sighted by Captain Ed Terry, of the borough department, as he stood in front of headquarters. The car was stopped while the firemen put out the blaze with hand extinguishers.

COPS BREAK UP AN EAST END CRAP GAME

The city police have been cognizant of the fact for several weeks that a Sunday morning crap game has been a regular thing back of Margentino's barn on Richmond street at Third and they have been laying pipes to bag the bone artists. A wireless message at headquarters yesterday conveyed the information that everything was ripe for a killing and Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Cops Dobson and Saffron were sent out to do the trick.

The three officers swooped down on the crowd in the middle of a fifty cent pass and bagged ten prisoners, all young men or boys. At headquarters they described themselves as Dominick Parretti, Hiram Hunt, Harry Drake, George Margentino, James Cavesta, Tony Parretti, William Gordon, John Gordon, Ernest Montgrand and Samuel McClung. They were released in their own recognizance to appear at tomorrow morning's session of the city court.

TYPHOID FEVER FATAL TO T. EVERETT SHERWIN

Following an illness of two weeks with typhoid fever, Thomas Everett Sherwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Sherwin, of Westervelt avenue, died early yesterday morning in Muhlenberg Hospital. His condition had been critical for several days and the end was not unexpected when it came shortly before 4 o'clock.

Mr. Sherwin was in his twenty-fourth year and had always been a resident of Plainfield. He was a draughtsman by trade and at the time his illness began was employed by the W. T. Kirk Company. For several years previous he was connected with a New York firm. He is survived by a wife who was Miss Edna Kennedy, daughter of Isaac Kennedy, of West Front street. He also leaves a sister, Anna, and two brothers, Walter and Robert Sherwin. Walter Sherwin is an actor and at the present time is with a company in Oregon, having left for the Pacific coast several weeks ago. The young man was a member of the First Baptist church and had been identified with its work.

The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

FINE MATINEE PROGRAM AT THE DRIVING PARK

The free matinee race-meet at the driving par, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club, attracted a large crowd to the track, Saturday afternoon. There were three races, two trotting and one running event. Class A, for trotters, did not fill, but the other races were run off in good time and the sport was enjoyed greatly. Next Saturday there will be a race-meet for prizes and some of the best horses in this part of the State will be entered. The summary of Saturday's races follow:

Mrs. J. Stout-See a Bride.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Jane Stout-See, widow of George See, at one time a resident of this city and president of the Common Council. She was married to Edward B. Thayer, of Jersey City, on Saturday at the parsonage of the Claremant Presbyterian church, Rev. Francis Morgan officiating. The bride is the daughter of the late William Stout, for many years a resident of East Front street. She is well-known here, where she has many friends.

Rally Day Exercises.

Rally day exercises of a simple character were held at the Sunday-school session of the First Baptist church yesterday. The members of the school sang appropriate hymns and in addition Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss made remarks urging all to do even better work during the coming year. There was also a short address by Miss Dodd, of Philadelphia, a worker in the slums of that city.

NOMINATIONS TOMORROW

At Direct Primaries, Party Voters Will Register Choice for Local Candidates.

IN THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

Only Excitement is Republican Councilmanis Campaign in Plainfield and North Plainfield.

For the first in the history of the popular government of New Jersey, the voters will have the right tomorrow to signify their choice at the polls for representatives. The polls will be opened between 1 and 9 o'clock p. m., and every man whose name is on the registry list is entitled to vote.

These are the polling places in Plainfield:

First Ward.

First district, 139 North avenue.
Second district, 545 East Third street.

Second Ward.

First district, 327 Watchung avenue.
Second district, 699 South avenue

Third Ward.

First district, Charles J. Fisk's barn on Arlington avenue.
Second district, at Neumann's barn, Spooner avenue and Essex street.

Fourth Ward.

First district, 204 West Second street.
Second district, 672 South Second street.
Third district, 921 West Third street.

In Plainfield the Democrats have placed no local candidates in the field, and the only interest centres in the Republican contests which are very few. In fact the only rivalry appears to be in the Second ward, where Frank L. Holt and Francis W. Hanaford are waging a hot campaign for a councilmanic nomination. Mr. Holt is a New York lawyer and according to his friends, who have issued a circular, was the unanimous choice at an open meeting of the residents of that ward on Aug. 28. Included among his supporters are Henry E. Bowen, Miles Roberts, J. Erikson, Robert H. McCready, William N. Runyon, Robert E. Hall, E. E. Iremonger, D. F. Ginna, F. D. Tildon and L. M. Booth. Mr. Hanaford's friends say he is the candidate of the organization. He is a New York lawyer.

The Republican voters of Plainfield will be called upon to signify their choice for delegates to the State convention, congressional convention, for State Senator, assemblyman, sheriff, freeholders, coroner, mayor, members of board of education, collector, common council, county committee and city committee. The local ticket contains only one candidate for mayor, Charles J. Fisk, J. Hervey Doane and S. P. T. Wilbur are seeking renomination as freeholders with opposition. James F. Buckle and William S. Tyler are the candidates for the two vacancies on the board of education. Councilmen Ralph I. Tolles, of the First; Duncan W. Taylor, Second and Frank W. Randolph, Fourth. The only contest is in the Second as already noted.

The names of all local candidates have been published in these columns.

NORTH PLAINFIELD.

In North Plainfield these are the polling places:

First district, 83 Somerset street.
Second district, 80 Somerset street.
Third district, 175 Somerset street.

North Plainfield's contest is over councilmen, each party having three nominees to select. The voters will also express their preferences for State senator, assemblyman and county clerk. There are no contests in either party as to county offices.

The Republican ballot contains these names as councilmanic candidates: William L. Smalley, Jr., Third district and Julius J. Stahl, and Edward P. T. Smith, both of the Second district. Should Smith and Stahl both be nominated, the Third district will be deprived of one representative and would give the Second three members in that body, namely Woolston, Stahl and Smith. The Third district has the largest territory and the most votes would then only have B. R. Waldron in the council. This would be perfectly legal, but the Third district Republicans say that it would be unfair and that his nomination would insure an equal apportionment. The Democrats have named Frank Mobus and Geo. Hummer, both of the Third district. Should they be elected in November each district would have two representatives.

Friends of Smith and Stahl deny that the councilmanic contest is other than an open three-cornered fight. They say that it is not a question of Children's Frocks.

Cute little frocks of ginghams or linen for small girls are made with a full skirt gathered to a belt, attached to a blouse waist which simulates a front closing by means of a box pleat down centre front decorated with large buttons.

The neck is finished with a Peter Pan collar and silk tie, and a breast pocket is added on the left front, just like a grown-up waist.

The cleeves are three-quarter length full bishop, confined by band cuffs. This model is well adapted for school wear and made from woolen fabrics.

AGENTS STANDARD PATTERNS

New Fall Tailored Suits

Smart Styles, with Proper Tailoring, 10.98 to 27.50.

Each season we try to do a little better than the season before. This can be applied to every line we carry, but is markedly noticeable in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department, since the old firm showed little progress in this line. From the very start we began to clean out the old stock with a view to replace it with an up-to-date, well made line of goods. Our connection with the Tepper Cloak and Suit Factory at 39 East 19th street, New York, who sell to the biggest retailers in the city, gave us a very desirable advantage in handling this line. You could see the marked improvement in the suits we handled the first season—better styles, better workmanship, at such low prices, and now we are working just as hard to do better than our former best efforts—to show you more good styles, and more "better values" than you have seen in Plainfield in any one season.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Great Divide," William Vaughn Moody's extraordinarily successful drama of American life, which has been declared by leading critics to be the best American play yet written, will be presented under the direction of Henry Miller at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. "The Great Divide" has just closed an engagement of over 600 performances in New York, and is beyond doubt the most successful dramatic achievement of any American playwright.

John Griffith, supported by Miss Edyth Totten and a strong company of Shakesperian players, in the tragic romance of "Othello," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, and judging from present indications will be an "attraction," indeed, in the full meaning of the term. As is well known, Mr. Griffith's impersonation this season of the Moor is by no means his advent in the ranks of tragic luminaries. He has starred in a series of Shakespeare's plays for a number of years, adding each succeeding season a new and great achievement to his former success, until he is now almost universally regarded as America's representative tragedian. His masterful impersonation last season of "Richard III," one of the most powerful and exacting of Shakespeare's great characters, will have a place in the dramatic history of future generations along with the most notable achievements of the great tragedians of the last century.

Mr. John Griffith who will Play "Othello," at the New Plainfield Theatre Sept. 22.

If Jack Dorris, the Jail Breaker, Charles E. Blaney's new star who will be seen next Wednesday afternoon and night at the New Plainfield theatre, lived in the middle ages, he would have been burned as a wizard, as he demonstrates during the action of the play that no restraint, neither handcuffs, shackles, nor rope, neither chain, wire nor strap can be put upon him so securely that he cannot free himself. In the second act of "Sing Sing to Liberty," he is placed in a steel cage, and is securely bound hand and foot, but he snaps his bonds asunder as though they were made of paper. No wonder he is styled the modern Samson.

No fairer spot exists in all this broad land for the scenes and background of a pretty love romance than the cotton belt of Texas. Such is the locale selected by Louise Lovell for "Jet," the play she wrote for Nanette Comstock and which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night. "Jet" is written in four acts, and is said to be most interestingly told, dealing with the trials and tribulations of a young girl, the death of whose father has left on her young shoulders the care of an invalid mother, a younger brother and a large farm. Many complications arise during its tell, one of which nearly ends in a tragedy, but only "nearly." The dialogue is bright and crisp, the comedy element standing out in great contrast with several strong dramatic scenes. Manager and newspapermen who attended the dress rehearsal in New York last week prior to its premier at Atlantic City unanimously predict it to be one of the big successes of the season. The stage settings are said to be all that the eye could wish for, and Manager Muenster has engaged an excellent supporting company including the names of many well known players, some of whom are Thomas Meighan, Frederick Sullivan, Morgan Thorpe, Horace James, Dell La Barre, John Tansey, Lesbia Grealis, Edith Luckett, Carey Hastings, Emily Lorraine, Jane Dara, Eve Benton and others.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave tonight.

FALLS ON LIVE WIRES.

P. S. Employee So Badly Burned He Dies in Hospital.

Arthur De Moritt, 25 years old, and electrician, whose home was in Secaucus, met a horrible death in Jersey City Friday. He was in the employ of the Public Service Company, and while cleaning windows in the power house at Palisade avenue and Ferry street he lost his balance and fell several feet into a mass of live wires.

He was rescued by fellow workmen, but not before he was badly burned. He was hurried off to Christ Hospital, where he died.

Rahway, N. J., Sept. 19, 1908.

Editor, Elizabeth Daily Journal:

In view of several articles which have appeared in your paper, the tone of which have been unfavorable to my candidacy for re-nomination for member of Assembly, especially the one appearing this evening, I respectfully ask that in a spirit of fairness, you will publish the following statement, giving the same equal prominence with the aforesaid articles.

First of all, I desire to say to the Republican voters of Union county, that when they honored me with an election to the Assembly, I entered upon the discharge of my duties with a grave feeling of the responsibility placed upon me and with a firmly grounded purpose to do my best to represent them conscientiously and to the best of my ability. I can honestly say that I can look back upon every act of mine in Trenton last winter, with a feeling that it was in keeping with this resolve.

In the articles already mentioned, I am attacked on the ground that I voted against certain "child labor bills." In reply thereto, I wish to state that after repeated hearings by the Labor and Industries Committee, Mr. Buck, of Cumberland county, introduced bill No. 412, the title of which was "An act for the appointment of a Commission to investigate the subject of child labor," and providing that the "said commission shall inquire into all the aspects of the problem, educational, economic, industrial, and hygienic," and that the said commission "shall report to the Governor on or before the next session of the Legislature." This bill represented the best judgment of one of the members of the committee which had been considering the question, and when it came up for the third reading and final passage on April 2 I was found voting in the affirmative.

Subsequently thereto the two bills, concerning which I am attacked for voting against, came up for consideration and with a number of others I voted against them on the ground that the passage of the previous bill had already taken care of that question for the session, and disposed of the matter in a way which we believed would bring a favorable solution of the question.

I want to state most positively and emphatically, that I am opposed to child labor, that I believe my record shows this to be a fact, and that in the future, if returned to the Assembly, I will, as in the past, be found voting for the most feasible plan to abolish it.

Regarding my attitude on the Public Utilities bill, I wish to state, and the records will show, that I am recorded as voting in the affirmative, on the Public Utilities bill introduced by Mr. Martin every time it came before the House, until it was apparent, at the end of the session, that the same could not be passed with the approval of the Senate, when with the almost unanimous Republican membership of the House, including the other members from Union county, I voted for the Senate substitute. I also voted for the Civil Service bill, and every other reform measure which was presented in so tangible a way as to be practical.

On the question of excise, my attitude can best be summed up by quoting from the letter which I sent to the Elizabeth Local Option League, and which, by the way, they have never been fair enough with me to make public, and in which I said, as a member of the Legislature, I have felt that the excise matter is one of the most important questions in the State of New Jersey at the present time, and I was, therefore, heartily in favor of the appointment of a commission to investigate the whole subject. I think you will agree with me that this commission, the members of which are men of unimpeachable standing in the State, have gone about their duties in a fair and unbiased manner, without fear or favor to any one, and that any recommendations they may make will be with a view to having laws enacted which will bring about a just and equitable solution of the whole question.

To that end, I pledge myself, if elected to serve another term in the Assembly, to give their recommendations my most careful consideration and to cast my vote on this, as on all other questions, in a way which will represent the wishes and best interests of my constituents in Union county.

I believe that the people of Union county have such unbounded confidence in Mayor Fisk and the other members of the commission, that they will be satisfied when I state that I will follow their recommendations, as I believe will a large majority of the other members of the Legislature.

In closing, I can only say that I have tried to do my best in representing the wishes of my constituents in Union county, that if again nominated and elected, I pledge myself to continue that course, and on that ground, and my record I most earnestly ask for their continued support.

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy in giving me space to make this statement, I am

Very truly yours.

ANNOUNCEMENT of CANDIDACY and DECLARATION of PRINCIPLES MADE BY

CHARLES A. TRIMBLE

OF ELIZABETH, N. J.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN ASSEMBLY NOMINATION

"TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF UNION COUNTY:

"Having signed an agreement to accept the Republican nomination for member of the General Assembly, on a petition which has been signed by one hundred and twenty-five of my friends, I feel that I owe as a duty to those who will vote at the primary, a frank expression of my views on a number of subjects that may come before the coming session of the Legislature for consideration, and if these views meet with your approval I most respectfully solicit your support at the polls.

TAXATION.

"Taxes ought never to be made burdensome and every taxpayer should be able to see a return for every dollar invested in the payment thereof. To that end the administration of the affairs of the State and of every municipality within the State, should be with an eye single to the welfare of the people, and to securing a maximum of results for a minimum of cost.

"In the opinion of many persons familiar with the subject of taxation, a statute can be enacted which will successfully stand the test of the courts, whereby second-class railroad property can be assessed by local assessors, rather than by the State Board as at present. If this end can be accomplished I believe that it will accrue to the advantage of the several municipalities of the State.

"Much has been said about the revaluation of first-class railroad property, commonly known as the main stem property. In the light of what has been shown there should be a frequent revaluation of this class of property so that the State can receive the benefit arising from the ever enhancing value of this most valuable class of all railroad property as a taxable asset.

Election Laws.

"The extension of the Direct Primary Act should, in my opinion, be deferred until the operation of the law can be tested to the satisfaction of the people in an off year, when a full and complete opportunity to judge its merits will be presented.

"I believe, however, that our election laws should be revised and codified so that an ordinary layman may be able to understand their various complexities.

Public Utilities.

"The public utilities corporations operating in this State should be under such State control and supervision that any and all alleged excessive rates, unfair discriminations, inadequacy and insufficiency of service, could be promptly and efficiently investigated and if improper conditions be found to exist, fearlessly remedied, to the end that users be fairly and equitably treated and public safety be conserved.

Grade Crossings.

"All grade crossings over the main lines of railroads should be abolished as promptly as an equitable and fair method to that end can be devised.

Anti-Monopoly Laws.

"There are no statutes of this State under which the authorities can take legal steps to prevent illegal combinations formed for the purpose of fixing prices for various commodities or restricting their output. Other States have enacted statutes to protect their citizens in this respect and New Jersey would do well to follow their example by enacting a fair and just law for this purpose.

Employer's Liability.

"A number of States have assumed the initiative in this direction and it is my belief that an honest, equitable measure of this character, that will be fair to both the employer and the employe should be enacted.

Bi-monthly Payroll.

"Thousands of toilers in this State receive their wages but once a month. When current expenses are paid, ofttimes but little remains, and in numerous cases that have come to my attention considerable hardship has been worked, and families have been practically without funds for days at a time. This also works a hardship on the merchants who supply these persons with the necessaries of life on credit, having frequently but small means themselves, and it seems to me that all employers of labor should be compelled by law to make up their pay roll at least twice in every month, and in favor of such legislation I shall stand unequivocally.

Excise Question.

"The Governor of this State has appointed a commission composed of public-spirited and honest men to investigate and report excise conditions in this State, and as a result of such report as they may make to him he will undoubtedly make some recommendation to the Legislature as to what legislation may be needed to better conditions. Until such report is made and such recommendation submitted, I deem that it would be discourteous to the Governor to exploit any 'cure-all' for the excise situation, but it seems to me that after all the question of liquor regulation might well be left with each municipality to vote upon under the general principles of home rule, as so many questions of lesser importance are now disposed of. In other words, I think that this question is as properly a question of local option as the question as to whether we should use the voting machine or support a public library.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The uncertainty of baseball. Scotch Plains has defeated the Rahway F. C. in bath games played by decisive scores. Rahway defeated Clinton Avenue two out of three games. Clinton Avenue and 'Plains series stand 2-2. Somerville defeated 'Plains two out of three. Clinton Acenue and Somerville series stands 2-2. Westfield defeated the 'Plains team three straight and the Y. M. C. A. team defeated Westfield Saturday. This leaves the question of baseball supremacy unsettled and only goes to show the uncertainity of the game.

John Reick left Saturday for a visit of several weeks with his brother near Albany, N. Y. Mr. Reick will enjoy the splendid hunting in this section while away and expects to bag a deer or two, as they are reported as quite plentiful in that part of the State.

WE CANNOT CONTROL THE LIP MUSCLES.

It's a strange thing that men who can control their eyes cannot similarly manage their mouths.

So says a scientist who has made mankind his study.

"By mouth I mean the muscles of the lips," he continues. "Nearly always, in moments of excitement, exaltation, depression or emergency, these muscles twitch perceptibly. And this cannot be guarded against, because it is unconscious.

"Most people are trained to avoid saying too much with the eyes, and this becomes habitual. But few know that, to an observant person, the lip muscles are more expressive than the eyes.

"If, for instance, I suspect a man of lying to me, I don't watch his eyes, I regard his mouth closely. If his lips do not change their expression I feel justified in believing him. But let there be the least twitch or tremble, which is a sign of nervousness—well, I'm instantly on the alert.

"The wearing of a mustache is no safeguard against this weakness, because the lower lip is still exposed, and it is quite as much of a telltale as its higher companion. Indeed, the lower lip, in most cases, gives the mouth its character, the upper lip merely following suit."

Nearly Burned to Death.

While playing about a bon-fire with several companions Saturday afternoon, Louis Wyckoff, the four-year-old son of Isaac Wyckoff, of 90 Grove street, was accidentally pushed into the flames by one of the boys and his entire right side was frightfully burned, before the neighbors could extinguish the blaze. Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned and he made the lad as comfortable as possible. He suffered intensely from the burns, but prompt medical attention undoubtedly saved his life.

She Knew.

At the closing exercises of a Syracuse school a little girl was asked: "Who is the head of our government?" "Mr. Roosevelt,' she replied, promptly. "That is right," said the teacher, "but what is his official title?" "Teddy!" responeded the the little miss, promptly—Wasp.

MONINATIONS TOMORROW

districts but of the borough at large. They also allege that Councilman McGee was never consulted about a second term.

PRIMARY LAW RULING.

The notion that some local politicians and city officials possess to the effect that it is legal for a Democratic candidate to be voted on a Republican ballot, or vice versa, at the official promaries tomorrow, is not sustained by the opinion held by Assistant Attorney General Gaskill. On this subject Mr. Gaskell said:

"The primary law distinctly prohibits the casting of a Republican ballot in a Democratic box, or vice versa, at the primaries next Tuesday. The performance of such an act constitutes a misdemeanor, and on conviction of an offense ofthis sort, provides a penatly of not more than a year in prison or a fine not exceeding $500. Therefore every primary ballot of one party deposited in the receptacle provided for another party is illegal and void. It is the same with a party ballot which contains the name of a candidate of the opposite party. The use of one Democratic name on a Republican ballot, or vice versa, invalidates the whole ballot, and it must be thrown out by election officials. Under the primary law it is plainly illegal to vote the name of a candidate for nomination on any ballot but that representing the party of which he has declared himself to be a member. Of course, it follows, as a principle of law, that an illegal act cannot perform a legal one, hence the ballot is invalidated and must not be counted."

The election law is exacting in prescribing the way a ballot shall be marked either for the primaries or an election. Any deviation from the letter of the law will render the ballot void and the election officers will throw it out. One must have his wits about him and be sure the ballot is right in every respect before it is handed in.

In the first place, in marking the ticket only a black pencil may be used. To scratch a name a single straight black line is drawn through it. The law is explicit on this point While a ruled line is not necessary it must not wave enough to constitute a mark of identification.

Every name not voted for must be scratched. There are four candidates for sheriff on the Republican ticket in Mercer county. If the voter's preference is counted, he must be sure to scratch three of the names under the shrievalty head.

If through error the voter fails to scratch a sufficient number of names under any head to leave only the number to be voted for, the vote on that particular office is lost. The rest of the ballot, however, is recorded. For example, if two names are left for sheriff no vote for sheriff is recorded, or if more than five names are left for the board of excise ticket the vote for the excise nomination is lost.

In folding the ballot, particular care must be taken to fold it in such a way that the city clerk's indorsement is outside. There must be no marks or unnecessary creases anywhere on the ticket. This constitutes a mark, and the ballot is void.

TUSSORE IS QUITE JUSTIFIABLY POPULAR.

Tussore is being put to many uses, among others to summer suits for little lads. Another eminently satisfactory manifestation of the fabric is as the covering of the newest sun umbrellas—not parasols nor shades, but real umbrellas—writes our London correspondent.

Men are ordering them as well as women for foreign holidays and country wear in England, and as they are light in the hand and pretty as well as practical, they are an enormous improvement upon the old white with green lining sunshades, beneath which caricaturists usually depict the traveler abroad. The sexes can share the possession of sun umbrellas with clothes to match made of tussore, and feel cool and happy in their comfortable habiliments.

The cut in sunshades, it always appears to me, is as much a matter of drifting toward the right choice instinctively as is that of handkerchiefs, hosiery, belts and gloves. No one lays down the law and says you are to buy colored ninon handkerchiefs or white gauze ones, or the subduedly gay bandana, but one finds all the fastidously dressed women doing so—the ninon ones for day wear, the gauze ones for evening affairs and the bandanas for tucking inside the tailor-made coat or the long-knitted golf coat that is the outdoor woman's present joy.

The tussore umbrellas are sold in all colors. There is no need for women to be curtailed in their choice, therefore, though men must choose some variation of the dust-shade to match their clothes.

JILTED, SUES FOR $25,000.

Young Viennese Who Was Deported Declares Horace E. Miller Promised to Marry Her.

Horace E. Miller, assistant superintendent of the Celluloid Company, of Newark, has been served by Deputy United States Marshal Mayhew with the complaint and summons in an action for breach of promise by Miss Paula Klippenburg, a young Viennese who was deported from this country six months ago as an "undesirable citizen" when she came here to bring legal action against Miller on the same complaint. At that time her case attracted much attention in New York.

Miss Klippenburg, being a resident of Paris, has brought suit, which is for $25,000, in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton. The summons is returnable September 25. The order is addressed to "Horace E. Miller, otherwise known as Heinrich Holbein," the incognito under which Miller is alleged to have traveled in Europe.

In the declaration it is set forth that Miller made promises of marriage to Miss Klippenburg in Vienna, July 30, 1902, representing himself to be a single man. It was further stated that these promises were repeated several times up to November, 1904, when it was first learned by the plaintiff that "Holbein" was Miller and that he had a wife living in Newark. The Miller home is at No. 17 East Kinney street, Newark.

"Because of the promises made by the defendant," the declaration states, "the plaintiff was obliged to refuse man advantageous proposals of marriage, and for this reason she asks damages to the amount of $25,000. Miss Klippenburg's counsel of record are Watts & Merrill, of New York.

BRIDE ENDS LIFE WITH POISON.

Autopsy on Elizabeth Woman Verifies Statement Made on Deathbed.

An autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. Josie Demsky, a bride of two months, who died on Wednesday afternoon at St. Elizabeth Hospital, in Elizabeth, resulted in the discovery that her death had been due to some irritant poison. The autopsy was performed by Dr. J. P. Reilly, Dr. Thomas E. Dolan and Dr. A. W. Lamy. Mrs. Demsky was twenty years old.

Dr. Dolan was called to Mrs. Demsky's home in Florida street, Elizabeth, on Monday morning, and on making an examination found her to be suffering from an attack of gastritis. The doctor became suspicious and ordered her removal to the hospital, where she died. She said her husband, Thomas Demsky, had assaulted her and that she had taken roach poison.

FOWLER AND MARTINE BOTH ON THE STUMP.

Two big political meetings were held at Elizabeth Friday night, one by the Republican Twelfth ward club which entertained as its principal speaker Representative Charles N. Fowler, and the other by the James E. Martine Club, a county Democratic organization. Mr. Fowler referred to his record in reply to the attacks made upon him by a faction of the Republican party.

The efature of the Martine Club's session was the raising of a Democratic banner, a ceremony over which the "farmer orator" presided. Joseph Tumulty and D. F. Collins were other speakers at the Democratic session.

Connelly Gains Clergy's Approval.

Thomas P. Connelly, the regular Republican nominee for Sheriff in Hudson county, was called Friday afternoon before a delegation of six clergymen at Emory Methodist Episcopal church, Jersey City, and interrogated about his attitude on the excise. He declared that he favored the enforcement of all laws, including the Sunday law, and that he would draw satisfactory grand and petit purors. The clergymen expressed themselves as pleased with his explanation, and assured him of their support in the campaign and on Election Day. The Democratic candidate is a brewery collector.

Bottlers Threaten Excise Board.

Louis Hergott, of Linden, and other beer bottlers, who have paid to the Rahway City Clerk their $250 license fees and have informed the Excise Board that unless it protects them they will have its members indicted, say that several liquor dealers who hold only inn and tavern or saloon licenses are engaged in bottling beer and selling it from wagons. The bottlers say that they will no longer tolerate this condition of affairs, and they insist that the Excise Board of Rahway get after the illegal sellers or accept the consequences of an appeal to the county authorities.

Seek Eloping Stevens Student.

The whereabouts of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Winter, of Orange, who were secretly married on Wednesday in Newark, still remains a mystery. Winter is said to have failed to meet his examinations in Stevens Institute, and because he would have to make up his studies he decided to elope. He is not yet nineteen years old. The bride is Miss Delia Casey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Casey. The latter are searching for their daughter.

QUALITY and PRICE

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on Wednesday, September 23, 1908,

at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said city, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any part or parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and seven remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature of this State, entitled: "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following is a list of the several tracts and parcels of lands to be sold, which shows the names of the delinquents, the supposed owners thereof as the names of the delinquent owners appear on the books of the taxing district, together with a statement of the wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the street in which each lot is situated, the block and lot number of each lot as they appear on the Official Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, and the amount due from each of the said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the twentieth day of December, 1907, to the day of sale, and the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz.: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

Sale Number.	Supposed owner or person to whom assessed.	Ward.	Block No. City Assessment Maps.	Lot No. City Assessment Maps.	Street or Aevnue.	Year.	Amount of Tax.	Date from which interest will be added at 10 per cent. per annum to date of sale.

"You!" cried the inspector.

"I," returned the reporter. "Exactly, my friend. The lady is a particular friend of my mother, and has been stopping with her for the week past. I took Stella North to Swampscott with me yesterday afternoon. I obtained a full confession last night. But I was obliged to wait till morning for a justice of the peace to prepare it in proper form. Permit me, gentlemen, if this explanation of how I came by the document is sufficiently explicit, to read it to you."

"THIS," CONTINUED THOMAS, UNFOLDING THE DOCUMENT, "IS THE SWORN STATEMENT OF MARION NORTH."

"Read it," commanded the inspector, briefly.

"Swampscott, June 27, 1887.

"About noon of the 16th of June last, I received an anonymous letter, which has since been stolen from my writing desk, warning me that an affair of great importance to my happiness was to be discussed at my father's house in Marlboro street that evening, and advising me, if I valued my future happiness, to be secretly present and overhear the conversation.

"I had previously become suspicious that everything was not right about the affairs of my father and the man whom I considered my husband; and I could see no harm to result from this means of obtaining information. I entrusted nobody with the contents of that letter, but, resolved to accept the advice therein contained, I took my keys to the house in Marlboro street, and late in the afternoon of Thursday went to Boston.

"I reached the house before seven o'clock, and let myself in by the front door. A little more than half an hour later I heard the noise of the latch key. I was then on the stairs, near the floor above, and when the door opened I very plainly heard the voices of my father and Mr. Richard Fetridge.

"'I am very sure,' said my father, 'that Thornton is here. Or else he has been here and forgotten to lock the storm door when he went out.'

"'We must know before we begin business,' returned Mr. Fetridge. 'I agreed to this place, you know, because there seemed to be absolutely no danger of our being overheard or interrupted. And Stackhouse is the very man of all others whom I wished to avoid. Is there no possibility that he has been warned of this conference?'

"'None,' returned my father. 'I give you my word of honor, Mr. Fetridge, that I have not mentioned a syllable of this affair to a living soul.'

"And then I heard them coming upstairs. I understood from what they said that they intended to search the house. I ran up as lightly as I could and locked myself into a clothes-press in my own room. They afterward came to the door of my room, but evidently had already concluded that there was no intruder in the house.

"When I was sure that they had gone down again, I stole from the room, and took up a position on the stairs between the second and third floors. I did not dare to go any nearer, but as they were in the library, the door of which was open, I could hear plainly everything that was said.

"I soon distinguished a woman's voice, and realized that she had been admitted to this mysterious 'conference' between Richard Fetridge and my father. This was the woman, I did not doubt, who had sent me the anonymous letter, for I did not see how anybody else could be aware of the appointment at this house."

Richard Fetridge interrupted the reading at this point by breaking a paper ruler which he had been convulsively twisting in his hands as if he fancied his fingers were about the throat of the treacheous Marie.

"Curse the woman!" he cried. "Curse her! Curse her! She sacrificed me to gratify her own cunning instinct of revenge. She betrayed my confidence. She was not satisfied with what I promised her. If I had known that night that she had dared to do it!"

"Humph!" said Thomas. "If a man enters into an alliance with such a woman, what can he expect?"

Fetridge buried his face in his hands and did not reply. The reading continued:

"I soon learned who she was and why she was here, and what Richard Fetridge had to say that he was afraid Thornton Stackhouse might overhear. The woman's name was stated as Marie Moissot, though it was admitted that she was now living under an alias. It appeared from the conversation that she had accidentally discovered the identity of Thornton Stackhouse with the Albert Runyon for whom she had long been searching, some weeks before, and had only been prevented from creating a scandal by the intervention of Richard Fetridge, who had pacified her by agreeing to effectually ruin him, if she would consent to forego the malicious pleasure of involving the family in the disgrace of a public scandal.

"In this paper, which I design to be a simple statement of facts, I do not wish to parade my own sufferings or emotions. But it is necessary to say that I had never loved my husband; that I had married only because I became engaged to him in a moment of foolish pique, and my pride was too great to admit of my breaking that engagement. This imperious passion which had already wrecked my happiness, was the hateful thing that was wounded, outraged, stung to fury by the revelations which I now overheard. I saw that Marie Moissot, with the natural suspicions of an unscrupulous person, mistrusted Mr. Fetridge's intention, perhaps his ability, to hasten the complete downfall of Thornton Stackhouse, and had, therefore, written to me. It is only of late that I have thoroughly realized how maliciously shrewd she was in assuring herself that I should become acquainted with the facts.

"And these are the revelations that made my ears tingle, my heart beat like a trip-hammer, and my finger nails to indent themselves into the palms of my hands; that filled me for the time with the instincts of the murderess, and made my blood boil with indignant hatred. Thornton Stackhouse was the assumed name of an adventurer, Albert Runyon, whose legal wife and children were still living in New Orleans, who had deserted them to go with Marie Moissot, a fascinating Creole, at that time but 16 years old, to Montreal, only to desert her in turn, and to come at last to ME!

"This was the man for whom I had wrecked my life, broken two hearts, and sealed the warrant of my everlasting degradation!

"There is no room for denial; no chance for doubts. Everything that was presented to my father was in the form of documents, written evidence, sworn to and duly witnessed. Richard Fetridge is a lawyer, and he had spent a month in verifying Marie Moissot's story.

"Neither was there any room to doubt that Albert Runyon in marrying me understood fully to what position he was reducing me; for the evidence showed that he continued even to this date to send his wife a monthly allowance for her support.

"And the monster's excuse for all this villainy was that he did not love his wife, but loved me! As if a man who loved a woman could so cruelly, heartlessly deceive her!

"But this is not all. Thornton Stackhouse had not been honest in his dealings with my father. The documents revealed a course of systematic treachery which if carried out would have ruined my father and enriched him. To be sure, all these transactions were of older date, and since his mock marriage with me there was no evidence that he had continued them. In other words, he had kindly consented to cease cheating Mr. North in consideration of having married his daughter. Did these circumstances palliate his offense any in my eyes? As well ask a drowning person if he is mindful of the subtraction or addition of a drop or two of the element that is killing him.

"There have been times in my life when I have been frightened at the intensity of some sudden evil passion within me—something that is so contrary to my teaching and education, and arises so spontaneously, that I have been led to regard such things as an inheritance from my unknown parents. And this night as I stood on the stairs listening, a passion of hatred took possession of me, which I can compare to nothing but a great sea of molten metal in a smelting furnace, white, hot and hissing like a serpent if it comes in contact with any cooler surface.

"My father was scarcely less overcome than I was. He was violent and wretched by turns. Mr. Stackhouse had been a peculiar element in his life. The man had had an influence over him such as no one else had ever gained. Now, for the first time he was shown the real character of the man he had trusted.

"Even through all the turbulence of my own emotions I understood the intensity of my father's feelings. He was a man of impulsive and quick temper. He never preserved a hatred; but for that very reason it lived all the fiercer at the moment of its birth. His own rage at this instant was little short of mine.

"'Villain! Scoundrel! Harpy!' I heard him mutter from time to time, and then he would burst out into violent imprecations that would have terrified me had I been in a mood to fear anything.

"When he had submitted his evidence, Mr. Fetridge suggested the action which he asked my father to take. He said that he had done all that he had done for the family honor and for my honor. That if it had not been for his opportune intervention Marie Moissot would have made the bigamy of Albert Runyon a public scandal. He reminded my father that I was no more the wife of this scoundrel than as if that sacrilege of a ceremony had never been performed. There were, therefore, no legal ties to be severed. Mr. North must act in the matter as if he had become possessed of his information through any source but the real one. Richard Fetridge's part in the affair was never to be known; not even to me. But I was to learn the truth from my father's lips. So was Albert Runyon. My father was to go to him; give him 24 hours to leave the country after signing a damaging document which Mr. Fetridge had prepared. In course of time it was suggested that I might quietly obtain a divorce on the ground of desertion. In case this programme was carried out, Mr. Fetridge proposed to help my father out of his financial difficulties. Otherwise he could withdraw his support.

"When the arrangements had been completed, Mr. Fetridge went away with the woman, and my father, who proposed to sleep in the house that night and to meet Mr. Fetridge early in the morning, after seeing them to the door, returned to his library.

"I awoke gradually out of my long trance, and went down to the library door. I did not propose to conceal the fact of my presence from my father. The conference between us was not to be delayed. It must take place to-night.

"He was so engrossed that he did not hear my footsteps. I was startled when I saw what his occupation was. He was loading his pistol. I was not in a condition to measure accurately the flight of time, but I must have lingered on the staircase some minutes after his return to the library, for, as I afterwards discovered, he had quite finished his task when I interrupted him. He had taken out his box of cartridges from a drawer of his writing desk, which still stood open.

"'Father!' I called to him. 'Father!'

"He uttered an exclamation of horror, repulsed the pistol, as if endeavoring to conceal it, and turned toward me. He whispered my name, and took a step or two hastily toward me.

"At the same time I uttered a cry of warning, for I saw the pistol topple over by its own weight. Slowly at first and then with a quick dash, it slid from a mass of papers upon which it had been placed, dropped from the edge, turned completely over, and was caught in the corner of the open drawer. My cry was drowned by the simultaneous report. Mr. North threw up his hands, rushed forward with an awful look in his face, and fell at my feet.

"I vaguely remember hearing him speak my name and murmur something about my husband. But this sudden, unexpected climax to the unutterable horrors of that night gave a temporary relief to my suffering. I could bear no more. I have a dim remembrance of putting out my hands to save myself from falling.

"I have no means of knowing how long I lay upon the floor. When I awoke I saw my father lying motionless by the door, with that horrible dripping scrawl which I knew had been made by his own blood upon the wall. I called to him, I seized his hand, but I soon saw that he was quite dead.

"The sight of the blood did not terrify me. I am ashamed to confess it, and I cannot explain it, but it filled me temporarily with a strange, wild, savage exultation. I know now that I must have been crazy. Emotional insanity, the physicians call it. God knows how I honored and loved the man who had been a father to me. I am told they suspected me of having killed him. Heaven knows I am wicked enough; but not that crime—no, not that!

"Let me pass over the next 15 minutes. They will be a terror to me as long as memory remains to me. When I became calmer, I tried to realize what had been done. I had no doubt that my father had intended to write a message to me—to tell me no doubt that this man was not my husband. In his dying moments his unfulfilled purpose had haunted him.

"I cannot tell the stifling sensations which followed the sudden realization that this writing on the wall would be taken as an accusation against the man who had done his best to ruin us both.

"When this awful idea first came to me, I fled from the room, as if by so doing I could leave the idea behind me. I actually had opened the outer door to call help when the full realization of all that my false husband had done to me rushed over me with renewed force. I stopped still and my heart was steeled to every cry of conscience. As fully possessed of my faculties as I ever was in my life, I stood at the door and thought of everything—of the chances of the success of this terrible revenge for my wrongs; of my ability to carry out the plan; of the fact even that once embarked in it there could be no drawing back; that I could never survive the disgrace of discovery. 'Revenge,' I say, now; but that night the word in my mind was 'justice.' Would this act of mine immolate Albert Runyon in a greater degree than he had sacrificed me? No—and this to my mind that night was 'justice!'

"This reflection sealed my fate. I went back resolutely. I assured myself that my father was dead beyond all recall. I replaced the cartridges in the drawer whence he had taken them. The fatal pistol still lay upside down firmly wedged in its place, with its barrel laid across the corner pointing outward at an upward angle. The hammer had caught upon the ornamental scroll work just above the drawer as it fell. To such a point were my faculties sharpened by the danger and the boldness of my designs that I noted every detail of these facts. I knew that this pistol was the only testimony to the real facts of my father's death.

"I put the pistol in my pocket, turned out the lights, and stole from the chamber of death with the full realization that I had made myself a criminal.

"It is unnecessary for me to tell what followed; of the clearer realization of my position that came with reflection; of the awful complication in which I found I had involved myself and my innocent sister; of my bitter remorse when it was too late. May Heaven have mercy on me.

"MARION NORTH."

"Commonwealth of Massachusetts,

"Essex, ss.

"Swampscott, June 26, 1887.

"Then personally appeared before me the above named Marion North, who made oath that the foregoing statement, by her submitted, is true.

"WILLIAM FLETCHER,

"Justice of the Peace."

"That is all, gentlemen," said Thomas, as he folded the document—"all that is written here. I hardly need say that I do not subscribe to the lady's idea of her father's purpose in writing his partner's name on the wall. She takes a view lenient as possible to him. But to my mind that he carried a full intention of revenging himself upon his recreant partner from the moment he set out to load that pistol with the intention of shooting him, to the moment of his death, is the only logical construction to be placed upon his conduct. And I unhesitatingly put North at the head of the conspiracy. His daughter—unfortunate woman!—let his purpose be carried out by concealing the evidences of the accident. In the sequel we see the mockery of fate; for in the end it is not Stackhouse, but Richard Fetridge, who is arrested for the crime."

And, indeed, Thomas' view of the case was the theory which came eventually to be accepted by all cognizant of the facts, and though it may not be quite possible to determine beyond a doubt the intent of Paul North in writing upon the wall, still Mr. Thomas' conclusion, that a deadly purpose of revenge filled the mind of the dying man, must be, in lieu of something better, accepted as final.

The profound silence which immediately followed the reporter's words was broken by Fetridge, who had been sitting with his hand shading his eyes during the latter portion of the reading.

"And to think," he murmured, "that it was for this end I have been trying to keep this scandal from the public ear! Why, it will be worse, a thousand times worse," he exclaimed, starting up, "than if I had precipitated the facts as I knew them. Then it might have been hushed up. Now that is impossible."

"If you had but had a little confidence in me!" said John Lamm, reproachfully. "Well, inspector, what's to be done?"

He asked the question a little maliciously.

"How do we know that this statement is true?" exclaimed Applebee, who was but just recovering from his breathless amazement. "Fortunately this woman is already under arrest, and—"

"Ah, pardon me," interrupted Thomas, solemnly. "She is not, inspector."

"Not arrested!" exclaimed the astonished official.

"You do not know that woman," said the reporter, with a sigh, "or you would have guessed the truth already. Marion North could not survive such a disclosure."

"She is dead!" cried Fetridge, with bloodless lips.

"She is dead," repeated the reporter. "Soon after the witnessing of this document she complained of feeling weak, and expressed a desire to lie down. A little later her sister came to me, greatly alarmed. Marion was breathing strangely, she said, and her face had changed color. I suspected the truth and hastened after a physician. When he commenced his examination he found this little bit of paper in her bosom:

"'For God's sake conceal my disgrace! I have poisoned myself.'"

Richard Fetridge uttered a groan, sank into his chair and buried his face in his hands.

"The physician privately informed the officers who came to arrest her," continued the reporter, "that she had been summoned before a higher tribunal."

And Richard Fetridge could only murmur—

"Heaven pity her and me! God have mercy on us both."

And so the great case came to an end. Thomas succeeded in keeping all but the most meager details from the curious gaze of the public. It was not in his province to suppress news, but, as John Lamm said:

"A man will do a great deal for the sake of the woman he thinks enough of to marry."

ARREST FOLLOWS DEATH.

John Dolan Said to Have Been Accused by Girl.

John Dolan, of Morristown, has been arrested in Morristown in connection with the sudden death of Gertrude Hand, daughter of a Summit hackman, who died at Overlook Hospital Thursday night, following an operation. Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield and Detective John L. Dalatian went to Morristown Friday afternoon and brought Dolan to Summit.

The operation which resulted in Miss Hand's death is alleged to have been performed in New York three weeks ago. In a statement she is said to have made before her death she is alleged to have declared that Dolan knew a physician in New York to whom she went on two occasions.

Vest Makers, Knee Breeches Makers, Cap Makers, Children's Jacket Makers and the Women's Waist Workers. A number of locals of the cloakmakers have refused to take any action on the circulars.

HUGHES REPLIES TO FORT.

Thanks New Jersey Executive For Offer of Aid.

Governor Hughes has replied to Governor Fort's telegram congratulating him on his renomination. In his message Mr. Fort said:

"Every citizen who loves the republic rejoices in your nomination. It puts new life into the Republican cause. It is a victory for political honesty and an emphatic demonstration that the people rule. If I can serve you in any way, command me. Hearty congratulations."

Mr. Hughes's reply to this was:

"I warmly appreciate the cordial sentiments of your telegram and I thank you heartily for your kind offer."

DEFEATED IN ELEVENTH

Brit Martin's Fine Drive for Three Bagger Gives Somerville Victory.

SOME BRILLIANT FIELDING.

Snappy Contest Throughout Replete With Great Plays—Score Was 3 to 2.

With a garrison finish of the hair-raising variety that recalled the old days between Plainfield and Somerville, the local team went down to defeat Saturday afternoon before the West Ends, of Somerville, on Crescent Oval, the final score being 3 to 2. It required eleven innings to decide the contest and then the result was in doubt until the last man was out.

In the last inning Brit. Martin drove the ball far into left field for what was thought to be a three-bagger and possibly a home run, but in trying to steal third he was caught and he spiked Harris, almost putting the latter out of the game. Had Martin been satisfied with two bases there is a possibility that Clinton Avenue might have won. Succeeding batters got on base, but were unable to even tie the score to say nothing of winning out.

There were constant flashes of brilliant fielding on the part of both teams, Plainfield making two double plays and Somerville one. It was a pitcher's battle throughout with the odds slightly in favor of Montross, although he allowed eleven hits, while Randolph gave only eight. "Smiling Jimmie" proved to be stronger in the latter part of the contest, while Randolph appeared to weaken a trifle. He was ably supported by the entire team and Seery, of Elizabeth, caught a fine game, permitting no steals and throwing a runner out at second on a foul fly.

The Clinton Avenues got busy on the jump and scored a run in the first inning by good clean hitting, a total of four singles netting the tally. They were blanked in the second, but again scored in the third. In the meantime Randolph was pitching magnificent ball and prevented his opponents from scoring until the eighth. Everyone thought the contest would finish with a score of 2 to 0 in favor of Plainfield, but they did not count on the subsequent rally by Somerville, which was largely due to the stick work of Harris and Lloyd, the new men. In the eighth they got two runs over the pan, tieing the score. A hit, a free pass and an error by Emery were responsible for the break. After that "Jimmie" Montross covered himself with glory by his fine pitching. He tightened up and despite the fact that he was occasionally touched up the locals could not score again. When Brit. Martin was thrown out at third the decision was close, but it was the opinion that Harris caught him.

Jack Martin was right there with the willow, securing five bingles, but they did not come at the right time, and then Jack in trying to reach second was caught, whereas if he had emained at first, he might have been brought around. Gilman, who returned to right garden, got a single, but an error in the eleventh gave Somerville a mighty boost in getting that extra run.

Both teams played snappy ball throughout and it is seldom that a contest here has been marked by such brilliant fielding. The whole Plainfield infield put up gilt-edged ball, while the battery worked well. The outfield, with the exception of Gilman's error, was all that one could ask for.

There were many fans present who shared with Montross in the victory, and while they did not want to detract from Randolph's fine work, they were glad to see "Smiling Jimmie" make good. He was steady throughout and with the kind of support given him, he was entitled to a victory. Each team have won two games and according to the agreement the fifth and deciding contest will be played on Crescent Oval Saturday. The score:

SOME CLOSE CONTESTS AT PARK GOLF CLUB

Excellent scores were returned by the large number of golfers out at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, and the competitions were exceptionally close. There was continued interest in the play for the challenge trophies. For the Hydewood Park challenge cup, W. C. McNaughton, holder, defeated W. R. Faber, challenger, by 2 up and 1 to play; for trophy number two, E. E. Gano, challenger defeated C. B. Morse, holder, by 2 up and 1 to play, and for trophy number four, L. R. Thurlow, challenger, defeated Dr. A. W. Anderson, holder, by 5 up and 4 to play.

These scores were posted for the President's and Golf Club cups, handicap and scratch event:

Leon R. Thurlow, 92, 9-83; W. E. Lough, 103, 19-84; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 93, 8-85; W. V. Gano, 89, 0-89; Louis K. Hyde, 99, 9-90; W. V. Byard, 101, 10-91; W. C. McNaughton, 94, 2-92; C. B. WESTFIELD LOSES TO PLAINFIELD Y.M.C.A.

The Y. M. C. A. turned the tables on Westfield at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, winning by a score of 9 to 6. Both pitchers were hit hard, but Peacock kept the hits well scattered, while Ortleib was touched at the right time. Will Schoonmaker led the team in batting. Out of five times at the bat he secured five hits, including a two-bagger. Tobin's catch of Peacock's hard line drive in the sixth inning was a feature. The association boys got three runs in the second by good stick work and two errors; three in the fifth by clean hitting and man hit by pitched ball; one on the sixth by two hits, a stolen base and error by Carlson and two in the ninth by two hits, a base on balls, a stolen base and a sacrifice.

Westfield tallied one run in the second by a single and twobagger; two in the third by getting four hits, one in the fourth through two hits and an error by Gilmore and two in the eighth by an error, two hits and a sacrifice. The score:

RAHWAY DEFEATED BY SCOTCH PLAINS

Scotch Plains' team had no trouble at all in taking the second game in the series of two with the Rahway F. C., at Rahway, Saturday afternoon, the score being 10 to 2. Clark, who was in the box for Rahway, was touched up for a total of eleven hits, including a three and three two baggers.

"Warry" MacLaughlin had the goods, allowing but five scattering hits. Rahway scored two runs in their half of the second inning on a wild throw of MacLoughlin to first base to catch a runner. After that the Plains team settled down and held the home team to the two runs. MacLaughlin fanned five men and Clark three. The score:

Calling at 42 Newkirk's place, Camden, Saturday afternoon, a real estate agent, saw J. Laudenslager, fifty-five years old, sitting at a table, and when he failed to answer a question the agent found that he was dead. Coroner Fithian gave a certificate of death from heart disease.

When a horse driven by Mark Simon, a Trenton merchant, took fright at a steam roller and ran away Saturday it would have run down and probably killed a child had it not been for Patrolman M. B. Walklett risking his life to rescue the little one. Simon was thrown from his carriage and badly hurt.

Twenty-two members of the Racket Club appeared before Mayor Ladd at Woodbury last night and listened to fatherly advice. The club is composed of young men who have been making too much noise, according to complaints before the Mayor, who thought a little talk would do more good than fines.

Miss Elizabeth Franey, of Second street, Trenton, yesterday fell down the same flight of stairs which she fell down a month ago, breaking her right leg in the same place that she broke in the former fall. The month old break had knitted and Miss Franey had been walking about the house for several days.

RAHWAY MAYOR PERPLEXED.

Writer Tells of Find Bottle in Ocean Containing Note with Executive's Name.

Mayor C. B. Holmes, of Rahway, was the recipient Saturday of the following letter through the mail, bearing date of Keyport:

"Something you probably never expected to hear from again has turned up almost at your door, only a few miles from your home town, in the shape of a bottle holding a note reading as follows: 'This bottle, thrown from North German steamer about midway between Liverpool and New York. Finder kindly let writer know when and where found. (Signed) Dr. Charles B. Holmes, Rahway, N. J.'"

The letter to the Mayor further explained that the bottle was found by August Menzel, a fisherman, who hauled a net at Cliffwood, between Lawrence Harbor and Keyport, and concludes, "If you want the papers either come here after them or write me and I will send them to you Signed, H. O. Bauer."

Mayor Holmes says he is at al oss to know if some one istrying to play a joke on him. He says he has not been on board the steamer mentioned.

WHITEHOUSE DEFEATS GARWOOD A. C., 7 TO 6.

The Garwood A. C. team was defeated by the Whitehouse Station club at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 7 to 6. Harney, the home pitcher, twirled great ball and with proper support would have shut the visitors out, who did not earn a run. The score by innings:

Basketball League.

Since the fact became known that Plainfield is to have a professional basketball team this winter there has been some talk about the advisability of forming a league of professional teams to include Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Trenton, Paterson, New York, Yonkers, Catskills, Albany and Schnectady. It is not likely that such a league will be formed, however, as the team that is to represent Plainfield has not sufficient financial backing to undertake the proposition. The Plainfield A. A. now touring New York State, Massachusetts and Connecticut, will return home in time to open the season October 10.

BALL CLUBS' WRANGLES

Breach of Agreement Alleged for Calling Off Clinton Ave.-West End Game.

QUESTION OVER THE GROUNDS.

Similar State of Affairs Responsible for Cancelling Scotch Plains-Clinton Avenue Contest.

The fifth and deciding baseball game to decide the supremacy of the Clinton Avenue and Somerville teams will not be played, according to the decision of Manager Bogart Conklin, of the West Ends. Manager Dorflinger received a telegram from Mr. Conklin yesterday stating that he would not play the game in this city, and Manager Dorflinger will not go to Somerville. The Clinton Avenues will play the Y. M. C. A. nine the second of a series of three contests for the city championship on Crescent Oval at 3:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon.

When the series between Plainfield and Somerville was arranged, there was a signed agreement as to percentage, grounds where games were to be played, etc., and it was agreed that should each team win two games the fifth would be played on the grounds drawing the biggest crowd and best receipts. The first game was played at Somerville and the receipts were about $75. When the second game was played at Crescent Oval, the total receipts were about $152. The third contest in Somerville netted practically the same amount as the first and last Saturday's receipts were about $80. This would indicate that more money is obtainable here.

Evidently not wishing to play the contest here, Mr. Conklin said that if Manager Dorflinger would agree to raise the prices of admission to the Oval, making the general admission twenty-five cents and ten cents extra for the grandstand, he would bring his team here. This the management refused to do, believing such action to be unfair to the local fans who have been paying fifteen cents with ten cents extra for the grandstand. It is understood that Manager Conklin said that he lost about $12 on Saturday's contest. If this is so it is probably due to the fact that he engaged two semi-professional players to take the places of local men, the new players causing the added expense. It is regretted that Manager Conklin has taken such a stand relative to the windup of a successful series, but all fair-minded fans believe that he should abide by the agreement.

A similar condition exists between the Clinton Avenues and Scotch Plains, the latter failing to play a schedule game here one rainy Saturday, when the weather cleared sufficiently to permit the contest. There was an agreement between Manager Frentz and Manager Dorflinger, to the effect that each team was to play for a $10 guarantee.

This favored both clubs alike. Manager Frentz objected to this percentage after two games had been played, requesting a larger guarantee. The Labor Day game was arranged on a fifty per cent. basis, each team posting $25 as a guarantee of good faith. It is not likely that these teams will meet again this year. It is conceded that the biggest money is in Plainfield, yet in both instances Managers Frentz and Conklin have decided to break agreements when everything seemed to favor their teams.

DECIDES ALL SALOONS CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

Assistant Attorney-General Nelson B. Gaskill advised the authorities of several municipalities yesterday that in his judgment the election laws require the closing of all saloons during the hours of the primary elections today.

The laws in this particular are rather ambiguous, and have been variously construed in different municipalities. The result has been that in some places saloons have been kept open, while in others they have remained closed during the primaries. Section 68 of the crimes act makes it a misdemeanor to sell spirituous or intoxicating liquors at any general special or municipal election Section 192 of the election act provides that in addition to the penalties provided by law, for the unlawful sale of liquor on any election day, every person so offending shall pay a penalty of $100. Section 194 places upon sheriffs, under-sheriffs, police officers and constables the duty of arresting without warrant all persons who shall sell or offer for sale liquor on election day.

Admitting the ambiguity of the language in Sections 192 and 194 of the election law, Mr. Gaskill said yesterday that he believed it was the evident intention to impose an additional penalty for selling during the progress of elections. The spirit of the law, he said, would certainly be better kept by closing saloons during the primaries.

YOUNG HOPEFUL SPOILS HIS MOTHER'S COMPLAINT.

William Berkowitz, a fifteen-year-old boy, was a defendant in the city court, this morning, charged by Mrs. William Gray, of Watchung avenue, with striking her son, probably about six years old. Berkowitz admitted that he had slapped the youngster but explained that he did so only after Gray had applied an insulting term to him that reflected on his religion.

"That's what I did," piped up the Gray hopeful, coming from behind his mother's skirts; and then he repeated a profane epithet that is resented by members of the Hebrew faith.

"Is that so?" queried Judge Runyon with a threatening scowl; "well, this case is dismissed right now and I want to say for Master Gray's benefit that he had better be a little more careful of his language."

Mrs. Gray realized there was nothing to her complaint before the magistrate concluded and lost no time in escorting her boy out of the court room.

REV. G. M. SCHOTT RESIGNS TO GO TO WEST VIRGINIA.

The resignation of the Rev. George M. Schott as secretary and treasurer of the Baptist Ministers' Association of Greater New York, was yesterday accepted at the conference which opened in New York city.

Mr. Shott is at present pastor of the Lyons Farms church, and formerly of Scotch Plains, and has accepted a call from the Baptist church of Mannington, W. Va.

At the suggestion of Dr. A. Lincoln Moore and the Rev. David C. Hughes, father of New York's Governor, the conference voted Mr. Shott a year's salary in recognition of his services.

Mrs. James T. Vegiard, of Bridgeport, Conn., is spending two weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, of East Third street.

OPPOSED ENDORSEMENTS

Motion to Approve Assembly Candidates Called Out of Order by Committee.

TO HOLD MASS MEETING.

Big Demonstration at Elizabeth on October 8—Excursion to State Convention Friday.

In the absence of Chairman Frank H. Smith, Vice-Chairman James Calvert presided at a meeting of the Republican County Committee, at the party's headquarters in Elizabeth, last night, which was important for tworeasons. First, the attendance was the largest on record, and second, the body declined to endorse any particular candidates for Assembly nomination.

Andrew McCardell, of this city, moved that both Assemblymen Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, and A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, be endorsed for renomination and that Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth, be approved as the third member. This brought considerable protest and Vice-Chairman Calvert ruled the motion was out of order. The trio are being supported at the primary polls today by the organization men, but New Idea workers vigorously objected to placing the party on record as favorable to them.

In a communication, the Jersey Central quoted its special rates for the State convention at Trenton on Friday. The round-trip fare will be as follows: Plainfield, $1.55; Bound Brook, $1.25; Somerville, $1.45, and Elizabeth, $1.68. The members decided to take advantage of these rates and will use their efforts to send a large delegation of party workers to the convention. Rates were also quoted by the Jersey Central for the Congressional convention at Phillipsburg but no interest was shown in the matter.

The outing committee reported a balance of $73 as a result of the annual excursion to Witzel's Grove, L. I. In the future, it was decided, to hold the outings at Far Rockaway. The Lyceum theatre, Elizabeth, has been engaged for a big demonstration to be held on October 8. Speakers of National, State and county reputation will serve as spellbinders and a great ovation is promised for the party candidates.

SOME NAMES ERASED FROM G. O. P. BALLOTS.

Marked ballots, with the name of Mayoralty Candidate Robert B. Cissel and other prominent Republican candidates for office crossed off, were distributed Saturday night from the Republican City Committee headquarters in Elizabeth. The names of candidates favoring Congressman Fowler for re-election were marked off some of the ballots.

Republicans all over the city are indignant, and Congressman Fowler is said to have threatened to sue the city committee.

Members of the Republican City Committee said today the work was not done with their sanction, but that some of the committee were present when the names were marked off.

Robert J. Aljoe, of 144 West Grand street, says he went to the headquarters and asked for ballots for his district. "You can't have them now; they're not fixed," he quotes Chairman James White, of the city committee, as having said. Aljoe says he is willing to make an affidavit to this effect.

HIGGINS OUT ON BAIL; PEACE JUSTICE CRITICISED.

Harry Higgins, the local youth held on Miss Eliza Voehl's charge of attempted assault, was released from the Somerville jail on $300 bail, yesterday afternoon. The amount was fixed by Judge Schenck on application of the prisoner's counsel, William G. DeMeza. The case will be heard by the next grand jury.

The action of Justice of the Peace David D. Smalley in refusing bail for the boy has been freely criticised by borough and county officials. He maintained that the offense charged is not bailable despite the fact that prisoners facing the same charge are released on both sides of the brook almost every day. He was told that he could fix bonds but insisted on holding Higgins for the county court and committing him to jail. It was the general supposition when the case was first brought up that it would be dismissed.

Borough Property Sold.

Henry DeMott, of the borough, has sold to J. W. Fisher, of Richmond street, the three stores and residence on the south side of Somerset street, adjoining the residence of Dr. A. H. Dundon. There is to be no change in the tenancy, the deal being simply a change in ownerships.

MANY ARE ARRAIGNED BEFORE JUDGE SCHENCK

In the Somerset county courts in Somerville yesterday many alleged offenders indicted by the last grand jury were arraigned before Judge Schenck. The following pleaded not guilty and were held in bail to appear for trial next Monday: Charles A. Carroll, charged with carrying a concealed weapon; Henry Pedeflous, Sunday selling; John Richards, breaking and entering, larceny and unlawfully taking a horse; John Shipley, malicious mischief; George Fisher, atrocious assault; Sylvanus Carkhuff and Johanna Savolinski fornication and two charges of lewdness; Pietro Cappozzoli, breaking and entering; Michael Verardi, illegal sale of liquor; Walter Bingle, illegal selling and Sunday selling; James McLaughlin, assault and battery; Charles Hendershot, larceny.

These pleaded guilty and will appear Friday for sentence: George Allison, charged with carrying a concealed weapon; Henry Scotti, Sunday selling; John Giafrancesco, carrying a concealed weapon; Domenica Delandria, carrying concealed weapon.

Louis Cienger, charged with assault and battery; Philip Brown, atrocious assault and battery, Mrs. Susan Darland, disorderly house, and George Gannon, assault and battery, were discharged.

"UNCLE BILL" AMUSED BY RIGS IN A MIX-UP

A team of horses drawing a heavily loaded farm wagon belonging to George Siebert, of Greenbrook road, was pulling out of the alley adjoining Scheuer's grocery store this noon when the animals began to slide down the brick-paved incline. It was impossible to hold them in and they swung against an Eastern Bottling company delivery rig driven by Thomas Hill. The pole of the farm wagon went between the spokes of one of one of the bottling vehicle's wheels and in a jiffy there was a peach of a mix-up.

One of Siebert's horses got its front feet through the wheel spokes and the team went down in a hopeless tangle. Inside of three minutes there were something like thirteen million men and one lone woman superintending the job of clearing away the wreckage but it took ten minutes to do it. The skirted director was Mrs. Percy Ohl, who suggested the plan that got Siebert's animals free without injuring them.

While the excitement was at its height, "Uncle Bill" Waldron, of the borough, viewed the proceedings from a high seat on the farm wagon. He had been sharing it with Siebert and he refused to vacate despite the fact that the angle at which the vehicle was pitched might throw him on top of the horses if there was a sudden jerk. "Uncle Bill" giggled and snickered like a gallery god and his actions puzzled Patrolman John Kelly. When the cop ordered "Uncle Bill" off his perch and got a whiff of Jersey applejack the mystery was cleared up as clean as the wagon wreckage.

A Novel Excuse.

Daniel Clifford, an aged harness maker from Burlington, Vt., was arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge of intoxication. He told the court he had been taken sick and started drinking whisky and quinine for his ailment. After several doses he dispensed with the quinine and took the whisky alone and went down and out. The excuse earned him a suspended sentence.

Died While Visiting.

Mrs. Amanda B. Edmonds, widow of Benjamin G. Edmonds, of Brooklyn, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Lyles, of West Fifth street. She came to Plainfield for a visit and was taken with the illness that caused her death. The funeral will be held at her late home, 267 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. Burial will be in Greenwood.

"The Great Divide" Scores Again.

William Vaughn Moody's powerful drama, "The Great Divide," was presented at the New Plainfield theatre for the second time, last night, and drew one of the largest audiences of the season. John Ince was again in the leading role and heightened the impression made at his initial appearance here. The remainder of the cast was strong and well balanced.

A $2 Jag.

Oscar Waldron was fined $2 in the borough court on a d.and d. charge. He was arrested on Somerset street last night.

—White and yellow peaches at Neuman Brothers. A new lot of nice ones will be offered tomorrow. Be sure to get some as the season will soon be at end.

PROBERS' REPORT READY

Councilmanic Committee Investigating Wolverton Case Finishes Its Work.

THE LAST WITNESS IS HEARD.

Harry G. Adams Gives Version of Alms' House Superintendent's Alleged Cruelty.

The Councilmanic committee, comprising C. C. Randolph, W. L. Gloak, D. W. Taylor, H. B. Suydam, Mayor Charles J. Fisk and President R. I Tolles, appointed to inquire into conditions at the Industrial Home and more especially the charges made by S. S. Vermeule, an aged inmate, against Superintendent Arthur W Wolverton, practically completed its work of investigation last night, and a report will be presented at the October meeting of the Common Council, as requested by City Judge W. N. Runyon.

The investigation was continued last night chiefly for the purpose of hearing Harry G. Adams, of Orange place, who was near the Industrial Home the day Superintendent Wolverton is alleged to have treated Mr. Vermeule in a rough manner, and it was the desire of the committee to get his version of the affair.

In the first place, Mr. Adams was shown a draft of the testimony he was supposed to have given at the hearing in the city court, on charges preferred by Mr. Vermeule. When questioned as to whether he made certain answers relative to the manner in which he is alleged to have seen Mr. Wolverton take hold of Mr. Vermeule, Mr. Adams repudiated this part of the testimony and said that if it was in error in part the whole testimony alleged to have been given by him was worthless.

This testimony was then laid aside and City Stenographer G. B. Wean was summoned and asked to take the story from Mr. Adams verbatim, the other testimony having been prepared chiefly from memory following the hearing in the city court.

According to the story of Mr. Adams, he was walking near the Industrial Home on the day in question. He noticed a man cutting grass on the front lawn, and an aged man was sitting nearby on the terrace. The next instant he heard an outcry and saw the man who had been cutting grass and who was said to be Mr. Wolverton, "yank" the other one Mr. Vermeule, and push him on the gravel pavement.

At this point, at the suggestion of Mayor Fisk, Mr. Adams gave a practical demonstration of the alleged attack on Mr. Vermeule. With one hand he grabbed the Mayor in the back of the neck and with the aid of the other almost "floored" him, to indicate just how Mr. Vermeule was handled as he saw it. The exhibition was enjoyed by the Mayor, as well as the other members of the committee.

Mr. Adams said that he was about fifty feet away from the scene of the trouble, when he heard Mr. Wolverton shout: "Hey you, get off that grass, you don't belong here." He then stated that he saw Mr. Vermeule fall and Mr. Wolverton picked him up and appeared to give him a shove to hasten him on his way to the Home.

He then went to the home of Charles Peterson, nearby, and there he had a talk with Mr. Peterson as to what he had witnessed. He refused to tell what Mr. Peterson said to him. On his way back Mr. Vermeule hailed him and asked for his name. At first he declined, but when Mr. Vermeule said that he would get his name, he consented to tell, although he disliked the notoriety it would bring him. Yet, he considered the action of the superintendent as terrible and said that he was perfectly horrified at the sight.

At this point in the proceedings, Mr. Adams was shown the testimony alleged to have been given by him at the police court hearing, and he replied: "I would like to meet the man who wrote that and I would dress him out. I never said that. I saw the superintendent grab Mr. Vermeule by the neck and not the arm and I certainly did see him throw the aged inmate to the ground."

When questioned closely Mr. Adams explained that "maybe Mr. Vermeule fell the second time from his own weight." Mr. Vermeule told him that he intended to sue the city for continued outrages. "I certainly think that Mr. Wolverton did abuse Mr. Vermeule, although I have no especial interest in the case other than to see justice done all concerned. I want you to understand that I am as good a Republican as anyone here. No anti-ring for mine."

This concluded the taking of testimony from Mr. Adams and he was excused. One thing that had weight

MISS EMMA LINDSAY A SEPTEMBER BRIDE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsay, of Mountain avenue, was the scene of a quiet wedding at 6 o'clock last evening when their daughter, Miss Emma Lindsay, was made the wife of Arthur Lindsay Smith, of Hanover, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, acting pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and was witnessed only by the relatives of the two families.

Miss Lindsay was gowned in embroidered mulle princess and carried white asters. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Lindsay, while her brother, James Lindsay was best man. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Susie Glover, of Red Bank. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left last night for a trip to Washington, D. C., that will last two weeks. At its conclusion they will make their home in Newark. Mr. Smith is but slightly acquainted in Plainfield but his bride is very well known. She is a member of Trinity Reformed church and has been active in its organizations.

FAIR ACRES' RACES SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club has arranged an unusually attractive card for the matinee meet to be held Saturday afternoon at the driving park. There will be one event for pacers, one for trotters, one for trotters and pacers and a half-mile running race. Full entries have been received for each event, including some of the best horses to be found in this part of the State. The running race will be run off in three heats, the winners of the first and second to be matched in the third heat. In this race the first prize will be a saddle and the second prize a bridle. In the other classes the first prize will be a set of harness and the second a fine whip.

The races will start promptly at 2 o'clock and as the track is in first-class condition there will be a good opportunity to see some fine sport. The entries are as follows:

EVERETT SHERWIN'S FUNERAL.

Service at His Parent's Home in Charge of Dr. Chambliss and Dr. McCrea.

The funeral of T. Everett Sherwin, whose death occurred in Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday after an illness with typhoid fever, was held this afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Sherwin, of Westervelt avenue. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the young man's pastor, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea. There were numerous handsome floral tributes, among them being several set pieces.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following young men who were fellow members of Mr. Sherwin in the Orange Field Club when it was a factor in local athletics, acting as pall bearers: Luther Shepard, Harry Hook, Arthur Caleen, Daniel Randolph, Albert Yaegar and Jerry Manning.

SUPREME CASTLE OFFICERS WILL VISIT FREEDOM CASTLE.

Past Supreme Chiefs Jacob Aull and John B. Triebler, of Baltimore, representing the Supreme Castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, will be the guests of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, tonight and will witness the initiatory work. While in Plainfield they will be entertained at the home of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, past grand chief of the State Castle.

Last night fourteen members of Freedom Castle, were the guests of Bushwick Castle, of Brooklyn, and they were entertained in royal fashion. After witnessing the degree team work, the Plainfielders were invited to a banquet.

Endorse Local Option.

A meeting of the Inter-Church Federation of Somerset county was held yesterday afternoon in Somerville, when an hour was devoted to the discussion of the local option law. A resolution was adopted commending the work being done along lines for the better observance of the Sabbath and endorsing the local option law as presented by the Anti-Saloon League.

TO STOP "SHOPLIFTING"

Merchants Association Proposes to Have the Next Offender Prosecuted.

BAD ACCOUNTS CONSIDERED.

Counsel Ordered to Get After Those Who Do Not Pay Debts—Prefer Embury Tract for P. O. Site.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association, at its September meeting, last night, decided to solicit names to a petition to be forwarded to Washington recommending the purchase of the Embury property at East Front and Church streets for the Federal building. This action was taken after a full discussion of the subject. In the opinion of the merchants the site is considered an ideal one and the price asked for the land was declared to be reasonable. The association will lend its influence toward placing the new postoffice building there.

The association took up the question of shoplifting which has been increasing at an alarming rate during the past few months and it was decided that in the future all persons caught stealing goods from stores of merchants who are members of the association will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law by the association. This was decided to be the only method of effectually stopping the practice.

Since the organization was formed considerable progress has been made by the merchants in preparing a list of bad accounts and the merchants have a complete list of people who are rated as poor pay. Last night W. S. Angleman was engaged as counsel to collect all bad accounts and in this way it is hoped to clean up bad debts which have been running for a long time.

A representative of the New York and Plainfield Transfer Company was present and agreed to put on another wagon to improve the express service between the two points, provided the merchants would give the concern full support. This was agreed to and another wagon will be placed in the service. The members expressed themselves as well pleased with the service, declaring it to be as satisfactory as that of the U. S. Express Company and at cheaper rates.

There was also a discussion regarding the proposed auto-bus line between Plainfield and South Plainfield, and progress was reported. Two weeks hence a committee from the association will invite representatives of the Plainfield newspapers to make a trip over the proposed line with a view to deciding on the feasibility and advisability of establishing such a service.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef, C. L. Stanley and Herman Schwed were appointed as a committee to solicit names to the petition favoring the Embury property for the postoffice building and Messrs. Levy, M. C. Van Arsdale and J. Hervey Doane were appointed a committee to arrange for a smoker to be held on Monday night, October 19.

The circle is composed of the following charter members: The Misses Bertha Stryker, Mary Roth, Mamie Gary, Grace Taylor, Maud Lancaster, Florence Taylor, Dorothy Medick, Edna Stryker, Messie Ryan, Helen Taylor. Meetings will be held every Thursday afternoon at 3:30 at the girl's homes. The members greet each other by a secret handshake.

Crap Game Nets $30.

The ten boys captured in the crap game raid on Richmond street, Sunday, were arraigned before Judge Runyon at this morning's session of the city court. They acknowledged their guilt and were fined $3 each. All paid up after the financially embarassed ones had negotiated loans from their more fortunate companions.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Joe Alberts, who plays with the strong Cartaret team Sundays, blossomed out as a pitcher Sunday. The Cartarets were scheduled to play Perth Amboy. For some reason Wilhelm, who does the box work for Cartaret, failed to show up. "Joe" went into the game and got away with it nandily, allowing the Amboys but five hits. Cartaret won the game 6 to 4.

George Vanderbilt, who played an outfield position for the locals at Rahway Saturday afternoon, received a bad gash in his forehead, the result of being hit by a line drive, which he was unable to guage on account of the sun. Vanderbilt was taken to a doctor and three stitches had to be taken in the wound to close it.

Each season we try to do a little better than the season before. This can be applied to every line we carry, but is markedly noticeable in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department, since the old firm showed little progress in this line. From the very start we began to clean out the old stock with a view to replace it with an up-to-date, well made line of goods. Our connection with the Tepper Cloak and Suit Factory at 39 East 19th street, New York, who sell to the biggest retailers in the city, gave us a very desirable advantage in handling this line. You could see the marked improvement in the suits we handled the first season—better styles, better workmanship, at such low prices, and now we are working just as hard to do better than our former best efforts—to show you more good styles, and more "better values" than you have seen in Plainfield in any one season.

AUTUMN IDEAS

Arrive in Rare Profusion in Our Golden Jubilee Fashion Show.

We have taught our friends and patrons to expect much of us—to look to us for the very best ideas in hats and gowns and other apparel, and to guide by our presentations as authoritative revelations of the fashions most in vogue, and in no past instance have we failed to measure up to every expectation, nor do we fail in this Fall's display.

In the show we are making today, and will continue for days to come, we reveal a wide variety of forms, the dreams of those who shape the fashions in hats and gowns. Here are seen splendid specimens of the creations of foreign modistes of renown and of artist dressmakers whose work has brought New York to the fore as a fashion centre. Not all the rare and beautiful hats are Parisian models nor even copies, for our own designers have done good work, which we are sure will find fullest appreciation from our public.

During these Formal Opening Days

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY,

there will be magnificent displays, both in our great show windows and in all the apparel divisions of the store, as well as in those departments wherein we sell silks and dress stuffs and laces.

No special invitations have been issued—we invite all New Jersey to come.

Autumn Apparel

FOR MEN AND BOYS.

These are days of inspection for men and boys, as well as for women.

Millinery may be the magnet that draws the gentle sex, but there are clothing questions for men and their big sons to solve, and they solve them only by seeing what the tailormen have evolved. In our stocks are representations of the product of some of the best tailoring shops in the country. Back of these clothes is a lifetime of experience, the ambition to excel, a full knowledge of clothes, artistic taste and tailoring skill. The best designers, cutters and tailormen that money will employ are of the staff of the concerns that produce the clothing we sell.

Men may come here with their minds made up as to what they want or wholly open to suggestion, and find it a simple matter to satisfy their every whim, whether they wish to dress in ultra-fashionable manner or conservative.

The range of clothes, the variations of style, and the range of price is ample enough to satisfy everyone.

For young men we specialize the "Sampeck" clothing, famed the country over for its superiority. The "Sampeck" garments are so stylish, so handsome, and so thoroughly well made that they appeal to every young man who wishes to be well dressed. We never have any trouble in pleasing the younger set.

For very little fellows we have every kind of suit that could possibly be wished for, pleasing alike to the boys who wear them and to the parents who buy them. We present more kinds of suits with two pairs of knickerbockers than any other house you know of. Most boys who care for the looks of their clothes like to have an extra pair of pants, and economical parents will insist upon them.

GENTLEMEN'S TAILORING.

A new department that is organized to satisfy an always existing demand for clothing to order.

We are not going to attempt to compete with the cheap tailor, for we are not going to do cheap work.

We will give you choice of a wide range of fashionable clothes of the very best sorts, and will make to your order in a manner far beyond the work of the average tailor, suits of character and quality.

We will not take any rush orders.

We will insist on giving you no less than two try-ons; sometimes three, that when you put your suit on it will not require another touch to make it fit you perfectly and satisfy you as well.

This department will be a considerable step in advance of even very good tailor shops.

Suits to order, $25 to $60.
Coats and Vests to order, $19 to $42.
Overcoats to order, $27 to $50.

Lace Curtains

ODD PAIRS AT HALF.

In this lot are Irish Point Curtains, Lacet Curtains, Colbert Curtains, Renaissance and Nottingham Curtains, Brussels Curtains, Tambour Curtains, Ruffled Net Curtains, Muslin Curtains, Point Arabe Curtains and Nouveau Effects.

There are ever so many patterns to choose from, and you will surely be able to find something to delight you in this great collection. They are all odd pairs but more than one pair of a kind in many instances, and they are all cut in price just one-half. Regular values run from 79c to $30. Special prices will be 40c to..... $15

Colbert Curtains with plain centres and heavy borders—beautiful open work effects; fine curtains for libraries, living rooms or parlors; regular prices run from $14.50 to $33 a pair. Special prices $9.75 to..... $22

Brussels Curtains—One of the daintiest; most desirable for parlors; only a few designs to choose from, but all are very pretty. Regular prices range from $6 to $25 pair. Special prices $4.00 to..... $16.50

Tambour Lace Curtains for parlors and living rooms; exquisite designs; regular prices range from $5.50 to $18. Special prices $3.45 to..... $12

French Effect and Soutache Curtains—Imported kinds; dainty curtains for bedroom, living-room or dining-room; exceptionally pretty designs in white or Arabian; some with combinations of red and green. Regular prices run from $5 to $17.50 a pair; special prices $3.75 to..... $11

Russian Points, Italian Filet, Irish Point, Cluny, Antique, Renaissance, Marie Antoinette, Nottingham, Bonne Femme, Grand Dame Panels and Sash Curtains in variety, at prices reduced just as radically as those quoted above.

Sorosis

It is fitting that we should choose these days of our Golden Jubilee to introduce to our friends and patrons the new division of our Shoe Store which is to be the home of from this time forward—not that Sorosis Shoes need any introduction from us to the women of Newark, but because they are to make their bow in this great establishment.

Sorosis Shoes are known the country over as the best of all shoes, the price of which stops this side of extravagance.

In the Sorosis Shoe is embodied the results of a knowledge born of many years of experience and thorough acquaintance with leathers, and keen perception of style as a factor in shoemaking, and full appreciation of finish and detail as a means to beauty.

Thru perfect organization and a skilful admixture of brains with the shoe-making art, the Sorosis factories are enabled to produce, and do produce, the finest, most satisfactory shoes in the world at their price.

We are glad, therefore, that these Sorosis makers after long deliberation and consideration of the claims of others for the honor accorded Hahne & Co., have chosen this store as the

NEW HOME OF SOROSIS.

We invite our patrons to inspect the superb fall models of Sorosis Shoes which we present for their edification. We have not seen handsomer styles in any make of shoes this season.

Sorosis Shoes are here for Women, Misses, Children and Infants.

Prices $3.50, $4.00, $5.00, $6.00, $7.50.

Plainfield, N. J., September 22, 1908.

Party primaries for the nomination of municipal and county candidates as well as delegates to the State and Congressional conventions are being held today. The polls will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. As the nomination is equivalent to election so far as the Republican aspirants for the General Assembly are concerned, the contest is most important to the members of that party.

These are the polling places in Plainfield:

First Ward.

First district, 139 North avenue.

Second district, 545 East Third street.

Second Ward.

First district, 327 Watchung avenue.

Second district, 699 South avenue

Third Ward.

First district, Charles J. Fisk's barn on Arlington avenue.

Second district, at Neumann's barn, Spooner avenue and Essex street.

Fourth Ward.

First district, 204 West Second street.

Second district, 672 South Second street.

Third district, 921 West Third street.

In North Plainfield these are the polling places:

First district, 83 Somerset street.

Second district, 80 Somerset street.

Third district, 175 Somerset street.

If you do not wish to vote for any particular candidate, erase his name from the ballot by drawing a single line with a lead pencil across his name. Do not make any other sort of mark on the ballot, but be certain to erase all the names of candidates for whom you do not wish to vote. For instance on the Republican ballot the names of seven for Assembly will be found and you are allowed to vote for three. On the Second ward ballot will be found the names of two candidates for Council and you are allowed to vote for one. Do this by drawing a pencil line across the name of the other.

The Foraker-Roosevelt feud illustrates that "he who laughs last laughs best," and Teddy knows how to enjoy a good, hearty laugh.

HE FINDS BURGLARS STEALING HIS PIANO.

James Burnell, of Avenue C and Tenth street, Bayonne, will probably chain his piano when he retires hereafter.

Two burglars got into his house early yesterday morning ,took what money, silverware and clothes they could find and then proceeded to steal the piano. They rolled it over to a window preparatory to lowering it to the ground, but the noise awoke Mr. Burnell and he frightened off the intruders.

WASHINGTON AVE. BRIDGE REPAIRS TO BE MADE

Following a conference yesterday of Mayor Samuel Townsend and other North Plainfield officials with the bridge committees of the Union and Somerset County Boards of Freeholders, at which the engineers from both counties were present, it was decided to make extensive repairs to the Washington avenue bridge. This matter has been under advisement for several weeks by Mayor Townsend and interested citizens in the borough and upon their invitation the freeholders and engineers were asked to attend a conference.

The bridge on Washington avenue was thoroughly inspected and the necessity for repairing it was apparent. The freeholders requested the engineers to draft plans for suggested improvements and submit them to both boards, after which another conference will be held to determine on what is to be done.

As now constructed the bridge has a plank roadbed and the idea is to replace this with concrete material, making it practically noiseless. Attention will also be given to the spans, which are now considered too wide. It was suggested that they be shortened and this will probably be done. There is a great deal of travel over this bridge and the freeholders are impressed with the fact that it should be rebuilt along modern up-to-date lines. At present the spans are so wide that the structure has been known to sway with heavy travel. This will be eliminated in the changes as planned. The freeholders also inspected the Westervelt avenue bridge with a view to making repairs in the planking which is in bad condition.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Governor Cummins, of Iowa, who has been visiting friends in Asbury Park, was taken to Spring Lake on Sunday where he was introduced to Governor Fort, of New Jersey.

"Can't you make a speech for Taft in Iowa?" said Governor Cummins, coming directly to the point.

"Two of them, if you wish," was the reply.

The dates were not set, but they will be as soon as Governor Cummins gets home. He started back this morning.

James S. Sherman, the Republican candidate for Vise-President, will make two speeches in South Jersey on Thursday. The first will be at the 1st Congress district convention, at Camden, where Representative Henry Loudenslager will be renominated. After speaking at Camden Mr. Sherman will go to the Mount Holly fair. Thursday will be Politicians' Day at the fair, and an immense crowd is expected.

The State convention for the selection of electors to be voted for on November 3 will be held at Trenton on Friday. It is expected that United States Senator Knox or some Republican of equal prominence will address the delegates.

United States Senator Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio has canceled his engagement to speak at the State Republican Convention to be held in Trenton next Friday. No dissatisfaction was expressed at State headquarters here when this was announced, and some other speaker of national prominence will take Mr. Foraker's place.

In Morris county the contest today is over the nomination for county clerk to succeed "Uncle Dan" Voorhees. "Uncle Dan" is backing John Mills, while Bertram Mott is running against the organization candidate. In Passaic the contest is mainly on the Assembly nominations. Eight regulars want the five Republican nominations, while the New Idea followers are supporting five of their own men.

BROWN GOT A BEATING; ALSO A TEN DOLLAR FINE.

After a hearing in the city court, this morning, Judge Runyon blamed Charles Brown for the fight he had with Wade Jones on West Third street, Saturday afternoon, and fined him $10. Jones got off on suspended sentence.

According to the testimony, the affair was brought about by Brown yelling "Hello, Rags" at Joues as he was driving down the street in a stone wagon. Jones resented the appellation and got off his vehicle to register a kick. He was explaining to Brown that there was nothing about his appearance to indicate rags when he got a poke in the jaw that staggered him. The battle was on after that and Brown was faring badly when Patrolman Saffron arrived on the scene.

Brown showed the effect of his punishment as he stood before the desk but he got no sympathy from Judge Runyon. The magistrate told him there would have been no scrap if he hadn't been too fresh and hung the fine on him to keep the fact in his mind.

—Lots of nice fruit at Neuman Brothers. The assortment includes Bartlett pears, peaches, plums and crab apples. The best place in the city to get supplies for canning.

ANNOUNCEMENT of CANDIDACY and DECLARATION of PRINCIPLES MADE BY

CHARLES A. TRIMBLE

OF ELIZABETH, N. J.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN ASSEMBLY NOMINATION

"TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF UNION COUNTY:

"Having signed an agreement to accept the Republican nomination for member of the General Assembly, on a petition which has been signed by one hundred and twenty-five of my friends, I feel that I owe as a duty to those who will vote at the primary, a frank expression of my views on a number of subjects that may come before the coming session of the Legislature for consideration, and if these views meet with your approval I most respectfully solicit your support at the polls.

TAXATION.

"Taxes ought never to be made burdensome and every taxpayer should be able to see a return for every dollar invested in the payment thereof. To that end the administration of the affairs of the State and of every municipality within the State, should be with an eye single to the welfare of the people, and to securing a maximum of results for a minimum of cost.

"In the opinion of many persons familiar with the subject of taxation, a statute can be enacted which will successfully stand the test of the courts, whereby second-class railroad property can be assessed by local assessors, rather than by the State Board as at present. If this end can be accomplished I believe that it will accrue to the advantage of the several municipalities of the State.

"Much has been said about the revaluation of first-class railroad property, commonly known as the main stem property. In the light of what has been shown there should be a frequent revaluation of this class of property so that the State can receive the benefit arising from the ever enhancing value of this most valuable class of all railroad property as a taxable asset.

Election Laws.

"The extension of the Direct Primary Act should, in my opinion, be deferred until the operation of the law can be tested to the satisfaction of the people in an off year, when a full and complete opportunity to judge its merits will be presented.

"I believe, however, that our election laws should be revised and codified so that an ordinary layman may be able to understand their various complexities.

Public Utilities.

"The public utilities corporations operating in this State should be under such State control and supervision that any and all alleged excessive rates, unfair discriminations, inadequacy and insufficiency of service, could be promptly and efficiently investigated and if improper conditions be found to exist, fearlessly remedied, to the end that users be fairly and equitably treated and public safety be conserved.

Grade Crossings.

"All grade crossings over the main lines of railroads should be abolished as promptly as an equitable and fair method to that end can be devised.

Anti-Monopoly Laws.

"There are no statutes of this State under which the authorities can take legal steps to prevent illegal combinations formed for the purpose of fixing prices for various commodities or restricting their output. Other States have enacted statutes to protect their citizens in this respect and New Jersey would do well to follow their example by enacting a fair and just law for this purpose.

Employer's Liability.

"A number of States have assumed the initiative in this direction and it is my belief that an honest, equitable measure of this character, that will be fair to both the employer and the employe should be enacted.

Bi-monthly Payroll.

"Thousands of toilers in this State receive their wages but once a month. When current expenses are paid, ofttimes but little remains, and in numerous cases that have come to my attention considerable hardship has been worked, and families have been practically without funds for days at a time. This also works a hardship on the merchants who supply these persons with the necessaries of life on credit, having frequently but small means themselves, and it seems to me that all employers of labor should be compelled by law to make up their pay roll at least twice in every month, and in favor of such legislation I shall stand unequivocally.

Excise Question.

"The Governor of this State has appointed a commission composed of public-spirited and honest men to investigate and report excise conditions in this State, and as a result of such report as they may make to him he will undoubtedly make some recommendation to the Legislature as to what legislation may be needed to better conditions. Until such report is made and such recommendation submitted, I deem that it would be discourteous to the Governor to exploit any 'cure-all' for the excise situation, but it seems to me that after all the question of liquor regulation might well be left with each municipality to vote upon under the general principles of home rule, as so many questions of lesser importance are now disposed of. In other words, I think that this question is as properly a question of local option as the question as to whether we should use the voting machine or support a public library.

A NUTRITIOUS BEVERAGE

When You Drink, Drink Something That Will Do You Good.

When you drink, let your drink be of benefit to you.

Make your drink do double duty—have it quench your thirst and put strength into your system.

Call up Henry Haurand, of 63 Somerset street, on 'phone No. 229, and tell him to send you a case of Rienzi Beer, a pure, palatable drink that has tonic properties of the most pronounced character.

Rienzi is brewed by the Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and is known the country over as one of the foremost beers of America.

The Bartholomay Brewery Co. has for many years made Rienzi the standard of excellence.

It is brewed from choicest hops and barley malt, and through every stage of the brew it is faithfully looked after by a brew master second to none in the craft.

This brewery has an enviable reputation to sustain, and they will never suffer that reputation to become in the least tainted by offering an inferior beer to the American people.

Rienzi is a perfect beer; there is none better brewed—none better can be brewed. Henry Haurand will supply you. 9 22 24 25

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOMERVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Powelson have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Van Eps, to Theodore Grey Rowe, of Newark, to take place on September 26, at the home of the bride's parents, just north of Somerville.

Miss Jeanette Matthews, of West Cliff street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Matthews, left on Saturday for Porto Rico, where she will teach this winter.

Miss Laura E. Hoagland, of West Main street, who has been spending several weeks in the Catskills, has returned to her home in Somerville.

Misses Lou and Maud Rehill, who have been spending the summer at Block Island, have returned to their home on East Main street.

Mrs. William B. Dunham has returned to her home on North Bridge street, after spending some time in New Germantown.

Granville Smith, organist of St. John's Episcopal church, gave an organ recital in the church Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. William Harris and son, John L. Harris, of Middaugh street, returned on Saturday from Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Lena Stryker and Miss Maybell MacIntosh, of Morristown, are guests of Mrs. M. Hoffman, on High street.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gaston have been entertaining his sister, Mrs. James E. Hedges, of Elizabeth.

Misses Ruth Weldon and Martha Halstead are attending the State Normal School at Trenton.

Miss Stewart, of East Orange, is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Carlton P. Hoagland.

Dayton C. Hoagland, of West Cliff street, spent Sunday at Lake Hopatcong.

RARITAN.

The new Board of Commissioners met last evening in Fireman's Hall for permanent organization and the transaction of business.

Rev. A. M. Harris, of Port Oram, spent last week with his brother, Rev. S. D. Harris, at the Methodist parsonage.

Several car loads of Raritan people attended the Italian celebration at Bound Brook, on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Edwin Garretson and children, of East Millstone, spent last week with relatives in Newark.

Girl Cranks Automobile, Breaks Arm

Miss Estelle Dancer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dancer, of Midland avenue, was cranking her automobile at Montclair, when the lever slipped and struck her in the arm between the wrist and the elbow, breaking both bones.

with the committee was a letter received from Miss Elizabeth Tiffany, of this city, who is one of the State inspectors working under the direction of the State Charities' Aid. She praised the improved conditions at the Industrial Home, which she visited after the change in superintendents, not reflecting on the former superintendent. She referred to the class of inmates there and the difficulty experienced in making them understand that they must keep clean and take baths regularly. She spoke favorably of the new superintendent and his wife and added that a majority of the inmates assured her that they were being well treated.

In addition Chairman Randolph, of the Alms committee, produced the signed statements of seven inmates at the Home, to prove that the conditions there are satisfactory, that an abundance of food is served. Little credence was put in the statements of Bridget Cunningham, who, according to Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, the city physician, is mentally unbalanced.

After the completion of the investigation the committee got together and formulated the report to be presented in October.

MADE-UP BEAUTY NOT KIND HUBBY WANTED

Artificial beauty has no charms for Alexander Rudolph, of Camden, and the result is a suit for divorce in the Court of Cancery at Trenton, instituted by his wife, Mrs. Ida Rudolph, who charges that when she insisted on painting her cheeks and penciling her eyebrows she was chastised by her husband.

The suit of the wife was started some time ago, and the husband has made answer to the same. In his answer he admits quarreling with the woman because she persisted in the use of paints and powder and resorted to other practices to attract attention.

According to the answer, the couple entered into a bigamous marriage, which was legalized by a subsequent wedding after the woman had been divorced from her first husband. The couple met in a saloon and eloped to Wilmington, Del., where they were wed illegally.

WILBUR WRIGHT NOW HOLDS WORLD'S RECORD.

Le Mans, France, Sept. 22.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, made an ascent in his machine at the Auvour field here yesterday and remained in the air for 1 hour 31 minutes and 25 seconds.

This beats his brother's, Orville Wright, best record by over twenty minutes and far surpasses the next best, that of Delagrange, with a heavier-than-air machine.

On September 11 Orville Wright remained in the air 1 hour 10 minutes and 24 seconds, and was preparing to smash those figures when his machine was wrecked and he badly injured, while Lieutenant Selfridge was killed.

The records of the Wright brothers double those of the crack European aeroplanists.

Miss Gertrude L. Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Hunter, of West Fourth street, left this morning to resume her studies at Barnard College, where she is a junior.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The list of dramatic offerings announced for the early portion of the local theatrical season just beginning, is rendered notable by the engagement of Mr. John Griffith, one of America's greatest tragedians, if not, indeed, the very greatest of the present group of Shakespearian luminaries. Mr. Griffith, with his excellent company of associate players will appear at the New Plainfield Theatre tonight, inShakespeare's enduring love tragedy of "Othello." The engagement will prove a most important social event, and would seem to lend a certain dignity and distinction to the theatrical diversions of the week.

Charles E. Blaney, in his great desire to please the theatre-going public has hit on a new and novel play which will not only please the lover of good melodrama, but also the person looking for the startling, thrilling, mystifying production. His newest play is called "From Sing Sing to Liberty," a piece of four acts by the talented young author Harry Clay Blaney, who has written several other interesting dramas which will be long remembered. "From Sing Sing to Liberty" will be mounted on the same grand scale as all of the other Blaney attraction and will have as its important feature, Jack Dorris, the world famed Jail Breaker, who will be seen as the hero. The production will be at the New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

Nanette Comstock in her new play "Jet" by Louise Lovell, is the offering at the New Plainfield Theatre next Friday night. Miss Comstock is said to have made the hit of her career in the piece, which by the way is the first from the pen of this young author. No one has ever offered the talented little comedienne a play with a role which fitted her charming personality so perfectly as this one, and the press and public whereever the attraction has been so far have been most lavish in their encomiums.

The play is in four acts, the scenes being laid in the cotton belt of Texas which gives ample scope for the talents of the scenic artist.

Manager Muenster brings the production here with the same big cast and accessories which will play an extended engagement at one of the leading theatres in the metropolis later on.

John Philip Sousa is a composer who has enjoyed a peculiar distinction not included in the experience of many writers of opera scores.

The fact is well know that Sousa composed the opera "El Capitan." He also wrote the lyrics to ais music, and Charles Klein, author of "The Lion and the Mouse," wrote the book. Ordinarily this accomplished the work of composer and author has but begun, for after a performance of the play, the defects and weak points are brought out and the remedies suggested. Thus, it is frequently weeks after the opening performance before the rearranged manuscript is released, while the resulting changes make almost a new opera When "El Capitan" was given its premiere in Boston the construction was so perfectly satisfactory that not even was there an after rehearsal announced for the next day, as is customary with many standard and not-to be-altered operas. "El Capitan" had a long and popular life and remains, today, as it was originally written. Souso and his band come to the New Plainfield Theatre Saturday.

Engineering Committee Busy.

The engineering committee, comprising representatives from Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen Bound Brook and South Bound Brook, has been in consultation with Hering & Fuller, of New York, regarding the preliminary survey for the proposed trunk line sewer and the New York engineering firm is already preparing to start the work. Upon the completion of the survey and the report another conference of the representatives of the various municipalities will be called.

Hunt Club Active.

The Watchung Hunt Club is planning a number of social functions to be held at the new clubhouse during the fall and winter. The club is already growing in popularity as an ideal place to dine and frequent dinner parties are given there. A little later the club will inaugurate its weekly hunts, which are always popular with the riding members. The hounds are in fine condition and a successful season is anticipated.

Monroe A. C. Victorious.

In a well played and interesting game the Monroe A. C. defeated the Iola A. C. Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 3. This makes three victories out of five games played for the Monroes and Saturday's result was all the more enjoyable because it was accomplished with the regular lineup of the Iolas, including their crack battery, Hall and Linke. Vail and Pangborn formed the battery for the Monroes.

Improvements at the Hospital.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital has had a substantial concrete walk laid from Park avenue and Randolph road to the hospital building and the driveway is also being improved with a block pavement which will considerably lessen the noise of wagons and other vehicles that have business at the Institution.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

1. Strike out paragraph 3 of section I, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding that office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII, three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State, or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof, according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY. BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI, of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The matches scheduled for the challenge trophies at the Park Golf Club on Saturday are as follows: For trophy number one, W. R. Faber, holder, challenged by E. E. Gano; for trophy number three, Charles B. Morse, holder, challenged by Leon R. Thurlow; for trophy number five, Dr. A. W. Anderson, holder, challenged by J. B. Betts. On Saturday, W. V. Gano won the play off for the Holiday cup, defeating E. E. Gano.

Following closely in the wake of the national tournament comes the third annual open championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association at Baltusrol on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. On Friday, over the same course, the amateurs and professionals will team up in four-ball contests, conditions specifying that partners must be from the same club.

A high class entry for the open has been assured, as among the experts who have signified their intention of playing are Gilbert Nichols, the Woodland "pro," who won the recent Van Cortlandt Park tournament; Alec Ross, of Brae Burn, the Massachusetts open champion and former national title holder; Alec Smith, of Nassau; H. H. Barker, Garden City; Isaac Mackie, Fox Hills; Alec Campbell, Brookline, champion of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association; George Low, of Baltusrol, the metropolitan open champion; Donald Ball and Jack Campbell, of Philadelphia; Herbert Strong, Apawamis; Dave Hunter, Essex county; Dave Ogilvie, Morris county; Martin O'Loughlin, Plainfield; Jack Hobins, Englewood; Dave Honeyman, Arsdale; George Pearson, Yountakah; Jack Hutchinson, St. Andrews; Tom Anderson, Montclair; Alec Cunningham, Glen Ridge; Willie Norton, Deal; George Turnbull, Washington; Jack Mackie, Dunwoodie; John Pearson, Richmond county, and Jack Jolly, Arlington.

Immediately after winning the amateur title for the second time at Garden City on Saturday Jerome D. Travis, of Montclair, said that he would certainly play at Baltusrol if he could spare the time. In the last metropolitan open, played at Hollywood in 1906, Travers finished among the leaders far ahead of any of the other amateurs.

Conditions for the championship proper call for seventy-two holes of medal play, thirty-six each day, and it has been figured that the winner will have to return a score in the neighborhood of three hundred. The fact that this affair is open to the world this year is bound to increase the interest.

An interested spectator of the Travers-Travis match at Garden City last week was B. F. Guinand, who recently won the Iowa state championship over the links of the Des Moines Country Club. The course, which has been cut through woods, is the longest in the United States, covering a playing length of 6,872 yards, but this did not prevent Guinand from returning rounds of 75 and 77 in the thirty-six hole final, which is a competitive record for the links.

The new clubhouse and grounds of the Fairview Country Club were formally opened at Fernwood on Saturday. This club is now in possession of a long eighteen-hole course while the clubhouse is large and furnished with all conveniences. The Fernwood station is between Elmsford and East View, on the Putnam Railroad, and the distance from Fernwood to the club is not more than half a mile.

BASEBALL.

The Y. M. C. A. team may play the New Brunswick club at the latter place on Saturday. Negotiations are now pending between Manager Listman and the New Brunswick aggregation. The association will officially close its active season on Saturday, October 3. There is some talk of the final contest being with Clinton Avenue.

It is understood that Manager Bogart Conklin is willing to play the fifth and deciding game with Clinton Avenue on Crescent Oval, provided Manager Dorflinger will raise the prices from fifteen and ten cents to twenty-five cents for general admission and ten cents extra for grandstand seat. He thinks the class of ball being played by the two teams is worth a quarter. That may be, but it would not be fair to the fans to raise the prices now after charging fifteen and ten cents all summer. Manager Dorflinger does not favor the increase.

It is a curious fact that the Y. M. C. A. team always plays better ball away from home. This is proved by the result of the contests played this year. In nearly every instance when away the club has won, while at home it has been difficult to escape a defeat.

Bill Sweeney, the Boston third baseman, is going to Japan next winter.

Herzog is doing flashy work for New York in the absence of Larry Doyle.

Fred Lake, of the Boston American, has signed Danzig, of the New Bedford team.

American Association has no intention of invading the big league field. How could it, anyway?

Frank Chance is getting bald. Leading baseball teams in championship races is bad on the thatch.

Al Bridwell has the heart of the brave. Although badly spiked, he refused to stay out of the game.

Fred Clarke is a great believer in the college player. Quite a bunch of pipe smokers are on his team now.

Spike Shannon is a useful man for Pittsburg. He fits in nicely when one of the regulars can't attend school.

Cincinnati has almost a full team of bushers. They all won't be there when the train pulls for the South next spring.

President Murphy says that under no circumstances will the Cubs part with Artie Hoffman. "Greatest utility man in the business," is C. Webb's tip.

Chicago has had hard luck this season, and no mistake. One Cub statistician asserts that Chance and Evers have been out of thirty games; Sheckard forty games and Schulte fifty games.

Walter Johnson is truly a wonderful pitcher. Although he is not as strong as last year because of a long illness, he blanked the Highlanders three times in three playing days. That's a record which will stand a while.

It is said that Billy Gilbert may become manager of the Cardinals next year, while McCloskey will be retained as scout. It is a fact that McCloskey has few equals as a discoverer of players, but doesn't know what to do when he gets them.

PERSONAL.

Clerk William B. Sharp, of the postoffice, returned to his position yesterday after enjoying his annual vacation of fifteen days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dobbins and daughters, Elsie and Delia, of Caldwell, have returned home after a visit with relatives in this city.

Louis Slocum, of this city, left Plainfield Saturday for Nazareth, Pa., where he will resume his studies at the Nazareth Hall Military Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman, of Stelle avenue, who have been stopping in New York since their return from abroad, are now living at the Seminary on West Seventh street. They will remain there indefinitely. Mr. Chapman has disposed of his team and has purchased an automobile.

Miss Gertrude Hinz, contralto soloist of the First Baptist church choir, who returned last week from abroad, where she spent the summer, sang at the church on Sunday. While returning home on the steamer severe rough weather was experienced and Miss Hinz had a fall which caused a rather severe injury from which she is slowly improving.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The prayer and conference meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow night will be led by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, and the topic will be "If Not Gold and Silver, What Have We to Give?"

Members of the intermediate and junior classes of the First Baptist church Sunday-school are invited to meet in the lecture room of the church this afternoon at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of adopting a constitution for the new missionary society.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. J. B. Probasco, on East Front street, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Pauline Denton will lead the devotional exercises, and papers will be presented by Mrs. J. B. Probasco and Mrs. George Morris.

Ministerial Association Elects.

At a meeting of the Raritan Ministerial Association, attended by ministers from all over Hunterdon and Somerset counties, in the First Reformed chapel in Somerville yesterday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods, of Somerville, vice-president, Rev. Lucas Boeke, of Lebanon; secretary and treasurer, Rev. Charles E. Corwin, of North Branch. Rev. A. B. Cooper, of East Millstone, read an interesting paper on "Politics, Ministers and Religion." Dinner was served at Hotel Cawley.

The Boys' Brigade of Warren chapel will hold a cake sale Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Green, 24 Grandview avenue.

VAUDEVILLE HOUSE SOON TO BE OPENED

Manager W. J. Counihan today made plans to have the proposed alterations to Reform Hall commenced at once. They will be pushed through with all possible vigor in order to transform the building into a modern and commodious vaudeville and moving picture theatre. One of the improvements will be the erection of fire escapes and the opening of new exits.

The management of the new house will be controlled by the New Jersey Amusement Company, an organization formed by Mr. Counihan and in which he is associated with M. L. Shannon and S. W. Cunningham, of Plainfield, and Sam Harris, the New York theatrical magnate. The company yesterday signed contracts with Keith & Proctor to furnish all the vaudeville numbers for the Plainfield house. This places Mr. Counihan in practical control of the local amusement field as the big attractions are covered through his associations with Klaw & Erlanger for the New Plainfield theatre and the new vaudeville house will command the "continuous."

The opening date for the remodelled Reform Hall will be announced as soon as possible. Two performances a day will be given and women and children will be catered to especially.

HIS FORTUNE GOES TO ORANGE INSTITUTIONS

Six charitable organizations of the Oranges and the Grace Episcopal church are beneficiaries under the will of Jonathan J. Broome, the New York wholesale dry goods merchant of the firm of Butler, Broome & Clapp, who died in Saranac Lake on August 9. He lived for many years at Prospect street and Park avenue, East Oange. He and his wife built the Grace church parish house, Alice Broome Memorial, in memory of their daughter, and among the bequests in the will filed yesterday is one of $10,000 as an endowment for this building. The Orange Memorial Hospital, Orange Orphan Home and Bureau of Associated Charities will receive $2,500 each; the Orange Y. M. C. A., $2,000; the Record ambulance, $500, and the House of the Good Shepherd, $5,000.

Pending the settlement of the estate $20,000 is to be given to Mrs. Broome, who also receives the remainder of the estate after bequests of $80,000 to relatives are paid. The residuary estate is to be held in trust by the executors, Mrs. Broome, Jay C. Young and William Read Howe, and the income is to be paid to Mrs. Boome. She also will receive all the household effects, carriages, horses and the homestead.

The bequests are to be paid, so far as institutions are concerned, from the residuary estate at Mrs. Broome's death, and the beneficiaries are also to share pro rata in this estate after their bequests are deducted.

PERSONAL.

Judge William Newcorn and wife, of West Front street, returned home today from a pleasure trip to Boston and points in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Reed, of John street, returned home yesterday from an automobile tour to Boston. They have been absent a week.

Miss Ethel Gaskill, daughter of Mrs. Charles Leland, of West Fifth street, returned home yesterday after a visit of two weeks with relatives at Rahway.

Mr. Edward Watkins, of Baltimore, Md., who has been spending several days with Mrs. M. Hansen, of East Second street, returned home yesterday.

Miss Alice Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins, of West Fourth street, has returned home from a three weeks' vacation at Lake George, N. Y.

Charles M. Raybert, of East Second street, celebrated his birthday yesterday by taking his first ride in an automobile. He thoroughly enjoyed the outing.

STRUCK A LIGHT; THEN SHOT.

House Owner Wounded by Burglar Whom He Stumbled Upon.

George Winkler, of 16 Sherman street, got out of bed to take a drink at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at Passaic and stumbled against a burglar in his kitchen. The burglar lighted a match and after peering at Winkler shot him in the leg. Three other shots were fired by the burglar as he retreated to the window through which he had entered, but none hit Winkler. Only a few trinkets were stolen.

The same burglar, it is thought, got into the home of Michael Cobinos, of 2 Lincoln place, near the Winkler residence, and after stealing two gold watches opened the gas jets in two bedrooms.

The odor of gas awakened one of the children, who found the other members of the family partially overcome.

WEDDED SIXTY YEARS AGO.

Rev. and Mrs. David Niles Freeland Observe Anniversary in Elizabeth.

Sixty years ago yesterday Rev. David Niles Freeland and Miss Mary E. Burwell were married by Rev. Dr. C. E. Carter in the Second Presbyterian church in Philadelphia. Yesterday, at the home in Elizabeth, of their daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Miller, the anniversary was celebrated. There were present besides the three daughters of the couple several of the grandchildren and a large number of ministerial friends of the couple, as well as many of Rev. Mr. Freeland's former parishioners from Monroe, N. Y., where for thirty four years he was in charge of the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeland had known each other from childhood, their fathers being associated in the manufacture and sale of felt and silk hats in Philadelphia, and when Mr. Freeland was twenty-three and his bride sixteen years old they were married just after the minister had completed his college course at the University of Pennsylvania.

NOMINATE SCHWARTZ, PIERCE AND KIRSTEIN

Regulars' Candidates for Assembly are Nominated as is the Rest of their Ticket.

THOMPSON IN FOURTH PLACE.

Returns Come In Slowly—Elizabeth Polls Big Vote but Not So Elsewhere—The Results.

Here follows the vote polled at the respective primaries by the successful candidates for nomination in Union county yesterday:

For Senator—Ackerman, R., 8,277; Hyer, D., 5,852.

For Sheriff—Kirkland, R., 7,996; Martine, D., 5,806.

For Assembly—Pierce, R., 5,021; Kirstein, R., 3,360; Schwartz, R., 3,144; Thompson, R., 2,638; Stutzlen, R., 1,934; Trimble, R., 1,401; Henry, R., 1,107; Brower, D., 5,552; Reike, D., 5,533; Kiernan, D., 5,524.

For Coroner—Degenring, R., 8,216; Wagner, D., 5,770.

Despite the tremendous pressure brought to bear by the Local Optionists and Colbyites, A. K. Kirstein was renominated at the Republican primaries in Union county yesterday for the General Assembly. His running mates will be Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, who was high man on the ticket, and Augustus W Schwartz, all of whom were the candidates of the regular organization. Throughout the county, Thompson, of Westfield, ran a close fourth and much of his success was due to the work of his friends within the organization.

That Senator Ackerman is the choice of all Republicans for another term was shown amply, his vote being a distinct compliment. Captain Robert Kirkland also made a splendid run in all parts of the county, particularly in Elizabeth, where he lives.

CHESTER A. CAWLEY WEDS MISS JENNIE WINK

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wink in Somerville yesterday, when Mr. Wink's sister, Miss Jennie Wink, and Chester A. Cawley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cawley, were made husband and wife. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William S. Cranmer, pastor of the First Reformed church, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the couple. The bride was attired in a Rajah blue traveling suit and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. After the ceremony refreshments were served, after which the couple boarded the Harrisburg flyer for a six weeks' trip to California.

The bride has long been popular in Somerville social circles. The groom is the manager of the W. H. Cawley Co. plants in Somerville and Flemington. He is a charter member of the Lodge of Elks and of the Somerville A. C. and is high in Masonic circles.

Hurt By Breaking of Ladder.

George Quinn, a mason, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, suffering from several fractured ribs and contusions received in an accident. While ascending a ladder at the McDonough Brothers' new building on Madison avenue, the rungs broke and threw him to the ground. He was taken to the hospital in an automobile by his brother-in-law, Frank McInerny.

AWARD $4,000 DAMAGE

Verdict Given as Compensation for Injuries Sustained by Little Girl.

BATTLE OF THE PHYSICIANS.

Craig A. Marsh and Walter L. Hetfield Winners in Legal Sparring; Fight With A. A. Clark.

In the Middlesex Court at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon a verdict for $4,000 was given Ellen Rafferty, the 7-year-old daughter of James S. Rafferty, of Lincoln, who was thrown from a trolley car on February 21 last while trying to board it. The suit had been a battle of expert testimony, doctors for the girl claiming that she had been permanently injured, as she was suffering from a growth in the brain, while the company's doctors claimed that she was suffering with throat trouble, and could be relieved by a simple operation.

Dr. F. M. Donohue, of New Brunswick, examined the girl in open court yesterday morning, and declared positively that the child had adenoids. Dr. Frank C. Ard, of this city, throat specialist, testified that he made a thorough examination of the girl Monday night, and that she did not have adenoids. A half dozen other doctors gave conflicting testimony in the case. Among the other physicians testifying for the plaintiff were Drs. P. J. Mooney, of Brooklyn, and Charles Lufburrow, of this city.

Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was associated with Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh as counsel for the plaintiff. Former Congressman A. A. Clark was counsel for the defense.

FANWOOD BOROUGH KNOCKS OUT KIRSTEIN

French, 3; for members Borough Council—H. D. Knight, 2; Charles Sternheim, 2; for delegate State convention—Wright Babcock, 1; for delegate Congressional convention—Lucien Ashley, 1.

SOMERSET DEMOCRATS WAGE A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN.

Already the Democrats of Somerset county are getting ready to wage a great battle at the polls in November. Three mass-meetings have been arranged for this week. One will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in Voorhees' Hall at Rocky Hill, one on Thursday evening at the same hour in the school house at Harlingen, and one in Holcombe's Hall at Neshanic on Friday night. At all of these meetings the speakers will be former Congressman John J. Fitzgerald, of New York; Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, the Democratic nominee for State Senator, and Clarence Garretson, the Democratic nominee for Assembly.

Mission Workers Meet.

A rally service of the Home Mission Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Charles F. Dayton. A large number of members responded to the roll call. Plans of work for the coming year were discussed and preparations for filling a barrel to be sent to a missionary in the West was begun. Many of the articles sent are made by the ladies. During a pleasant social hour refreshments were served.

CITY PRIMARY SURPRISES

Democrats Name Manning Against Fisk and Kirstein Wins for Assembly.

BUCKLE'S SPLENDID VOTE.

Fourth Ward All Regular—New Idea Wins in Second and Third—Democrats' Complete Ticket.

Plainfield's first direct primary election yesterday was replete with surprises and not the least among them was the nomination of a complete city ticket on the part of the Democrats.

The regulars' candidates for general Assembly nomination, Kirstein, Pierce and Schwartz, won a signal victory although the Second and Third wards went against them. Pierce excepted, the last named being supported by the New Idea and the Local Optionists as well.

The Fourth ward was solid for the regulars' ticket and much was due there to the efforts of Andrew McCardell, Herbert Buxton and William Newcorn.

In the Second ward the Colbyites won easily with Frank Holt as their candidate for the Common Councilmanic nomination. In that ward, Lloyd Thompson defeated Kirstein for a place on the Assembly ticket. Thompson, in fact ran a close fourth in the race in this city as he had many friends in the regular organization.

Former Mayor James F. Buckle received a larger total vote than former Councilman William S. Tyler for member of the Board of Education, but as there are two vacancies both are nominees.

Walter L. Manning will be the opponent of Charles Joel Fisk at the general election on November3, as the result of yesterday's primaries. The Democrats have a complete set of candidates for all other municipal offices.

State Senator E. R. Ackerman, as the candidate for renomination made the best showing on the Republican ticket. Robert Kirkland, the shrievalty candidate, was a close second. In one respect, Mr. Pierce made the best showing for Assembly but when it is considered that he was unopposed the laurels go to Kirstein, who was bitterly antagonized by both the Colbyites and the Local Optionists.

CARPENTERS BADLY HURT

Scaffold Gives Way, Throwing Three of Them Thirty Feet to the Ground.

ALL TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

One of the Victims Injured Internally and May Possibly Die—Reside in Brooklyn.

By the breaking of a scaffold on a house being erected on Martine avenue, three carpenters were thrown to the ground and badly hurt, one of them perhaps fatally, yesterday afternoon. They were extricated from a mass of wrecked timbers and hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital, where it was said this morning that the recovery of one of them was uncertain.

The man most severely injured is Ludwig Johnson, of Brooklyn, who sustained a fractured ankle and possible internal hurts. He was caught beneath some of the timbers and was pinned down until help came. The other men are Albert Johnson, also of Brooklyn but who has been stopping at the Hotel Belmont, and John Benson, of the same city. Albert Johnson's right leg was fractured and Benson has contusions over the entire body.

The house where the accident occurred is one of a number being erected by the Central Realty Company. Most all the workmen are from out of town and the building is supervised by Ernest Sharp, the president and manager of the concern. The scaffold was erected by the men who were injured and was located just above the second story, a distance of about twenty-five or thirty feet from the ground. The carpenters had been at work on it all afternoon and were just about to quit for the day when the break occurred.

An investigation showed that the supporting braces had been insecurely put up. They were fastened to the side of the house and the nails pulled out, dropping the entire platform. The crash brought a lot of workmen to the scene and the ambulance was summoned as the work of rescue took place.

Ludwig Johnson was taken to the hospital first and the other two were given temporary treatment while awaiting the vehicle's return.

COLBY'S MAJORITY APPROXIMATELY 1,200

Reliable reports from Newark at 2:30 this afternoon indicate that Everett Colby has defeated Judge Thomas L. Raymond for State Senator.

With some districts yet to be heard from his majority is placed at approximately 1,800 over the regular organization candidate. Twenty-one districts are missing.

William Fellowes Morgan, the Colbyite candidate for sheriff, is in the lead and his nomination is probable. According to the best information obtainable at 2:30, the Republican Assembly contest is still in doubt, the regulars claiming a victory.

The regular Republicans dispute Mr. Colby's claims and are confident that Judge Raymond has won.

At 2:45, a reliable dispatch from Newark announces that Mr. Colby's majority is about 1,200. Mr. Morgan's majority is placed at approximately 1,50. At 3 o'clock there was still four districts to be heard from. Mr. Colby had 900 majority. These missing districts will approximately add 300 to his vote.

Work for Harmony.

The friends of W. L. Smalley held a conference Monday and agreed to meet a number of Republicans, who were to decide what best course was advisable for the party to persue in regard to the councilmanic nominees. Such a meeting was held without any definite action being taken. Mr. Smalley stood ready to drop from the contest if it was deemed best for party harmony.

EASY FOR REGULARS IN FANWOOD TOWNSHIP

In Fanwood township, the result in the Republican camp was much one-sided, the regulars winning an easy victory with Kirstein, Pierce and Schwartz as their candidates for General Assembly. John Robison was renamed for Freeholder, while George H. Johnston was again nominated for county committee. There were no contests in the Democratic ranks and there was no cutting done. Eighty-one votes were cast in the Republican box, while fourteen were found in the Democratic box, two of which were rejected.

These were the results of the primaries:

REPUBLICAN.

For Senator—Ernest R. Ackerman, 81. For sheriff—Robert J. Kirkland, 81. For members of the General Assembly—Richard F. Henry, 2; Albert F. Kirstein, 62; Carlton B. Pierce, 70; Augustus W. Dunellen Resident Dead.

Peter Merchrod, one of Dunellen's oldest and best known citizens, died at his home on North avenue, shortly before none today. He was in his eighty-fifth year and had lived in Dunellen a long time. He leaves a wife, one son, John Merschrod and a daughter, Miss Merschrod, living at the home.

Plan Dime Social.

A Dime Social will be held tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Weber, of 408 West Third street. It will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Heyse chapel and the proceeds will go to the organ fund. All members of Heyse chapel are cordially invited to participate in this affair.

SHOOTS WIFE IN BED; THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Early Morning Tragedy at Home of Louis Kiehl on Rock Avenue.

WOMAN WILL PROBABLY DIE.

Husband Believed She Was Accepting Attentions From Charles Thomas who Boarded With Them.

Actuated by what he believed to be faithlessness on the woman's part, Louis Kiehl, a motorman on the Netherwood line of the local trolley, returned to his home at Rock avenue and Fourth street at 2 o'clock this morning and fired two bullets into his wife as she lay in bed asleep. He then turned the weapon upon himself and blew out his brains, dying almost instantly. His wounded victim was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital but her death is said to be only a matter of time.

One of the bullets struck the woman in the right temple and passed downward, emerging below the jaw. The other one entered the right breast and is lodged somewhere in the organs, the physicians being unable to locate it exactly. She has remained unconscious since she was shot.

The tragedy was carefully planned by Kiehl and it is known that he wrote a farewell letter to a friend yesterday afternoon. It was inscribed in German and was found on his body after it was taken to an undertaking establishment at Dunellen. The contents have not been given out.

Kiehl and his wife had only been married eight months but they had quarrelled nearly all the time because of the husband's jealousy. He frequently accused her of being intimate with Charles Thomas, a boarder at their home, who they induced to come out from New York to live with them. To his neighbors, Kiehl stated on frequent intervals that he and his wife were not married but the police have learned that this is not so. The ceremony was performed in New York and both Thomas and Augustus Sutterlein, of West Front street, were witnesses. The woman was a widow, her name then being Amelia Fuller.

Kiehl was of a taciturn disposition but he openly discussed his wife's alleged fondness for Thomas. He referred to it frequently and while his neighbors or friends saw nothing to substantiate his allegations the subject was always uppermost when he talked. His work kept him out late at night and when he returned home early this morning his plans to wreak vengeance had been completed.

Mrs. Kiehl was sleeping in a bed room on the first floor. He evidently proceeded directly to her and fired the first bullet after careful aim. The report aroused Thomas who occupied a room upstairs. He had barely awoke and was still wondering what the noise was when he heard the second shot. He started downstairs as fast as he could go but had taken only a step or two when the third report sounded clear. Kiehl's body, lying in the center of the room greeted his gaze as he entered the bedchamber and another look showed the bloodstained face of the wife framed by her pillow.

Without investigating further, Thomas hurried to Lawrence Kerwin's hotel next door and a boy was dispatched on horseback for the nearest physician. He returned with Dr. Platt, of Dunellen, who pronounced the man dead, but found Mrs. Kiehl breathing regularly. He gave temporary treatment and then had her taken to the hospital in the ambulance.

Kiehl was forty-five years old and came to Plainfield from New York five years ago. He had always been employed by teh trolley company and the local superintendent declared him to be one of the most reliable men in the service. He was sober and industrious but mingled but little with the other employes. He was on the Fourth and Somerset street lines for a long time but was recently transferred to Netherwood. The only known relative is a sister-in-law, Mrs. Liable, living in New Market.

The scene of the affair is just over the line in Middlesex county and the local police took no action after the first investigation. Chief Kiely was notified by the neighbors and Roundsman Higgins was sent to the

Mrs. J. E. Rutt, of East High street, Bound Brook, is spending several days with friends at Haines Falls, N. Y.

WESTFIELD.

North avenue between Central avenue and Westfield avenue, was sprinkled with crude oil yesterday under the direction of the Board of Freeholders. The oil was used freely and a very vigorous protest has gone up from the storekeepers and housekeepers, who claim the oil is tracked in and ruins floors and carpets.

The primary election in Garwood yesterday had all the excitement of a regular election. There were three sets of candidates in the field, and all working hard. In Westfield the primary election was very quiet, as there were no contests on.

In Westfield the primary elections yesterday were held at the same polling places as the regular election last fall.

NORTH BRANCH.

A moving picture show will be given in the Methodist Episcopal church at Neshanic Station Saturday evening, October 3, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

Rev. Charles E. Corwin, pastor of the Reformed church in North Branch, was yesterday elected secretary and treasurer of the Raritan Ministerial Association.

Mrs. Thomas B. Skillman has returned to her home at Blawenburg, after a visit to her daughter, Mrs. H. Bert Ten Eyck, in North Branch.

Miss Frances Trimmer has returned to her home in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., after spending the summer with her grandmother at Three Bridges.

Mrs. Charles E. Young, of Somerville, has returned to her home after a visit to her aunt, Mrs. James L. Stillwell, near North Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. James Woods, of Pluckemin, have been entertaining James Woods and family, of Jersey City, for a few days.

Mrs. Daniel H. Beekman, of North Branch, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Rinehart, near Pottersville.

Mrs. Lewis Tingley and son Joseph, of Franklin, have been spending a few days with relatives at Readington.

The tax rate has been fixed by the county board at $1.51 against $1.44 of last year, an increase of 7 cents. This is not as bad as the majority of the tax payers were looking for, in view of the school appropriations raised and the county road bond falling due.

Charles Haberly, who was injured last week while working about the Elizabethport station, is improving nicely, although it will be several weeks before he will be able to return to his position with the Central Railroad.

Mrs. Theodore Smith and son, who have been spending two weeks with Mrs. Augusta Miller, returned to their home in Trenton yesterday.

Mrs. Charles N. Flanders, of Front street, has returned from a visit of two weeks with her neice, Mrs. Cottrell, at Bayonne.

Abram Wade attended the annual reunion of his old regiment, the Thirty-third, held at Paterson yesterday.

The local ball team play the Highlanders of Plainfield, on the local diamond Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Hosinger has been entertaining relatives from New York over Sunday.

ASK TO HAVE DOLAN ADMITTED TO BAIL.

Application was made before Judge Atwater in court yesterday by counsel for John Dolan, of Morristown, who is charged with the murder of Miss Gertrude Hand, to have Dolan released on bail.

Judge Atwater said he had no authority to fix bail in a murder case, and therefore would turn the matter over to Justice Bergen. Another application will be made to the justice today or Thursday.

The crime for which Dolan is held was his alleged part in bringing about the death of Miss Hand by peritonitis through having an operation performed by a New York physician, whom the police are seeking.

Mrs. Nellie Johnson, of Hoboken, sister of Dolan, who was arrested Saturday for alleged complicity in the crime, has been allowed to go on her own recognizance. She will be called as a witness whenever her testimony is required.

The Queen's Coachman.

A Queen's coachman is a personage of no small importance. Certainly the coachman to her late majesty, Queen Victoria, had a befitting sense of the dignity and responsibility of his position. On the occasion of the jubilee of 1887 he was asked if he was driving any of the royal guests at that time quartered in Buckingham Palace. "No, sir," was his reply. "I am the Queen's coachman; I don't drive the riff-raff."—London Telegraph.

Pastoral Relationship Dissolved.

The Classis of Raritan held a special session at Somerville yesterday afternoon and dissolved the pastoral relationship of Rev. Dr. E. G. Read and the Second Reformed church. Dr. Read will close his pastorate on Sunday next. The Christian Endeavor Society gave him a reception last night and a congregational reception will be held on Thursday night, in the chapel. Dr. Read has been pastor of the church for twenty-six years.

Irving Manley Injured.

Irving Manley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Manley, of Park avenue, caught the fore-finger of his right hand in a bicycle chain, while cleaning his wheel yesterday, severely lacerating it. The little fellow went to the office of Dr. T. Davis, had the finger dressed, put in splints, and he now carries his arm in a sling.

Park Club Active.

The entertainment committee of the Park Club is beginning to prepare for an active fall and winter season at the popular clubhouse. There will be the usual dances, receptions, etc., for which the place has heretofore been noted, while the bowling will be an added attraction throughout the winter.

Louis Wyckoff Improving.

Louis Wyckoff, the four-year-old lad residing on Grove street, who was so badly burned a few days ago by being pushed into a bon-fire at his home, is improving steadily and the physician in charge anticipates a speedy recovery.

New Fall Tailored Suits

Smart Styles, with Proper Tailoring, 10.98 to 27.50.

Each season we try to do a little better than the season before. This can be applied to every line we carry, but is markedly noticeable in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department, since the old firm showed little progress in this line. From the very start we began to clean out the old stock with a view to replace it with an up-to-date, well made line of goods. Our connection with the Tepper Cloak and Suit Factory at 39 East 19th street, New York, who sell to the biggest retailers in the city, gave us a very desirable advantage in handling this line. You could see the marked improvement in the suits we handled the first season—better styles, better workmanship, at such low prices, and now we are working just as hard to do better than our former best efforts—to show you more good styles, and more "better values" than you have seen in Plainfield in any one season.

REQUISITES FOR THE SEASON.

Revealed in Rare Profusion in Our Golden Jubilee Fashion Show.

We have taught our friends and patrons to expect much of us—to look to us for the very best ideas in hats and gowns and other apparel, and to guide by our presentations as authoritative revelations of the fashions most in vogue, and in no past instance have we failed to measure up to every expectation, nor do we fail in this Fall's display.

In the show we are making today, and will continue for days to come, we reveal in a wide variety of forms the dreams of those who shape the fashions in hats and gowns. Here are seen splendid specimens of the creations of foreign modistes of renown and of artist dressmakers whose work has brought New York to the fore as a fashion centre.

Not all the rare and beautiful hats are Parisian models nor even copies, for our own designers have done good work which we are sure will find fullest appreciation from our public. During these Formal Opening Days—

Wednesday and Thursday,

there will be magnificent displays, both in our great show windows and in all the apparel divisions of the store, as well as in those departments wherein we sell silks and dress stuffs and laces.

No special invitations have been issued—we invite all New Jersey to come.

Some of the Hats Seen

A beautiful hat is this one of Bengaline in champagne color, trimmed with an immense bird muck like a pheasant, with an extremely long tail in richest colorings in which are mingled deep red, olive and brown; a huge buckle of gunmetal and rhinestones over velvet shows at the front of this hat, the price of which is $45.

A Scratched Felt Hat in leather color will attract your attention. It has huge black wings spread over from both sides of the crown sweeping to the back; caught in front with capuchin of tinsel and leather; a bunch of black roses ornaments the back of the crown between the wings. The price is $35.

A very pretty hat is one of White Satin, faced and edged with black velvet, with two gorgeous white plumes flowing from the top of the crown down either side; black velvet bands surround the crown. The effect is superb and distinctive. This hat will cost you $40.

One of the richest of our hats is one of Taupe Velvet, faced with light blue taffeta, the crown surrounded with willow ostrich plumes and three beautiful satin plumes on the left side. This hat is marked $60.

A White Beaver Hat faced with black velvet, trimmed with white osprey, of which there is a generous bunch, and large rhinestone buckle in black ribbon velvet is a most distinctive model which will delight many. This hat may be had at $45.

One of the most striking effects we show is an immense Black Velvet Hat in the richest Charlotte Corday shape, with one great black ostrich plume placed so that the tip hangs down over the brim of the hat towards the front of the face, and in front of the crown hooded with black velvet is a huge pink rose, forming a most effective and distinctive combination. Price is $45.

Some of the Rich Gowns.

Most appropriate in this Golden Jubilee Exhibit is this beautiful Directoire Gown of rich Meteor Satin—a brilliant golden shade—with entire bodice elaborately hand embroidered in silk front and back, the skirt being absolutely plain, yoke and collar formed of exquisite lace and mousquetaire sleeves of shirred chiffon are very pretty edged with fancy ball fringe. The price of this gown is $150.00.

A Black Empire Gown of Satin and Fancy Net over White Satin is one of the most beautiful things we show. There is a solid front panel effect of satin with heavily silk embroidered edge, the embroidery running over the shoulder, the back practically duplicating the front. This gown has mousquetaire sleeves of fancy lace with epaulet of white lace and cuffs edged with pink satin; yoke and collar of white lace with narrow band of pink satin and tiny steel beads. The price is $198.00.

Another beautiful gown is a Directoire Effect of Novelty Chiffon Velvet over corn satin, caught at the waist and in back with fancy passementerie ornaments. It has yoke and collar of the daintiest Point de Flanders lace edged with embroidered net in richest Persian colorings. It has mousquetaire sleeves of black lace and embroidered net. The train is generously long and the whole effect is decidedly graceful and high toned. The price is $198.00.

A charming gown is this one of Old Rose Crepe de Soie, beautifully embroidered in contrasting colors of silk, with yoke of rich cluny and sash of same material as gown falling over the shoulders gracefully down the back; lavishly embroidered in silk. The sleeves are extremely beautiful and are formed of lace, dainty tucks and insertions. The price is $159.00.

Perhaps the most gorgeous gown of all is this Black Beauty of Net over Black Satin, lavishly embroidered in peacock blue silk and spangles in peacock and floral designs. It has a fancy yoke and sleeves of shirred net and satin, and cuffs of black satin and white ruching, and Empire sash of black satin with jet bead ends. The price seems very low for such an elaborate gown—$159.00.

Manager Bogart Conklin, of the Somerville team, declares that he cannot afford to come to Plainfield for $40, the amount he received last Saturday as his share of the receipts. He also says that when he brought his team here for the first game this season he did so for a $25 guarantee, while the receipts at the game were about $150. This he believes to be unfair. He thinks that the Clinton Avenue management should be willing to raise the price of admission, as both teams are playing the kind of ball that is worth twenty-five cents. He adds that he has scheduled a game with Bound Brook at the latter place for Saturday, and the home team has decided to charge an admission fee of twenty-five cents.

A half-hundred local fans witnessed the double-header at the Polo Grounds yesterday between the Giants and Chicago. The fact that the Giants lost to Pittsburg on Monday and the Cubs took a double-header in Philadelphia, tended to intensify the interest.

A good game is promised the fans on Saturday, when the Y. M. C. A. team, winners of the State Y. M. C. A. League pennant will clash with the Clinton Avenues, the city champions, for the local championship.

Cree, the new outfielder of the Highlanders, has been hitting the ball well since he broke into fashionable company.

Addie Joss is making heroic efforts to land the Clevelands at the top of the heap. He has been pitching mighty fine ball for them of late.

The Phillies have been the softest sort of picking for the New Yorks, but don't forget that they did a good deal toward making the National League race by the things they did to the Cubs and Pirates.

When Earl Moore joins the Phillies today he will have been in three different leagues within two years. He was with the Clevelands and New Yorks of the American League last year, then with Jersey City and now with the National League.

The New York Americans are showing that they can get along very well without Chase. No player is indispensable, and fine player as Chase was, he can be spared by both the local club and the American League without either being any the worse.

Monte Cross must have done some good fielding in the American Association this year, for Jake Beckley says he has it on Bush, the Indianapolis shortstop purchased by Detroit and considered one of the prize youngsters of that organization. But, as Beckley says, Cross is going and Bush is coming. Beckley also observes that Marquard was the best pitcher in the American Association.

GOLF.

It is not unlikely that the conditions governing the annual intercity competition for the Robert Lesley cup will be changed between now and the 1909 gathering. The plan is to widen the scope so as to take in the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, which is composed of Washington, Baltimore and Wilmington clubs. Alexander Britton, of the Chevy Chase club, who is also a member of the United State Golf Association executive committee, has started the movement in favor of admitting the Middle Atlantic body.

As the matter now stands, the Lesley cup competition consists of an annual tri-city struggle between the Boston, Philadelphia and New York districts. The holder of the trophy each year stands out and meets the winner of the match between the two other sections. With four teams competing it would give all hands a chance to play on the first day, the two winners meeting on the next.

There is also a plan under foot to increase the territory of the Philadelphia body so as to include all Pennsylvania, which could be done by forming a Pennsylvania State Golf Association. It is said that the Pittsburg golfers would gladly enter into a project of this kind. This year's tri-city competition will be held at Garden City, on October 2 and 3, with the same conditions as last season, the two ball foursome taking the place of the four ball.

The names of the metropolitan players who will be called upon for the team have been officially given out as follows: Walter J. Travis, captain; Jerome D. Travers, Max Behr, Fred Herreshoff, Charles H. Seely, John M. Ward, George T. Brokaw, Arden M. Robbins, C. E. Sawyer, Dwight Partridge, Findlay S. Douglas and Archie Reid.

The likely players in the two other associations are as follows: Boston—H. H. Wilder, captain; J. G. Anderson, T. R. Fuller, P. W. Whittemore, W. C. Chick, H. R. Johnstone, J. G. Thorp, Andrew Carnegie, 2d, T. M. Claflin, A. L. White, J. B. Hylan, G. H. Crecker, T. G. Stevenson and A. G. Lockwood. Philadelphia—W. P. Smith, captain; Dr. Simon Carr, A. W. Tillinghast, H. B. McFarland, H. W. Perrin, R. A. Griscom, W. L. Thompson, Richard Hanson, James Alcom, Walter Pfeil, A. H. Smith and W. T. West.

The metropolitan team is the present holder of the Lesley trophy. Last year's competition was held over the Country Club of Brookline links, Philadelphia contending with New York in the decisive match.

HEAVY VOTE IS CAST IN WARREN TOWNSHIP.

The largest vote ever polled at a primary in Warren township was cast yesterday, there being 158 votes in the two boxes. On the Democratic ticket for town clerk, Horace Coddington and Mark Stultz were the candidates. Coddington won out with a majority of 13. For town committeeman, Henry Rogers defeated Joseph Wittman by 12 majority.

L. A. Tunison was nominated delegate to the State convention, and John D. Bornmann to the Congressional convention. Bornmann was also chosen a member of the executive committee.

On the Republican ticket John C. Cooper was nominated for town committeeman; John Brackway for town clerk; W. R. Toms delegate to State convention, and E. E. Cooper delegate to Congressional convention. John C. Cooper was named as member of the executive committee for two years.

RESULTS OF PRIMARIES IN NEW PROVIDENCE.

New Providence Township.

The local fight of interest among the Republicans was for the nomination for town committeeman, and George Wall, Jr., defatd William Jeffery, the "bungalow man," by five votes, receiving forty-one to thirty-six for Jeffery. The other results:

Republican.

For Senator—Ernest R. Ackerman, 94; for Sheriff—Robert J. Kirkland, 96; for member of Board of Freeholders—John F. Wall, 31; for members General Assembly—Henry, 35; Kirstein, 35; Pierce, 35.

Democratic.

For Senator—Frederick Hyer, 28; for Sheriff—James E. Martine, 28; for members General Assembly—Brower, 28; Kiernan, 28; Rieke, 28.

WARREN ENDEAVORERS MAKE POPCORN AND CANDY.

Following the regular meeting of the Warren chapel Christian Endeavor Society last night, the members and friends to the number of seventy five adjourned to the big kitchen, where they made popcorn and candy. Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, who is an expert in the making of confections, supervised the process and several first class batches were obtained. Games were enjoyed afterward.

The social was the first of a series of informal affairs that are to be conducted by the society during the winter. The social committee was in charge and will arrange the others. The regular meeting was in charge of Miss Hattie Taynor.

HOT CONTEST IN BOROUGH

Smalley and Stahl Triumph in Bitter Republican Councilmanic Fight.

DEMOCRATS FOR LINBARGER.

Local Candidates for County Clerk Choice of Borough Party Men —Little Excitement Over Other Candidates.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley gave ample demonstration yesterday at the primaries in North Plainfield that he still occupies a prominent position in the political album of Somerset county leaders of the day. Coming to the aid of his brother, William L. Smalley, Jr., who was in the thick of a vigorous fight to land himself on the Republican councilmanic ticket, the former chief executive showed that he was as clever as ever at the game. As a result, Candidate Smalley swept all three districts and came out of the fray as high man on that section of the ballot. Julius J. Stahl ran a close second and will share a place with him as a successful nominee. Councilman E. P. T. Smith, however, went down in defeat for a renomination being a poor third in the lively contest. This was the only fight among the Republicans.

The Democrats chose Walter C. Linbarger in preference to George W. Anderson. As many however, voted for two candidates by mistake. Linbarger's vote was much smaller than expected. S. S. Swackhamer received one vote for assembly nomination. Nelson Y. Dungan received the full party strength in both districts for State Senate.

Following are the results:

REPUBLICAN.

First District—State Convention—N. B. Smalley, 55; Congressional convention—B. A. Hegeman, Jr., 59; Alex Milne, 55; for senator—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 157; for General Assembly—William W. Smalley, 162; for county clerk—Alexander G. Anderson, 168; for members of council—William L. Smalley, Jr., 134; Edward P. T. Smith, 59; Julius J. Stahl, 115; for county committee—Newton B. Smalley, 153.

Second District—For State convention—J. H. Schenck, 40; for Congressional convention—Robert Clark, Jr., 26; L. B. Woolston, 25; for Senator—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 183; for General Assembly—William W. Smalley, 182; for county clerk—Alexander G. Anderson, 184; for council—William L. Smalley, Jr., 125; Edward P. T. Smith, 81; Julius J. Stahl, 117; for county committee—Lemuel B. Woolston, 186.

Third District—For State Convention—Walter Apgar, 16; for Congressional convention—W. L. Sharkey, 1; B. R. Waldron, 1; for Senator—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, 205; for General Assembly—William W. Smalley, 207; for county clerk—Alexander G. Anderson, 212; for council—William L. Smalley, Jr., 149; Edward P. T. Smith, 66; Julius J. Stahl, 147; for county committee—Barzillia R. Waldron, 209.

DEMOCRATIC.

First District—For State convention—C. R. Theirs, 15; for Congressional convention—W. N. Pangborn, 27; for Senator—N. Y. Dungan, 21; for Assembly—Garretson, 19; for county clerk—G. W. Anderson, 5; W. L. Linbarger, 15; for council—George Hummer, 20; Frank Mobus, 21; for county committee—Robert Trewin, 27.

Second district—For State convention—F. M. Ward; for congressional convention—D. Bodine; for senator—Dungan, 33; for Assembly—Garretson, 16; Swackhamer, 1; for county clerk—Linbarger, 23; G. W. Anderson, 1; for council—Hummer, 33; Mobus, 31; for county committee—George Kirch, 33.

Third district—For State convention—John McCullough, 40; for Congressional convention—G. P. Kiely, 72; James J. Daly, 74; for Senator—Dungan, 74; for Assembly—Garretson, 39; for county clerk—Linbarger, 49; Anderson, 3; for county committee—Linbarger, 74.

Christian Greetings.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, who was pastor of the Baptist church at Pemberton for twenty-eight years, today received a telegram message from the Camden Association, which is in conference. It reads: "The Camden Association sends Christian greetings and loving sympathy. We greatly miss you. Read Romans viii: 28-39; also Twenty-third Psalm." In reply Dr. Buchanan sent this message: "Read Second Thessalonians ii: 13." The verses mentioned aptly convey the sentiments of the senders in each case as may be seen by referring to them.

Miss Hazel C. Wagner.

Hazel C. Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wagner, of New York city, died yesterday at the home of her aunt, Miss Pauline Mast, of Watchung avenue. She was fourteen years old and came to Plainfield two weeks ago to visit. The funeral will be held at Miss Mast's home tomorrow night at 7:30 and will be conducted by Rev. J. W. Musson. Burial will be in the Luthehan cemetery on Long Island, Friday morning.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

In consequence of the passing of the act to prevent the use of hotel parlors as voting places, the primaries yesterday took place at the new fire house. There was very little stir in the town and only about forty votes cast altogether.

The repairs to the road between South Plainfield and Samptown are fast nearing completion, and it looks as though the road bed will be better this winter, than it has been within the memory of man.

The pastor's address last evening on the short and shameful reign of James II, of England, brought out a good number and was listened to with much interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Thorn, accompanied by thier son, Alfred, who have been visiting at Chambelain House, have returned to their home in North Plainfield.

Melvin Shrope has taken Thomas Linaberry's place as yardmaster at the Lehigh Valley depot during the latter's vacation.

The concrete sidewalk and curb in front of the local school are finished and have made a great improvement to the property.

Mrs. David Blackford is away on a visit to her father at Irvington.

PFEIFFER FOR SHERIFF CHOICE AT DUNELLEN

William H. Pfeiffer was the choice for sheriff of the shrievalty nomination in Middlesex county at the Republican primaries in Dunellen borough yesterday, while Edwin C. McKeag, William C. Voorhees and Rene P. F. von Minden were the selections for Assembly nominations by the same party. These were the only contests and there was none among the Democrats. The Republicans polled sixty-three votes but two ballots were rejected, whiles the Democrats' box contained thirty-nine all of which were valid. The Democrats voted $4,000 as appropriation for borough purposes and $150 for the support of the poor.

Abner S. Coriell for delegate to the State convention, and Peter W. Brakeley for justice of the peace received the highest votes, 61 ballots being cast in the Republican primaries for each.

The results follow:

REPUBLICAN.

For delegate to State convention—Abner S. Coriell, 61; for delegates to congressional convention—Wilson S. Frederick, 60; John P. Fenner, 60; for sheriff—Richard A. Peltier, 4; William Carman, 15; William Oberman, 3; William H. Pfeiffer, 29, for members of General Assembly—James A. Edgar, 24; Rene P. F. von Minden 37; Edwin C. McKeag, 45, William C. Voorhees, 42. For coroners—Ferdinand Garretson, 60; John V. Hubbard, 60; for councilmen for three years—Charles H. Berkheiser, 60; George Huff, 59; for councilmen for two years—Firman H. Gise, 29; for justice of the peace—Peter W. Brakeley, 61.

DEMOCRATIC.

For delegate to State convention—William J. Winges, 37; for delegates to Congressional convention—James Y. Wilson, 35; Charles E. Richards, 36; for sheriff—William H. Quackenboss, 39; for members of General Assembly—Howard J. Butcher, 39; Schuyler VanCleef, 34; William E. Ramsay, 39; for coroners—Martin S. Meinzer, 39; William J. Condon, 39; for councilmen for three years— G. Sumner Smith, 36; John H. VanMiddlesworth, 35; for councilman for two years—Theodore Apgar, 36; for justice of the peace—David S. Campbell, 11.

UP TO PUBLISHERS.

All in County on Jury to Consider Excise Violations.

When the September term of the Cumberland County Courts opened yesterday at Bridgeton, it was found that every newspaper publisher in the county was a member of the Grand Jury summoned by Sheriff Souder. There are 112 cases to be considered, fully four-fifths of which are for violations of the excise laws in the very dry towns of Millville, Bridgeton and Vineland, where there are no licensed places, but where recent raids disclosed many places where liquor is sold without much consideration for the laws.

The newspapers have been insisting upon observance of the laws, and it is supposed that the sheriff decided to put the matter squarely up to the publishers to find indictments. In his charge Justice Trenchard paid particular attention to these cases, and cited the laws at considerable length. Wholesale indictments are expected to result.

Talked on Christian Law of Life.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, made an address on "Christian Law of Life" last night at the week's celebration marking the reopening of the First M. E. church at Cranford.

RESULTS OF PRIMARIES IN SOMERSET COUNTY

The primaries in Somerset county yesterday afternoon passed off very quietly. The chief reason for this perhaps was because in both of the big parties there was scarcely any contest for the county offices to be filled. In some of the voting districts, however, there were a number of warm scraps for the local offices, but nothing to cause any widespread excitement.

On the Republican side of the house State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen is renominated without opposition, as were also his runningmates on the county ticket, Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, and County Clerk Alexander G. Anderson, of Somerville. Col. Nelson Y. Dungen, of Somerville on the Democratic side, had no opposition for the nomination for State Senator and Clarence Garretson, of Somerville, was made the candidate for member of the Assembly. His name was not printed on the tickets, but he was picked out for the honor the night before the primaries and his name was written on by the voters. He is a young lawyer of marked ability, and his friends expect him to make Assemblyman Smalley hustle.

For County Clerk there was a battle waged between Walter C. Linbarger, a Democratic leader in North Plainfield, and George W. Anderson, of Bound Brook, who was formerly the deputy surrogate. With about eight of the voting districts of the county to be heard from yet this morning the indications pointed to the nomination of Linbarger by a small majority.

The primaries in Bridgewater township (Somerville) had no Republican contests. For the Democratic nomination for collector, Chas. L. Voorhees defeated John Tulauf and George A. Vasseller. For township clerk George E. Sansan bested Caleb Brokaw.

The Bridgewater Republicans renominated Joseph Fitzga for member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders and the Democrats nominated John Slattery.

In Bernards township John V. Bunn was renominated for Freeholder. Charles P. Dunster will be his Democratic opponent.

Thomas E. Gibson was nominated for Freeholder by the Democrats in Franklin, and Peter H. Smith by the Republicans of Bound Brook.

"BOSS" DAN VOORHEES GOES DOWN IN DEFEAT

From the latest returns throughout Morris county the indications this afternoon are that the new primary election has dealt an effective blow against the Republican machine. State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, the boss of the machine, claims a victory for the organization candidates, but admits it has been a hard fight to poll votes for his candidates.

The fight in this county has been for the county clerkship. Voorhees is the present clerk, holding two offices. His candidate is former Assemblyman John M. Mills, who is now deputy county clerk, besides holding several other political jobs. Mills was opposed by E. Bertram Mott, a former deputy clerk.

Mott has a strong following and received the independent vote in the county. He has won the election. There was a large vote throughout the county and the new primary law worked successfully. The Democrats have no contest.

FREUDENMACHEE WINS.

Gets Nomination for Sheriff Despite Church Opposition.

Philip Freudenmacher will be the Republican candidate for sheriff of Mercer county. He defeated his three opponents by an overwhelming majority in yesterday's primaries, despite the combined attacks of the church interests.

There were no contests for the Assembly nominations. The nomination of Freudmacher is regarded as a vindication for General Murray, the Republican leader, and the regular organization.

FORT NOT TO STUMP.

Says He Has Made No Arrangements to Do So.

Because of the primary elections that were being held throughout the State yesterday, Governor's day was a very quiet one yesterday. The Governor arrived early and attended to several detail matters and returned to his summer home on an early train in the afternoon.

When asked how many addresses he expected to make outside of the State during the campaign, the Governor said he had not arranged to make any speeches outside of New Jersey. He added that he had not even made arrangements to make any speeches in the State.

Freeholder Nominations.

The following were nominated for members of the Board of Freeholders from Elizabeth on the Republican ticket: Charles J. Jensen, William H. Garretson, Thomas F. Haviland and Jacob Martin.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Jack Dorris, the great Jail Breaker in Harry Clay Blaney's latest melodramatic success, "From Sing Sing to Liberty," is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

Local theatre-goers will have an opportunity of seeing Nanette Comstock in a role entirely different from any she has yet assayed in her new play, "Jet," by Louise Lovell, which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night. "Jett" is a play in four acts, and tells a pretty little romance of the Sunny South which almost culminates in a tragedy, but as is generally the case, ends happily. There are several strong dramatic scenes, and abundance of good wholesome comedy, a heart interest that is most intense, the whole being supplemented by a magnificent production and a company of sterling players. Associated with Miss Comstock are such well-known actors and actresses as Thomas Meighan, Frederick Sullivan, Morgan Thorpe, Horace James, Dell LaBarr, John Tansey, Lesbia Grealis, Edith Luckett, Jane Dara, Carey Hastings, Emily Lorraine and others.

John Philip Sousa is a composer who has enjoyed a peculiar distinction not included in the experience of many writers of opera scores. The fact is well known that Sousa composed the opera "El Capitan." He also wrote the lyrics to his music, and Charles Klein, author of "The Lion and the Mouse," wrote the book. Ordinarily this accomplished, the work of composer and author has but begun, for after a performance of the play, the defects and weak points are brought out and the remedies suggested. Thus, it is frequently weeks after the opening performance before the rearranged manuscript is released, while the resulting changes make almost a new opera. When "El Capitan" was given its premieu in Boston the construction was so perfectly satisfactory that not even was there an after rehearsal announced for the next day, as is customary with many standard and not-to-be-altered operas. "El Capitan" had a long and popular life and remains, today, as it was originally written. Sousa and his band will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night.

John Philip Sousa at New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday.

Mary Marble, who, with "Little Chip," will be seen here in the great big musical laugh, "His Honor the Mayor," at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, is the wife of John Dunne, who travels with the company himself. Her part in "His Honor the Mayor" is that of a demure little country girl, May Flood, daughter of Deacon Flood, and she gets more fun out of it than in anything she has ever appeared. "Little Chip" as the Mayor of Kanwakee has what is known as a straight part, but he permeates every nook and cranny of the stage and performance during the entire entertainment.

THOUGHTS FOR BARGAIN TIME.

At this time of year the economically minded woman often encounters a difficult problem, namely, how to utilize to full advantage sale remnants she has picked up. Many a woman just now is wondering how she can justify her purchases and turn them to practical account.

Some of us are very practical and decisive in our attitude toward sales, and when we have secured what we want our anxiety is at an end. But there are other women who cannot resist temtping bargains in the shape of odd lengths of silks, laces, ribbons, etc.; but when the sales are over they are sadly perplexed as to how to make them up. Of course, if we buy imported models, no matter how soiled, and have them cleaned, we shall find ourselves possesssed of a real asset, ready for use without further brain effort. And one must say these are perhaps the best things we can buy at sales. But, on the other hand, the woman who has a clever helper, may work wonders.

For the young girl cheap remnants of voiles and cashmeres will make admirable house frocks worn over muslin blouses. These are delightful. Embroidered fabrics can be treated in the same way if the length be insufficient for a whole frock. Fashion today lends itself admirably to the assistance of the economically minded in this respect, and it is so very varied. This is a consolation to thos of us who have a very limited dress allowance.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., will hold its first meeting tomorrow night, since it "called off" last summer, and the past master mason's degree will be conferred on three candidates.

WRECKS FURNITURE TO KEEP HIS FEET WARM.

Because John Lear and his wife Sarah were not at home to welcome and entertain him when he called on them last Thursday, at their home in the "Big Woods," a part of Westfield, Theodore Slack, of the town of Union, entertained himself and such of the neighbors of the Lears as happened to be home, and as a result was before Justice Collins Saturday afternoon, on a charge of malicious mischief, preferred by Mrs. Sarah Lear.

When Slack called at the Lear home and found no one in, he looked about for some amusement pending their return. He found some empty barrels and making a heap of them about ten feet from the house, it is charged, set fire to them, and removing his shoes and stockings, lighted his pipe and sat down to have a smoke and warm his feet. When the fire got low Slack, it is charged, broke up Mrs. Lear's washtubs, some porch chairs and a hammock and added them to the flames.

Just about this time J. S. A. Wittke, of Highland avenue, appeared at the Lear house and saw Slack and the fire. Slack was singing and dancing about the fire like an Indian, Wittke declares, and threatened to kill him and Wittke fled.

Neighbors gathered and when they saw the danger of the fire igniting the forest and destroying the house, they seized Slack and extinguished the fire. Saturday morning Slack was arrested at his home in Union by Policeman Canfield, of Westfield, and brought to Westfield to answer to Mrs. Lear's complaint. Slack was held in $100 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

THOUSANDS SEE GYPSIES WED.

Son of One Chief Weds Daughter of Another in Trenton.

Josef Mitchell and Marie Shansa, members of two bands of the Mitchell tribe of Russian gypsies, met in Trenton Sunday night and were married in the presence of a crowd of nearly a thousand persons. The ceremony was performed by Squire George Barlow and was attended by all the rites of the tribe.

Complaint was made yesterday of the theft of much horse feed and many vegetables from farmers living in the vicinity of the camp and the trible was ordered away by the police. The two bands then separated, one going north and the other south. The bridegroom in the wedding of Sunday night was the son of the chief of one band, while the bride was the daughter of the chief of the other band.

Cigarette Smoker Sent to Asylum.

Perth Amboy, Sept. 23.—After acting queerly for several weeks, George Swinson, long addicted to cigarette smoking, was taken to the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton yesterday. He is thirty years old, and his wealthy father recently established him in the grocery business. Swinson bought an entire wagonload of corn Friday, sold a few ears and had the rest stored. He has been buying supplies at high rates for his store and selling goods for almost nothing. One night recently he went to the theatre armed with a revolver, and on request of his father a policeman arrested him when he came out and found the revolver.

Sheriff's Name Forged to Check.

Detectives are searching for Henry Stiles, of Newark, who was released from the county jail at Morristown on Wednesday, after serving thirty days for larceny. A page of three blank checks was stolen from the middle of Sheriff George Shaw's checkbook. One of the checks was cashed by a man answering to Stiles' description at a Morristown bank on Saturday morning for $59.09, being made out payable to the bearer for current expenses. The signature of Sheriff Shaw was forged. Stiles was a trusty while serving his term and worked as a janitor, having access to the Sheriffs office.

Chinaman to Aid Orange "Tag Day."

Assurance has been given the Sisters of St. Francis, who are to conduct "tag day" in the Oranges on October 3, to benefit St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, that two hundred pretty women there will patrol the streets of the community. In addition Sam Lee, a Chinese laundryman, is so enthused over the proposal that he has volunteered to take the tags, too, and go among his countrymen. Sam is grateful for treatment given at the hospital and wants to help along the work.

Burglars Daunted by Office Lights.

The custom of the Public Service Corporation in keeping its Montclair office brilliantly lighted at night probably prevented an attack on its safe when burglars entered the place Sunday night. The office is on the main street, and entrance was effected through a cellar door. The thieves robbed the cash drawer of $3.50, but evidently were afraid to operate on the safe because of the glare of the many lights in the office.

Suspected Incendiary Found Insane.

Detective Dribell took Joseph Platt, suspected of incendiarism, to the Essex County Hospital for the insane Monday. The man was arrested following an attemtp to fire the big tenement house at Nos. 102 and 104 Centre street, Orange, in which he was one of the tenants. Quantities of benzine and turpentine had been poured on the staircases and fires set in four different places, which burned themselves out.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

By every one in Brookfield John Porter was known as Honest John. His father before him had raced in old Kentucky to considerable purpose, and with the full vigor of a man who races for sport; and so to the son John, in consequence, had come little beyond a not-to-be-eradicated love of thoroughbreds. To race squarely, honestly and to the glory of high-couraged horses was to him as much a matter of religion as the consistent guardianship of parish morals was to the Rev. George Dolman. Therefore, two men of strong beliefs were set on opposite sides of the fence.

Even in the Porter household, which was at Ringwood Farm, was divided allegiance. Mrs. Porter was possessed of an abhorrent detestation of horse-racing; the daughter, Allison, had inherited the horse taint. The swinging gallop of a striving horse was to her the obliteration of everything but sunshine, and the smile of fields, and the blur of swift-gliding hedges and the driving perfume of cloverladen winds that passed strong into spread nostrils. For Alan Porter, the son, there were columns of figures and musty-smelling bundles of tattered paper money where he clerked in the bank.

The Porter family were not the only dwellers of Brookfield who took part in racing. Philip Crane, the banker, had allowed himself to become interested in race horses. But this fact was all but unknown in Brookfield, so the full resentment of the place was effusively tendered to John Porter.

In his younger days some money had come to Philip Crane, and a speculative restlessness had led him amongst men who commerced with the sport of kings. With acute precipitancy he was separated from the currency that had come to him. The process was so rapid that his racing experience was of little avail as an asset, so he committed the first great wise act of his life—turned his back upon the race course and marched into finance, so strongly, so persistently, that at 40 he was wealthy and the banker of Brookfield.

Twenty years of deliberate reminiscence convinced him that he could gratify the desire that had been his in those immature days, and possibly work out a paying revenge. Thus it was that he had got together a small stable of useful horses; and, of far greater moment, secured a clever trainer, Dick Langdon.

If there had been any distinctive project in the scheme of creation that gave Dick Langdon to the world, it probably was that he might serve as the useful tool of a subtle thinker. Quite by chance he had come into Crane's hands over a matter of borrowed money. It ended by the banker virtually owning every horse that raced in the trainer's name. In addition, two or three horses ran in Philip Crane's own name.

John Porter had not been successful; ill fortune had set in, and there was always something going wrong. Horses would break down, or get beaten by accident—there was always something. The steady financial drain had progressed even to an encumbrance on Ringwood.

Ringwood was simply a training farm located close to an old disused race course, for there had been no racing in Brookfield for years.

The church was in debt—everything in Brookfield was, except the town pump, and it occurred to the Rev. Mr. Dolman that a concert might lighten the financial load. The idea was not alarmingly original, and the carrying out of it was on conventional lines; local volunteer talent, and a strong appeal to the people of Brookfield for their patronage.

The concert in the little old clabboard church was an unqualified success up to the fifth number. The programmes confided that "The Death of Crusader," by Miss Allis Porter was the next item.

In the front row of seats a prim little body tilted her head toward a neighbor and whispered, "It's that racin' gal of John Porter's."

The neighbor answered in a creak meant for a whisper: "I'm right glad she's took to religion for onct, an' is givin' us somethin' about them Crusadgers. They was in Palestine, you know. She's been away to boardin' school all winter, an' I guess it'll be a high-falutin' account of the war."

The quaint little old lady jerked her head up and down with decisive bobbiness. On the third upward bob her eyes opened wide in astonishment—a small, slim figure in a glaring red coat stood in the center of the improvised platform.

From beneath the coat fell away in long, graceful lines, set with large, wondrous gray eyes—the Porter eyes—confronted the quaint little old lady.

"That's the Porter gal," her neighbor squeaked; "I've seen her a hundred times. My! you'd think butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, she's that prim now."

"The coat would melt it," commented the quaint one.

The girl's voice faltered and died away to a broken whisper. For a full minute there was a noiseless hush. The full pathos of the gallant horse's striving had crept into the hearts that were flesh and blood. Gradually into their awakening senses stole a conviction that somehow they were countenancing the sin of racing.

The rest of the programme might just as well have been eliminated; the concert, as a concert, would be discussed for all time to come as having projected "The Death of Crusader."

The people flowed from the church full of an expressive contentiousness, seeking by exuberant condemnation of the sacrilege to square themselves somehow with their consciences for the brief backsliding.

Where the church path turned into the road a group of men had drawn together, attracted by the magnet of discussion. They quite blocked the pathway, oblivious to everything but their outraged feelings. Presently two slight gray shadows slipping up the path, coming to the human barricade, stopped, wavered, and circled out on the grass to pass. The shadows were Allis Porter and her brother Alan.

One of the men, overfilled with his exceeding wrath, seeing the girl, gave expression to a most unchristian opinion of her modesty. The sharp ears of the boy heard the words and his face flushed hot with resentment. He half turned, bitter reproach rising to his lips, but as he did so he saw something that checked his futile anger. A tall shadow that had come up the path behind them stretched out an arm, and he heard the villifier's words gurgle and die away, as a strong hand clutched him by the throat.

"It's George Mortimer—he's in our bank," Alan confided to his sister, as they moved away. "He's all right—he's strong as a horse; and I 'bet Crandall 'll have a kink in his neck to-morrow, where George pinched him."

"What was it about?" the girl asked.

"Crandall was jawing about people who own race horses," the boy answered, evasively. "It's Crandall, the butcher."

II.

It was the May meeting at Morris Park.

John Porter, walking up the steps of the grand stand, heard some one call him by name. Turning his head, he saw it was James Danby, an owner, sitting in his private box. Porter turned into the box and, taking the chair the other pushed toward him, sat down.

"What about Lucretia?" asked Danby, with the air of an established friendship which permitted the asking of such questions.

"She's ready to the minute," replied Porter.

"Can she get the five furlongs?" queried Danby. "She's by Assassin, and some of them were quitters."

"She'll quit if she falls dead," replied the other man, quietly. "I've worked her good enough to win, and I'm backing her."

"That'll do for me," declared Danby. "To tell you the truth, John, I like the little mare myself; but I hear that Langdon, who trained Lauzanne, expects to win."

The bell clanged imperiously at the judge's stand. Porter pulled out his watch and looked at it.

"That's saddling," he remarked, laconically; "I must go and have a bit on the mare, and then take a look at her before she goes out."

As Porter went down the steps his companion leaned over the rail and crooked his fingers at a thin-faced man with a blond mustache who had been keeping a corner of his eye on the box.

"What are they making favorite, Lewis?" queried Danby, as the thin-faced man stood beside him.

"Lucretia."

"What's her price?"

"Two to one."

"What's second favorite?"

"Lauzanne—five to two."

"Porter tells me Lucretia is good business," said Danby in a tentative tone.

"Langdon thinks it's all over bar the shouting; he says Lauzanna outclasses his field," retorted Lewis.

"Langdon's a betting man; Porter's an owner, and a good judge, here's 600; put it on the mare—straight."

Lewis battled his way along till he stood in front of a bookmaker with a face cast very much on the lines of a Rubens' cherub; but the cherub-type ended abruptly with the plump frontispiece of "Jakey" Faust, the bookmaker. "What's Lauzanne's price?" Lewis asked, in an indifferent voice.

Faust pretended not to hear him.

"Sure thing!" whispered Lewis to himself. Then aloud he repeated the question, touching the bookmaker on the elbow.

The Cherub smiled blandly. "Not takin' any," he answered, nodding his head in the pleasant manner of a man who knows when he's got a good thing.

"What's Lucretia?" persisted Lewis.

"I'll lay you two to one."

The questioner edged away, shaking his head solemnly.

"Here! five to two—how much—" but Lewis was gone.

He hurried back to his friend's box.

"Did you get it on?" queried the latter.

"No; I don't like the look of it. Faust is holding out Lauzanne; he and Langdon are in the same boat. I thought I'd come back and tell you."

"And you did right; but if the mare wins, and I'm not on, after getting it straight from Porter, I'd want to go out and kick myself good and hard. But put it on straight and place; then if Lauzanne's the goods we'll save."

Lewis was gone about four minutes.

"You're on," he said, when he returned; "I've 200 on Lauzanne for myself.

When John Porter reached the saddling paddock his brown mare, Lucretia, was being led around in a circle in the lower corner. As he walked down toward her his trainer, Andy Dixon, came forward a few paces to meet him.

"Are they hammerin' Crane's horse in the ring, sir?"

"Just what you'd notice," replied Porter. "Why?"

"Well, I don't like the look of it a little bit. Here's this Lauzanne runs like a dog the last time out—last by the length of a street—and now I've got it pretty straight they're out for the stuff."

"They'd a stable-boy up on him that time."

"That's just it," cried Dixon. "Grant comes to me that day—you know Grant, he works the commission for Dick Langdon—and tells me to leave the horse alone; and to-day he comes and—" he hesitated.

"And what?"

"Tells me to go light on our mare."

"Look here, Andy," said the owner, "there isn't a man with a horse in this state that doesn't think he's going to win; and when it's all over we'll see Lucretia's number go up. Grant's a fool," he added, viciously.

"It's not Grant at all," replied Dixon, rubbing the palms of his hands together, thoughtfully; "it's Langdon, an' he's several blocks away from an asylum."

"Well, I've played the little mare," asserted Porter.

"Much, sir?" asked Dixon, solicitously.

"All I can stand—and a little more," he added, falteringly; "I needed a win, a good win," he offered, in an explanatory voice. "I want to clear Ringwood—but never mind about that, Andy. The mare's well—ain't she? There can't be anything doing with McKay—we've only put him up a few times, but he seems all right."

As John Porter walked across the paddock a horseman touched the fingers of his right hand to his cap. There was a half-concealed look of interest in the man's eye that Porter knew from experience meant something.

"What do you know, Mike?" he asked, carelessly.

"Nottin', sir; but dere's somebody in de know dis trip. Yer mare's a good little filly, w'en she's right, but ye's up against it."

Porter stopped and looked at the horseman. He was Mike Gaynor, a trainer, and more than once Porter had stood his friend and Mike was true as steel to a benefactor. Porter waited, feeling sure that Gaynor had something to tell.

"There's a strong play on Lauzanne, ain't there, sir?"

Porter nodded.

"Sure t'ing! That Langdon's a crook. I got de tip dat dere was a killin' on, an' I axed Dick Langdon if dere was anyt'ing doin'; an' Dick says to me, says he, puttin' bot' t'umbs up"—and Mike held both hands out horizontally with the thumbs stiff and vertical—"there's nottin' doin', Mike," says he. "What d'ye t'ink of that, sir, an' me knowin' there was?" asked Mike, tragically.

"It's the biggest tip that always falls down, Gaynor; and they've got to be pretty swift to beat Lucretia."

"That filly's all right, but I ain't doin' no stunt about horses, Mister Porter; I'm talkin' about men. Th' filly's honest, and ye'r honest sir, but ye don't roide th' mare yerself, do ye?"

"You think, Mike—" began Mr. Porter, questioningly; but Gayner interrupted him with: "I don't think nothin' sir, an' I ain't sayin' nothin', but there's a boy ridin' in dat bunch to-day w'at got 600 for t'rowing me down once, see? S'elp me God! he pulled Blue Smoke to a standstill on me, knowin' that it would break me. That was at Coney Island, two years ago."

"Thank you very much, Gayner; I appreciate your kindly warning, but I hope you're mistaken, all the same," said Porter. Then he proceeded on his way toward stall five, in which was Lauzanne.

"How are you, Mr. Porter?"

It was Philip Crane, standing just outside of the stall, who thus addressed him. "Got something running to-day?" he continued, with vague innocence.

Langdon, just inside the box, chuckled softly.

"I'm starting Lucretia in this race," replied Honest John.

"Oh!" Then Crane took Porter gently by the sleeve and drew him half within the stall. "Mr. Langdon, who trains a horse or two for me, says this one'll win;" and he indicated the big chestnut colt. "You'd better have a bit on, Mr. Porter."

"Lucretia carries my money," answered Porter in loyalty.

Langdon looked up from cinching the girth tight and took a step toward the two men.

"Well, we both can't win," he said, half insolently; "an' I don't think there's anything out to-day'll beat Lauzanne."

"That mare'll beat him," retorted Porter, curtly.

"I'll bet you one horse against the other, the winner to take both," cried Langdon in a sneering, defiant tone.

"I've made my bets," said Lucretia's owner, quietly.

"I hear you had an offer of 5,000 for your filly, Mr. Porter," half queried Crane.

"I did, and I refused it."

"And here's the one that'll beat her to-day, and I'll sell him for half that," asserted the trainer, putting his hand on Lauzanne's neck.

Exasperated by the persistent boastfulness of Langdon, Porter was angered into saying: "If he beats my mare, I'll give you that for him myself."

"Done!" snapped Langdon.

"I don't want the horse—" began Porter; but Langdon interrupted him.

"Oh, if you want to crawl—"

"I never crawl," said Porter, fiercely. "I don't want your horse, but just to show you what I think of your chances of winning I'll give you two thousand and a half if you beat my mare, no matter what wins the race."

"I think you'd better call this bargain off, Mr. Porter," remonstrated Crane.

"I stand to my bargain whatever happens," Porter retorted.

At that instant the bugle sounded.

"Get up, Westley," Langdon said to his jockey, "they're going out."

As he lifted the boy to the saddle the trainer whispered a few concise directions.

"Hold him steady at the post," he muttered; "I've got him a bit on edge to-day. Get off in front and stay there; he's feelin' good enough to leave the earth. This'll be a matter of a couple of hundred to you if you win."

TABASCO LIMERICK.

A soubrette who worked for Papasco
One day kicked up quite a fiasco,
As the hair on her head
Turned from yellow to red

The last word of the last line must rhyme with the last words of the first two lines.

All that is necessary is to send us what you think is the best last line to our Tabasco Limerick with your name and address. Contest closes May 1, 1909, and prizes announced May 15, 1909. Get busy now; tell your friends. Here's a great chance to win an income free. Remember, this contest is open, free to everybody. Someone must win the above prizes. Why not you?

WHAT IS TABASCO?

For forty years it has been used by cooks everywhere. Every first-class hotel, steamship, restaurant and dining car uses it in the kitchen and upon the table. Tabasco is great for soups, roasts, fish, fowl, game, seafood, for eggs of any style, for the outdoor luncheon or the afternoon salad. Use it in your kitchen all the time.

What makes excellent the cooking of the chef will make delicious the food of the home. Get the Tabasco habit in your kitchen, on your table. One drop works wonders. Buy from your grocer today. He has it; every grocer has it. Ask his opinion.

This contest is open to everybody free. Send in your Limericks in your own way and as often as you please The fund to pay these prizes is now on deposit with Geo. W. Young & Co., Bankers, New York City.

OPENING DAYS
"Worth More" Leaders

A show of entrancing loveliness, made still more attractive by special offerings all over the store, of which the following are just a few:

$25.00
For Women's Suits Worth More

Unusually $25—more often $35—but we want to impress all women with our superior lines—and pick this leader to bring immediate response: 32 to 40-in. coats, modified Directoire and regulation models; some plain, many satin or braid trimmed; velvet collar and cuffs; vast array of worsteds and wool mixtures; stripes and two-toned effects and broadcloths; jackets lined with Skinner satin or taffeta; all well tailored; flare model skirts; best suits in this city, at $25

$5.00
For Silk Waists Worth More

If we asked $6.00 or $6.50 it would not be too much, for you would recognize value about town at still more; fine chiffon taffeta; black and navy blue; entirely new models; one strictly tailored, front has ten stitched tucks shoulder to bust, box pleat down center, two stitched tucks each side; another handsome model, cluster of tucks, fancy vest in center, trimmed with silk braid; best ever at $5

$5.00
For Silk Petticoats Worth More

Extra large size—Who ever heard of any silk petticoat real extra large size under $6.50? Who ever heard of such good silk petticoats as these under $7.50? We have not, and we have hunted far and wide; extra fine, heavy rustling taffeta silk, all the latest fall solid colors; stripes and two-tone shades; styles entirely new; made extra wide, some with deep sectional, tucked and pleated flounce; under ruffle or percaline serviceable and protects flounce; a wonder at $5

ANSWERS EVERY CALL.

Plainfield People Have Found that This Is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench,
A little cause may hurt the kidneys.
Spells of backache often follow.
Or some irregularity.
A certain remedy for such attacks,
A medicine that answers every call,
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific.
Many Plainfield people rely on it.
Here is Plainfield's proof.

Mrs. A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Mr. Mattis suffered from severe pains in his back, caused by a fall which injured his kidneys. He consulted a doctor and took several kinds of medicine but found no relief whatever. Finally he obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and found them to be just what he needed. They drove away the pains in a short time and strengthened his kidneys. On one or two occasions since he has had slight backaches, but at such times Doan's Kidney Pills have been used with the very best of results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Second district of the Fourth ward twenty-five Republican ballots were rejected because they were not marked; election officers deciding that they should be thrown out on that account In the third district of the Fourth ward fifty-two ballots were rejected, apparently for the same reason. The election officers said that the county board of elections would have to decide the matter.

SHOOTS WIFE; KILLS SELF

house but had no authority to hold Thomas as a witness. Prosecutor Berdine, of New Brunswick, was told of the affair over the telephone and said detectives would be sent to Plainfield at once.

If it is true that Kiehl married the woman as the witneses allege, the ceremony was illegal as he is survived by a wife who has been confined in the Morris Plains asylum for several years. Friends who knew him well assert that he never mentioned any second marriage. The police have no suggestion to make as to why Kiehl did not shoot Thomas as well as the wife and there are some who are inclined to look on the affair in the light of a mystery.

Stoy Wins in Atlantic City.

In the heaviest nomination vote ever polled in Atlantic City, the new primary law proved a failure so far as handling the voters was concerned yesterday. Partisan members of election boards who challenged voters to the limit held up the lines and hundreds of citizens failed to get in their ballots.

RENOMINATE IRA W. WOOD

Fourth District Republicans Again Name Popular Trenton Lawyer for Congress.

CONVENTION AT SOMERVILLE.

Republican Clubs Stir Up Enthusiasm —Committees Named—General Murray Presides.

Amid loud and continued applause the Republicans of the Fourth Congressional district, asembled in Somerset Hall, Somerville, today renominated Congressman Ira W. Wood, he being the unanimous choice of the delegates. Seldom has there been such an enthusiastic demonstration and the complete harmony of the convention augered well for the success of the nominee. Stirring speeches were made by the party leaders, and they were cheered to the echo by the delegates and visiting Republican clubs, including the one from North Plainfield.

The North Plainfield Republican Club left here at 11 o'clock for Somerville and after re-assembling at Cawley's Hotel, formed in line and marched to Somerset Hall, led by former Mayors N. B. Smalley and B. A. Hegeman, Jr., and Alexander Milne, of the borough. The club was constantly cheered along the line of march and when the hall was reached was given a big ovation by the delegates.

The convention was called to order at 12 o'clock by General Edward Murray, of Trenton, after which J. C. Haynes, of Hunterdon county, was made temporary chairman. The temporary secretaries were H. B. Opdyke, of Somerset county; C. W. Darrow, of Mercer county and F. S. Maxwell, of Hunterdon county, while C. N. Reading, of Hunterdon county; A. A. Cortelyou, of Somerset county and S. C. Kulp of Mercer county, were named as honorary vice-presidents.

The first business after the selection of the temporary officers, was the appointment of various committees as follows:

Organization—Clark W. Hedington, Mercer; J. E. Hedenburg, Somerset; Lambert Reed, Hunterdon. Resolutions—A. N. Barber, Mercer, L. B. Woolston, Somerset; P. R. George, Hunterdon. Credentials—H. E. Evans, Mercer; Guy H. Noble, Somerset; Walter Britton, Hunterdon. Rules—F. W. Barber, Mercer; Charles McCrea, Somerset; John Knox, Hunterdon. Those named on the Congressional committee were G. A. Dilts and Kenneth Schley, of Somerset and Stephen K. Large and John Foran, of Hunterdon county.

After completing the work of effecting a temporary organization the convention adjourned to 2 o'clock, when the temporary organization was made permanent and the convention immediately proceeded to nominate Congressman Ira W. Wood.

STATE CONVENTION AT TRENTON TOMORROW

The Republican State convention to select representatives to the electoral college will be held tomorrow at noon in Taylor Opera House, Trenton.

A conference of the Mercer county delegates will be held at the Republican club at 10 o'clock in the morning and one hour later the delegates of the Fourth congressional district, which comprises Mercer, Hunterdon and Somerset counties, will also meet at the Republican club to discuss the choosing of a candidate for presidential electors.

The various county delegations will be seated in the opera house as follows: Orchestra, Burlington, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester, Hunterdon, Mercer, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Ocean, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren; balcony, Atlantic, Essex and Hudson; gallery, Bergen, Passaic and Sussex.

The doors of the opera house will be open at 11:15 o'clock and a concert will be given by Winkler's Second Regiment band from 11:30 to 12 o'clock.

An effort is being made by ex-Governor Stokes, a member of the State committee, to get James S. Sherman, Republican candidate for vice-president, to attend the convention.

"Marty" Failed to Post Score.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, after returning a score of 80 yesterday morning, in the open golf championship at Baltusrol, failed to complete the course in the afternoon, owing to the trouble he is having with his injured wrist. He is scheduled to play against Dudley H. Barrows in the professional amateur matches at Baltusrol, tomorrow.

MISS LOCK THE BRIDE OF AN ENGLISHMAN

Miss Evelyn Grace Lock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lock, of West Seventh street, and Arthur Nelson Walker, son of James Walker, of Forest Hill, London, Eng., were quietly married at 6:45 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony, an impressive one, was performed by City Judge William N. Runyon, in the presence of about eighty guests.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edith Muriel Lock, while Charles Markham, of London, Eng., was the best man. Those who witnessed the ceremony are identified with the meeting which is held on West Second street, near Madison avenue, and the bride and groom were commended to the care and keeping of God, according to the usual custom of the religious body whose only name is Christian.

The bride was the recipient of a large collection of handsome gifts from relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Walker left later in the evening on a honeymoon trip to Canada. Upon their return they will reside at Dover, Sussex county, for the present. The bride is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, Class '02. Mr. Walker is engaged in business in New York as an accountant.

ANDERSONS RIVALS FOR COUNTY CLERK

Although the official returns of the primaries of Somerset county have not yet been tabulated and with a few districts to be heard from yet this morning indications now point to the namination of George W. Anderson, of Bound Brook, for county clerk on the Democratic ticket. In his home town Mr. Anderson received a majority of 150 votes over his opponent, Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield. In Somerville Bernardsville, Peapack and other parts of the county Mr. Anderson also received good majorities, and he now has a total large enough, it is believed, to overcome anything that may yet come in. Mr. Anderson is a lawyer with offices in Somerville and he was for some time the Deputy Surrogate under William J. DeMond, the present surrogate.

With Mr. Anderson's nomination practically assured it will again be a case of Anderson vs. Anderson for the office of county clerk, the Republican candidate being Alexander G. Anderson. Five years ago John L. Anderson opposed the latter, who is the present incumbent. Alex. G. Anderson was elected by a majority of twenty-five votes.

DISTRICT COURT'S CALENDAR WELL FILLED

As several important cases were not ready for trial at this morning's session of the district court, Judge Newcorn adjourned them to future dates. One action that is sure to attract more than usual interest is that of the Siche Gas Company against W. W. Warnock, which has been in litigation for three years. No final decision has been given. The case will be heard again on October 21.

The now famous mule case of Brennan against Brown, will be heard before a jury on October 1, and the suit of Scribner against the Public Service Corporation, in tort, has also been set down for October 1, before a jury. Another important cause to be heard on October 1, is that of Anderson against the Acetylene Lamp Company, of New York, on contract. On the same date the case of Joseph Genisman against Mary and Augustus Tietz, on contract, will be heard. In this action the plaintiff has petitioned to have a guardian appointed for the defendants. Although they are husband and wife, it is claimed that they are minors.

Other cases set down for October 1, include that of Christopher Meyers against the Public Service Corporation, in tort; Catherine Sharkey against Ira Bowers, in tort, and Lawrence Carrara against Arthur S. Giles in tort.

In the landlord and tenant case of Edward Coughlan against Edward J. Bradley, the decision of the court is that no rent is due and the action is dismissed. Judgment has been given the plaintiffs in three other landlord and tenant cases.

FANWOOD COUNCIL TO SURRENDER CHARTER

Fanwood Council, No. 744, Royal Arcanum, after an existence of a quarter of a century, has decided to surrender its charge to the Supreme Council of the order and disband. The decision was reached at the semi-monthly meeting Tuesday night, and a committee of five was appointed to arrange the details of winding up the affairs of the Council, at the next meeting to be held October 13.

The action to disband was only reached after a careful review of conditions as they exist at present. The Council has a membership of nearly eighty and at the time of the change of rates was highly prosperous, there being 140 members on the roll. Many of these were new members and with the change they dopped out, while others allowed themselves to be suspended. Owing to the lack of interest it has been impossible to get a quorum out for the regular mettings. The committee will notify every member so as to give them time to apply for withdrawal cards, if they desire.

It is said that a majority of the members will continue in the order, intending to join other Councils in the vicinity. Fanwood Council, of "The Little Giant" as it was nicknamed by the Grand Council officers, was instituted in March, 1883, and until the rates were increased was considered one of the best in the State.

HOPE CHAPEL SOCIETY HOLDS A DIME SOCIAL.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel conducted a dime social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Weber, of West Third street, last night. It was attended by fifty friends of the chapel and was a financial as well as social success. The proceeds will be added to the organ fund.

An informal program rendered during the evening comprised piano selections by Miss Bertha Jones and readings and impersonations by Mrs. W. B. Grannatt. Refreshments were served by the Misses Myra Hinkle, Eda Cronce and Clara Weber. The affair was in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. F. A. Weber, chairman; Mrs. L. R. Howard and Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse.

EX-COP WOULD HAVE THIS STORY SUPPRESSED

Out of a list of thirty-six cases cited for a hearing in the district court, this morning, only one was contested. That was the action of David Pearlman against Joseph Nathanson, a Watchung avenue painter, who was suing for wages. The state of demand was $50, but the trial brought out the fact that the plaintiff had received $11, and claimed that there was still $21 due him. He claimed that he was to receive $3.50 a day, while Nathanson narrowed down the pay for a day and half, which both sides admitted, and the court gave the plaintiff judgment for $5.25.

The trouble between Pearlman and Nathanson started, it is said, over the fact that at the time Nathanson conducted an "open shop" and Pearlman claimed to be a union workman and refused to remain in the former's employ unless he paid union wages. Nathanson now claims to have a union shop.

Immediately after the case was decided, former Patrolman Harry Berlowitz, at the request of the defendant in the action, approached a reporter for this paper who was present, with an offer to pay the latter to have the story kept out of the newspaper. Miss Berlowitz, a sister of the ex-policeman, who is employed as a bookkeeper by Nathanson, was a witness for the latter.

WHY NOT A BIG FAIR IN 'THE CITY BEAUTIFUL'

Planning to interest Plainfield and New York capital in an enterprsie that will rival the Inter-State Fair at Trenton, a delegation of Plainfield business men are visiting the Allentown, Pa., Fair today. Their purpose is to investigate the concern there which is the largest of its kind in the East and to get such information as will induce investors to float a similar undertaking in Plainfield.

The argument is made that as Plainfield is but forty-five minutes from Broadway and has splendid train connections with Philadelphia and other centres of population, a fair here would draw a larger crowd than the one at Trenton.

Among those inspecting the Allentown venture today are A. E. Force and William J. Counihan.

REVISED TOTAL VOTE FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Following is the evised total vote polled at the Republican and Democratic primaries in Union county for General Assembly nominations:

Republican—Pierce, 5,648; Kirstein, 3,576; Schwartz, 3,606; Thompson, 3,070; Stutzlen, 2,258; Trimble, 1,672; Henry, 1,295.

Democratic—Brower, 5,895; Rieke, 5,881; Kiernan, 5,863.

C. C. S. RELIEF COMMITTEE SEEKS CONTRIBUTIONS.

The relief committee of the Charity Organization Society has begun its fall and winter work and is desirous of obtaining contributions of discarded clothing, furniture, carpets and other household goods with which it is proposed to help the poor and unfortunate people of Plainfield during the winter. The committee feels that as soon as its many friends learn of the needs there will be generous contributions for this worthy charity.

The Charity Organization Society is the recognized agency in Plainfield for the relief and help of the poor and those who are able to contribute to the support of it, are thereby rendering less possible the personal demands for help. Any person wishing to contribue clothing, furniture, etc., to this work should communicate with Mrs. S. R. Struthers, 544 West Front street, either by telephone, number 103, or by postal or letter and all goods will be called for promptly.

"The Devil" on The Way.

"The Devil" is coming to Plainfield after all. Manager Counihan completed arrangements today for the appearance of his Satanic Majesty at the New Plainfield theatre on Monday night, October 5. It will be the Savage production of the drama that is the reigning sensation in the metropolis.

Leola Betts.

Leola Betts, the nine-year-old daughter of Junius and Mildred Betts, of West Third street, died this morning. The funeral will be held at the parents' home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. F. D. Tilden. Burial will be at Hillside.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary of Marriage.

SURROUNDED BY CHILDREN

Handsome Gifts Showered on Happy Couple Who Have Resided Here Forty Years.

Surrounded by a company of about seventy people, including the immediate family, relatives and near friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, of East Second street, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last night. While the affair was a simple and informal one, there were many features that combined to make it one of great enjoyment not only to the bride and groom, but the guests.

The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion with autumnal foliage and beautiful flowers, the arrangement in the parlor and dining room being especially attractive. During the evening there was an informal program of music which added to the enjoyment of those present.

The bride and groom, besides being showered with congratulations, were the recipients of beautiful gifts, including cut-glass and gold, while Mrs. Blair was presented with a large number of cut flowers. A noteworthy feature of the various presentations was the gift by the children to Mrs. Blair of a handsome ring, it being a cluster of tmyehists, surrounded by diamonds. Mr. Blair received a gold headed cane, suitably inscribed, also from his children.

Following congratulations and the rendition of musical numbers, refreshments were served, and when the guests departed they left their best wishes that Mr. and Mrs. Blair might live to enjoy many years of happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair have been residents of Plainfield about forty years. The former was born in Ireland and the latter in Scotland. They came to this country as young people, and were married fifty years ago in Jersey City, where they lived for several years. They then moved to Greenbrook, where they lived a few years on what is known as the Craig farm. It was about forty years ago that they moved to this city, where they have continued to reside and enjoy the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Although well advanced in years, both have excellent health. There are five children—James R. Blair, Adam C. Blair, Mrs. A. W. Anderson, Mrs. D. C. Boice and Dr. Thomas D. Blair, all of this city.

REGISTRATION STARTS AT THE LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

Registration in all classes at the Y. W. C. A., has begun, and there are classes to suit all young women at all hours of the day. Opporunity is offered young women to join the glee club or a Bible class, learn to hake hats and gowns and to embroider them, and there are to be exceptionally good classes in cooking and household economy.

In adition there will be classes in German or French, while the benefits of the gymnasium are not to be overlooked. Membership privileges permits one to take books out of the library, and the use of the reading and sitting rooms and the many lectures to be given, including those on the "Care of the Baby," which will be given during the winter. Further information in regard to classes will be given at the association rooms during office hours of the secretaries, from 11 to 1 o'clock in the morning and 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The opening night will take place on Thursday, October 1, when there will be given demonstrations by the members of last year's gymnasium classes, and a rally for the educational classes. There will also be a social time. Young women are invited to attend and bring their friends.

In the City Court.

Morris Somerset, Lawrence Norwood and Herbert Brighton, colored boys, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged by Patrolman Payne with disorderly conduct in the theatre alley last night. They were let go on their promise to remain away from the theatre unless they had the price of admission.

Justice to Mr. Newcorn.

Contrary to report, District Court Judge William Newcorn did not participate in the Fourth ward primaries on Tuesday other than to cast his vote. The Judge has taken no active part in politics since taking his seat in the District Court.

TOWNSEND HIGH MAN ON LOCAL G.O.P. TICKET

Revised Republican primary returns show that William R. Townsend, for tax collector nomination, polled a higher vote than Ernest R. Ackerman, and that Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, for the shrievalty nomination was a close third. Carlton B. Pierce, for Assembly, was seventh, but the reduction in his vote was brought about by some organization men who voted only for Kirstein instead of for three candidates as provided thus insuring the Rahway's man's selection here. One of the many surprises was the run of former Mayor James F. Buckle, the running mate for former Councilman William S. Tyler, for Board of Education membership. Mr. Buckle polled 186 majority over Mr. Tyler.

These are the revised Republican figures: For Senator, Ackerman, 1,147; for sheriff, Kirkland, 1,141; for Assembly, Kirstein, 597; Pierce, 997; Schwartz, 527; Thompson, 430; Stutzlen, 379, and Henry, 100; for freeholders, Wilbur, 1,124; Doane, 1,139; for Mayor, Fisk, 1,132; for ward councilmen, Tolles, 224; Hanaford, 50; Holt, 232; Taylor, 208; Randolph, 405, all but Hanaford being nominated; for tax colector, Townsend, 1,149.

POOL ROOM LAW WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

At this morning's session of the city court, Judge Runyon announced that in the future he would have the police enforce to the letter the ordinance prohibiting pool room keepers from allowing boys below the age of eighteen in their places. Every proprietor in the city is to be notified to this effect and violations in the future will meet with punishment.

The magistrate's dictum was brought about by the arrest of Albert Sylvain who allowed boys of sixteen in his brother's place on Park avenue. He made the statement in court that the youths told him they were eighteen years old and they looked it, otherwise he would have refused them permission to enter. The fact that he is not the proprietor of the business and also that he understood the age limit to be sixteen induced Judge Runyon to suspend sentence, but he told Sylvain a second offense had better not occui.

Chief Kiely stated during the hearing that he has been warning the pool room men because of complaints made to him and that hereafter he would be on the alert for violations.

WOMAN'S AGE SHRANK 13 YEARS OVER NIGHT

The age of Mrs. Kate Ward, a well known resident of the West End, shrunk thirteen years while she was in a cell at police headquarters, last night. She was arrested by Patrolman Saffron for helpless intoxication at Plainfield and Stelle avenues and when her pedigree was taken she claimed to be forty-eight years old. During her arraignment before Judge Runyon, this morning, she was again asked her age and owned up to thirty-five.

"That's funny," His Honor commented, "last night you were forty-eight. Do you imagine the rum you drank was strong enough to give you such a new hold on life?"

Mrs. Ward opined there was some mystery about the shrinkage that couldn't be explained, but she admitted after some hesitation that she might be thirty seven. Chief Kiely has known Mrs. Ward for many years and thought to get the question straightened out by asking her how long she had been married. She fixed the time as twenty years and the chief then asked how old she was at the time.

"Not so much but what I should have known better," was her ready reply and it put an end to the questioning.

Mrs. Ward has been on her good behavior in recent years so Judge Runyon supended sentence after telling her to keep away from court for a long time to come. She had only one shoe on when she was brought before the desk and Patrol Driver O'Gorman had to lend her one of his brogans to get home in.

This Horse a Winner.

Adam C. Blair's "Aaron B." won a $400 purse at the Mt. Holly fair races on Tuesday. He made a record of 18½. During the season he has also won at Trenton and Plainfield. He will be entered in the Trenton Fair races next week.

MRS. KEHL RECOVERING

Regains Consciousness at Muhlenberg Hospital and is Resting Easily Today.

UNCONCERNED OVER SHOOTING.

Suicide's Body Not Claimed By Relatives and Will be Buried at Samptown Without a Funeral.

At Muhlenberg Hospital today, it was reported that Amelia Kehl, the woman shot yesterday morning by Louis Kehl previous to his committing suicide, had taken a decided change for the better and that her recovery is practically an assured fact. One of the bullets is still lodged in her breast but as it does not seem to bother her any the physicians have made no effort to get it out. She does not speak English and no statement has been secured from her as yet. She has been quite cheerful since recovering consciousness and to all appearances is not especially concerned over the happening.

Kehl's body is still at Runyon's undertaking rooms and will be buried without any service this afternoon in the cemetery at Samptown. He has several relatives but they have refused to take any interest in making funeral arrangements. Mrs. George Laible, who lives at Blue's Corner, just below New Market, is a sister, and Mrs. Richard Scott and Mrs. Charles Meyer, of this city, are nieces.

It was made known today that the letter found in Kehl's clothing was written by him in Hetfield's lunch room on Watchung avenue Tuesday afternoon and that it related to the deed he meant to commit. It was inscribed in German and addressed to "Dear Friend," but gives no hint as to who he meant. It states in a rambling way that he had decided to kill the wife and himself, but that he was sorry he had to do it "on account of this man." "This man" is supposed to be an allusion to Charles Thomas, the boarder at their home of whom he was jealous. In conclusion Kehl begs forgiveness for his act and asks that he be judged leniently.

A search of Kehl's effects has set aside the question as to whether or not he and the woman he shot were married. A certificate found in a trunk shows that they were wedded in New York eight months ago. Kehl committed bigamy in doing so, however, as he was previously married and his wife is now in the Morris Plains asylum.

Augustus Sutterlein, of West Front street, denied the statement made by the police, yesterday, that he had been a witness to the ceemony in New York. He declares he didn't even know Kehl and is at a loss to account for his name being mentioned in the affair.

ASKS $20,000 DAMAGES FOR PAIR OF BLACK EYES

For two discolored eyes, administered by Joseph Cerf, an Asbury Park merchant, last July, Joseph W. Pike, son of the well known Noah W. Pike, of East Front street, demands $20,000 damages in a suit begun in the Monmouth county courts yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cerf and Mr. Pike were at the Hotel Estell, in Lake avenue, Asbury Park, last summer. One evening, it is alleged, Pike made remarks to Mrs. Cerf to, which she took exception. She reported the affair to her husband. Mr. Cerf met Mr. Pike the next morning at the Asbury Park railroad station and demanded an explanation. Mr. Pike denied he had insulted Mrs. Cerf, whereupon, it is alleged, he was called a liar and was knocked down.

Mr. Cerf was held in $200 bail for the Grand Jury on Mr. Pike's complaint made soon after the assault.

Sons of Temperance Anniversary.

The Sons of Temperance of Union county will celebrate the sixty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the order at Elizabeth next Tuesday night. Lincoln division, of Elizabeth; Howell division, of Plainfield, and Americus division, of Metuchen, are in charge of the arrangements. The order was founded in New York city, September 29, 1842.

Fair Acres Events.

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club has decided to postpone its prize races until Saturday, October 3. This is due to the fact that the entries for that day would be considerably larger and therefore much more exciting. There will be the usual free matinee races, however, on the coming Saturday afternoon.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In presenting Nanette Comstock in her latest success, "Jett," to the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, Manager William Muenster offers New Plainfield theatre-goers an attraction bearing all the earmarks on one of the dramatic hits of the current season. "Jet" received its premier at Washington a short time ago, and if the encomiums of the press as well as the applause that followed the players throughout their work and at the end of the performance is any criterion, both Mr. Muenster and Miss Comstock should be congratulated on their selection of both play and company. "Jet" is said to be an original American comedy of the character order by Louise Lovell, a young woman of more than ordinary literary ability, who during the past few seasons has herself played leading ingenue roles with some of our best known stars. In this her maiden effort she has stamped herself a writer of first quality. In the title role of the play, Miss Comstock has ample scope to display her versatility and is said to have made the hit of her career. The attraction will be seen in this city, Baltimore and Philadelphia, and then enters upon an indefinite engagement at one of the Broadway theatre in the metropolis. The scenic environment is most lavish and the company includes Thomas Meighan, Frederick Sullivan, Horace James, Morgan Thorpe, Dell LaBarr, John Tansey, Lesbia Grealis, Edith Luckett, Emily Lorraine, Eva Benton, Jane Dara, Carey Hastings and others.

Of all the little women who travel through the South and West during each theatrical season there is none with the loyal friends that are possessed by Miss Mary Marble. There is a distinctiveness and a charm about the little woman that is all her own and which has made her a pronounced favorite wherever she goes. Any part essayed by Miss Marble becomes at once important and a success. Therefore it is a matter of much interest to her numerous friends and admirers as well as the theatre-going public in general to be informed of the fact that she will be seen here at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night in the musical comedy, "His Honor the Mayor," a piece that has enjoyed long runs in all the larger cities of the country including five months in Chicago, eight in New York. As usual Miss Marble's co-star will be that eccentric comedian "Little Chip," whose popularity is as great as that of Miss Marble herself. The company that Jos. M. Gates has surrounded his stars with is one of the best musical organizations in the country, numbering 60 people and including Florine Sweetman, Catherine Tanner, Hugh Fay, George Odell, Hall and Mountain, the famous pony ballet, and a large chorus. The scenery and costumes for "His Honor the Mayor" are said to be unusually elaborate.

The plot of "The Time, The Place and the Girl," the Askin-Singer production of Hough, Adams and Howard's clever music drama, which will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre on Friday night, October 2, centers around a number of characters absolutely new to this line of entertainment. The pivotal personages are a slangy and lovable young gambler, and the head nurse of a sanitarium in Virginia. Their share of the piece's development is supplemented by the comic but logical relations together of an indolent and haughty heiress, a sentimental Italian laborer, a dashing widow, a lovesick coal-heaver and a blase man about town. Place these characters in a musical setting, interspersed with witty dialogue and rapid action, and some amusement out of the ordinary is promised the theatregoers. Played simply as drama, "The Time, The Place and The Girl" would be a rural idyl, with musical addenda, it is simply a gem.

Rev. W. W. Newberry will address the meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Although a stranger here, Mr. Newberry comes highly recommended as a worker of ability and power. He will also conduct the meeting at the Rescue Mission at the same place in the evening.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and it is expected that there will be initiation.

AGENTS STANDARD PATTERNS

New Fall Tailored Suits

Smart Styles, with Proper Tailoring, 10.98 to 27.50.

Each season we try to do a little better than the season before. This can be applied to every line we carry, but is markedly noticeable in the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department, since the old firm showed little progress in this line. From the very start we began to clean out the old stock with a view to replace it with an up-to-date, well made line of goods. Our connection with the Tepper Cloak and Suit Factory at 39 East 19th street, New York, who sell to the biggest retailers in the city, gave us a very desirable advantage in handling this line. You could see the marked improvement in the suits we handled the first season—better styles, better workmanship, at such low prices, and now we are working just as hard to do better than our former best efforts—to show you more good styles, and more "better values" than you have seen in Plainfield in any one season.

FOOTBALL.

The North Plainfield High School football eleven is gradually getting in shape for the season. There are a number of new candidates this year and all are doing good work under the direction of B. J. Phelps, the coach. H. S. Smith has been elected manager of the team and Tone Overton captain.

The Marathon Athletic Association of Westfield has opened its football season and would like to arrange games with teams averaging about 140 pounds. For further information apply to H. S. Lambert, manager, Westfield.

C. K. Garretson, manager of the Somerville A. C. football team, would like to arrange games with teams averaging about 140 pounds. Address 49 West High street, Somerville.

With the first regular football practise of the Princeton University gridiron contingent to be held today, the beginning of a training table one week later, and the playing of the first game with the Springfield Training School on October 3, the Tigers will be confronted with something entirely new in the way of beginning their season.

The faculty of the university interposed the decree setting the date for the initiation of gridiron stunts with a view toward removing the possibility of the athletes being hampered by football practise at a time when conditional "exams" were being held, which, in a number of cases, also determines the eligibility of several promising candidates.

Just what effect the late start will have on Princeton's development of an eleven remains to be seen, but already there is a tendency to feel skeptical, especially when the strength of the first team to be met—Springfield Training School—is considered. The latter eleven might well be met later in October and found a valiant foe instead of at a time when the training table will have been established but for three days and practise for only ten days.

Altogether, with the exception of the first game, Princeton's schedule leads up admirably to the climax of her season—the all important game with Yale at Princeton on November 14. Hard games with Lafayette, Syracuse, West Point, Darmouth and Yale may be expected, together with easier contests in the interim with Fordham, Villa Nova, Stevens and Virginia Polytechnic. All of the contests are to be played at Tigertown, with the exception of the Dartmouth-Princeton game, which is to be held at the Polo Grounds, New York, on November 7; and the Army-Princeton game at West Point, N. Y., the week before.

Coach Roper will be commander-in-chief of the moleskin warriors in their daily battles on University Field, and his regular assistants will be Jim McCormick, the star captain and fullback of last year's eleven, and Ned Harlan, the phenomenal drop-kick of the last Princeton team—both of them the choice of Walter Camp for his All-American eleven.

Harlan's main duty will be the development of a drop-kicker and punter. At present there is none of other than ordinary ability in sight, and if any one shines in this line during the coming season he will have to be a manufactured artist at the booting game.

McCormick's work will be with the back field, and there is one man—MacCrohan—who evinced considerable strength last season on the scrub, when, as fullback, he tore big holes in the varsity line repeatedly. He originally played guard, but was placed back of the line for the purpose of hurling 220 pounds against the varsity line in the daily scrimmages. If McCormick can transfer some of his own ginger and dash into MacCrohan Princeton need not fear for a good fullback this year.

A BUTTERFLY, NOTHING MORE.

The defection of General E. Burd Grubb is but a passing ripple in Burlington county politics and will have no weight whatever in the present campaign. The former United States minister to Spain has been rated as a "sorehead" ever since he became a nonenity in New Jersey politics. When his advice and counsel was no longer sought by the Republican leaders throughout the State, the General identified himself with the New Idea movement and for a time was given some publicity. Now that he has declared himself an out and out Democrat and is said to be willing to become the candidate of Mr. Bryan's followers for Congress, his name will probably appear in the political news of the day, but it is hardily probable that his alleged ambition to hold office again will be satisfied. The people of New Jersey are too sensible a lot to let any more Bryan men get into the Congress of the nation.

In another column will be found a fearless, unequivocal and concise letter in which Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, the Republican candidate for re-election to the State Senate, in Somerset county, expresses his views to the voters. It is well worth careful perusal.

TOOK CONSTABLE PRISONER.

Little Falls Official Made Mistake in Stirring Up a Citizen.

Little Falls, Sept. 24.—John Thompson, formerly constable and special policeman, but now a private citizen, took Constable Robert Radcliffe a prisoner in a saloon yesterday here, while Radcliffe, it is alleged, was acting disorderly.

Thompson has been working at Peekskill, N. Y., and was home on a two days' visit. He and three or four friends entered Sloman's Hotel yesterday morning and were having a quiet drink together, when Radcliffe entered and, it is charged, made some insulting remarks to Thompson.

Thompson promptly knocked him down, and as Radcliffe continued his abuse, Thompson pinioned him and took him to the Paterson lock-up, where he was placed in a cell. Radcliffe used bad language there, it is alleged, to the desk officer. The unusual scene of a private citizen leading captive an officer created quite a stir here.

Thompson while a policeman made a great record for bravery and did some good detective work.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATE FRANKLY STATES VIEWS

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen Tells Where He Stands on Excise, Good Roads, Direct Primary and Other Issues.

To the Voters of Somerset county:

I have been chosen the nominee of the Republican party for the office of Senator for another term, and take this opportunity of accepting the nomination and thanking the voters of my party for this expression of their confidence.

Having been the representative of the people of this county for three years past my record is before you. During that time it has been my aim to represent you irrespective of party and give impartial and unpartisan judgment to every problem of government, always holding myself at your call.

The duties of a Senator cannot be performed in any one place Nor can a Senator expect his constituents always to come to his office.

It is often his duty and it has always been my pleasure to go in person among by constituents in various parts of the county and discuss legislation. The limits of a Senator are not confined within the four walls of his office, but extend over the county, the State, and often, beyond the State if he renders faithful and comprehensive service.

If elected, it will be my ambition to give this county efficient and honorable service, recognizing the inherent right of the people to govern, and the principle that all power rests in them. Having strong convictions that great economy should be practiced in State government, and that fewer laws should be enacted, I pledge myself to work to these ends. There are too many issues to be discussed within the limitations of a letter, but there are a few subjects which affect the people of this county directly, and with regard to which I feel that in the absence of any party platform declaration, my views should be known.

The Excise Question.

The excise question is receiving a great deal of attention and deservedly so. There are those who think this problem can be solved by what is generally termed local option. The real and ultimate object of many of those who favor it, and it is a laudable aim, is to prevent as far as possible the drinking of intoxicants by minors and by those who abuse the use of liquor. Beyond doubt there are abuses connected with its use, and it is argued that if the temptations are removed by forbidding the sale of liquor, its abuse will at least in a great measure disappear. For that reason those who thus believe, and who reside in communities where this belief is shared by a majority of the voters, desire that the question of whether or not licenses shall be granted be submitted to popular vote.

Is it not true that once you grant the proposition that each town has the right to decide for itself whether or not liquor shall be sold therein, that surely some town will decide in favor of license, and if a town is entitled to decide by popular vote that liquor shall be sold, is not the next step inevitable, that it shall decide during what hours, and on what days it shall be done? Even now this right is claimed in Essex, Atlantic and other counties. My opponent says "I believe the almost unanimous sentiment of the people of this county, incluing those interested in the liquor business, to be against such a modification of the liquor laws, as will permit the sale of liquor on Sunday; and taking that view of it, I would, if elected oppose any law favoring an open Sunday for the sale of liquor." Is he logical, is he farsighted, when he takes the position that he is for local option, and at the same time declares that he is opposed to the sale of liquor on Sunday knowing that so much of the present agitation for this "Home Rule" legislation comes from the very localities which are crying loudest for an open Sunday.

Atlantic City now clamors for "Local Option" that will give the right to sell on Sunday.

Under our present Constitution all laws relating to the government of towns, cities, boroughs and the like, must be general, and it is legally impossible to grant the privileges of "Local Option" to one without, at the same time, granting it to all. Thoughtful citizens who know these facts, will hesitate to demand this privilege for themselves, because they realize how disastrously it may work out in another town with a different population. Many of the very best citizens of our State reside in towns where "Home Rule" would undoubtedly mean that bar rooms would never close. "Local Option" and "Home Rule" on this subject are one and the same thing, and nothing less.

It was beyond doubt a clear knowledge of these facts that led those wise, far-seeing and reverent gentlemen, ministers of the Gospel, representing almost every religious creed in our Christian State, to frame and present to our Legislature that great step in the direction of temperance, the justly famous "Bishop's Bill." This law, prepared and drafted with the greatest care, after the most comprehensive study of the subject by some of those best qualified of all our citizens, was enacted by a Democratic House of Assembly, a Republican Senate, and signed by a Republican Governor. It has been in force but little more than one year, and its excellent features are just beginning to be appreciated. There was bitter criticism in certain communities where the law had been flagrantly violated. In the last Gubernatorial campaign, the Republican candidate everywhere proclaimed from the stump that he would, if elected, enforce the provisions of this bill, come what might, and John Franklin Fort was elected Governor of New Jersey upon that issue.

The Excise question has been a question of years, the best minds of the world have labored with it, and it is not so simple that it can be decided without deep study. I am second to no man in my love of public decency and sobriety. I would be false to my ancestry and renegade to my upbringing if I were. I desire earnestly to be re-elected, and yet I cannot bring myself to agree with those who believe that Local Option should be embraced without further consideration.

How many, who are now urging what they term Local Option, have seriously considered the subject? Even my opponent confesses in his letter his doubts as to the proper form of a Local Option law. This confession begs the whole question, and leaves him at sea.

Local Option in one county means an anti-saloon movement, in another an open saloon, open, I say, not only on six days, but on seven days. I do not favor an open Sunday, and will oppose any proposition which might be made the entering wedge for Legislation under which it may become lawful to sell liquor in any part of the State on Sunday.

I fought for and voted for the Bishop's Bill, and stand resolutely by its provisions, believing it to be a long step in the direction of better regulation of excise conditions.

No Local Option bill can pass without the votes of Essex, Hudson, Camden, Passaic and Atlantic counties. The great cities of Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, Weehawken, Paterson, Camden and Atlantic City practically control 32 votes in the lower House. A Local Option bill to these cities means a bill under which the voters may decide, not only for or against saloons, but also for or against the sale of liquor on Sunday. I am sure my constituents do not wish me to vote for a bill under which liquor may be sold on Sunday.

I have cited my opponent's confession of doubt as to the proper form of a local option bill, and I have cited the illustrations above as the objectionable form it might assume to show how intricate is the problem, and how difficult a righteous and conscientious solution. This is a practical problem of legislation, and must be practically solved in conjunction with eighty members of a Legislature. A faithful representative may conscientiously hesitate to specifically bind himself to a single course in the working out of a great moral problem. For his desire to be free to do the best that can be done for his constituents on this, as on other questions, he should be supported rather than deserted by the voters.

Good Roads.

The subject of the improvement of the highways of the State is being widely discussed, not only in this county, but throughout the State. It has been suggested that a bond issue approximating $10,000,000 be placed on the State, to build a seacoast boulevard from Atlantic Highlands to Cape May, a system of State highways connecting the various county seats, and connecting with highways in adjoining States, all to be maintained and repaired at the expense of the State. I cannot see how directly the county of Somerset would receive any benefit from such a project, rather let a plan be adopted which will be fair to all, and which will encourage further the building and maintenance of good roads. The State now contributes 33 1-3 per cent to the building of stone roads. Increase the percentage to 50 per cent. This would enable the county to build more miles of roads. In this connection an important fact should not be overlooked. When the State Aid law was enacted in 1891, the great amount of interstate traffice from automobiles was not contemplated. Because of such interstate traffic the expense of maintaining the roads has been greatly increased, and falls upon the individual counties for the repair of their roads, it would seem reasonable that one-half of the cost of the building of these stone roads should be borne by the State, and the State should maintain the chief highways. In almost every township of the county the property owners are clamoring for stone roads. All of such roads are desirable, in fact, in this county, some are a necessity, and it will be my aim to bring about legislation under which they can be built.

Automobiles.

My position on automobile legislation is well known. I have been, and always will be, opposed to reckless driving. Drivers who are a menace to the life and limb of our citizens should be banished from the roads. During the past year $150,000 was collected for registration and license fees, all to be devoted to the repair and maintenance of the roads. This is only right, and the automobilists should continue to pay for the damage which they do.

Primary Law.

The method of nominating candidates under the new primary law seems to be cumbersome, at least, in the smaller counties. The object of the law, and it was a commendable object, was to prevent individuals controlling nominations, but it seems to place the control in the populous communities, and smaller localities do not seem to have as much say as under the convention plan.

For this reason, I opposed it last winter. The law should be given a fair trial, and if it is still as troublesome, smaller counties should have the opportunity of returning to the simplier, and in Somerset, the fairer method of the county convention, linked with the township caucus or town meeting to nominate candidates for local offices.

I have not attempted in this letter to discuss the Presidential issues They will necessarily be paramount, and I defer them for presentation later to my constituents.

The welfare and industrial progress of the nation demands the continuance of Republican policies as enunciated by McKinley and Roosevelt, and to be still further developed by the election of Taft and Sherman.

If returned to the Senate, it will be my earnest endeavor to act for your best interests and the welfare of the people of Somerset county, and of the State.

Apple Butter.

Take sweet cider as it comes from the press and cook it until reduced to half the original quantity. Now add a little more than half the quantity of pared, cored and sliced apples and cook slowly and carefully, stirring often with a long wooden paddle which reaches the bottom of the kettle. When the apples begin to break sweeten to taste, but it is better left quite tart. Continue cooking and stirring until like marmalade.

This will keep any length of time in wooden vessels or stone jars. If you wish the butter to have a spicy flavor, you may allow a teaspoonful each cinnamon, grated nutmeg and allspice to each gallon of sauce, putting them in when the sauce is nearly done.

The Concert a Grand Success

Many were the expressions of delight heard on all sides at the concert given by

THE VICTOR TALKING MACHINE

at our store Saturday evening. The crowd that filled the store resembled a regular holiday throng. It's no wonder they were delighted when you consider all the great artists that took part in the concert. Caruso, Schumann-Heink, Richard Jose, Sousa, Pryor, The Hayden Quartette, etc.

The Victor isn't a machine, it's a wonder, it's a miracle, and at the prices we sell them for and the very easy terms on which we sell them, anyone can afford to own one of these wonderful instruments. We also have on sale a complete line of the famous "Victor" records.

A NUTRITIOUS BEVERAGE

When You Drink, Drink Something That Will Do You Good.

When you drink, let your drink be of benefit to you.

Make your drink do double duty—have it quench your thirst and put strength into your system.

Call up Henry Haurand, of 68 Somerset street, on 'phone No. 229, and tell him to send you a case of Rienzi Beer, a pure, palatable drink that has tonic properties of the most pronounced character.

Rienzi is brewed by the Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and is known the country over as one of the foremost beers of America.

The Bartholomay Brewery Co. has for many years made Rienzi the standard of excellence.

It is brewed from choicest hops and barley malt, and through every stage of the brew it is faithfully looked after by a brew master second to none in the craft.

This brewery has an enviable reputation to sustain, and they will never suffer that reputation to become in the least tainted by offering an inferior beer to the American people.

Rienzi is a perfect beer; there is none better brewed—none better can be brewed. Henry Haurand will supply you. 9 22 24 25

RUTGERS STARTS NEW YEAR.

Freshman Class of 131 Members is Largest in History of the Institution.

Rutgers College opened its 143d year yesterday morning with a large attendance of students. Rev. Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, the president, welcomed the students and congratulated the freshman class, declaring it to be the largest in the history of the college. Of the 161 who applied for admission 131 have matriculated. He then gave the students some good advice on college life, college work and the college man. Reference was made to the John W. Herbert scholarship of $5,000 and the gifts to the college of pictures of the late Judge Bookstaver and Justice Jonathan Dixon.

Fillowing the chapel exercises the annual flag rush was held, in which 100 freshmen and twenty-five sophomores participated. The latter won, getting eleven hands on the flag to eight freshman hands.

John B. Oakley, of Elizabeth, will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting at 8 o'clock tonight.

HUNTING THE BLACK-TAILED DEER

BY

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1885, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

THE black-tail's great curiosity is one of the disadvantages under which it labors in the fierce struggle for existence, compared to the white-tail. The latter, when startled, does not often stop to look round; but the former will generally do so. The first black-tail I ever killed was obtained owing solely to this peculiarity. I had been riding up along the side of a brushy coulie, when a fine buck started out some thirty yards ahead. Although so close, my first shot, a running one, was a miss; when a couple of hundred yards off, on the very crest of the spur up which he had run, he stopped and turned partially round. Firing again from a rest, the bullet broke his hind leg far up and went into his body. Off he went on three legs, and I after him as fast as the horse could gallop. He went over the spur and down into the valley of the creek from which the coulie branched up, in very bad ground.

My pony was neither fast nor sure-footed, but of course in half a mile overhauled the three legged deer, which turned short off and over the side of the hill flanking the valley. Instead of running right up on it I foolishly dismounted and began firing; after the first shot—a miss—it got behind a boulder hitherto unseen, and thence over the crest. The pony meanwhile had slipped its hind leg into the rein; when, after some time, I got it out and galloped up to the ridge, the most careful scrutiny of which my practised eyes were capable failed to discover a track on the dry ground, hard as granite. A day or two afterward the place where the carcass lay was made known by the vultures, gathered together from all parts to feed upon it.

He stopped and turned.

When fired at from a place of hiding, deer which have not been accustomed to the report of a gun will often appear confused and uncertain what to do. On one occasion, while hunting in the mountains, I saw an old buck with remarkably large horns, of curious and beautiful shape, more symmetrical than in most instances where the normal form is departed from. The deer was feeding in a wide, gently sloping valley, containing no cover from behind which to approach him. We were in no need of meat, but the antlers were so fine that I felt they justified the death of their bearer. After a little patient waiting, the buck walked out of the valley, and over the ridge on the other side, moving up wind; I raced after him, and crept up behind a thick growth of stunted cedars, which had started up from among some boulders. The deer was about a hundred yards off, down in the valley. Out of breath, and overconfident, I fired hastily, overshooting him. The wind blew the smoke back away from the ridge, so that he saw nothing, while the echo prevented his placing the sound. He took a couple of jumps nearer, when he stood still and was again overshot. Again he took a few jumps, and the third shot went below him; and the fourth just behind him. This was too much, and away he went. In despair I knelt down (I had been firing offhand), took a steady aim well-forward on his body, and fired, bringing him down, but with small credit to the shot, for the bullet had gone into his hip, paralyzing his hind-quarters. The antlers are the finest pair I ever got, and form a magnificent ornament for the hall; but the shooting is hardly to be recalled with pleasure. Still, though certainly very bad, it was not quite as discreditable as the mere target shot would think. I have seen many a crack marksman at the target do quite as bad missing when out in the field, and that not once, but again and again.

I have never made big bags myself, for I rarely hunt except for a fine head or when we need meat, and if it can be avoided do not shoot at fawns or does; so the greatest number I have ever killed in a day was three. This was late one November, on an occasion when our larder was running low. My foreman and I, upon discovering this fact, determined to make a trip next day back in the broken country, away from the river.

We breakfasted hours before sunrise, and then mounted our horses and rode up the river bottom. The bright prairie moon was at the full, and was sunk in the west till it hung like a globe of white fire over the long row of jagged bluffs that rose from across the river, while its beams brought into fantastic relief the peaks and crests of the buttes upon our left. The valley of the river itself was in partial darkness, and the stiff, twisted branches of the sage-brush seemed to take on uncanny shapes as they stood in the hollows. The cold was stinging, and we let our willing horses gallop with loose reins, their hoofs ringing on the frozen ground. After going up a mile or two along the course of the river we turned off to follow the bed of a large dry creek. At its mouth was a great space of ground much cut up by the hoofs of the cattle, which was in summer overflowed and almost a morass; but now the frost-bound earth was like wrinkled iron beneath the horses' feet. Behind us the westerning moon sank down out of sight; and with no light but that of the stars, we let our horses thread their own way up the creek bottom. When we had gone a couple of miles from the river the sky in front of our faces took on a faint grayish tinge, the forerunner of dawn. All in the valley was yet dark when we reached the place where the creek began to split up and branch out into the various arms and ravines from which it headed. We galloped smartly over the divide into a set of coulies and valleys which ran into a different creek, and selected a grassy place where there was good feed to leave the horses. My companion picketed his; Manitou needed no picketing.

The tops of the hills were growing rosy, but the sun was not yet above the horizon when we started off, with our rifles on our shoulders, walking in cautious silence, for we were in good ground and might at any moment see a deer. Above us was a plateau of some size, breaking off sharply at the rim into a surrounding stretch of very rough and rugged country. It sent off low spurs with notched crests into the valleys round about, and its edges were indented with steep ravines and half circular basins, their sides covered with clusters of gnarled and wind-beaten cedars, often gathered into groves of some size. The ground was so broken as to give excellent cover under which a man could approach game unseen.

At last, just as the sun had risen, we came out by the mouth of a deep ravine or hollow cut in the flank of the plateau, with steep, cedar-clad sides; and on the crest of a jutting spur not more than thirty yards from where I stood, was a black-tail doe, half facing me. I was in the shadow, and for a moment she could not make me out, and stood motionless with her head turned toward me and her great ears thrown forward. Dropping on my knee, I held the rifle a little back of her shoulder—too far back, as it proved, as she stood quartering and not broadside to me. No fairer chance could ever fall to the lot of a hunter; but, to my intense chagrin, she bounded off at the report as if unhurt, disappearing instantly. My companion had now come up, and we ran up a rise of ground, and crouched down beside a great block of sandstone, in a position from which we overlooked the whole ravine or hollow. After some minutes of quiet watchfulness, we heard a twig snap—the air was so still we could hear anything—some rods up the ravine, but below us; and immediately afterward a buck stole out of the cedars. Both of us fired at once, and with a convulsive spring he rolled over backward, one bullet having gone through his neck, and the other—probably mine—having broken a hind leg. Immediately afterward, another buck broke from the upper edge of the cover, near the top of the plateau, and, though I took a hurried shot at him, bounded over the crest, and was lost to sight.

We now determined to go down into the ravine and look for the doe, and as there was a good deal of snow in the bottom and under the trees, we knew we could soon tell if she were wounded. After a little search we found her track, and walking along it a few yards, came upon some drops and then a splash of blood. There being no need to hurry, we first dressed the dead buck—a fine, fat fellow, but with small misshapen horns—and then took up the trail of the wounded doe. Here, however, I again committed an error, and paid too much heed to the trail and too little to the country round about; and while following it with my eyes down on the ground in a place where it was faint, the doe got up some distance ahead and to one side of me, and bounded off round a corner of the ravine. The bed where she had lain was not very bloody, but from the fact of her having stopped so soon, I was sure she was badly wounded. However, after she got out of the snow the ground was as hard as flint, and it was impossible to track her; the valley soon took a turn, and branched into a tangle of coulies and ravines. I deemed it probable that she would not go up hill, but would run down the course of the main valley; but as it was so uncertain, we thought it would pay us best to look for a new deer.

Our luck, however, seemed—very deservedly—to have ended. We tramped on, as swiftly as was compatible with quiet, for hour after hour; beating through the valleys against the wind, and crossing the brushy heads of the ravines, sometimes close together, and sometimes keeping about a hundred yards apart, according to the nature of the ground. When we had searched all through the country round the head of the creek, into which we had come down, we walked over to the next, and went over it with equal care and patience. The morning was now well advanced, and we had to change our method of hunting. It was no longer likely that we should find the deer feeding or in the open, and instead we looked for places where they might be expected to bed, following any trails that led into thick patches of brush or young trees, one of us then hunting through the patch while the other kept watch without. Doubtless we must have passed close to more than one deer, and doubtless others heard us and skulked off through the thick cover; but, although we saw plenty of signs, we saw neither hoof nor hair of living thing.

We lunched at the foot of a great clay butte, where there was a bed of snow.

After lunch we hunted until the shadows began to lengthen out, when we went back to our horses. The buck was packed behind good old Manitou, who can carry any amount of weight at a smart pace, and does not care at all if a strap breaks and he finds his load dangling about his feet, an event that reduces most horses to a state of frantic terror. As soon as loaded we rode down the valley into which the doe had disappeared in the morning, one taking each side and looking into every possible lurking place. The odds were all against our finding any trace of her; but a hunter soon learns that he must take advantage of every chance, however slight. This time we were rewarded for our care; for after riding about a mile our attention was attracted by a white patch in a clump of low briars. On getting off and looking in it proved to be the white rump of the doe, which lay stretched out inside, stark and stiff. The ball had gone in too far aft and had come out on the opposite side near her hip, making a mortal wound, but one which allowed her to run over a mile before dying. It was little more than an accident that we in the end got her; and my so nearly missing at such short range was due purely to carelessness and bad judgment.

Neither of my shots had so far done me much credit; but at any rate I had learned where the error lay, and this is going a long way toward correcting it. I kept wishing that I could get another chance to see if I had not profited by my lessons; and before we reached home my wish was gratified. We were loping down a grassy valley, dotted with clumps of brush, the wind blowing strong in our faces, and deadening the noise made by the hoofs on the grass. As we passed by a piece of broken ground a yearling black-tail buck jumped into view and cantered away. I was off Manitou's back in an instant. The buck was moving slowly, and was evidently soon going to stop and look round, so I dropped on one knee, with my rifle half raised, and waited. When about sixty yards off he halted and turned sideways to me, offering a beautiful broadside shot. I aimed at the spot just behind the shoulder and felt I had him. At the report he went off, but with short, weak bounds, and I knew he would not go far; nor did he, but stopped short, swayed unsteadily about, and went over on his side, dead, the bullet clean through his body.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 27, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions. The cry of the city.—Gen. xviii, 16-33.

Most people who live in the country and in small towns and have traveled but little or none at all have the impression that cities are nothing but cesspools of sin and iniquity. The newspapers are to some extent responsible for these false views. A few crimes are committed, and these are blazoned forth, a few politicians engage in crooked work, and these are given great headlines; a few couples apply for divorce, and prominent places are made for these. But, after all, how few are the criminals in comparison to the millions in cities who are upright and honest—how few political rascals when placed beside the thousands who honorably perform their civic duties! And how few are the divorce cases when compared with the thousands and thousands of homes where married life is not a failure! Cities are well churched, and the most active, consecrated Christians dwell in our large cities. The pastors of these churches are most faithful and energetic. There is absolutely no comparison between the work done by a city pastor and one whose pastorate is in the country or a small town. Moreover, city pastors do not, as many suppose, preach anything else but the gospel. The best gospel sermons to be heard today are heard from city pulpits. These are facts and need to be emphasized before we look at the other side of the picture.

While the best people as a general thing live in the cities, so also do the worst. The attractions to evil are great. The opportunities to successfully commit sin and crime in great populations is also evident, and hence the criminal classes seek shelter in the cities, and one of the great disadvantages to the progress of the gospel in American cities today is the large percentage of foreigners who have come to them in recent years. This is especially true of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. Colonies of various nationalities are herded together in these great centers of population. This increases the difficulty of making our cities Christian.

There is one thing, however, about city missions. The Christian people who live in the cities consider the work largely their own, and no appeals are made for money outside the cities themselves. In the cities already mentioned this is true and also of Pittsburg, which is fast becoming a great center for foreigners of all kinds. The cry of the city is great, but it has never yet reached in our very worst American cities what it did in Sodom and the cities of the plain. More important still, our great cities contain churches and Christian workers capable and willing under God to evangelize the most discouraging elements. In our large cities especial efforts are frequently made to reach the indifferent and unsaved, such as the Torrey movement and the great simultaneous evangelistic meetings held under the leadership of Chapman and Alexander. The various religious denominations, through their ecclesiastical bodies, labor earnestly for city evangelization. Many individual churches have special missions and do splendid work. The outlook is most encouraging. Vice and sin are driven from the public gaze. Life and property are defended by the splendid police forces of our larger cities. The gospel is making headway into the hearts and lives of men. Let us trust God, therefore, and go forward to win our cities for Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxxxvii, 1-6; cxxvii, 1-9; cxxvii, 1; Jonah i, 2; Acts i, 8; viii, 1-8; Luke xix, 41-44; Rom. x, 14, 15; Acts xvii, 16-21; Rev. xxii, 1-6.

What We Stand For.

This is Dr. Clark's definition of "What Christian Endeavor stands for:"

"Christian Endeavor is a providential movement and is promoted by societies composed largely of young people of both sexes found in every land and in every section of the evangelical churches. Its movement for active members demands faith in Christ, service for Christ and loyalty to Christ's church. Its activities are as wide as the needs of mankind, are directed by the churches of which the societies are an integral part and are carried on by carefully organized committees embracing all the members. Its strength lies in the voluntary obligation of its covenant pledge and its adaptability to all classes and conditions of men. Its ideals are spirituality, sanity, enthusiasm, loyalty, fellowship, thorough organization and consecrated devotion."

Educational Endeavor.

The Endeavorers belonging to Christian churches in Texas have for several years united in their efforts for the purpose of aiding young ministers in obtaining their education. Their aim now has enlarged itself, and they have undertaken to raise in ten years the sum of $10,000 to endow in the Bible college of the Texas Christian university a chair of practical Christian work. The chair will provide for instruction in modern methods of work and Christian Endeavor societies and Sunday schools as well as the church.—Home Herald.

The Devil's Playground.

Secretary Shaw has been stirring things up in Kentucky. Answering some objections, he said, "We must remember that if we have no place which we wish to give the children in the work of the Master and in His church, the devil will furnish them just as large a playground as they need and all the work they can do."

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

The ten starters passed in stately procession from the green-swarded paddock through an open gate to the soft harrowed earth, gleaming pink-brown in the sunlight, of the course. How consciously beautiful the thoroughbreds looked! The long sweeping step; the supple bend of the fetlock as it gave like a wire spring under the weight of great broad quarters, all sinewy strength and tapered perfection; the stretch of gentle-curved neck, sweet lined as a greyhound's, bearing a lean, bony head, set with two great jewels of eyes, in which were honesty and courage, and eager longing for the battle of strength and stamina, and stoutness of heart; even the nostrils, with a red transparency as if silk, spread and drank eagerly the warm summer air that was full of the perfume of new-growing clover and green pasture land.

Porter passed through the narrow gate leading from the paddock to the grand stand. He crossed the lawn and leaned against the course fence, to take a deciding look at the mare and the chestnut as they circled past the stand in the little view-promenade which preceded the race.

From the inquisition of the owner's study Lucretia stood forth triumphant; neither the chestnut nor anything else in the race could beat her. And Jockey McKay—Porter raised his eyes involuntarily, seeking for some occult refutation of the implied dishonesty of the boy. He found himself gazing straight into the small, shifty eyes of Lucretia's midget rider, and such a hungry, wolfish look of mingled cunning and cupidity yas there that Porter almost shuddered. The insinuations of Mike Gaynor, and the other things that pointed at a job being on, hadn't half the force of the dishonesty that was so apparent in the tell-tale look of the morally irresponsible boy in whose hands he was so completely helpless. All the careful preparation of the mare were as less than nothing should the boy, with the look of a demon in his eyes, not ride straight and honest.

Even then it was not too late to ask the stewards to set McKay down, but what proof had he to offer that there was anything wrong? The boy's good name would be blasted should he, John Porter, say at the last minute that he did not trust him; and perhaps the lad was innocent. Race people were always ready to cry out that a jockey was fixed.

Suddenly Porter gave a cry of astonishment. "My God!" he muttered, "the boy has got spurs on. That'll set the mare clean crazy."

He turned to Dixon, who was at his elbow: "Why did you let McKay put on the steels?"

"I told him not to."

"He's got them on."

"They've got to come off," and the trainer dashed up the steps to the stewards. In two minutes he returned, a heavy frown on his face.

"Well?" queried Porter.

"I've made a mess of it," answered Dixon, sullenly. "It seems there's hints of a job on, an' the stewards have got the wrong end of the stick."

"They refused to let the mare go back to the paddock?" queried Porter.

"Yes; and one of them said that if trainers would stick closer to their horses an' keep out of the bettin' ring that the public'd get a better run for their money."

"I'm sorry, Andy," said Porter, consolingly.

"It's pretty tough on me, but it's worse on you, sir. That boy hadn't spurs when he weighed, an' there's the rankest kind of a job on, I'll take me oath."

"By G—d!" muttered Dixon, as he went back to the paddock, "if the boy stops the mare he'll never get another mount, if I can help it. It's this sort of thing that kills the whole business of racing. Here's a stable that's straight from owner to exercise boy, and now likely to throw down the public and stand a chance of getting ruled off ourselves because of a gambling little thief that can spend the income of a prince. But after all it isn't his fault. I know who ought to be warned off if this race is fixed; but they won't be able to touch a hair of him; he's too d—n slick. But his time'll come—God knows how many men he'll break in the meantime, though."

Porter meanwhile had found his daughter in the grand stand.

"Here's a seat, dad," cried the girl, cheeringly, lifting her coat from a chair she had kept for her father.

For an instant John Porter forgot all about Lucretia and her troubles. The winsome little woman had the faculty of always making him forget his trials; she had to the fullest extent that power so often found in plain faces. Strictly speaking, she wasn't beautiful, but in the blue-gray eyes that were so much like her father's was the most beautiful thing in the world, an undoubted evidence of truth and honesty and sympathy. She was small and slender, but there was apparent sinewy strength and vigor in the small form. Her life, claimed by the open air, had its reward. Bred in an atmosphere of racing, and surrounded as she had always been by thoroughbreds, Allis had grown up full of admiration for their honesty, and courage, and sweet temper.

III.

John Porter looked down at the small rather dark, upturned face, and a half-amused smile of content came to his lips. "Did you see Lucretia?" he asked. "Isn't she a beauty?"

"I saw nothing else, father." She beckoned to him with her eyes, tipped her head forward, and whispered: "Those people behind us have backed Lauzanne. I think they're racing folks."

The father smiled as an uncultured woman's voice from one row back jarred on his ear. Allis noticed the smile and its provocation and said, speaking hastily, "I don't mean like you, father—"

"Like us," he corrected.

"Well, perhaps; they're more like betting or training people, though." She put her hand on his arm warningly, as a high-pitched falsetto penetrated the drone of their half-whispered words, saying: "I tell you Dick knows all about this Porter mare, Lucretia."

"But I like her," a baritone voice answered. "She looks a rattlin' filly."

"You'll dine off zwieback and by your lonely, Ned, if you play horses on their looks—"

"Or women either," the baritone cut in.

"You're a fair judge, Ned. But Dick told me to go the limit on Lauzanne, and to leave the filly alone."

"On form Lucretia ought to win," the man persisted; "an' there's never anythin' doin' with Porter."

"Perhaps not;" the unpleasant feminine voice sneered mockingly, with an ill-conditioned drawl on the "perhaps;" "but he doesn't ride his own mare, does he?"

John Porter started. Again that distasteful expression fraught with distrust and insinuation. There was a strong evil odor of stephanotis wafted to his nostrils as the speaker shook her fan with impatient decision. The perfume affected him disagreeably; it was like the exhalation of some noisome drug; quite in keeping with the covert insinuation of her words that Dick, as she called him—it must be Dick Langdon, the trainer of Lauzanne, Jorter mused—had given her advice based on a knowledge quite irrespective of the galloping powers of the two horses.

"Did you hear that, father??" Allis whispered.

He nodded his head.

"What does it all mean?"

"It means, girl," he said, slowly, "that all the trouble and pains I have taken over Lucretia since she was foaled, two years ago, and the money spent for her keep and entries goes for nothing in this race, if Jockey McKay is the rascal I fear he is."

"You think some one has got at him, dad?"

Her father nodded again.

"I wish I'd been a boy, so that I could have ridden Lucretia for you today," Allis exclaimed with sudden emphasis.

"I almost wish you had, little woman; you'd have ridden straight, anyway—there never was a crooked one of our blood. Yes," the father went on, musingly, as he watched the horses lining up for the start. "Men think if a boy is a featherweight, and tough as a Bowery loafer, he's sure to be a success in the saddle. That's what beats me—a boy of that sort wouldn't be trusted to carry a letter with ten dollars in it, and on the back of a good horse he's almost certain to turn out a blackguard sooner or later, and throw down his owner. He'll have more temptations in a week to violate his trust than a bank clerk would have in a lifetime."

"They're off!" exclaimed the baritone.

"Not this trip," objected the falsetto.

"The spurs—the young fiend!" fiercely ejaculated John Porter.

"What is it, father"

"The boy on Lucretia is jabbing her with the spurs, and she's cutting up."

"That's the fourth false start," said Ned, the baritone. "I don't think much of your Lauzanne, he's like a crazy horse."

Allis heard the woman's shrill voice, smothered to a hissing whisper, answer something. Two distinct words, "the hop," carried to her ears. There was a long-drawn-out baritone, "Oh-h!" then, in the same key, "I knew Lauzanne was a sluggard, and couldn't make out why he was so frisky today."

"Dick's got it down fine"—just audibly from the woman; "Lauzanne'll try right enough this time out."

"The mare's actin' as if she'd a cup of tea, too," muttered her companion, Ned.

This elicited a dry chuckle from the woman.

Allis pinched her father's arm again, and looked up in his face inquiringly, as from the seat behind them the jumbled conversation came to their ears. Porter nodded his head understandingly, and frowned. The stephanotis was choking his nostrils, and an occasional word was filling his heart with confirmation of his suspicions.

"I don't like it," he muttered to Allis. "They've had four breaks, and the mare's been left each time. The chestnut's the worst actor I ever saw at the post. But I'm thinking he'll leave the race right there, the way he's cutting up."

BASEBALL.

In order to facilitate arrangements for the world's championship series of baseball games the national baseball commission has announced an additional detailed rule to govern the contests as follows:

Rule 18—In order to facilitate the arrangements for all of the games during the world's series the national commission will furnish to the contesting clubs all of the general admission tickets, consisting of two sets each game, one set to be at the rate of $1 admission and the other for the rate of $1.50 admission. All of said tickets to have rain checks attached for all games played, and the following regulations with regard to the sale of tickets and the settlement therefor shall govern.

A—No tickets excepting reserved seat coupon tickets shall be sold before the gates are opened, and all tickets other than reserved seat tickets shall be sold only at ball park ticket office.

B—In order to furnish an accurate check on turnstiles the home club before each game shall furnish the business representatives of the commission with a list of the tickets given each ticket seller. The count of the number of tickets sold shall be taken each day and compared with the turnstile registers, the larger amount to be taken as the official count.

C—The contesting clubs prior to the first game in the respective cities shall furnish to the representatives of the commission a diagram or list of all reserved seats, settlement to be made by the difference between the reserved seats not sold and the number listed.

D—Each club shall set aside daily two reserved seats for each eligible player of the visiting club, same to be delievered to the secretary of the visiting club and to be paid for by that club.

Jack Kelly, left fielder of the Indians and the leading outfielder in the Eastern League this season, will become a hotel proprietor in Baltimore soon. Kelly has all his plans completed and he will go direct to his home in the Oriole City after the field day games of the Redskins next Sunday. In adition to playing ball this year Kelly has enjoyed a lucrative income from the bar privileges at the Baltimore baseball park, which he controlled. Next season he expects to put in a bid for the privileges at Wiedenmayer's Park.

At a late hour Monday night a masked man made an attempt to enter the residence of Richard Cliver, residing on a small farm near Wrightstown, while Mrs. Cliver was in the house alone. She succeeded in getting to the door in time to bar him out. She ran upstairs and began to scream, and nearly fainted. Several persons heard her, among whom was her husband, but the man escaped. She says the man wore a mask.

There was no response to two names called in the panel of jurors for the September term of the United States District Court, which opened in Trenton yesterday. One was that of Andrew J. Holl, the young post-office clerk, who is under bail, charged with stealing $200 worth of bond coupons from a letter and whose case will probably be tried by the panel of which he was to have been a member. The other was that of C. B. Moore, of Kingston, who died after his name had been drawn.

For shooting reedbirds in the vicinity of Lumberton, Saturday morning last, before sunrise, Samuel Woodington, of Bridgeboro, was arrested under the direction of Game Warden Mathis and Constable Throckmorton, and given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Risdon, at Mt. The officials state that Woodington and other Bridgeboro gunners have been in the habit of slaughtering reedbirds at roost, and they are determined to break up the practice.

Engaged Soprano Soloist.

Miss Josephine M. Martin, of Watchung avenue, a talented singer, has been engaged as the soprano soloist for Grace M. E. church, and she will begin her duties on Sunday. The church has a volunteer chorus choir, and with a soprano soloist, attractive music is anticipated.

GEN. E. BURD GRUBB BECOMES A DEMOCRAT

General E. Burd Grubb, veteran soldier and one-time Republican idol, and recently a Colbyite, caused widespread surprise by announcing that he would seek the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Second district, of which Burlington county is part. The general has had strong independent leanings for some years since the Republican organization turned its back upon him despite the gallant fight he made as the party candidate for Governor in 1889.

His announcement has caused consternation among the Republican machine followers in view of yesterday's close results at the primaries and the known opposition in this and other counties to the renomination of Congressman John J. Gardner for a ninth term. In Millville yesterday eight anti-Gardner delegates were chosen to the convention, which will meet in Atlantic City tomorrow, and whether the opposition will figure or not, General Grubb will stick to his determination, to go after the Democratic nomination, which will be made in Mount Holly Saturday.

General Grubb was at one time U. S. minister to Spain. When Everett Colby first organized his forces for political power, General Grubb was among his first recruits.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Williams, of East Ninth street, have returned from their summer outing in Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hunter, of New York city, have been in Plainfield for a short visit before going to California. They expect to visit friends in Los Angeles and may make their residence there in the future. Mrs. Hunter's maiden name was Margaret Warren and she resided here for a short time.

TRINITY THIMBLE CIRCLE GIVES BIRTHDAY PRESENT.

The Thimble Circle, composed of women belonging to Trinity Reformed church, resumed its meetings for the fall and winter, yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs Robert Clark, Jr., 59 Jackson avenue, and the birthday of one of the members, Mrs. F. T. Woodhull, was remembered by the Circle in the thoughtful presentation to her of a beautiful rose basket filled with choice flowers from Stanley's conservatory. A solid silver thimble with "a stitch in time saves nine," engraved on the side was also in the basket. Mrs. Woodhull was unable to be present at the meeting and one of the members took it to her home on West Front street. She was so complete overcome that it was minutes before she could reply to the donors. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by the Circle as the guests of Mrs. Clark.

Teachers' Fund Delegates.

The Union County Teachers' Retirement fund members met at Elizabeth yesterday and elected Miss Sophie Braun, of Elizabeth, and Miss Elizabeth Stryker, of Westfield, the Union county delegates to the annual convention to be held at Trenton, Saturday. Several Plainfield teachers were in attendance.

BRIDAL SUPERSTITIONS.

Here is a collection of proverbs purporting to speak oracularly concerning the brides and the months:

A January bride will be a prudent housekeeper and very good tempered.

A February bride will be a kind and affectionate wife and tender mother.

A March bride will be a frivolous chatterbox somewhat given to quarreling.

A May bride will be handsome, amiable and likely to be happy.

A June bride will be impetuous and generous.

A July bride will be handsome and smart, but a trifle quick tempered.

An August bride will be amiable and practical.

A September bride will be discreet.

An October bride will be pretty, coquettish, loving, but pealous.

A November bride will be fond of novelty and entertaining.

Ira Mundy.

Ira Mundy, aged seventy-two years, died this morning at his home on Summit avenue. He was born at Mount Bethel.

CELEBRATE NEW YEAR'S

Impressive Ceremonies Begin Tonight at Synagogue of the Children of Israel.

HONOR OF ROSH HASHONAH.

First of Three Great Hebrew Holy Days That Will Come Within Two Weeks—Feast of Trumpets.

Impressive services will be held in the Synagogue of the Children of Israel tonight celebrating the commencement of the year 5669. It will be the New Moon of the month Tishri and its advent has always been heralded by the trumpet blasts that gave it the ancient name of "Feast of the Trumpets," although it is generally known to modern Hebrews as "Rosh Hashonah"—New Year.

This is the first of the three great Jewish holy days that come close together, falling within a period of two weeks. These are the New Year, on the first of Tishri; the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, on the 10th, October 4, and the Feast of the Tabernacles, Succoth, on the 15th, October 9. The ten days of solemnity and fasting, from New Year to the Day of Atonement, are known as Yomin Neroin. They are followed by the joyous Feast of Tabernacles, or Booths. New Year is a day of solemnity, with services of penitence for the sins of the year passed and intercession for grace and help for the year to come.

This year the usual custom of blowing the shofar, or ram's horn, at the morning service of New Year (tomorrow) will not be observed at orthodox synagogues, as that days is the Sabbath. As this is a two days' festival with the orthodox Jews, the shofar blowing will take place on Sunday morning. Only among the reformed Jews at the temple, where New Year is a one-day festival, the shofar will be blown at the Saturday morning service.

PROPERTY OWNERS BUILD THEIR OWN SANITARY SEWER.

Property owners on Spruce street, a short thoroughfare in the West End running from Essex to Fourth streets, have solved the problem of how to get muncipal improvements without a lot of Councilmanic red tape. They wanted a sanitary sewer run through the block but when application was made for it the city officials had so many "ifs and ands" to tell why they couldn't have it, they decided to build one themselves They accordingly fixed upon a pro rata share of the expense and Commissioner Gavett had the contract given for them. The sewer is now being built under the city's supervision.

Andrew Muir, of Essex street, who took the initiative in the matter because of owning property on the thoroughfare, has agreed to bear all additional expense over the amount subscribed and when connections are made in the future application and payments must be made to him.

SKYLARKING COSTLY.

Friendly Scuffle Ends in John Casey, Jr., Throwing a Wrench Through Big Plate Glass Window.

Skylarking on North avenue, yesterday afternoon proved costly fun for John Casey, Jr., of West Third street, an employe in Street Commissioner Gavett's office. He engaged in a friendly scuffle with Edward Carty, of Orchard place, and the latter ran away after a few biffs on each other's hats. Casey had a water wrench in his hand and threw it after him but it went past Carty, bounded from the sidewalk and crashed through a plate glass window worth $150 in the front of Smalley Brothers market in the Smalley building.

The accident was witnessed by Patrolman Flynn and he went with Casey to the maket while he made arrangements to pay for the damage. The glass was one of the largest on North avenue. Casey is the young man who recently found $1,800 worth of diamonds at Pedeflous' hotel and received a reward of $300

NOMINEE IRA W. WOOD ADDRESSES CONVENTION

As told in yesterday's issue, Ira W. Wood, of Trenton, was renominated unanimously at Somerville by the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional district, which includes Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon counties. Resolutions endorsing the candidates and the platform of the National convention were passed amid much enthusiasm.

Addresses were made before adjournment by the nominee and by Prosecutor Crossley and former Assemblyman Barber, of Mercer county, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, and Owen Lovett, of Trenton.

Alexander Milne, of North Plainfield, Alexander B. Allen, of Mercer, and W. B. Warren, of Hunterdon, escorted nominee Wood to the platform. The Congressman dwelt at length in an interesting way on National questions, incidently lauding both Roosevelt and Taft. He reviewed the President's record, told of what is to be accomplished at the Isthmus canal and what good had been done by the enactment of a meat inspection law. In an instructive fashion he detailed the past performances of the Republican party and told what could be expected from it in the future. Before closing, he vigorously attacked the Democratic party.

GOOD ROADS MEETING ON AT ATLANTIC CITY

The Good Roads Association convention is in session at Atlantic City today, under the auspices of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey and with the co-operation of the New Jersey Automobile Trade Association, New Jersey State Grange, Freeholders and County Engineers and the Atlantic City Automobile Club. Governor Fort will speak upon the subject of good roads and a revision of the present automobile laws of New Jersey. State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, of this city, is taking an active part in the deliberations.

Papers of more than ordinary interest will be read by G. W. F. Gaunt Master of the New Jersey State Grange; James M. Belden, secretary of the Essex County Road Drivers' Association; Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth; Judge William H. Spear, of Jersey City; J. B. R. Smith, New Jersey Commissioner of Motor Vehicles; Joseph W. Hunter, Pennsylvania State Highway Commissioner at Harrisburg; Frederick Skene, New York State Engineer and Surveyor; James E. Owen, Newark; ex-Senator L. J. Martin, Newton; Robert P. Hooper, chairman of the Roads Committee, Philadelphia; Alerton S. Cushman, acting director of the Public Roads Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; George C. Diehl, County Engineer, of Buffalo, N. Y.; and Calvin Tomkins.

S. S. VERMEULE WILL NOT SUE THE CITY FOR DAMAGES.

Frank Vermeule, of Orange place, speaking in behalf of his uncle, S. S. Vermeule, who preferred charges against Superintendent Arthur Wolverton, of the Industrial Home, announced today that his uncle has no intention of suing the city for continued outrages" as alleged by Harry Adams before the Councilmanic Alms committee. He says that his uncle may have told Mr. Adams that, as reported, but he has no idea of bringing a suit, that his demand is for proper punishment of Mr. Wolverton for what he considers ill-treatment.

Mr. Vermeule says that he went to the Industrial Home this morning to get the personal effects of his uncle, but that Superintendent Wolverton refused to give them to him without an order from Overseer-of the-Poor Alex. D. Ayers.

Will Report Investigation.

The next regular meeting of the Common Council will be held on Monday night, October 5, at which time the Alms committee will present its report following the investigation of affairs at the Industrial Home. While the details of the report are not known it is expected that it will favor the superintendent, Arthur Wolverton. The case is still before City Judge William N. Runyon and he is waiting the Councilmanic report before he passes sentence, having found Mr. Wolverton guilty of the charges preferred by S. S. Vermeule. Of course, Judge Runyon could dismiss the case, if in his judgment the report warrants such action.

NEW TROLLEY SCHEDULE

After Conference With City Officials, P. S. C. Arranges to Change its Timetable.

GOES INTO EFFECT ON SUNDAY.

Hope for Decided Improvement—Cars to Meet at Fourth Street and Watchung Avenue.

Following the recent conference between the Councilmanic public affairs committee and representatives of the Public Service Corporation, a new schedule for the local trolley lines will be put in effect on Sunday, which, it is believed, will give patrons of the cars here greater satisfaction. In changing the schedule the idea was to so arrange the running time that school children will be able to make close connections with the Arlington avenue cars for the High School, as well as the other schools throughout the city.

Another desirable feature in the new schedule is that the Netherwood Arlington and Fourth street north bound cars will meet at the intersection of Fourth street and Watchung avenue, every fifteen minutes. The Netherwood and Arlington avenue cars will leave the terminals of those lines at Netherwood and Arlington avenue, seven minutes past the hour and every fifteen minutes thereafter at all hours during the day arriving at Watchung avenue and Fourth street fifteen minutes after leaving the terminals, except that from 6 to 7 a. m., and from 10 to 11:30 p. m., the Arlington avenue cars will run on a thirty minute headway, instead of fifteen.

The Fourth street northbound car will leave the terminal at Seventh street and Monroe avenue at eleven minutes past the hour, and every fifteen minutes thereafter at all hours during the day, meeting the Netherwood and Arlington avenue cars at Fourth street and Watchung avenue.

The Netherwood cars will run through to Grant avenue as at present, and the southbound Fourth street cars will pass Watchung avenue and Fourth street five minutes after the Netherwood, Arlington and Fourth street northbound cars have left that point. Transfers from the Fourth street southbound cars to the main line westbound cars will be accepted at Front and Somerset streets, and also at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, and transfers from the Netherwood line to the main line Eastbound cars will be accepted at Fifth and Richmond streets; also at Watchung avenue and Fourth street

The time for leaving the terminals namely, Netherwood and Arlington avenue lines, at seven minutes past the hour, and every fifteen minutes thereafter, and Fourth street northbound at eleven minutes past the hour and every fifteen minutes thereafter, will be the same at all hours during the day, except on Arlington avenue, between 6 and 7 p. m., and 10 and 11:30 p. m. The main line cars will run on the quarter hours as at present.

There was some discussion about again changing the local trolley station, putting it back to its original place at Watchung and North avenues, but there was some opposition to this owing to the previous congested condition of that thoroughfare when all of the cars arrived and departed from that point and it was decided to give the present arrangement a fair trial.

All-Day Rally Services.

Sunday will be observed as a grand rally day at the Park Avenue Baptist church. There will be a church rally in the morning at 10:30 when the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, will preach. The Sunday-school rally will be held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon with appropriate music and an address by Secretary Parker, of the Y. M. C. A., and in the evening at a rally of the church and all the societies, at 7:45 o'clock, Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield Public Schools, will make an address. These special services will mark the resumption of the fall and winter work.

"Busy Bees" Will Entertain.

Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairciew avenue, is in charge of the entertainment to be given at the Y. M. C. A. tonight by "The Busy Bees," for the benefit of the Day Nursery. This society has on previous occasions accomplished much for charitable objects, spending much time in making garments for the poor and contributing a brass bed to the hospital. Included in the entertainment tonight six children, between five and nine years of age, will give a drill and sing. This will be only one of the many features.

Small Boy Hurled Into Street When He Grasped Wire Under Bridge.

UNCONSCIOUS WHEN FOUND.

Both Hands Terribly Burned and Several Fingers Will Probably Have to Be Amputated.

Reaching up to catch hold of an electric light wire suspended beneath the Clinton avenue railroad bridge James Henry, the twelve-year-old son of William Henry, of 20 Clinton avenue, received a terrific shock at noon today that hurled him into the roadway unconscious. He was found there a few minutes later by Warren Squier and his son, Monroe Squier who carried him to his home and summoned Dr. Cregar. The physician worked over the boy for half an hour before he was restored to consciousness and for a time it was thought that he would not recover.

In addition to suffering from the voltage that passed through his body both the little fellow's hands were terribly burned. It is probable that several fingers will have to be amputated as the wire seared its way to the bones and rendered them useless.

The boy was able to tell about the accident when he regained his senses. He said that he was passing under the bridge when he noticed several electric light wires handging low. In a playful spirit he reached up to catch hold of one and happened to strike a place where the insulation had worn off through constant rubbing against a bridge girder. He lost consciousness immediately afterward and knew nothing more until he woke up at home.

Mr. Squier and his son, who found the boy, made an investigation of the wires and learned that the insulation is off in several places and that anyone of them can be reached by children. The sidewalk under the bridge is built high and the wires are suspended from the girders. The local authorities have been notified of the dangerous condition of affairs.

GATHER INFORMATION ABOUT RUNNING FAIRS

Satisfactory results were obtained by the delegation of Plainfield business men who visited the Allentown Fair yesterday to get some pointers for the inauguration of a similar enterprise here. The Plainfield crwod had a talk with a number of the Allentown concern's officials and gathered a batch of facts and figures that will be valuable in launching the scheme here.

In the party were William J. Counihan, A. E. Force, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, F. A. Duttenhoeffer, Charles H. Frost and M. C. VanArsdale.

Both the Plainfield Retail Merchants Association and the Plainfield Board of Trade are interested in the plans. The idea is to have the Plainfield fair annually following the Allentown and Trenton exhibitions.

To See Marble Man Nominated.

Arrangements have been made by the Union County Republican Committee, which Charles N. Fowler has always generously assisted in campaign expenses, for a special train to the Fifth district Congressional convention at Phillipsburg on Monday. The train will stop at Plainfield at 9:50 and will leave Phillipsburg on the return at 4:45. The round trip is $1.83.

Injured Men Recovering.

John Benson, one of the trio of carpenters who fell from a scaffolding at a house on Martine avenue, a few days ago, has recovered and will be discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital tomorrow. Ludwig Johnson and Albert Johnson, who were also injured, are steadily improving, but it will be some days before they can leave the hospital.

K. of P. Theatrical Benefit.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., is to have a theatrical benefit at the New Plainfield theatre on October 22. The attraction will be the Little Mose Amusement company's production of "Simple Simon Simple," the popular musical comedy.

A G. O. P. Banner.

Plainfield Republican City Committee is planning to swing a huge party banner at North and Park avenues. It will cost $100 and will contain portraits of Taft and Sherman and the names of all Republican candidates.

Court Declares Unconstitutional Law Forbidding Children to Attend.

KNOWN AS "NICKELETTE" LAW.

Discrimination Proves Fatal to Validity of Statute Which Had Caused Much Unfavorable Comment.

Rendering a decision in a test case, Vice-Chancellor Garrison decided yesterday that the law of the last Legislature prohibiting children from attending moving picture shows unless accompanied by parents or guardian is unconstitutional. He maintains that boys and girls below the age of sixteen have a right to witness the exhibitions by themselves if they care to and that to rule otherwise is unjust discrimination. The decision is of especial significance to Plainfield in view of the fact that Chief Kiely declared yesterday that he would enforce the law in this city.

The test case was that of William Van Horne, who has one of the shows on Jackson avenue, Jersey City. When the law was signed, sealed and delivered the proprietors of the moving picture shows were perturbed, for it meant their retirement from the business, as their financial support was derived from children. They met, organized, consulted a lawyer whose opinion was that the law was bad and of no effect, for it contains as exemptions from its provisions picture shows in public and private schools, Sunday Schools and churches.

This discrimination was vital, for the Declaration of Independence has set forth that all men are created free and equal and the Constitution and laws to be valid must be constructed to conform with the Declaration.

Ex-Judge Hudspeth, of Hudson county, was retained and when Van Horne was taken into custody as a transgressor of the law ex-Judge Hudspeth promptly applied to Vice-Chancellor Garrison for a writ of habeas corpus and attacked the law, contending that the act was in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution and section 7, paragraph 11, of the Constitution of the State.

The Vice-Chancellor holds that the law is bad as claimed, as it conflicts with the fourteenth amandment, which guarantees "equal protection of the laws must certainly give equal security or burden under the law." Van Horne was ordered discharged from custody.

TRUNK LINE SEWER CONFERENCE LAST NIGHT.

The city Councilmanic street committee held a conference last night with the Borough's special sewer committee, to discuss some of the details relative to the proposed trunk sewer. It was reported that the special committee appointed from the various municipalities interested in the proposition, including Puainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook and South Bound Brook, had met with representatives of the engineering firm of Hering & Fuller, who are to do the preliminary work, and had given such information as the engineers desire. It is expected that the actual work of the survey will begin today.

Following the conference the street committee held a meeting to discuss matters pertaining to local street work, but nothing of any importance was decided. It was learned that City Engineer Gavett has the street improvements well in hand and they are progressing satisfactorily.

Orpheum Theatre's Opening.

Manager W. J. Counihan announced today that he would open Reform Hall under the name of the Orpheum theatre on Election night, November 3, as a first-class ten and twenty cent vaudeville house. The improvements now underway will be ready by that time. The acts for the bills will be provided by the United Booking Office, which handles all the numbers for the Keith and Proctor houses and other big vaudeville managers.

Committed to Reform School.

Petman Robinson, the Plainfield colored boy who committed a dozen or more thefts, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Atwater to the Reform school at Jamesburg. He will be kept at the institution until he becomes of age.

SAYS WIFE DEFENDED AFFINITY WITH PISTOL

The story of an alleged midnight "affinity" adventure at the Hotel Cumberland, Fifty-fourth street and Broadway, New York—a man fleeing from the place in his pajamas and leaping into a taxicab, the woman drawing a revolver when her husband entered the room with the detectives—was revealed at Trenton yesterday through the filing of papers in an action for divorce.

The adventure is said to have taken place last Friday night. The husband who seeks his freedom from the marital bond is Frank M. Pullen, of Trenton. The co-respondent, whom he charges with being his wife's affinity, is Daniel S. Baxter, of Plainfield, although this name does not appear in the city directory. It is alleged that Baxter and Mrs. Pullen were registered at the Cumberland as "G. Steele and wife, Philadelphia."

According to Pullen, he had had his wife shadowed for weeks. The detectives who aided him in breaking into the room are said to have snatched the pistol from the woman, whom they escorted to a hotel in Hoboken, where she was kept under surveilance for the rest of the night. Pullen says he knows nothing of her present whereabouts. The couple were married April 25, 1903, and have a son, four years old.

REALTY CAMPAIGN THROUGH NEWSPAPERS

Plans for a systematic campaign of newspaper advertising were discussed at a meeting of the New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange yesterday afternoon at the Hudson Terminal building in New York. There were sixty members present and the subject of the animated discussion was "The Best Methods to Employ to Dispose of New Jersey Real Estate."

Joseph P. Day, of New York, one of the largest real estate operators in the East, told his experiences in letting the public know what he had to offer and he declared that he was convinced that there is but one satisfactory method and that is through the daily newspaper. He discounted all other means and stated that results obtained by him conclusively proved that the newspaper advertising columns afford the only channel for the realty man to work through.

William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, made an address in which he declared that to properly handle property it is first necessary to take a hand in the local government and work for its improvement. When this task its accomplished, he said, all that is necessary is to employ the newspaper advertising column and quick results follow. Mr. Jeffery dwelt at length on the methods used by the Plainfield board of trade which follows up its newspaper publicity with pamphlets and invariably gets a home-seeker. Among the other speakers were Horace A. Rounds, of Keansburg, and E. H. Lambert, of Paterson.

It was decided to raise a large fund by assessment among the members for the purposes of employing newspaper advertising for Jersey realty advantages. An advertising manager will be selected at an early date.

A DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE AT ARTHUR L. TITSWORTH'S.

At the home of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist of Trinity Reformed church, on Tuesday night, the quartet choir of the church and some of its friends were delightfully entertained at an informal musicale given by the choir and Prof. Alfred Williams, of Chicago, formerly of Plainfield. Solos were rendered by Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; F. S. Cutter, bass and quartet selections by Mr and Mrs. E. D. Young, Miss Nan Randolph and Mr. Cutter. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist.

Mr. Williams sang several solos during the evening in his usual fervent style and with the pathos and conscientious skill of an artist. He is an exceptionally fine bass singer, with a remarkably fine voice, rich in quality and resonance and phenomenal in range, combined with a physique of manly proportions. He studied in Chicago, Boston and London and finished with Striglia, the renowned vocal teacher of Paris. At present he conducts a studio in Chicago, where he is eminently successful. It is hoped that his many Plainfield friends may induce him to give a public recital here at some future time.

—Delicious Bartlett pears and fancy grapes will be included in the assortment of fruits at Neuman Brothers tomorrow. Make sure you see the display; it will be better than ever before.

ALEXANDER GILBERT HONORED

Plainfielder Made a Presidential Elector—Tariff Resolution in Platform—Kean Chief Speaker.

The Republican State convention convened at the Taylor Opera House in Trenton at noon to adopt a platform and to elect Presidential electors. State Chairman Franklin Murphy called the assemblage to order and after a few brief remarks introduced United States Senator John Kean as chairman for the convention. Senator Kean delivered the principal speech.

Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Newark, and Moses Taylor Pyne, of Princeton, both men of large wealth, were named as Presidential electors at large. The electors for the ten Congressional districts will be announced as well. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, President of the New York Clearing House, who was the choice of the Union county leaders for the Congressional nomination, was selected as the elector for the First district.

The secretaries selected were: James Parker, Passaic; Upton S. Jeffries, Camden; Thomas Mooney, Burlington; John Clift, Union; Howard L. Tyler, Cumberland; Alexander C. Yard, Mercer, and Philip Kessner, of Hudson.

The platform committee presented three resolutions, one indorsing the candidacy of Taft and Sherman, one indorsing the national platform and the third indorsing the protective feature of the Republican national platform.

Electors so far elected will be: First district, Thomas E. French, Camden; Second district, Walter E. Edge, Atlantic City; third district, Lewis Thompson, Red Bank; Fourth district, George B. Ashley; Fifth district, Alexander Gilbert; Sixth district, J. Hull Browning, Tenafly; Seventh district, Peter Campbell; Eighth district, Levi R. Howe, East Orange; Ninth district, H. J. Melloss; Tenth district, Alvin Hunsinker, Weehawken.

A large number of Union county Republicans are attending the convention. Among the number are Andrew McCardell, Amos Andrews, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., and James T. MacMurray, all of this city.

PLAINFIELD ENDEAVORERS TO GIVE INVITATION IN SONG.

The Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be represented at the State Christian Endeavor Convention to be held at Atlantic City on October 7, 8 and 9. A number of societies already have chosen delegates. The round trip fare from Plainfield to Atlantic City will be $5, and those attending the convention can take either route, by the way of Philadelphia or by the shore line. The train leaving Plainfield at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon over the Reading makes close connection at Philadelphia for Atlantic City.

In the open parliament on union work and methods, to be held the first day of the convention, the secretary of the Plainfield Union, will give a report of the work of the union for the past year. As previously stated, the Plainfield Union will invite the State convention to meet in Plainfield in 1909. The invitation is to be given in a song which will be sung by the Plainfield delegates in response to the roll call.

Cleaning Brick Pavement.

Under the direction of President R. I. Tolles, of the Common Council, street sprinkling contractor Keely gave Park avenue, between North avenue and Second street, a thorough flushing with water this morning, the idea being to see if it was possible to clean the brick pavement as it should be. The water wagon passed back and forth through this block several times and it seemed to remove the dirt. Mr. Tolles believes that once this dirt of long standing has been removed, it will not be so difficult to keep the pavement clean in the future. The rest of the brick pavement will be treated similarly.

Auto Driver Arrested.

Benjamin Urquhart, colored, was arrested by Patrolman Dobson, last night, for driving an automobile bearing an expired license number. The car belongs to James Tygard of South avenue, and the owner was under the impression that the license was still in force. In the city court this morning, Judge Runyon instructed Urquhart to have the license renewed and suspended sentence.

TABASCO LIMERICK.

A soubrette who worked for Papasco
One day kicked up quite a fiasco,
As the hair on her head
Turned from yellow to red

The last word of the last line must rhyme with the last words of the first two lines.

All that is necessary is to send us what you think is the best last line to our Tabasco Limerick with your name and address. Contest closes May 1, 1909, and prizes announced May 15, 1909.

Get busy now; tell your friends. Here's a great chance to win an income free.

Remember, this contest is open, free to everybody. Someone must win the above prizes. Why not you?

WHAT IS TABASCO?

For forty years it has been used by cooks everywhere. Every first-class hotel, steamship, restaurant and dining car uses it in the kitchen and upon the table. Tabasco is great for soups, roasts, fish, fowl, game, seafood, for eggs of any style, for the outdoor luncheon or the afternoon salad. Use it in your kitchen all the time.

What makes excellent the cooking of the chef will make delicious the food of the home. Get the Tabasco habit in your kitchen, on your table. One drop works wonders. Buy from your grocer today. He has it; every grocer has it. Ask his opinion.

This contest is open to everybody free. Send in your Limericks in your own way and as often as you please. The fund to pay these prizes is now on deposit with Geo. W. Young & Co., Bankers, New York City.

Commotion Creating Values in Young Men's & Boys' New Clothing.

Better for the money than most other stores offer at special prices—better than many other stores have at any price. No other store pays the attention to detail that we do—its in the detail that clothing proves itself. Here quality of sewing must be as high as quality of materials; quality of lining must be as true as newness of style. After thoroughly posting ourselves we can say that our clothing for young men and boys is absolutely the best for the money—no exceptions. Come and see!

Young Men's Suits at $15—Style, make, materials excellent without counter part; pure worsted and all wool cheviots, cassimere; new brown, olive, gray and green stripes and invisible plaids; nobby and stylish patterns, perfectly tailored, hand felled collars, hand made shoulders and lapels; correct hanging coats, decidedly smart; trousers have taped seams, are semi-peg, vest, medium high; flap pockets; 17 to 20 years; or 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38 chest, at $15

Other Suits for Young Men, $10, $12, $13.50, $16.50, $18 & $20.

Boys' Suits, Best at $3.98—Derby and double breasted, with belts, wool blue serge, fancy cheviot; cassimere, nobby patterns in gray and brown; coats with cuffs on sleeves; flaps on handkerchief pockets; side vents, correct fitting, knickerbocker trousers, lined and taped throughout, 8 to 16 years; suits worth every cent of $5, as compared with those about town, our special leader $3.98

Boys' Suits, Best at $3.00—Double breasted with belt; knickerbocker trousers, neat brown and gray mixed double and twist cassimere, good strong saten linings, correct fit; coats hang perfectly; trousers full cut and roomy; 7 to 17 years; just to show how well we can do at a price that many stores slight—how good our suits are at $2.00

Boys' Suits, Best at $5.00—Double breasted, belt and derby models, unmatched fit, materials, workmanship; all wool blue serge and cheviot, and fancy cheviot and cassimere; many shades of brown, olive, green and gray; handsome new stripes, checks and plaids with threads of different colors running through; style and character seldom in suits at $5.00; coats appeal to every boy and parent; flap pockets, new style cuff sleeve; bottom facing, strong twilled and plain sateen lining; knickerbocker trousers, lined and taped throughout; 7 to 17 years; unequaled at $5.00

Boys' Suits, Best at $7.00—Double breasted belt, and double and single breasted without belt; perfect to most minute detail, cut over best patterns; no question about fit; snug fitting collars, broad shoulders, correct back; slanting or straight flaps on pockets; cuff sleeves, turn up bottoms; full cut knickerbockers, lined and taped; 7 to 17 years, at $7.00

Boys' Suits, Best at $10.00—Double breasted, with belt; derby model, without belt; fitted back; blind, side and centre vents; new brown, olive and green; imported worsted, cheviot, velours, inside tailoring clean and neat as outside; collars and shoulders hand made, front interlined with haircloth and best tailor shrunk canvas; trousers, cut full; sizes to 17 years, price..... $10

Little Boys' Suits at $7.00—Extra fine Russian and sailor suits, imported worsted and cassimere; new brown, tan and gray, stripes, checks and plaids; also blue serge and worsted, with white hairline stripes; perfectly tailored; bloomer trousers; sizes 2½ to 10 years, high grade little suits, but not high grade price, at $7.00

The Clinton Avenues and Y. M. C. A. will battle at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon for the championship of the city. Peacock will probably be on the slab for the association boys, while Randolph will oppose him. This will be the first time that the Clinton Avenues have had an opportunity to face Peacock and the outcome will be watched with interest. Manager Listman promises to have out his strongest lineup.

Somerville will cross bats with Bound Brook at the latter place, tomorrow afternoon, and the fans are looking for a red hot contest. Too bad the Somerville team could not have arranged to come here and decide the interesting series.

Manager Listman of the Y. M. C. A. team, has decided to close the season on Saturday, October 3, that being his final playing date. The association nine has made a good record and every member is pleased with the results.

"Billy" O'Loughlin is still unable to play because of a broken finger, the result of trying to slide to base in the Clinton Avenue-Rahway game. His place has been filled by Gilman.

Considerable has been said about the work of Umpire Moynihan, who officiates at the Clinton Avenue games here, but it is the general opinion of the fans that his decisions have been fair. At times he seems to be off a trifle on balls and strikes, but as a rule they are impartial and given exactly as he sees them, without fear or favor.

Many expert sporting writers in New York are curious to know why McGraw has not given Marquad, the $11,000 pitcher, a trial. They contend that he would certainly have done as well as either Ames or Crandall in the double header on Tuesday, and could have done no worse as both games were lost.

BASKETBALL.

Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., is gradually getting plans in shape for basketball. Nearly all of last year's team will be back and the association will probably have one of the best aggregations in recent years. The usual series of games will be played with Orange, Newark, Montclair and Summit, while metropolitan teams will also be seen on the local court.

The interscholastic basketball league, comprising the P. H. S., N. P. H. S., and Leal's school, will undoubtedly be organized soon when a series of games will be arranged for the winter.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield Council will receive bids at the meeting of October 5 for 16,000 square yards of six-inch macadam, 1,000 square yards of cobble gutters, 800 square yards of Belgian block gutters, 700 feet of culverts and 2,000 yards of excavation. Specifications are in the hands of the town clerk.

The resignation of Mayor Wilbur Cory, of Mountainside, has been accepted by the Council. His successor will be appointed at the next meeting of the Council.

A small fire broke out in the poolroom at Broad and Clark streets, Westfield, Wednesday. The fire department put it out when it had done about $150 damage.

Delegates from Perth Amboy and Rahway will attend a meeting of Westfield Woodmen to be held tonight at Arcanum Hall.

DRYDEN'S AUTO IS SMASHED, BUT OCCUPANTS UNHURT.

Former United States Senator John F. Dryden of New Jersey was in his limousine automobile with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser, yesterday afternoon, when it crashed into another automobile at Stratford place and Avon avenue, Newark. The occupants of the Dryden car were not injured.

The Senator's car, driven by the chauffeur, had just got to the top of the grade in Avon avenue when the other automobile, owned by Assistant Prosecutor Louis Hood, of Essex county, came along Stratford place and struck it on the left side, tearing off the mud guard, damaging the rear wheels, and swinging the limousine car half around. The hood of the other car was torn away, and the wheels were also damaged.

Mr. Dryden telephoned for another car from his garage and continued on the way to his summer home at Bernardsville, N. J., with his family. Witnesses who saw the accident declare that the Hood car contained two women at the time of the accident, but that statement was emphatically denied by its owner, who said that the only occupant was the chauffeur.

WILL TAX MOTORISTS FOR OCEAN BOULEVARD.

At the meeting of the Ocean boulevard executive committee at Asbury Park Wednesday night Governor Fort was an important figure.

Discussion of the proposed route along the coast appeared to favor a detour around Ocean Grove, although Governor Fort favors a straight course from start to finish. The new driveway will be called the Ocean boulevard to distinguish it from the State highway through the counties.

All four of the coast counties are represented on the committee, which will be known hereafter as the Ocean boulevard committee of New Jersey.

A bill to authorize the road will be introduced in the Legislature in January. Its estimated cost is from $300,000 to $500,000. The annual maintenance charges, it is estimated, will be $270,000, part of which it is proposed to raise by increasing automobile licenses in the State.

PRINCETON HAS 1,250 STUDENTS REGISTERED

The one hundred and sixty-second year in the history of Princeton University was begun at Princeton yesterday afternoon with formal exercises in Marquand Chapel. President Woodrow Wilson delivered the opening address, and welcomed a new freshman class of about 400. More than two-thirds of this number being successful in the examination requirements.

It is estimated that about 100 students have entered from other colleges throughout the country, and the total registration is approximated at 1,250.

The Palmer physical laboratory, which was erected at a cost of $400,000, has been completed, and will be used by the scientific departments. The natural science laboratory, the Thompson gradute school, Seventy-Seven dormitory, and the Russell Sage dormitory are expected to be ready for the opening of the university in 1909.

EBERHARD TAKEN TO PRISON YESTERDAY

Hackensack, Sept. 25.—August Eberhard, who pleaded non vult Wednesday to the murder of his aunt Mrs. Ottilie Ehberhard, July 18, at Rochelle Park, and later was sentenced to thirty years at hard labor in State prison, left here yesterday morning to begin his term.

Under-Sheriff Walter Scott and Deputy Sheriff John W. Courter were assigned by Sheriff George W. Brewster to transport the prisoner to Trenton. The party left on the 9:19 train over the Susquehanna Railroad. Prosecutor Koester, in commenting on the outcome of the case, had this to say:

"I am satisfied after talking with the jury since the termination of the case that it would have brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. I was thoroughly convinced however, after consultation with Dr. Charles MacDonald, the alienist who was in court during the trial, that Eberhard was not right mentally. I have a strong belief that there is insanity in his case. Rather than be responsible for sending an insane man to death, I consented to allow him to plead non vult."

TO FIGHT PARCELS POST.

Wholesale Druggists Vote Against the Plan.

The banquet at the Marlborough Blenheim at Atlantic City last night practically ends the convention of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association, which has been in session here for the last four days. The closing business session will be held in the morning.

There was a great deal of opposition at yesterday's session over the recommendations made Wednesday by Prof. Remington that the United States Pharmaceopeia be issued every five years instead of every ten years, as is now the custom, but the association finally decided in favor of the five year plan.

The convention went on record as being in favor of watching legislation to prevent "freak" bills, and also decided to force the adoption of a uniform classification of freight rates by railroads. The question of restricting the sale of opium was referred to a committee. After a heated debate the association decided to oppose the parcels post with might and main.

FEARS FOR NEW POSTOFFICE.

Mayor of Morristown Warns Public that Appropriation May Lag.

Mayor Alexander Bennell and other citizens have become alarmed by the fact that it appears that no further action is being taken by the authorities in Washington, D. C., in relation to the location of a site for a postoffice building in Morristown, and they fear that if the people of the town do not push the matter that the whole thing will lapse and the improvement be lost to Morristown for many years to come.

For the purpose of arousing the people of the town to action Mr. Bennell has prepared a circular, in which he says that "no selection of a site has been made by the Treasury Department, and it seems unlikely that any will be made without some decisive expression of public opinion." He then calls attention to the fact that the site must be a corner property with a frontage of 140 feet, and shows that there are only three of the sites offered that meet these conditions—the Butterworth tract, on South street; St. Hilda's school property and the Riley estate, on Morris street.

Of these he shows that the Butterworth place is believed to be most favored by the department, being on a main street and nearer the Lackawanna Railroad station than the present office.

Finally he says that "if the people of the town will indicate their choice of that site the postoffice may be immediately secured." He adds that the government will expend over one hundred thousand dollars upon it, "and the building should be placed in a location where the surroundings will be in accord with it, and the South street lot is the only one that meets this requirement."

It is expected that a public meeting soon will be called.

MEN'S FALL SHOES

PATENT or CALF---BUTTON or LACE

While there are no extreme or marked changes in the style of Men's Shoes there are many minor points of difference over last winter's designs, for one thing, the newest lasts have a little more swing—the shapes are "toppier." Many shoes have perforations around the vamp, particularly patent leathers and dress shoes. We know our shoes this season mirror the Metropolitan fashions and we want to "show" you The "VanArsdale" $4.00 and $5.00 Men's Shoes will give you supreme satisfaction in style and wear. A NUTRITIOUS BEVERAGE

When You Drink, Drink Something That Will Do You Good.

When you drink, let your drink be of benefit to you.

Make your drink do double duty—have it quench your thirst and put strength into your system.

Call up Henry Haurand, of 68 Somerset street, on 'phone No. 229, and tell him to send you a case of Rienzi Beer, a pure, palatable drink that has tonic properties of the most pronounced character.

Rienzi is brewed by the Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and is known the country over as one of the foremost beers of America.

The Bartholomay Brewery Co. has for many years made Rienzi the standard of excellence.

It is brewed from choicest hops and barley malt, and through every stage of the brew it is faithfully looked after by a brew master second to none in the craft.

This brewery has an enviable reputation to sustain, and they will never suffer that reputation to become in the least tainted by offering an inferior beer to the American people.

Rienzi is a perfect beer; there is none better brewed—none better can be brewed. Henry Haurand will supply you. 9 22 24 25

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Manager Frentz will present his usual lineup against the Highlanders, in the game on the local grounds tomorrow, with the exception of MacLaughlin. Joe Alberts will probably do the box work and Henry Albert will be on the receiving end. Game will be called at 3:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole attended the reunion of the prisoners of war of '61, which was held yesterday in Newark. Mr. Walpole was one of the unfortunates who was forced to accept the hospitality of the Confederate Army for several months.

Collector and Mrs. Charles Sheelen, of the borough, observed in a quiet way the fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home Wednesday night.

Willie Stanbury, who has been spending his vacation at his home, left yesterday to resume his studies at the military school at Kingston, N. Y.

The enrollment at the public school is the largest in the history of the school, 238 pupils being enrolled and more are expected to come in.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The old Weymouth meeting-house, at Weymouth, will celebrate the 103d anniversary next Sunday.

Diphtheria has crept in the schools of Paulsboro, and it has been necessary to close and fumigate one room.

Hurff Weatherby, prominent farmer of Swedesboro, was thrown from his carriage and probably seriously injured when his horse ran away yesterday. The bit broke in the horse's mouth.

A valuable Newfoundland dog, belonging to Mrs. Mary Megatgee, of Walker's Forge, near Mays Landing, was killed on the third rail of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad yesterday.

Burglars entered the home of Geo. Anderson, in Bordentown, Tuesday night, and secured two mandolins, but overlooked a sum of money. They were frightened away by Mr. Anderson, who had come home late.

Spinal meningitis is taking off horses near Egg Harbor, and over thirty animals have died as a result. A horse used on the mail route between that city and Wading River, and the property of Henry Breder, died on the road, delaying the delivery of the mail several hours.

A man, whose body is so mutilated that recognition is impossible, was killed by an electric express at the North Woodbury crossing of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Tuesday night. His head, one leg and one arm were cut off. The head was found along the third rail, badly burned. The clothing was torn in shreds and the man's shoes are about the only things that offer a possibility of identification.

While Henry Robins, of Yorktown, was shopping at Woodstown, Tuesday evening, a man asked him for a ride to Yorktown, which was granted. When Robins stopped at another store at the end of the town the man drove off with his rig. Robins gave chase with a team and half a mile out of town foud the carriage, but nothing could be found of the man or the horse. When he arrived home he found his horse tangled in a digger with a gash in its breast that may cause its death.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS OF THE COUNTY OF UNION.

Official.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, held Thursday, September 3d, 1908, at 2.30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present: Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Fay, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, McGovern, Perry, Pierson, Robinson, Smith, Stephan, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff, 19. Absent, Freeholder Meisel, 1.

On motion of Freeholder Cady it was ordered that the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting be dispensed with, and that the said minutes be approved as per printed copies on the members desks.

Communications.

From the Associated Automobile Clubs of N. J., and directed to the Clerk of the Board, as follows:

Dear Sir: A National Good Road Convention was held in Buffalo during the early part of July, 1908, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association and the National Grange and American Roadmakers Association, which was attended by representatives from all over the United States, and as the convention was such a pronounced success, it has been decided to hold one somewhat similar on the same lines, except that it will not be national in scope, but be confined to the State of New Jersey, and will be held at Atlantic City, N. J., on September 25th, and 26th, 1908, under the auspices of the Associated Automobile Clubs of N. J., with the co-operation of the N. J. State Grange.

The headquarters of the convention will be at the Seaside Hotel, Pennsylvania avenue, Atlantic City.

In addition to having the co-operation of the N. J. State Grange, we are also desirous of having the Freeholders and City and County Engineers of the State assist in making the convention a success, and would therefore request that you present the matter to your Board, or the Road Committee, at your early convenience, and appoint delegates to be present at the convention. If you will kindly take the matter up at once and inform us, we will endeavor to make arrangements to have your representatives taken to the convention in automobiles on September 24th, thereby giving them an opportunity of going over the different improved roads of this State.

Governor John Franklin Fort is heartily in favor of the movement and has promised to be present and deliver the opening address.

Other prominent officials of the State are also enthusiastic, and have promised their support.

The principal object of the convention will be to discuss the construction and maintainance of the roads and to get in closer touch with all users of the public highway.

Thanking you in advance for an early reply, I remain,

Yours truly,
H. A. BONNELL, Secretary.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur, received, accepted and placed on file.

From Ulric Dahlgren Post Nost, No. 25, G. R. R.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 2, 1908.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, N. J.:

Gentlemen: The undersigned hereby makes application to your Honorable Body to furnish as the law allows suitable headstones for the following named deceased comrades of the War of the Rebellion, all of which received an honorable discharge, viz:

William Henry, Co. C., 14th N. J. Inf., Evergreen Cemetery.

Abram Apgar, Co. M, 2nd N. J. Cav., Evergreen Cemetery.

Thomas H. Seymour, Lieut. Co. E, 87th N. Y. Inf., Evergreen Cemetery.

William Ennis, 17th N. Y. Inf., Evergreen Cemetery.

William Riefeustahl, Co. G, 15th N. Y., Heavy Arty., Evergreen Cemetery.

John Danneberger, Co. H, 4th N. J. Inf., Rosedale Cemetery.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE DWIGHT STONE.
Comdr. Ulrich Dahlgren Post 25, G. A. R.
E. BALDWIN, Adjutant.

On the motion of Freeholder Doane, received and referred to Committee on Headstones, etc., as heretofore appointed.

The following petition was presented and read:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholdes of the County of Union:

We, the undersigned, citizens residing in the City of Elizabeth, respectfully petition your honorable body to appoint Alexander Dixon, Jr., who resides at No. 57 Butler street, as bridge tender of said bridge. We believe Mr. Dixon to be a man well fitted to render the services necessary on a bridge of this kind as he lives so near the bridge. He is a young man thirty years old, strong in body and mind, sober and industrious.

We heartily recommend him for the position, knowing that he is especially adapted for this kind of work, and would respectfully ask that in the employment of a bridge tender Mr. Dixon's name be considered, as his home is so near to the bridge in question.

The foregoing petition was signed by Edward Steeb, P. DuBois Bunting and fifty-nine others.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and referred to the commitee on First Street Bridge.

The following petition was presented and read:

To the Honorable Board of Rreeholders, of Union County.

Gentlemen: Please accept herewith formal application for the position of bridge tender at the new bridge at South First street, Elizabeth, trusting that you may act favorably on same in my behalf.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN HANKINS.

Attached to the foregoing were the names of T. H. Benton, Charles H. Moore, D. P. McGovern and twenty-four others endorsing the above application.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, received and referred to the committee on First Street bridge.

From Lloyd Thompson, Town Clerk of Westseld and addressed to Freeholders Smith and Perry, a communication received by the Town of Westfield from Frank B. Metzgar as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of the City of Westfield.

I herewith call your attention to the condition of the gutter in front of my house, corner of Harrison avenue and Maye street. In place of a gutter you will find a deep ditch into which carriages drawn in front of the house are liable to upset. I think it is necessary to lay pipes and connect with the culvert under Harrison avenue. Will you kindly look into this matter and see what can be done to put it in proper condition, and very much oblige.

Yours respectfully,
FRANK B. METZGAR,
116 Lawrence Avenue.

Freeholder Perry moved that the matter be referred to a special committee of three which was so ordered. The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Perry, Krouse and Pierson.

The following communication from C. A. Swift, prosecutor, and directed to Nathan R. Leavitt, County Collector, was read as follows:

Dear Sir—I have your letter with enclosed bill to Frederick Teiple, constable, asking me to approve of it if I think it should be paid, or otherwise to strike on my signature to the approval.

There is no question to my mind as to the items of June 25 and 27, and I have therefore approved the bill for that amount. As to the other items, as I have explained to your committee, the services rendered as charged for were slight, one of the charges was for visiting a saloon corner of Second avenue and Geneva street, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it was possible to see a clock in the saloon over a screen.

This work was done after Court hours and could not have taken very much time and for which he has charged one half aday's services.

The other charges are for notifying the family of a complainant in a criminal case, that the case would be called on a certain day and requesting a member of the family to send word to the complainant—this was done in leu of issuing a subpoena which had it been issued, Mr. Teiple would have served it in the regular order of his employment as constable.

I do not wish to be misunderstood as raising any trivial objection to the charges, and therefore ask the committee of the Board of Freeholders to establish a rule as to what services constables are expected to render and their per diem fees.

Yours truly,
C. A. SWIFT.

The bill as originally made was in amount $16.70 and was approved by the Prosecutor for the sum of $6.70.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, it was ordered that the communication be received and the bill paid as approved by the Prosecutor.

REPORTS OF COMMITEES.

By the Committee on County Road Repairs.

August 17, 1908.

To the County Road Committee, Union County Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen: Pursuant to your instructions, I have gone carefully over the line of Morris avenue from the Hummock northwesterly to the county line at the Passaic River, and find the road in very bad condition, at a number of places. In my opinion, immediate repairs should be made to the road at the following named points.

The westerly slope of the three hills, running northwesterly from the top of Hobarts Hill.

From Milburn Road, near Farmers Hotel, southeasterly to the Short Hills Road.

From point 400 feet west of Springfield Hotel, southeasterly to the Meeker Inn.

In addition to the above work there are long sections, where the roadway has already been repaired to a certain extent by the Morris County Traction Company, and which should now be touch up with screenings, and rolled and watered.

The cost of this work will be about $5,000.

Respectfully,
J. L. BAUER.

Attached to the foregoing report were the following preamble and resolution.

Resolutions passed by the County Road Committee at its meeting held on Monday, August 17, 1908.

Whereas, the County road known as Morris avenue, from the Hummock, northewesterly to the county line at the Passaic River, has been injured and partly destroyed by the heavy rains, extraordinary traffic, and other injury, and

Whereas, said road is in need of immediate repairs, and to repair the same at this time will be a saving to this county of several thousand dollars, therefore be it

Resolved, that the county collector is authorized to borrow a sum of five thousand dollars, for the payment of such repairs.

E. K. ADAMS,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
HENRY KROUSE,
Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and the resolutions adopted by this Board, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Jail Inspection.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

Gentlemen: Your Committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that it has regularly inspected the Jail and also the books of the warden and find the jail in a clean and sanitary condition; 129 prisoners have been confined during the month of August; 71 committed; numbor of days board 1 820; daily average 59-21-31; treated by physician 11.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Swain received and placed on file.

By Committee on Hazelwood avenue bridge, Rahway.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen: Your Committee on Hazlewood avenue bridge, Rahway, N. J., find that the amount asked for at the last meeting of the Board is not sufficient to have the work done; therefore be it resolved, that an additional amount of five hundred dollars be appropriated to have the bridge repaired.

JOHN H. STEPHAN,
ELSTON DARBY,
JOSEPH PERRY,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

NEW BUUSINESS.

By Freeholder Jones:

Resolved, That the collector be authorized to pay the bill of R. G. Rogers for building the bridge on road leading to Union Village, Township of New Providence, amounting to $394.00, when properly sworn to and signed by the Committee on said bridge, and certified to by the engineer in charge.

Freeholder Swain moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Cady:

Resolved, That the auditing and approving of bills of the Justices of the Peace and their constables, be referred to the committee on legal questions and the Prosecutor of the Pleas of Union county and the county attorney, for the purpose of suggesting a better method of approving said bills; said committee to report back to the board as next meeting.

On motion of Freeholder Jones the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the bill for the month ending August 31, 1908, of the New Jersey State Hospital, amounting to the sum of $2,581.30 be paid when properly audited.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Wilbur:

Resolved, That such members of this board as desire to attend the convention of the Associated Automobile Clubs of N. J. at Atlantic City on the twenty-fourth instant be and are hereby requested to so notify the director of this board on or before the tenth instant.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder Perry of committee on local questions reported verbally with the advice of the county attorney, on the matter of claim for damages to biccyle tires, by Harry Hatton, of Chatham, N. J., that this board was not responsible for same, and it was ordered that the report be received, the clerk to so noitfy Mr. Hatton.

Several bills presented after the time prescribed by a resolution as heretofore adopted, were ordered to be laid over till the next meeting of the board.

TRY TO BE A REASONABLE WOMAN.

If you are the sort of a woman who does not command your husband's love, don't try to demand it. You will only succeed in driving him further away from you.

If he comes home at night tired out and forgets to kiss you and tell you how glad he is to see you, don't dissolve into tears and say he does not love you any more, then get angry and demand that he show you as much affection as he did on your honeymoon.

He may have had a particularly hard day, or he may just have forgotten to give you the accustomed caress.

Men do forget sometimes, and the wild longing to shower affection on the woman of his choice will in time wear off with even the most loyal man.

There is not one man living who admires a tearful woman.

Dry your tears, or better still, don't allow them to appear, and smile.

Smile if he forgets to love you, and see how soon he will remember.

Smile if he neglects to show you the little tenderness to which you are accustomed, and see how soon he remembers.

A happy smile and a joyous word or a little jest will do more toward keeping your husband's love than all the tears in the world.

And if you are not always looking for the demonstration of affection and demanding it, you will be very much more apt to receive it.

SAVE THE PENNIES: THEY MAKE DOLLARS.

If you do not believe that good old saw, "No Companion Like a Penny," wait till some time you are five miles from home in a downpour and the penny is missing.

If you find the pennies good enough companions to cling to you will be insured against a friendless old age.

With this companion you will never be tempted to say "Save me from my friends."

If you think slightly of your companion's value think of her by her family name—dollars.

You will never be dull with her. What "talks" better than money?

She is one of those comfortable companions whose society never palls.

The more you see of her the better you like her and the less can you do without her.

As a companion the penny has an influence on all of life's turmoils that makes her society worth cultivating hard.

For steady dependableness as a companion her society is hard to beat.

There may be better all-around friends than the penny, but few of us number them on our calling list.

About the only rival to this boon companion is health and half the time she can buy that.

MAKING SLIPPERS.

Bedroom slippers for summer wear are sometimes knitted in mercerized crochet cotton, which may be bought in all colors.

They are, of course, not nearly so warm as slippers of wool yarn and, when knitted on steel needles, they are firm and durable.

Mercerized cotton is very inexpensive and very pretty. In fact, the finished slippers are so much like silk that it seems impossible they are not made of that expensive material.

The work, too, is nice, for there are no loose threads about cotton to get caught on the sharp needles—as yarn when knitted on steel sometimes does.

Miss Nan Raffery, of Sandford avenue, has returned to St. Elizabest College, Madison, for the fall and winter term.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Nanette Comstock in her new play

Nanette Comstock in "Jet" at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

"Jet," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

At the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night comes Sousa and his band, a most palatable fact, and one that has unusual significance. It is authoritatively stated that the present organization is larger in number than any Sousa has ever before taken on tour. The roster totals fifty-five artists, which is much in excess of the usual quantum. Moreover, the quality of the organization is augmented in the same proportion, as Sousa has selected the best and most skilled class of instrumentalists for the additional ranks. The organization is thus made more important artistically than ever. All this means an affair tomorrow night of cheering and buoyant grace, snap and musical brilliance.

Sousa concerts have, from the beginning, been marked by a certain dynamic impulse that has made them characteristic.

The soloists are Miss Lucy Allen, soprano, whom Sousa has distinguished by choosing from among many candidates for the third time; Miss Rose Reichard, violinist, an artist new to the concert stage, but of whom pleasantest things are said, and a thoroughly Western girl; and Mr. Herbert L. Clarke, long one of the very first of living cornet vertuosi. It goes without saying that John Philip Sousa will direct in person the splendid program announced.

No musical play of recent years has met with a greater measure of success than "His Honor the Mayor," which comes to this city, at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. "His Honor the Mayor," has a record of six months in Chicago, and five months in New York, in the latter city breaking all summer records at two houses—New York and Wallack's. This successful business is not alone due to the excellence of the music, which was written by Julian Edwards and Alfred E. Aarons, but to the fact that there is laughter interspersed with melody. The comedy in "His Honor the Mayor" is particularly strong, with the result that an evening's entertainment is provided that does not tax one's mentality too severely. The company is the strongest that could be gathered together.

"Girls," Clyde Fitch's merry comedy, under the management of Sam S. and Lee Shubert, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night direct from Daly's Broadway Theatre, New York city, where it has enjoyed a most prosperous run that extended through the entire summer. For his story the author has selected the novel, and altogether new idea of the bachelor girl, who, with two companions, form a trio and swear over hat pins crossed, never to associate with men. As may be judged the play is intended for laughing purposes only, but has a cleverly and well worked out plot, that contains just enough pathos and quieter scenes to make it thoroughly enjoyable. The first act discloses the studio and living room of the three man-haters, and it is here that the fun begins and never ceases until the fall of the final curtain. The true to lifeness of everything makes one really wonder if it is not all a reality. Glimpses of dainty girls preparing to retire for the night, the entrance of a domineering and not always sober janitor, who proclaims in a loud voice, that he is master of the building. The apartments of the elocuting spinster, who is not adverse to having men callers, is shown across the court. Visions of pink toes peeping out from under an all to short coverlet, little feminine confidences exchanged over the chafing dish, make a revelation and originality seldom seen in our late successes.

"The Time, The Place and The Girl," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night, is a comedy drama set to music, with its acting possibilities enhanced by half a dozen unique but thoroughly consistent characterizations. For instance there is the philosophical young "sport" with a mine of wisdom expressed in clean and down to date slang, the nurse, worldly-wise but withal a gentle woman; the proud and petulant heiress who is tamed by the sport, the Italian laborer who provides much sentiment; the coal heaver who is "just going to be married," and the classey man about town whose wild oats are harvested as gamely as they were sown freely. With these types cleverly exploited "The Time, the Place and the Girl" keeps safely out of the conventional ruf. It is distinguished by comedy rather than clowning, though a bit or two of burlesque are interpolated to heighten the comedy.

under the ordinances of said city entitled

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved Dec. 15, 1905;

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 5, 1906;

"A Supplement to an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits,' approved July 5, 1906," approved April 1, 1907; and

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved May 16, 1907;

which ordinances were adopted under and by virtue of the act of the legislature entitled, "An act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the city surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said ordinances, the portions assessed upon the city at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the city at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the Twelfth day of October, 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the court can attend to the same, at the court house in the city of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

Two Bass on One Line.

Charles A. Sturtevant, of this city, has returned from a successful fishing trip to Clinton Reservoir, in company with Frank W. Weed, of West Front street. While fishing from a boat, Mr. Sturtevant "got a bite" but was in no hurry to pull in his line. Finally, when there was danger of his losing his line, his companion urged that he "pull in." He did so and to his surprise found two black bass, both exactly eleven inches long.

FOOTBALL.

Rutgers' football squad is hard at work preparing for the opening game with the Navy on October 3. The squad is in charge of Smith, Dartmouth's star halfback of the 1905 team. Coach Smith is assisted by Fisher and Black of last year's varsity. Forty candidates reported on Monday and the coach is well pleased at the excellent spirit shown. Although Rutgers lost several good men last fall, notably Capt. Fisher, the incoming class is rich in football material. The first squad consists of Goode, McMichael, Leslie, Baldwin, Steinke, Nutt, Cloke, Rogers, Booze, Freystadt, Alverson, T. Smith, Travers, Gross, Beekman, H. Smith and Capt. Corbin.

The squad trained for a week at Ocean Grove before college opened, and as the men are in excellent condition they should give the Navy a hard struggle in their opening contest. The usual light preliminary work is over and today the varsity has its first scrimmage. Coach Smith has been trying out new plays involving forward passing, and as the backs are handling the ball well this will undoubtedly prove a feature of Rutgers' game this season.

Chicago commenced football work this week. Alonzo Stagg is again in charge of the squad and is confident of building up a team that will be able to give Cornell a hard battle at Chicago on Nov. 14. Stagg has seven veterans trying for their old positions, giving him an excellent nucleus around which to build a team. The last year's varsity men who reported are Steffen, quarterback; Giddings, fullback; Merriam, fullback; Kelley and Maddigan, tackles; Worthenes, guard, and Anderson, centre. Dougherty and Crowley of last year's freshman team are expected to make the eleven.

Michigan's football warriors are hard at work at Whitmore under the supervision of Coach Yost. Running back punts, tackling practice and the usual conditioning stunts have been the order of things for the last few days. Of last year's team Casey, Schulz, Allerdice, Wasmund and Green have reported. Of the new material Benbrook, Edmunds, Primeau and Davidson are doing the best work.

Ralph Glaze, the old Dartmouth baseball, basketball and football star, is in charge of the football men of Rochester University. Glaze has made an enviable reputation as a player and will doubteless turn out a strong combination for the little college of the Genesee.

BASEBALL.

Both the New York and Chicago baseball teams of the National League will attend the performance of "The Man from Home," at the Astor theatre, New York, this evening. Many prominent baseball players, besides the members of the two clubs, managers and "fans," will be present.

By defeating Brooklyn yesterday afternoon while Chicago was beaten by New York, the Pittsburg team tied the Cubs for second place in the neck and neck pennant race, with New York still a nose in the lead.

BENEDICTS PLAN TO GET EVEN WITH THE BACHELORS.

The benedicts feeling sore over their defeat at the hands of the bachelors of the Watchung Hunt Club two weeks ago, have challenged the latter to a return game to be played at the club grounds tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The teams will lineup exactly as before and according to the agreement, the defeated team will pay for the dinner to follow at the clubhouse. The benedicts have been practicing evedy afternoon for the last week getting in shape for the contest and they promise to give the single men a wallop they will not forget soon.

There will be the usual generous supply of oatmeal water and conditions favor a victory for the married men, which will necessitate a third game to decide the supremacy of the teams.

Will Play Metuchen F. C.

The Plainfield Soccer Club will play the Metuchen F. C., on the South Second street grounds, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The members of the local team have put in a hard week's training for this game and it promises to be a good one.

CLINTON AVE. VS. Y. M. C. A. FOR THE CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

The Clinton Avenues and Y. M. C. A. teams will cross bats on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for the city championship and there is every indication that the contest will be well worth seeing. Since these teams last met, the association boys have won the State Y. M. C. A. League championship and have greatly improved in their playing. Manager Listman promises to have his strongest aggregation out tomorrow, with Peacock in the box. The Clinton Avenues have never faced this promising twirler and his friends have no doubt but that he will be able to fool them.

Randolph will oppose the association boys and as he is pitching fine ball, the contest may resolve itself into a pitcher's battle. Boelzley, the clever catcher, will play centre-field, while Seery, who did such fine work last Saturday, will again be be behind the rubber. O'Loughlin will cover right field in place of Gilman, and otherwise the team will be the same. The lineup will be as follows: Clinton Avenue—Barnes, 1b; B. Martin, 2b; Emery, 3b; Martin, ss; Boelzley, cf; Seery, c; O'Loughlin, rf; Schott, lf; Randolph, p.

Y. M. C. A—W. Schoonmaker, cf; Ralph Schoonmaker, c; Peacock or Scott, p; Conway, 3b; Gilmore, 2b; Jacot, 1b; Craig, ss; Pond, lf; Loizeaux, rf.

Willing to Play Fifth Game.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, states that he is willing to play the fifth and deciding game with Somerville or Scotch Plains, if the managers of those clubs will abide by the agreements as signed by them. He declares that Managers Frentz and Conklin made the arrangements for the series of games and stipulated the terms of agreement and believes that they should live up to them.

JUMPED GAP IN AN AUTO.

Jack-knife Bridge Started to Open as Haynes Car Ran on It.

The feat of jumping a gap in an automobile was unintentionally performed at Trenton yesterday at the Perry street bridge crossing the Delaware and Raritan Canal, and as a result Joseph Haynes, of Philadelphia, a pottery owner, is suffering from severe scalp wounds.

The Perry street bridge is of the "jack-knife" variety, which swings up when boats go through, and Mr. Haynes' automobile was coming down the street at a rapid rate of speed. His chauffeur, William Wagner, failed to see the signal that the bridge was about to be turned up to let a boat through. Too late to shut off the power, he ran the machine up the incline. The auto shot upward at an acute angle, jumped the gap, and landed on the other side of the bridge. The chauffeur stuck to the wheel and came across without a scratch.

Mr. Haynes was thrown from the automobile and hurt. Wagner said after the accident that he was on the bridge before he saw there was an effort being made to raise it.

The gap covered by the automobile was about five feet, and the rear wheels lit on the earth at least two feet away from the edge. The machine was not injured.

Frank W. Weed, of West Front street, accompanied by Rev. G. A. Warner, of Washington avenue, left this morning on an automobile trip to Green Pond.

PERSONAL.

Miss Marion Herr of Flemington, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

Fred Smith, of West Fourth street, a sophomore at Rutgers College, has resumed his studies.

Mrs. Ege, who has spent the summer out of town, has returned to her home at Truell Inn.

George Neff, of Fairview avenue, a student at Stevens Institute, has returned for the fall term.

Mrs. H. M. McKee, of Westervelt avenue, who has been visiting at Montclair, has returned home.

Joseph Osgood, of the borough, has returned to the New York University, where he is a sophomore.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street, has returned to Barnard College, where she is a senior.

Charles H. Dunham, of Central avenue, left yesterday for an extended trip to Savannah, Ga., and other points in the South.

The Misses Edna Kelley and Florence Sliph, of Newark, have returned home after a visit to the former's aunt, Mrs. David Kelley on Mountair avenue.

William V. Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, a graduate of the Plainfield High School, Class '08, left yesterday for Holy Cross College, where he will take a classical course.

Among automobilists on the ideal tour in the Green Mountains registered at the Equinox House yesterday, were Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Duflon and A. Duflon, of this city and Miss Ione Haley, of San Jose, Cal.

Unreliable Instruction.

"Do you regard the stage as an educator?"

"Not exactly," answered Miss Cayenne. "It would be unfortunate if we were to get our ideas of society from the problem play and our ideas of costume from the musical comedy."—Washington Star.

A Keen Nose.

Grandmother—Why is the baby so happy?

Nurse—Oh, his mother and father are coming.

Grandmother—I don't see them.

Nurse—Nor I, ma'am. But the child's nose is very keen. He smells the automobile, ma'am.—Harper's Weekly.

Not Particular.

A new servant girl, calling at the grocery, asked for a pound of tea for her mistress.

"Which will you have?" asked the grocer; "black or green?"

"Shure," replied the girl, "an Oi don't think it do be makin' much difference—th' ould lady is near blind."—Judge.

Three Cheers.

It looks as though the demand for one-button gloves would be as fast and furious as was the call for long gloves a year ago, when the famine in them drove womankind to frenzy. It is prescribed by fashion that the edge of the glove may not show through the transparent long sleeve—hence the need of the shortest wrist to be had.

A Post-Wedding Smoker.

The members of the Timbo Social Club will be tendered a smoker by Henry Wierenga next Monday night. The affair is to be in honor of his wedding which took place in Newark a few weeks ago.

"My God!" he exclaimed in the next breath. He had startled the girl with the fierce emphasis he threw into the words; she sprang to her feet in excitement.

A bell had clanged noisily, there was the shuffle of thousands of eager feet; a hoarse cry, "They're off!" went rolling up from tier to tier, from seat to seat, to the topmost row of the huge stand.

"Lauzanne is off with a flying lead of three lengths, and the mare is left absolutely—absolutely last. The boy whipped her just as the flag fell." There was the dreary monotone of crushed hope in Porter's voice as he spoke.

"Yes, we're out of it, little woman," he continued; and there was almost a tone of relief, of resignation.

"Didn't I tell you—Lauzanne wins in a walk!" the falsetto voice was an exultant squeak of hilarious excitement.

"You called the turn." Even Ned's baritone had risen to a false-keyed tenor; he was standing on his toes, peering over the heads of taller men in front.

Allis brushed from her eyes the tears of sympathy that had welled into them and, raising her voice, spoke bravely, clinging to the vain hope: "Lucretia is game, father—she may win yet—the race is not lost till they're past the post."

Then her voice died away, and she kept pleading over and over in her heart, "Come on, Lucretia—come on, brave little mare! Is she gaining, father—can you see?"

"She'll never make it up," Porter replied, as he watched the jumble of red, and yellow, and black patterned into a trailing banner, which waved, and vibrated, and streamed in the glittering sunlight, a furlong down the course—and the tail of it was his own blue, white-starred jacket. In front, still a good two lengths in front, gleamed scarlet, like an evil eye, the all red of Lauzanne's colors.

"Where is Lucretia, father?" the girl asked again, stretching her slight figure up in a vain endeavor to see over the shoulders of those in front.

"She had an opening there," Porter replied, speaking his thoughts more than answering the girl, "but the boy pulled her into the bunch on the rail. He doesn't want to get through. Oh!" he exclaimed, as though some one had struck him in the face.

"What's wrong? Has she—"

"It's the Minstrel. His boy threw him fair across Lucretia, and knocked her to her knees." He lowered his glasses listlessly. "It's Lauzanne all the way if he lasts out. He's dying fast, though, and Westley's gone to the whip."

He was looking through his glasses again. Though beaten, his racing blood was up. "If Lauzanne wins it will be Westley's riding; the Hanover colt, The Dutchman, is at his quarters. He'll beat him out, for the Hanovers are all game."

Inch by inch the brave son of Hanover was creeping up on Lauzanne. How loosely the big chestnut galloped—rolling like a drunken man in the hour of his distress. Close pressed to his neck, flat over his withers lay the intense form of his rider—a camel's hump—a part of the racing mechanism, unimpeding the weary horse in the masterly rigidity of his body and legs; but the arms, even the shoulders of the great jockey thrust his mount forward, always forward—forward at each stride; fairly lifting him, till the very lurches of Lauzanne carried him toward the goal. And at his girth raced the compact bay son of Hanover; galloping, galloping with a stout heart and eager reaching head.

Ah, gallant little bay! On his back was the offspring of unthinking parents—a pin-head. Perhaps the evil one had ordained him to the completion of Langdon's villainy with Lauzanne. At the pinch his judgment had flown—he was become an instrument of torture; with whip and spur he was throwing away the race. Each time he raised his arm and lashed, his poor foolish body swayed in the saddle, and The Dutchman was checked.

"Oh, if he would but sit still!" Porter cried, as he watched the equine battle.

The stand mob clamored as though Nero sat there and lions had been loosened in the arena. The strange medley of cries smote on the ears of Allis. She closed her eyes, for she was weary of the struggle, and listened. Yes, they were wolves leaping at the throat of her father, and joying in the defeat of Lucretia. Deep-throated howls from full-chested wolves: "Come on you, Lauzanne! On, Westley, on! The bay wins! The Dutchman—The Dutchman for a thousand!"

Allis sank back into her seat. She knew it was all over. The shuffle of many feet hastening madly, the crash of eager heels down the wooden steps, a surging, pushing, as the wolf-pack blocked each passage in its thirstful rush for the gold it had won, told her that the race was over.

No one knew which horse had won. Presently a quiet came over the mob like a lull in a storm. Silently they waited for the winning number to go up.

"I believe it's a dead heat," said Porter; and Allis noted how calm and restful his voice sounded after the exultant babel of the hoarse-throated watchers.

"Where was Lucretia, father?"

"Third," he answered, laconically, schooling his voice to indifference. I hope it's a dead heat, for if Lauzanne gets the verdict I've got to take him. I don't want him after that run; they made him a present of the race at the start, and he only squeezed home."

"Why must you take the horse, father, if you don't want him? I don't understand."

"I suppose there's no law for it—I said I would, that's all. The whole thing is crooked, though; they stole the race from Lucretia and planted me with a dope horse, and hanged if I don't feel like backing out. Let Langdon go before the stewards about the sale if he dare."

"Did you give your word that you'd buy the horse, father?"

"I did; but it was a plant."

"Then you'll take him, father. People say that John Porter's word is as good as his bond; and that sounds sweeter in my ears than if I were to hear them say that you were rich, or clever, or almost anything."

"Lauzanne gets it!" called the eager grating voice behind them. "There go the numbers, Ned—three, five, ten; Lauzanne, The Dutchman, Lucretia. I knew it. Dick don't make no mistakes when he's out for blood."

"He drew it a bit fine that time," growled Ned, still in opposition; "it was the closest sort of a shave."

Again there was more hurrying of feet as the chestnut's backers who had waited in the stand for the judge's decision, hurried down to the gold mart.

Then Porter went resolutely down the steps, smothering in his heart the just rebellion that was tempting him to repudiate his bargain.

As he reached the lawn a lad swung eagerly up the steps, threw his eye inquiringly along row after row of seats until it stopped at Allis. Then he darted to her side.

"Hello, Sis—been looking for you. Where's dad?"

"Gone to get Lauzanne."

"Lauzanne!" and the boy's eyes that were exactly like her own, opened wide in astonishment.

"Yes; father bought him."

"The deuce! I say, Allis, that won't do. Don't you know there's something wrong about this race? I just saved myself. I backed the little mare for a V—then I heard something. This Langdon's a deuce of a queer fish, I wonder Crane has anything to do with him."

"Did you back Lauzanne, then, Alan?"

"You bet I did; quick, too; and was hunting all over for the gov'nor to tell him."

"How did you—how did people know there was something wrong?"

"Oh, a woman, of course—she blabbed. I think she's Dick Langdon's sister, and—"

"Hush-hh!" and Allis laid her hand on the boy's arm, indicating with her eyes the woman in the seat behind.

"I'd better go and tell father—"

"You needn't bother; he knows. It's a question of honor. Father said he'd buy the horse, and he's gone to make good. How did you get away from the bank, Alan?" she said, changing the subject; "I didn't know you were coming to-day."

"Mortimer was light, and took on my work. He's a good sort."

"Does he bet?"

The boy laughed. "Mortifer bet? That's rich. We call him 'Old Solemnity' in the bank; but he doesn't mean any harm by it. Do you know why he's doing my work to-day?"

"Because you're away, I suppose."

"Because you recited that 'doggerel about "The Run of Crusader.'"

"Alan! I've never spoken to Mr. Mortimer."

"That's why he choked the butcher the night of the concert—I mean—"

"You're talking nonsense, Alan."

"I'm not. I know when a man's interested. Hello. Blest if the boss isn't coming this way—there's Crane. See, Allis? I've a notion to tell him that his trainer is a crook."

"No, you won't, Alan—you're too young to gabble."

Philip Crane had evidently intended going higher up in the stand, but his eye lighting on the brother and sister, he stopped and turned in to where they were sitting.

"Good afternoon, Miss Porter."

There was a metallic ring in Crane's voice that affected her disabreeably. He was almost a stranger to her; she hardly remembered ever having spoken to him.

He turned and nodded pleasantly to Alan, saying: "May I take this seat? I'm tired. The cashier let you off for the day, eh?" he continued. "Came up to see your father's mare run, I suppose—I'm deuced sorry she was beaten."

"What are they waiting for—why have they taken the horses' numbers down again? Are they trying to steal the race from Lauzanne now?" It was the woman's voice behind them, petulantly exclaiming.

Crane turned in his seat, looked over his shoulder, and raised his hat.

"The impatient lady is my trainer's sister," he explained in a modulated tone to Allis. "A trainer is quite an autocrat, I assure you, and one must be very careful not to forget any of the obvious courtesies."

Allis wondered why he should find it necessary to make any explanation at

A man came hurriedly up the steps, spoke to a policeman on guard and searched the faces with his eyes. Catching sight of Crane he came quickly forward and whispered something in his ear.

"Excuse me, I must go—I'm wanted," Crane said to Allis.

As he turned, the trainer's sister spoke to him.

"What's the matter, Mr. Crane—there's something going on up in the stewards' stand?"

"I fancy there's an objection, though I don't know anything about it," he answered, as he went down the steps with the messenger.

Allis breathed more freely when he had gone; his presence had oppressed her. Crane had said nothing—just an ordinary compliment. Like an inspiration it came to the girl what had affected her so disagreeably in Crane—it was his eyes. They were hard, cold, glittering eyes, looking out from between partly closed eyelids

IV.

When John Porter left the stand, the mare had cantered back to weigh in. The jockeys, one after another, each upraised whip, had saluted the judge, received his nod to dismount, pulled the saddles from their steeds, and, in Indian file, were passing over the scales. As Lucretia was led away, Porter turned into the paddock. He saw that Langdon was waiting for him.

"Well, he won, just as I said he would," declared the latter; "you've got a good horse cheap. You ought to've had a bet down on him and won out."

"He won," answered Porter, looking straight into the other's shifty eyes, "but he's a long way from being a good horse—no dope horse is a good horse."

"What're givin' me?" demanded Langdon, angrily.

"Just what every blackguard ought to have—the truth."

"By G—d!" the trainer began, in fierce blasphemy, but John Porter took a step nearer, and his gray eyes pierced the other man's soul.

"I said I'd take the horse, and I will; but don't think that you're fooling me, Mr. Langdon. You're a blackguard of the first water. If I can only get at the bottom of what has been done today, you'll get ruled off and you'll stay ruled off. Now turn Lauzanne over to Andy Dixon, and come into the secretary's office, and I'll give you a check for him."

As they moved toward the secretary's office, Porter was accosted by his trainer.

"The stewards want to speak to you, sir," said Dixon.

"All right. Send a boy over to this man's stable for Lauzanne—I've bought him."

The trainer stared in amazement.

"I'll give you the check when I come back," continued Porter, speaking to Langdon.

"There's trouble on, sir," said Dixon, "the stewards think Lucretia didn't run up to her form. They've had me up, and her jock, McKay, is there now. Starter Carson swears he couldn't get her away from the post—says McKay fairly anchored the mare. He fined the boy fifty dollars at the start."

"I think they've got the wrong pig by the ear—why don't they yank Langdon? He's at the bottom of it."

"Some mug give the stewards a yarn that you'd bought Lauzanne, sir, an' sez that's why you didn't win with the mare."

Porter stopped and gasped in astonishment. What next?

"You see," continued Dixon, apologetically, "I didn't know you was meanin' to buy that skate, so I says it was a d——d lie."

"Things are mixed, Andy, ain't they?"

As Porter went up the steps of the stewards' stand he felt like an innocent man condemned to be hanged for another's crime.

The investigation had been brought about by a note one of the stewards had received. The sender of the missive stated that he had backed Lucretia heavily, but had strong reason for believing there was a job on. The note had come too late—just as the horses were starting—to be of avail, except as a corroboration of the features of the race. Starter Carson's evidence as to McKay's handling of the mare coincided with the contents of the note. Then there was the fact of Porter's having bought Lauzanne. The stewards did not know the actual circumstances of the sale, but had been told that Lucretia's owner had acquired the chestnut before the race. Moreover, Alan's trifling bet on Lauzanne had been magnified into a heavy plunge—no doubt the father's money had been put up by the boy. A race course is like a household, everything is known, absolutely everything.

Porter was aghast. Were all the furies in league against him? He was more or less a believer in lucky or unlucky days, but he had never experienced anything quite so bad as this. No wonder he flushed and stood silent, lost for words to express his indignation.

"Speak up, Mr. Porter," said the steward, kindly. "Those that lost on Lucretia are swearing that the mare was pulled."

"And they're right," blurted out Porter. "I know what the mare can do; she can make hacks of that bunch. She was stopped and interferred with, and given all the worst of it from start to finish; but my money was burnt up with the public's. I never pulled a horse in my life, and I'm too old to begin now."

"I believe that," said the steward, emphatically. I've known you, John Porter, for forty years, man and boy, and there was never anything crooked. But we've got to clear this up."

"What does the boy say?" asked Porter.

He says the mare was 'helped;' that she ran like a drunken man—swayed all over the course and he couldn't pull her together at all.

"Does he mean she was doped?"

"You've guessed it," answered the steward, laconically.

"That's nonsense, sir; and he knows it. Why the little mare is as sweet as a lamb, and as game a beast as ever looked through a bridle. Somebody got at the boy. I can prove by Dixon that Lucretia never had a grain of cocaine in her life—never even a bracer of whisky—she doesn't need; and as for the race, I hadn't a cent on Lauzanne."

"But your son—"

"He had a small bet; I didn't know that, even, until they were running."

"Did you tell him not to back Lucretia, for he did Lauzanne?"

"I told him not to bet at all."

"And you played the mare yourself?"

For answer Porter showed the steward his race programme, on which was written the wager he had made on Lucretia, and the bookmaker's name.

"Hit you pretty hard," the steward said, turning to Porter. "And you hadn't a saver on Lauzanne?"

"Not a dollar."

"What about your buying him—is there anything in that story?"

Porter explained the purchase. The steward nodded his head.

"They seem to have been pretty sure of winning, those other people," he commented; "but we can't do anything to them for winning; nor about selling you the horse, I fear; and as far as you are concerned, Lucretia was supposed to be trying. Who gave your jockey orders?"

"Dixon. I don't interfere; he trains the horses."

"We'd like to have Dixon up here again for a minute. I'm sorry we've had to trouble you, Mr. Porter; I can see there is not the slightest suspicion attaches to you."

In answer to the steward's inquiry about McKay, Dixon said: "I told McKay the boss had a big bet down and to make no mistake. I told him to get to the front as soon as he could and stay there, and win by as far as he liked."

After Dixon was dismissed, the stewards consulted for a minute, with the result that McKay was suspended for the balance of the meeting, pending a further investigation into the methods.

V.

For a week John Porter brooded over Lucretia's defeat, and, worse still, over the unjust suspicion of the unthinking public. Porter loved a good horse, and liked to see him win. The confidence of the public in his honesty was as great a reward as the stakes. He raced as a profession, honestly and squarely. He had asserted more than once that if he were wealthy he would never race a two-year-old. But his income must be derived from his horses, his capital was in them; and just at this time he was sitting in a particularly hard streak of bad luck; financially, he was in a hole; morally, he stood ill with the public.

His reason told him that the ill-fortune could not last; he had one great little mare; good enough to win, an honest trainer—there the inventory stopped short; he had not a trusted jockey. In his dilemma he threshed it out with Dixon.

How's the mare doing, Andy?" he asked.

"She was never better in her life," the trainer answered, proudly. "She'll win next time out, sir—I'll gamble my shirt on that."

"Not with another McKay up."

"I think she's good enough for the 'Eclipse,' sir, dash it if I don't. I worked her the distance and she shaded the time they made last year."

"What's the use," said Porter, dejectedly. "Where'll we get a boy?"

"Oh, lots of the boys are straight,"

"I know that," Porter answered, "but all the straight ones are tied hand and foot to the big stables."

"I've been thinkin' it over," hazarded Dixon, tentatively—"Boston Bill's got a good lad—there's none of them can put it over him, an' his boss ain't got nothin in the 'Eclipse,' I know.

"Well, they downed me last trip, Dixon—I guess I'm getting a bit slow in my paces; and you do just as you like—arrange with Boston Bill if you think it's good business. He makes a specialty of winning races—not pulling horses, and we need a win, too, I guess."

"Thank you, sir. We'll land that stake, an' p'raps the sharp division'll take a tumble. I'll bet a dollar they'll go for The Dutchman—he ran a great race the other day, and he's in the 'Eclipse'—if they start him. Lucretia's right on edge, and may go back if we don't give her a race. She oughter be a long price in the bettin,' too, the public soon sour on a beaten horse. You'll have a chance to get even."

"I don't like that part of it," muttered Porter. "I'm in the black books now. They've got it into their heads that dirty job was of my making, and if the filly starts at ten to one, and I win a bit, they'll howl."

"You can't make a success of racin,' sir, an' run your stable for the public—they don't pay the feed bill."

For immediate financial relief Porter knew that he must look to Lucretia—no other horse in his stable was ready to win; but more immediately he must arrange certain money matters with his banker, who was Phillip Crane. To Porter, Crane had been a tolerant financier, taking the man's honesty literally as security, not but what Ringwood had been called upon as a tangible asset. So that day, following his conversation with Dixon, the master of Ringwood had an interview with his banker. It was natural that he should speak of his prospects—his hopes of winning the Eclipse with Lucretia, and, corroboratively, mention her good trial.

ARRANGING THE INVALIDS TRAY

Only those who have been ill themselves, or who have carefully watched a person confined to the bed, can realize how much the appearance of the invalid's tray means. The patient may have little or no appetite, yet the meal may be so attractively served that it arouses a desire for proper food—a factor quite as important in the restoration to health as medicine.

First of all, let the tray be most carefully set. See to it that the napkin is spotless and that it fits the tray. If it is too large it is not only unsightly, but may prove annoying, because in the way of the invalid.

In selecting the dishes to carry to the sick room, see that the prettiest of china, the brightest of silver and the daintiest of glass are chosen. A flower or two will give an added touch. Be most careful in arranging the dishes on the tray, placing them as one would for the most exactly appointed table. No eyes are more critical than those of an invalid, especially one whose nerves are unstrung, and the lack of attention to such apparently minor details as the angle at which the flat silver is placed, and the side of the tray where the cup and saucer are, may cause irritation.

Remember that too much food is even less appetizing in the sick room than at the family table.

When putting liquid in a glass never fill the glass more than two-thirds. This for two reasons: There is danger, if the glass is too full, of spilling the contents in carrying the tray, and also it may be too heavy for the patient to hold.

A general rule to bear in mind is that hot dishes should be served hot and not lukewarm. Keep the hot dishes covered until they reach the patient's room. Do not pour the coffee downstairs, but take it in the coffee pot to the bedside; the same is true of chocolate or tea. Likewise see to it that cold dishes are cold.

If, as at dinner, there is a broth, a meat and a dessert, do not serve them all on the tray at once. It will not only crowd the tray, but will give the patient a chance to make a choice of what will be eaten. If each is served individually the chances are more will be eaten.

If there is gruel or a cup of milk or beef tea, have the cup served on a separate plate with a doily. Then if there is any spilled it will not spot the tray cloth.

When the meal is finished remove the tray as soon as possible. Under no circumstances let anyone partake of any food which comes from the sickroom. This is an injunction which cannot be too strictly adhered to.

A PERFUME THAT IS MADE AT HOME.

With the fields full of flowers that give most delicate scents when properly dried, there is no reason why every woman should not have sachets to use in chests of drawers, etc., to give a delicate perfume to clothing.

White clover scent is easily obtained by any girl away for only a fortnight's vacation in the country. In gathering clover enormous quantities should be picked, because it shrinks when dried, and it is impossible to have too much when the supply to draw from is endless.

There is no difficulty for a novice in growing things to distinguish sweet clover, for it grows tall and rank, with thick stems, on which are small leaves. At the top are flowers, very tiny white blossoms grouped together, in a long spike. The leaves as well as the flowers are sweet when dried, but the thick stems should be rejected. The best way to gather it is to cut down great stalks, using for the purpose a sharp knife rather than a pair of scissors. Care should be taken not to uproot the plant, for there is no need of exterminating it.

There is never any difficulty in locating a clover camp, for the grass grows always close together, in great profusion, and it is to be found all over the country.

ITEMS FOR THE KITCHEN SCRAPBOOK.

When cooking with old apples at this season of the year add a little lemon juice to give flavor. Summer apples need nothing but sugar.

Should cakes stick to the pans put a hot cloth on the bottom for a minute or two. If papers are used sticking is infrequent.

If rolls stick to a pan they can be put back on the top of the stove for a minute or two when they come out easily.

How She Lost Her Prestige.

Mistress (angrily)—How dare you talk back to me in that way? I never heard such impudence! You have a lot of nerve to call yourself a lady's maid.

New Maid—I don't call myself that now, ma'am; but I was a lady's maid before I got this job.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Wise Child.

"Here, Willie!" cried the boy's father, "you mustn't behave that way. Everybody will be calling you a little glutton. Do you know what that is?"

"I suppose," replied Willie, "it's a big glutton's little boy."—Philadelphia Press.

SERIOUS THOUGHT FOR THE INDEPENDENT GIRL.

When a girl prefers the joys of single blessedness to the very uncertain happiness of married life, she should be practical enough to care for her old age, which unfortunately girls seldom do. Without this forethought there is likelihood of her becoming an unwanted person, and, unluckily, the byways of life are deeply thronged by the unwanted ones of the world. Then for the pleasure of being able to spend one's own money as one likes, of choosing one's own friends and going where one will, and indulging that most attractive folly which most women prize so dearly, of having scratch meals at any time that pleases them best, we must pay a certain price, which on the reckoning day proves more severe than we supposed possible.

There is danger of broken health, of lack of savings, and, that almost pitiful of all misfortunes, of being too old to fill the post in which one has done so well for many years. We must remember the thousands of those who are pressing on behind; therefore, in giving the vote for marriage or independence, one must make a very careful survey of the land, and weigh the pros and cons of the situation before deciding that either side is preferable.

If the conditions of each were ideal there would be no difficulty or bitterness in having to walk in either way, but where the chances are fairly evenly distributed one cannot make a choice of either state with the absolute certainty of its being the better.

Though circumstances often drive one to force life into channels where one can but steer one's boat with the tide, it is yet possible to put out one's hand and snatch from Fate that which shall be good. Although it is given to a girl to choose whether she shall remain single, yet once the chance comes her way, if she has but a moderate amount of sense, she can force the best from her condition. But this can only be done by a capable person, and one who is so well trained and equipped that she can make herself independent of circumstances to a certain degree, whether she be married or single.

If a girl marries with no knowledge of household affairs she can never hope to be independent; there is nothing for her but a life of slavery. She presents an unarmored front to the world, and will be the ready victim of anyone who chooses to get the better of her, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

In choosing a grapefruit see that it is heavy in proportion to the size. A dry fruit is very light.

If the top of a cake is sifted with flour before icing there is less danger of it running over the sides.

To make lace curtains last longer, mend them by pasting on pieces of net with thick starch and a hot iron.

If rugs are sprinkled with cayenne pepper before being rolled in paper and put away it is said to prevent moths.

A good test for boiled icing is not to take it off until it pulls up hard from the bottom of the glass when put in ice water.

See that all greens are carefully washed before eating. To do otherwise is not only uncleanly, but it may be dangerous to health.

If canned fruits are opened an hour or two before using the excluded oxygen is restrained and the flavor is improved. Turn out of the jar at once.

Iron mould can be removed by holding the stain over steam and rubbing in salts of lemon. Rinse carefully as the acid is poisonous, and it may rot the material.

If a gruel pot is allowed to stand on stones or something cold for a minute or two after cooking, it will not cool the contents very much and will make sticking less probable.

Boil six peach kernels in a quart of milk to be used for custard; it will improve the flavor.

To remove smoke stains from ivory immerse it in benzine and go over it with a brush.

Lavender Time.

"Lavender, sweet lavender," the venders are crying in the streets, and the air is fragrant with the delightful aroma from the basketsfuls of the "spikes." Lavender sachets, made in a variety of ingenious ways, of which one of the most popular consists of wrapping the long green stems round the flowers and threading ribbon through the stems in the criss-cross fashion of the kindergarten school, are selling by the thousand, and the enterprising milliner has hit upon a new way of utilizing the spikes.

Stil Feminae.

"Were you scared when you got 25,000 feet high?"

"A little," acknowledged the intrepid woman who climbed mountains. "You know the glare of the snow is just terrible on the complexion."—Philadelphia Ledger.

DEFENSE OF "X-SCIENCE"

Vigorous Reply Made to Dr. C. E. Herring's Sermon on Mother Eddy's Religion.

MATTER OF INTERPRETATION.

H. Coulson Fairchild Answers on Behalf of Christian Science Publication Committee in New eJrsey.

In Monday's issue of The Daily Press, an exclusive report of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring's sermon on "Christian Science" was given extended space. In justice to those who adhere to the doctrines promulgated by Mother Eddy, the following reply received today is given equal prominence:

"Christian Science, Committee on Publication in New Jersey.
"Passaic, N. J., Sept. 26, 1908.

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"In your issue of Sept. 14, we note extracts from a sermon delivered by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring in which some incorrect statements about Christian Science are presented. May I ask that in the interests of your numerous readers you will kindly permit me space in which to reply.

"While we appreciate the very kind attitude of Dr. Herring in honestly admitting the cures wrought throughChristian Science, also his very excellent description of his visit to The First Church of Christian Scientist in Boston, we must take exception to the erroneous conception which Dr. Herring seems to have regarding the fundamental teachings of Christian Science; and especially his conclusion that the Lord's Prayer, and the Bible are distorted by reason of the interpretation placed upon them by Christian Science, these conclusions are absolutely incorrect. Any explanation offered by Mrs. Eddy, in her published works, with regard to the Lord's Prayer, or the Scripture, are made in the same spirit in which any commentator might offer them. In 'Wares Aurelian, vol. 1, we read, 'A judicious commentator, points out excellences, and unfolds truths, which you had either wholly overlooked or but impartially comprehended,' and this is just what Mrs. Eddy has done in pointing out the truths of primitive Christianity. Christian Scientists have found that in the practice of Christian healing Mrs. Eddy's interpretation of the Lord's Prayer is most helpful, and the success which attends the efforts of Christian Scientists indicates that heretofore the Scriptures have been but partially comprehended.

"Dr. Herring declares 'The only sermon which is preached in the Christian Science church is Mrs. Eddy's book.' This is not true for the reason that both the Bible and Science and Health with key to the Scriptures have been ordained as the impersonal means of instruction for Christian Scientists and those who attend Christian Science churches. In this matter of interpretation of the Scriptures Dr. Herring seems to think that there can be but one interpretation of the Scriptures and that it must be strictly in accord with what he terms 'Historic Christianity' whereas most distinguished theologians here and abroad admit that the Scriptures have both a spiritual and a literal meaning. Christian Scientists feel that Mrs. Eddy has as much right to present her views of the spiritual meaning of the Scriptures as the older commentators have, for instance, to say that miracles are 'contraventions of divine law' while the higher criticism in Christian Science indicates clearly that miracles (so-called) are but natural phenomena of the laws of divine mind; demonstrations of divine law and order. We must not conclude that it is right for Theology to stand still while everything else progresses. The Antidiluvians would look upon all our modern inventions as miracles indeed, but in this age we look upon them as existent by reason of the discovery of laws hitherto unknown to us.

"In the use of the Lord's Prayer and in the use of the words 'Our Father' Christian Scientists are not restricted to the use of the word 'Principle' as a substitute for the conception of God as a loving Father, the word Principle is used to indicate the fixed nature of the laws of God and as another term for deity to give us a higher sense of law. I know of no part of Mrs. Eddy's writings where the student of Christian Science is enjoined that 'Prayer is not to be uttered by the lips,' on the contrary, Christian Scientists are reminded that they should pray without ceasing and so order their lives that they shall conform to their prayers.

"Dr. Herring asks, 'If suggestion cures, what need have we of a metaphysical theory? We reply that

MRS. WILLIAMSON AT CITY COURT SESSION

Mrs. Emily Williamson, the county probation officer, attended this morning's session of the city court for the purpose of looking after any juvenile cases on the docket. There were none to be heard by Judge Runyon but there were two boys waiting to report to her because of "past performances." They were Dominick Marra, white, and Horace Martin, colored, the latter being the one arrested for stealing grain from freight cars.

Mrs. Williamson told Judge Runyon that she would be in court every Saturday morning and that she would listen to all juvenile cases in order to be better acquainted with facts in the event of the defendants being held for the Grand Jury. She also stated that in the future she would have a complete typewritten report of every case turned over to her, containing the culprit's pedigree, offense committed and disposition. These are to be left at headquarters, she said, and anyone in the city wishing to see what had been done with a certain boy could do so by simply consulting them. She explained that she is constantly in receipt of inquiries to this effect.

MR. GILBERT OFF FOR BANKER'S CONVENTION

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, who was chosen yesterday as Republican Presidential elector for the Fifth Congressional district, left this morning on a special train for Denver, Colo., where he will attend the National convention of bankers which convenes there on Monday. He was accompanied by G. Rust Rogers. They will not return until next Saturday and incidentally will make stop-offs at Chicago and other places. Mr. Gilbert will read a paper before the convention.

The former mayor has announced that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself as president of the New York Clearing House Association, which position has brought him into favorable prominence in the Nation. The association will hold its annual meeting on Monday, Oct. 5

BRIGHTON BROKE RECORD FOR THE NUMBER OF DRINKS

Charles Brighton, colored, and Mrs. Catherine Cahill, white, were arrested by Patrolman Higgins at East Second street and Watchung avenue, late last night, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. When arraigned in court, this morning, the woman admitted being pretty well under the influence but Brighton maintained that he wasn't drunk He had only four glasses of beer, he said, and that was not enough to put him off.

"Sure it is," Judge Runyon said; "because you have broken the record for the number of drinks. All the old-timers who come before me never own up to more than two while you had four. How many did you have Mrs. Cahill."

"Only two, Your Honor."

"There you are. She's been here many a time before and yet she got drunk on half the amount you imbibed. I'll make it $5 or twenty days in each case.

Neither one of the pair had any money so they will probably go down to Elizabeth. The cop who made the arrest said that both had been acting scandalous along Park avenue and East Front street before they were apprehended.

Surprise Birthday Celebration.

In honor of the anniversary of her birthday which occurred yesterday, the Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., gave a pleasant surprise party to Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, at the regular meeting last night. The festivities were enjoyed during the "good of the order" period, when Mrs. Dobbins received a number of pretty and useful gifts, also the congratulations of the large number of members present. Refreshments were served afterward by the good and welfare committee. During the day Mrs. Dobbins received about thirty souvenir postal cards as reminders of the anniversary.

Another Workman Injured.

William Ohlander, aged 24 years employed in the construction of a new house on Martine avenue, fell from a scaffold at 1 o'clock this afternoon and severely injured his back. This is the same house where three men were injured in a similar manner a few days ago, the scaffolding giving away. Ohlander was taken to the hospital where it is said he will recover.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Arrangements Made by Minority Party for State and Congressional Meetings

R. R. EXCURSIONS TO BOTH.

Congressman Towne to Speak at Trenton, Where Frank S. Katzenbach Will Be the Presiding Officer.

The Union County Democratic Committee at Elizabeth, last night, completed arrangements for the attendance of county delegates at the State convention to be held at Trenton on Monday and the Congressional convention at Philipsburg on Thursday. The special train for delegates to the State convention will leave Plainfield Monday morning at 9:13 and the round trip fare will be $1.70. The train will leave Trenton on the return trip at 4:50 o'clock in the afternoon.

The special train to the Congressional convention will leave Plainfield Thursday morning at 9:59 and the round trip fare will be $1.85. Returning the train will leave Philipsburg at 4:50 in th eafternoon. Aside from announcing these details nothing else of importance was considered at last night's meeting.

Former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, will be the temporary chairman of the State convention, which will be convened in Taylor Opera House at noon Monday. The convention will name 12 Presidential electors pledged to Bryan and Kern.

Congressman Charles A. Towne, of New York, one of the finest orators of the country, and a student of political questions for many years, will be delegated by the National Democratic Committee to deliver a speech at the State convention.

At the Denver convention, where Mr. Katzenbach acted as chairman of the New Jersey delegation, Mr. Towne was prominently mentioned as a candidate for the vice-presidency. Had the second place on the ticket gone to Nek York State, as it seemed likely it would at one stage of the proceedings, the Congressman stood in line to be picked as Bryan's running mate.

James R. Nugent, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, has called a meeting of the members of that body to take place in the Hotel Sterling, Trenton, at 10 a. m., Monday, when definite plans will be made for the temporary organization of the convention. The choice of Mr. Katzenbach as presiding officer is assured, however.

THOUGHT BABY WAS DYING.

So West Second Street Woman Screamed so Loud it Brought a Crowd and a Cop.

Residents and pedestrians in the vicinity of Park avenue and Second street were greatly startled at 10:15 last night by a series of piercing screams that emanated from a flat near the corner. They continued for a moment or two and then stopped as suddenly as they begun. By that time a crowd had gathered and there were rumors of wife beating burglars and even murder.

Patrolman John Payne was among those attracted by the screaming and as quick as he could hustle around from Park avenue rear Front street, he climbed the stairs to the flat and investigated. This is the report he placed on the blotter at Police headquarters.

"My attention was attracted at 10:15 last night by screams coming from Mr———'s flat on West Second street. I went to the place and was informed by the occupant that his wife had done the screaming and she did it because she thought her baby was dying."

Plaintiff Failed to Appear.

In response to a complaint preferred against him by Fred Stewart for running into him with his automobile, John P. Emmons appeared in the city court this morning. The plaintiff was missing when the case was called and Judge Runyon dismissed the charge. Mr. Emmons was accompanied to court by three men who witnessed the accident and who declared it was unavoidable.

Charge Against Contractors.

Complaint was made at Police headquarters, last night, that Roth Brothers, who are erecting a building on Watchung avenue for S Hirsch, had failed to put up safeguards to protect people passing along the sidewalk after dark. The contractors were notified to appear in the city court next Tuesday morning, the hearing being put over because of the Jewish holidays.

—At Neuman Brothers this afternoon and tonight; white and yellow peaches, Bartlett pears, fancy grapes and plums. Rock bottom prices will rule.

FORTUNE FOR GOVERNOR

J. Franklin Fort Residuary Legatee of Estate Valued at Half a Million Dollars.

IS ONE OF THE EXECUTORS.

State Executive was the Close Friend and Legal Adviser of Mrs. Reasoner's Husband.

Governor John Franklin Fort is named residuary legatee in the will of Mrs. Abby Euphemia Reasoner widow of Andrew Reasoner, former superintendent of the Lackawanna Railroad. Those who knew her well and had intimate knowledge of her business affairs say the estate amounts to at least $500,000. The Governor's wife and his daughter are named in separate bequests.

Mrs. Reasoner died early last week at her home in Arlington avenue, East Orange. The will is dated April 7, 1901. In clause 12 in the body of the will Governor Fort is named as sole executor. In a codicil however, this section is cancelled and Edwin G. Adams, of Newark, is made executor with the Governor.

The will was filed in the Prerogative Court at Trenton on Thursday afternoon by Co-executor Adams, who then qualified as such. Governor Fort appeared in the office of the Secretary of State yesterday afternoon and also qualified.

The will and its codicil bear the signatures of J. Harry Bacheller, of Newark; Eugene A. Kelley, of Orange, and Harry V. Osborne, of Newark, as witnesses. The document is carefully drawn, and goes into great detail as to specific bequests. No mention is made of her handsome home in Arlington avenue, and it is evidently included in the residuary estate.

Some significance is attached to the following clause:

"It is my intention to give away during my life a large portion of the residue of my estate by specific bequests which shall greatly reduce what would otherwise be the residue thereof, and I hereby give, devise and bequeath the rest of residue of the estate remainder after the payment of my debts and the bequests herein made to John Franklin Fort, of East Orange, and his lawful heirs forever."

It is thought by that that possibly she has disposed of a great part of the estate and that what is left does not amount to as much as would at first appear.

As a lawyer Governor Fort was for years the legal adviser of Mrs Reasoner and her husband. Their business relations were always very close, and every one of the big financial transactions of the Reasoners was first passed upon by him. Mr Reasoner always said he owed his success in a measure to the sound judgment of Judge Fort.

After the probation of the will became known in the city a rumor spread that a protest against it would be filed by or for Mrs. Hilton, who is a grandniece of Mrs. Reasoner. Edwin G. Adams, who is one of the executors of the estate, when called up at his home at Red Bank, declared that the rumor could not be true. He said that no caveat had been filed before the probation of the will and that he did not think an effort would be made by Mrs. Hilton to break the will.

"Mr. Chandler Riker, who has been the lawyer for Mrs. Hilton for many years," Mr. Adams continued, "certainly would know something about it if Mr. Hilton intended to break the will, but he declared yesterday afternoon that nothing in that direction had been done and that he did not know of any intention on the part of Mrs. Hilton to contest. I think that is sufficient to convince anybody that the rumor is not based on facts.'

Councilman Herbert Buxton, of West Front street, has received a fine photograph of William H. Taft the Republican Presidential candidate, bearing the following inscription: "Mr. Herbert Buxton. With best wishes. William H. Taft." The photo is a personal gift from Mr Taft to Mr. Buxton and for that reason he prizes it highly.

Pyatt—Brady.

J. M. B. Pyatt, of Dunellen, and Miss Laura Brady, of this city, were married Thursday night by the Rev. N. A. Merritt, Jr., pastor of the First Baptist church, Rahway, at the residence of Henry S. Barnes, 35 Esterbrook avenue, following which Mr. and Mrs. Pyatt left on a Southern wedding tour. On their return they will reside in Dunellen.

—For sale—Four-cylinder 20 H. P. 5-passenger, side entrance, locomobile touring car; perfect order; $375; worth double; act quick. Thompson, 413 Park avenue. ***

DEBS WILL SPEAK HERE

"Red Special" Laden with Socialists Leaders to Make an Hour's Stop Here.

ON MONDAY, OCTOBER TWELFTH

Presidential Nominee and Others to Address Plainfield Audience—To Stop at Bound Brook, Too.

"The Red Special" carrying Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for President, as well as many other candidates on the same ticket and distinguished members of the party will arrive in Plainfield Monday morning, October 12, at 11:35 and remain here until 12:30, during which time an opportunity will be given Plainfielders to hear the Socialist candidates speak. The long train of coaches which comprise "The Red Special" is now wending its way across the country toward the East, its destination being New York.

H. C. Parker, president of the Philadelphia Labor Temple, is the business manager for the trip and the whole affair is under his personal supervision. The plans include stops at all the principal points along the line of railroads traveled, at which speeches are to be made.

The train will arrive at Bound Brook on October 12, at 10:40 o'clock in the morning, leaving there at 11:20. The next stop is Plainfield, at 11:35. From here the party will go to Elizabeth, then Newark and finally New York.

The distinguished members aboard the train include the following:

Eugene V. Debs, candidate for President; Theodore Debs, brother of the candidate; S. M. Reynolds, of Indiana; Seymour Stedman, of Chicago; J. C. Chase, of Haverhill Mass.; A. N. Siron, an editor of Hancock, Mich.; and Socialist candidate for Governor of Michigan; Robert Bradlow, business manager of the Cleveland Citizen, and Socialist candidate for Governor of Ohio; Joseph Wanhope, editor of Wilshire's Magazine, and Socialist candidate for Governor of New York; J. P. Carey, Socialist candidate for Governor of Massachusetts; A. M. Floron, of Denver; Charles Lapworth, of London, Eng., representing English newspapers, and H. C. Parker, president of the Philadelphia Labor Temple, who is the business manager for the trip.

RALLY DAY EXERCICES AT WEST END TABERNACLE.

Rally day exercises will be held at the West End Tabernacle at the usual hour tomorrow night, when the following interesting program will be presented as follows:

Welcome, Helen Taylor; recitation, "A Little Child," Ernie Pennoyer; the Twenty-third Psalm, Agnes Christiensen, Willie Robbins, Lillie Peterson, Charles Lancaster, Albert Robbins; recitation, "What to Drink," Frederick Roth; song, "Keep to the Right," Helen Taylor, Florence Taylor, Grace Taylor, Theodore Martin; recitation, "The Blessed Ones, "Carrie Pennoyer, Mary Roth, Levina Rose, Bessie Ryan, Willie Ryan, Bessie Medick, Dorothy Medick, Florence Taylor, Grace Taylor; recitations, "If I Were You," Willie Peterson; "Seven Times One," Grace Taylor; rally day song, Junior C. E. Society; address, Rev. W. A. Therrell; hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," benediction, Rev. Mr. Therrell.

Newspaper Changes.

Alan Randall, who has been city editor of The Elizabeth Journal for several months, severed his connection with that newspaper today, to become business manager of the Brockton, Mass., Times. He will be succeeded by Hugh Lynch, who has been city editor of the Allentown (Pa.) Times. Other changes are about to be made on the reportorial staff by the addition of two new men. The staff will then have eight men to cover the city's news.

Jr. C. E. Society Elects.

ANNUAL FALL RALLY OF GRACE M.E. WOMEN

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of Grace M. E. church the annual fall rally was held in the church, last night. The affair was largely atended by members and friends. The evening was chiefly spent in sociability. A feature was the division of the company into two parts, one being given fifteen minutes to plan some charades, and the other fifteen minutes to arrange a number of children's stories to be told at the expiration of the time limit. There was also a piano solo by Miss Nelson.

As the charades were presented by one company, the others were called upon to guess them. Afterward the children's stories were related and helped greatly to amuse the audience. During the evening refreshments were served. The entertainment committee comprised Mrs. E P. Stevens, Mrs. George Bolen, Mrs George Nelson, and those in charge of the refreshments were Mrs. J. W A. Bauersachs, Mrs. Stephen Beeching, Mrs. Henry Thom, Mrs. Charles Lippencott and Mrs. Edward Vermeula.

BULL DOG VICIOUSLY ATTACKS GROCER'S CLERK

Sidney E. Frazee, of this city, employed as a clerk at P. J. Winfeldt's store in Westfield, was the victim of a savage attack of a bull terrier owned by J. H. Kimball, of that place. While calling for an order at a residence adjoining that of Mr. Kimball on New York avenue, yesterday, he was set upon by the animal which inflicted seven ugly wounds and scratches on his arms, body and left leg from which the blood flowed freely. In a state of exhaustion Mr. Frazee drove with all haste to his employer's store, where a physician was summoned. The wounds were cauterized and Mr Frazee returned home, where he placed himself under the care of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow.

Mr. Frazee had always been in fear of the dog, and he says that two weeks ago he warned Mr. Kimball to keep him chained. In response to the warning, he declares that Mr Kimball simply smiled, saying that the dog would not hurt anyone. Last night Dr. Lufburrow sent word to Mr. Kimball instructing him to keep the dog chained for at least two weeks to watch developments and determine whether it shows any symptoms of being mad. Upon that result Mr. Frazee will have to take the Pasteur treatment.

Mr. Frazee had just left the house where he received an order and was crossing a small vacant lot adjoining Mr. Kimball's residence, when the dog sprang at him from behind a clump of bushes. The animal directed its attack toward Mr. Frazee's face and in warding it off he covered his face with his arms. While doing this the dog, imbedded his teeth and claws in the man's forearms and then in the abdomen. Succeeding in shaking the canine from the upper part of the body, he grabbed the dog about the neck in an attempt to choke him. While he was doing this he was attacked about the left leg and received several ugly wounds. Finally, getting a good grasp on the dog's neck and collar, Mr. Frazee carried him bodily to Mr Kimball's house and threw him in the kitchen, where a member of the family had no trouble in keeping him a prisoner.

WELL KNOWN PLAINFIELDER DIES IN NEWARK HOSPITAL.

William J. Sullivan, son of the late William and Mary Sullivan, died yesterday morning in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark. He had been ill a long time with pulmonary trouble.

Mr. Sullivan was in his thirty-ninth year and had been a resident of Plainfield practically all his life. At one time he was associated with his brothers in the saloon business on West Third street, where his father was established for a long time. Twenty-five years ago the place was one of the best known in the city. Mr. Sullivan is survived by a wife, who was Miss Sadie Connors, and three children; also two brothers, Joseph and John Sullivan, both of Plainfield.

The body was brought to Plainfield this morning, following a service at the hospital, and burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery this afternoon. A requiem mass for the repose of his soul will be said in St. Mary's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

Alfred W. Dunavan, of East Second street, who has been spending his two weeks' vacation visiting at Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Detroit and interesting places in the vicinity, has returned home.

HOIST BY THEIR PETARD

Shade Tree Ordinance Violated by the Commission's Own Men.

COP ARRESTS TWO OF 'EM.

Had No Permit to Trim Maples in Front of Judge Runyon's Home on East Ninth Street.

The Plainfield people who have been arrested for violating the shade tree ordinances, which prohibits the tying of horses to trees, cutting limbs without permission or injuring the roots, are taking consolation today from the fact that the commission responsible for the law has been "stung." Men in the employ of this body were busily engaged in pruning maples in front of City Judge William N. Runyon's home yesterday afternoon when Patrolman Dobson happened along on his motorcycle. He had been given instructions to apprehend anyone cutting limbs who did not have a permit and he asked the city employes if they were so provided.

"No," said one of the men, "we don't have to have any; we work for the tree commission."

"I don't care who you work for," Dobson retorted; "if you haven't got a permit you're violating the law, so report at police headquarters tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock."

The men were on hand at today's session of the city court and described themselves as Peter Emmons and Walter Emmons, father and son. R. P. Gay, the expert engaged by the commission to supervise the work, appeared with them and told Judge Runyon he had instructed the two to do the trimming that led to their arrest. Being city employes, he said, he didn't think it was necessary for them to be provided with the paper called for by the ordinance.

"You may have acted in good faith," Judge Runyon remarked, "but the ordinance calls for the permit and only a few days ago Chairman Barrows wrote a letter to Chief Kiely telling him that this provision must be strictly enforced. Patrolman Dobson received his instructions and he has lived up to them. I should advise you in the future to see all your men are provided with permits if you don't want them interrupted in their work."

The Emmonses were discharged after being told substantially the same thing. The elder of the defendants wanted to know from the judge if he had the authority to stop people from violating the ordinance, implying that he frequently came upon such cases. He was told he could warn them that they were amenable to arrest but beyond that he had no jurisdiction.

"BOBBY" LEACH ISSUES A DEATH RACE CHALLENGE.

"Bobby" Leach, of Chippewa, Ontario, who formerly conducted a lunch wagon on East Second street, yesterday issued a challenge to "any person of nerve" to go over the Horseshoe Falls at Niagara in a barrel. If Leach cannot find anyone to take the death race with him, he declares he will go over alone as soon as he can find some one to take the short end of a $1,000 to $500 wager. Several persons have gone over the fallsin barrels, but the only one who lived is Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, who is now selling souvenirs at Niagara Falls.

While Leach was in this city he claimed to have gone over the falls in a big cask which he exhibited on the front porch of the Iroquis hotel. Several weeks ago he made a parachute leap from the upper arch bridge over the Niagara in order to win a $500 bet.

Surprise Party for Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bishop, of Cincinnati, who are visiting their niece, Mrs. J. N. Boylen, of Regent street, were given a surprise party last night by their relatives and number of friends. The feature of the evening was a program of vocal and instrumental music, including a soprano solo by Mrs. Bert Waldron. There were present relatives from Somerville, Morristown, Cincinnati and this city. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Salvation Army Meeting.

Special harvest festival services will be held in the Salvation Army hall on East Second street tonight at 8 o'clock; also tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Adjutant and Mrs. Charles Straubel will be in charge. Special music and singing will be features. All are invited.

Valuable Dog Killed.

A valuable Gordon setter belonging to an East End man was hit by a trolley car on Richmond street, last night, and hurt so badly that Patrolman Birmingham shot it. The animal was said to be worth $150.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Hippodrome's bill for the season is colossal. Not in its history has it ever made such big productions and employed so many players and performers. The Hippodrome opens this year with an entirely new performance and one abounding in more sensations, stupendous spectacles and marvels and novelties than have ever crowded its always wonderful program. The performance this year will be divided into fifteen great scenes of wondrous beauty and remarkable realism. Nearly a thousand people and 100 horses will be employed. The circus features will include a dozen European sensations never seen in an American arena "Sporting Days" is the title of the first series of spectacles which will show in its varying scenes a base ball game of real players in progress, the arrival of the circus and the pitching of the tent in full view of the audience; then an exciting boat race in which rowers in 12 oared shells will contest and this changing to the paddock at Saratoga in which 10 fine thoroughbreds will be seen finally dashing into a thrilling race on a course built on the Hippodrome's big stage. Excelling in beauty and the gorgeousness of its costuming, will be this season's ballet which will be "The Land of Birds," in which the wonderful dancing organization of the Hippodrome will appear as feathered songsters showing in vari-hued and richly colored pluming a representation of the birds of the world. The management has had this ballet in preparation for six months, the designs and costumes all having been made in Paris.

"The Battle of the Skies" will follow. The big stage of the Hippodrome will appear as a city at night, war has been declared and it is a conflict between armed forces in airships. Aeroplanes, flying machines, airships and every variety of aerial armed devices will be seen in battle. The city will be destroyed and a great tidal wave will rush over the ruins giving an impressive view, gigantic in its area, of the open sea. These will be the largest effects ever shown at the Hippodrome. The last scene will be the Golden Garden, resplendent with gaily costumed figures and set off by myriads of fountains. The great tanks will be disclosed in this scene and for the closing feature of this year's big bill, Messrs. Shubert and Anderson promise a series of surprises even more mystifying than those of "Neptune's Daughter." Two performances daily at the Hippodrome.

Expert theatrical analysts have been overworking their respective accumulations of grey matter as to what constitutes the attraction in the new Tarkington-Wilson play, "The Man From Home," at the Astor Theatre. So far no definite decision has been reached, for it seems incomprehensible to the wiseacres that a comedy drama could have reached 342 consecutive performances in Chicago, and then in New York show no signs of weakening. Possibly these gentlemen who have the theatrical business at their finger's ends may have overlooked one of the most prominent features of the play—the one thing that stands out above everything else; far beyond the brilliant dialogue; immeasureably beyond the excellent situations and a long way over the remarkable Italian atmosphere. This thing is the American spirit that pervades the play from the rise of the first curtain until the fall of the last. The spirit that was beginning to burn savagely about 1774, and reached its culmination two years later; the spirit that flamed fiercely once more in 1812, and burst once more into a living fire in 1863, to be followed by another eruption in 1898, and is now waiting for an opportunity to show what it is if the occasion should arise.

James Forbes' new comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," is having a big run at the Gaiety Theatre under the direction of H. B. Harris. The New York telegraph says "in the language of the traveling salesman himself, James Forbes has put another one over. The new play is right in the class with 'The Chorus Lady,' and at the head of the class, an attractive comedy. Only the longest stay will satisfy the New Yorkers who will want to see the piece. It is a rollicking, lively, clean entertainment, and will rival 'The Chorus Lady' in longevity." Mr. Forbes is to be congratulated indeed for 'The Traveling Salesman' is here to stay for some time to come," is what the New York Commercial thinks of the new piece.. While the Journal of Commerce believes that "'The Traveling Salesman' is sure to sell his goods, and without the least possible doubt the new James Forbes comedy will prove in general popularity a second 'Chorus Lady.'"

Great shows are the order of the day at Proctor's Park place theatre, Newark. Last week's was above par The bill this week comprises the acts of Robert Hilliard and company, the Six Musical Cuttys, the Miezkoff-Saunders Troupe, Matthews and Ashley, Ward and Curran, Barry and Walvorey, The Flying Martens, Burt and Bertha Grant, and needs no comment on its merits. Next week is headed by a new recruit from the legitimate, a star of great magnitude in the person of Miss Virginia Harned, who appeared recently in "The Love Story," and "Anna Karanina." Miss Harned will make her vaudeville debut in Newark in a brand new sketch written expressly for her and will be supported by a capable company. Hilda Carle and her twelve Military Maids acknowledged to be one of the best show girl acts in vaudeville, will add much to the entertainment. Al Carleton, "The Skinny Guy" will be there with a lot of new and funny jokes. Chassino, the fellow who makes the funny shadowgraphs, Scaley and Edwards with a comedy musical turn, Josephine Davis, the charming singer, Cooper and Smith colored comedians, and Dolly and Dummy in fast gymnastics, will also gain your favor by clever work. A new series of motion pictures will round out this truly great bill.

SOUSA'S BAND AT THE LOCAL THEATRE TONIGHT.

John Philip Sousa will positively appear before his distinguished band of musicians and celebrated soloists at the New Plainfield heatre tonight. The eminent composer and leader played yesterday at Hagerstown, Ind., and his popularity was unquestionably displayed in the vast number of encores quickly and pleasantly responded to. It is claimed that the concert was the most enjoyable one ever given by the great bandmaster and was replete with treats and surprises.

The "Fairest of the Fair," Sousa's latest march, was heard for the first time and proved itself as extremely popular as its predecessors. Much enjoyment was realized by the rendition by the band of a humoresque of "Harrigan." Miss Lucy Allen, Miss Rose Reichard gave some delightful soprano and violin solos, respectively, and Mr. Herbert L. Clarke showed wonderful execution on the cornet by his rendition of his solo, "Caprice Brillante."

While the sale of seats has been extremely encouraging seats may be had for the local concert.

The "March King" is in excellent health and a thoroughly enjoyable concert is firm in the expectation of the local lovers of the best in music by an intensely American band.

LITERARY

The public is expressing more interest in aeroplane flight than in anything else just at present. The October Metropolitan Magazine opens with an important article on "The Aeroplane and its Future," by Henrf Farman, the celebrated French aviator who has held so many records. Anything that Mr. Farman says on this subject is naturally of vital importance. The same number has the beginning of a two-part story, "Saint Luke's Summer," by Mary Cholmondeley.

The timely note of the October Century is struck by the Hon. Seth Low's article on "The Writ of Injunction as a Party Issue," an interesting comparison of the Republican and Democratic platforms in their treatment of the labor question. The discussion has the value of coming from a man familiar with the point of view of organized labor and in sympathy with its best purposes, while remaining sufficiently independent to form his own opinion. A biographical feature of more than usual interest and importance is an appreciation of "Lombroso, Prophet and Criminologist," by Guglielmo Ferrero, who is soon coming to America to lecture and be a guest at the White House.

In the October American Magazine Professor Thomas, of Chicago University, begins his series of articles on women. In his first article, which is entitled "The Adventitious Character of Woman," he discusses woman as an ornament, woman asman's equal, man the master, how women infatuates man, the use of finery to attract the other sex, how woman makes a fool of a man, the adventuress, the morals of the unattached woman, the girl who must earn her own living.

October marks the real beginning of the fall campaign in Magazinedom and calls forth the strongest efforts of publishers and editors. Lippincott's responds by bringing out an especially good number for October. The complete novel is of an unusual type, with Hawaii as a background. The writer, Jessie Kaufman, lived for some time in this "Paradsie of the Pacific," and she gives us a most realistic picture of life there.

"Success Magazine" for October contains a significant political article by Henry Beach Needham, entitled "Why the President is for Taft," in which Mr. Roosevelt gives his own reasons for wishing Taft to be his successor. In the same number Alexander Irvine tells of a social enperiment in a New York Fifth Avenue church. Walter Weyl describes "The Extraordinary Street Cars of New York," and Charlotte Perkins Gilman discourses upon "The woman of Fifty."

In the Strnd Magazine for October appears the first of a very pleasing series of articles, profusely illustrated, entitled "English Homes and Gardens," describing and illustrating the most famous of the beautiful estates in that land of beautiful homes and gardens. These articles will be of particular interest to all who take pleasure in the beautifying of their homes.

The October number of Scribner's Magazine contains a number of articles of life and adventure in the open air appropriate to the hunting and camping season. The frontispiece, in color, is after a drawing by N. C. Wyeth, picturing a Navajo family "On the October Trail" Henry Van Dyke has a most charming description of outdoor travel by caravan in the Holy Land, entitled "A Journey to Jerash," which is the site of the old city of Gerasa, described by an archeologist as "the most satisfactory ruin that I have ever seen."

An important article in the October Woman's Home Companion is entitled "Seeking Shelter in New York." "Five dollars in my purse, a few plain clothes in my bag, an ordinary school education behind me and New York, with its boundless opportunities, ahead of me," that is the beginning of the adventures in New York of Lucy Green. They are real adventures of a real girl, who tells her story to readers of the Companion.

Eugene Debs is the voice of the Socialist party; he is its nominee for President. He is a man with a definite idea what is the atter in America, and what to do about it. Lincoln Steffens has inter viewed Debs, and put the same questions to him that he put to Taft and Bryan and Roosevelt and Johnson. The answers, which appear in the October's Everybody's, are candid, straightforward, enlightening.

The Popular Science Monthly for October contains the following articles: "The Spoilation of the Falls of Niagara," by Dr. J. W. Spencer; "The Industries of Niagara Falls," by Raymond H. Arnot; "The Classification of Mathematics," by Professor G. A. Miller; "Academic Aspects of Administration," by Professor Joseph Jastrow; "The Specialist Blight on American Education," by James P. Munroe.

Quite the most startling article offered by any of the current magazines is the one contributed to the October Red Book Magazine by Charles Edward Russell, who, under the general title "Billions for Bad Blue Blood,' takes a fling at the titled foreigners who seek marriage with our American girls. Another contribution to the same issue is "The Gibson Girl and The Ibsen Girl."

The East Side of New York, with all its poverty and suffering, possesses a remarkable intellectual life, says Mabel Agnes Lorenz in the October Smart Set. In the cafes and tea rooms of this section may be found the exiled brain and spirit of the whole Slav world, influencing silently but effectively tremendous changes in the political life of Southern Europe. In "Where Exiled Russia Eats," Miss Lorenz draws an attractive picture of a phase of life in the metropolis known to but few outside of its little purlieus.

KEEP THE HANDS SPICK AND SPAN.

The matter of keeping the hands young and pretty is one that every woman should consider seriously, and before the time that it is really necessary for her to do so, says the August Delineator. The hands begin to age at 39, and there is no greater telltale of a woman's age than hands not properly cared for.

The woman whose hands are short and thick, whose nails look as if they had been chopped off with a coupon clipper, has much to contend with. She arouses antagonism the moment any one looks at her hands. Without well-groomed hands, a woman is unclassed; she cannot possibly impress one as being refined. And, after all, well-groomed hands are merely a question of care.

Women nowadays are beginning to realize that pretty hands are second only in charm to a pretty face; a pretty hand is not fat and pudgy, as so many people think, nor is it necessarily dimpled.

Whether the skin be white or tanned to a deep brown by the rays of the sun, it must be smooth and firm and well cared for. Even a bony hand, under these conditions, is attractive to look at, and ten minutes devoted each day to the care of the hands and nails will reap a rich reward.

Colored Blouses.

Colored waists for wear with tailored gowns are considered smarter than all white. The color should, of course, harmonize with that of the suit, and the favored materials are pongee and madras.

A tan pongee waist goes well with a suit intones of brown, and if a jabot of the tan is edged with a quarter-inch hem of navy blue wash silk and added to the waist it will answer again when a navy blue suit is worn.

Striped madras, white and a color, is smart when the colored stripe carries out the tones of the skirt and coat.

The Clinton Avenues are scheduled to play Rahway on Crescent Oval on Saturday, October 3, and the Nationals, of Perth Amboy, on Saturday, October 10, with which game the season will probably be closed, unless arrangements can be made to play either Somerville or Scotch Plains. It is said that a series of three games with Bound Brook looks better to Somerville, from a financial point of view, than one more contest with Plainfield.

GOLF.

After having been knocking at the door for some years Jack Hobens of the Englewood Golf Club won Thursday the open championship of the Metropolitan Golf Association at Baltusrol. He has repeatedly been in the money at the national championship, but this is the first title he has gleaned. Hobens is best at the long game and one of the greatest of players from the tee. Very often Hobens drops a stroke in putting, yet he is the only person who has ever made a hole in one at an open championship. This occurred at the Wissahickon course in 1906 when Aleck Ross won.

There were eight money prizes, the sums being shared in this manner: Hobens, $150; A. Campbell, Boston, $100; Jack Hutchinson, New York; Gil Nicholls, Boston, and Isaac Mackie, New York, $55 each; H. H. Barker, Garden City, $30, and Aleck Ross, Boston, and D. Ogivie, Morris county, each $15. Hobens also picked up $25 in specials for the best scores on certain rounds, while Jack Hutchinson one his round in 71 also gained one of the special prizes.

Hobens was 158 on Wednesday, when Gil Nicholls led with 151. Aleck Campbell at the end of eighteen holes yesterday, led the field with 230, thanks to a 72, and was two strokes better than Gil Nicholls and H. H. Barker. There was no wind and a haze from Northern forest fires befogged the course, and as the turf was excellent and the putting greens ideal the conditions for scoring were perfect.

Hobens did 158, 147—305, while the others placed were Aleck Campbell, of Boston, champion of the Eastern Professional Golfers Association, 158, 148—306; Jack Hutchinson, St. Andrews, 157, 152—309; Isaac Mackie, Fox Hills, with the same score; Gil Nicholls, Boston, 151, 158—309; H. H. Barker, Garden City, 154, 156—310; Alex Ross, Boston, national champion of 1906, 161, 151—312; and David Ogilvie, Morris county, 155, 157—312.

FOOTBALL.

Vance McCormick arrived at New Haven, Thursday, to help coach the Yale backfield. He gave special work to Murphy, Philbin and Daly, two of whom will be the regular halfbacks this fall, and then criticised the work of the others during the scrimmage.

In the scrimmage the varsity with several substitutes in its makeup made the first touchdown of the season, Kilpatrick carrying the ball across the line. Then Hopkins held the ball and Haines kicked the goal. While yesterday the playing was nearly all in the varsity territory, yesterday the varsity territory was entered but once, and then the scrub team lost the ball on a fumble.

The forward pass was carelessly used by both elevens and the ball was lost several times. Neither Murphy nor Coy was in the varsity backfield, their places being taken by Kilpatrick and Haines. Bingham started as quarterback on the varsity and was replaced in turn by Wheaton and Hopkins, the last quarterback leading the team down the field for a touchdown.

On the varsity were Mersereau, left end; Hobbs, left tackle; Parks, left guard; Biddle, centre; Goebel, right guard; Cooney, right tackle; Burch, right end; Bingham, Wheaton, Hopkins, quarterback; Daly, left halfback; Kilpatrick, right halfback; Hains, fullback.

The freshmen have been called out for today and the coach will be Chester Jules Copman, a member of the senior class. Charlie Porter, the old Syracuse guard, will be the trainer.

Over seventy Tigers worked hard and perspired freely at University Field yesterday. Head Coach Reper was assisted by Jack Munn, Jim McCormick and Eddie Harlan.

The squad, which is not quite as large in numbers as last year's, was divided up into six teams driven by scrub quarterbacks, although Eddie Dillon had general charge. The veterans of the 1907 team were scattered about so that one could gather no idea of how they will be placed. This much is certain, however. Under the present new system in vogue at Princeton a tentative varsity machine will not be selected for several weeks.

The regular preliminary stunts of quick starts, falling on the ball and the like were indulged in yesterday. Just before the close of the practice a few instructions in kicking and catching were given. The tackling dummy has not yet been set up. Several of last season's eleven were on hand for practice yesterday afternoon, among whom were Dillon, Booth, Buckingham, McFadyen, Waller, Tibbott, Read, Welch and Dawson. Seigling hasn't appeared. There is an apparent dearth of ends. Brown and Wister have departed and Welch has had little experience.

LAKE HOPATCONG BEFOGGED.

Boats Carrying Commuters Were Unable to Make Connections.

Lake Hopatcong, Sept. 26.—Scores of commuters who, even this late in the season, are accustomed to travel daily between this resort and New York city have been seriously inconvenienced during the last few days, and the lake's passenger steamboat service has been completely demoralized by the blanket of fog and smoke that has hung over all this section of New Jersey.

Of the seven passenger steamboats plying regularly on the lake none succeeded Wednesday in reaching the Lackawanna Railroad station in time to connect with the early morning trains. With their passengers they drifted hopelessly about, having lost their bearings completely. Yesterday only one boat, the Mystic Shrine, succeeded in reaching the landing dock during the morning, and she arrived there long after train time, with her passengers glad to disembark.

The Esther R., Wednesday, made the River Styx all right, but after making a landing at Maxim Park lost herself in the fog. About the time she expected to sight land at Point Comfort, below Bertrand's Island, she unexpectedly grazed the shore away off on the eastern mainland, having steamed at right angles to her proper course. Her passengers were disembarked and traveled by stage to the Mt. Arlington Railroad station.

The Gladys and the Mystic Shrine narrowly escaped being in collision off Castle Edward, at the upper end of the River Styx, and it was late at night before the little fleet succeeded in making its berth docks. Yesterday several hundred passengers were compelled either to remain here or to reach the railroad station by various land routes, using either the hotel omnibuses or automobiles or carriages.

RUNAWAY ENGINE CHASES TRAIN UNTIL DITCHED.

While an Italian helper, known as "Joe the hustler," was coaling engine No. 221 at Basking Ridge about 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the engine started off down the tracks on the Passaic and Delaware Railroad at full speed.

Joe leaped and escaped injury. The engine sped along the rails to Millington, to which place warning had been telephoned. The station agent there had the runaway swung to a siding, where she was ditched, the locomotive, with its wheels ineffectively turning, a half somersault and partly burying itself in the earth.

Had the engine gone past Millington it would likely have overtaken a passenger train going in the same direction, in charge of Conductor Joseph Thompson. An inquiry will be made to ascertain if "Joe" had been experimenting with the engine's levers.

Miss Helena Scheuermann, of Somerville, has returned home after a visit with her cousin, Mrs. Charles Laury, of this city.

Plainfield, N. J., September 26, 1908.

MR. FOWLER'S FRIEND.

In an outburst of enthusiasm over the defeat of John M. Mills for the Republican nomination for county clerk in Morris, the Newark Evening News announces the political death of "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, for years 'the master of all he surveys' in his little political world. "The defeat of Mills," it declares, "marks the overthrow of bossism in another county." Would that it were true but like many other political obituaries published by the News in the last few years, as Mark Twain would say, the report is "exaggerated." Unfortunately too many of "Uncle Dan's" stripe have resurrected themselves in a surprisingly quick fashion.

Mr. Voorhees has but recently shown that the power is not confined to his own county. He made sure the nomination next Tuesday of Charles N. Fowler for Congress when he declared Morris county elected the Union county office-seeker and he "guessed it could do so again." At that time he was aware of the pronounced opposition among the rank and file of the Republicans in Union to a seventh term for a man who went down in defeat not only in his county but in his own city, both of which returned a majority for all other candidates. And this was all the more pronounced when it is considered that Mr. Fowler's opponent was a radical of the radicals among the Bryan Democrats.

The Fifth district returns two years ago showed plainly the opinion of the voters so far as Mr. Fowler is concerned. Just as "Uncle Dan" claims, Morris county came to the rescue and saved the marble man from ignominious defeat. And in a district normally Republican by 5,000, Mr. Fowler was returned to Washington with approximately 500 plurality over James E. Martine.

Mr. Fowler is to be renominated although astute Republican leaders admit that his candidacy will hurt the ticket. This fact was brought to bear on "Uncle Dan" but he turned a deaf ear to all entreaties to have Morris county name one of its own many brilliant sons who would receive the support of Union. "Morris county has elected Fowler before and I guess it can do it again," was his ultimatim, and "Uncle Dan" the legate of Morris county insisted on coming into Union and picking the candidate against the protests of leading Republicans in Union who feared for the success of the ticket with the marble man as a candidate.

Union county had other sons just as worthy of Mr. Fowler who would have been far more acceptable. Former Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House, and one of the ablest men in this section of the State, was chief among these. But so long as Mr. Fowler persisted in his candidacy and so long as "Uncle Dan" insisted on his nomination, the Plainfielder could not be induced to allow his name to be used. The upshot of the matter was that Mr. Gilbert declined to become a candidate so long as Mr. Fowler was in the field and everyone knows Mr. Fowler never had the slightest thought of giving way to another.

All this is merely recited just to show that the News is quite mistaken when it announces that "one more boss is gone."

In honoring that splendid citizen, Alexander Gilbert, with the position of Presidential elector, the district has honored itself most fittingly. He is easily one of the most brilliant men in New Jersey and it is a matter of deep and sincere regret that he could not have been induced to allow his name to be used as a candidate for Congress. Had he done so there would be no question about the result at the Republican convention at Phillipsburg next Monday.

Heaven a Place of Restful Activity.

11th of a Series on Heaven by REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

It was said of the manna that supplied Israel's necessities in the wilderness that it tasted to each man like that which he enjoyed most. We have no scripture to prove that assertion, but the fancy, if it is a fancy, is a beautiful illustration of the satisfaction that the other world will be to each individual soul. There will be a place in that world for all the varied souls that enter it. It will be large enough and varied enough to fit every need. No matter how unique the need of man may be it will satisfy that need. I am not depending upon my imagination for this statement. It rests upon all that the Master and His disciples have said. One of the great hopes men have in regard to the other world is that of meeting the dear ones that have gone before. It is balm to their wounded souls to be assured that they shall meet them. They can think of no joy in the heavenly world to equal that. How could the heavenly world satisfy if there were no reunions? We are assured that we shall carry our memories there. To say that there will be no recognition would be to say that our memories will be blotted out. I hear the Master respond to the broken hearted souls that long to meet their own. "Of course, you will meet them for if it were not so I would have told you."

I hear another longing. It is the longing for rest.

There are some souls to whom all activity in this world is associated with the thought of toil and weariness and they love the words of the Lord when He says: "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Someone wearied of the toil of earth wrote in this pessimistic strain.

"I long to lay my weary head
And aching heart beneath the soil,
To slumber in that dreamless bed
From all my toil.'

That is not the rest the Lord gives. God's message is "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, from henceforth, that they may rest from their labors." That rest is not the dreamless sleep of the grave. The rest that God gives His own is not the rest of death, nor the rest of sleep, nor the rest of inactivity. The righteous in that world rest from their labors, but that does not mean that they live an inactive life. There is a difference between labor and activity. The word "labor" means toil and weariness. In that world there will be activity without weariness. It is said of the angels that they rest not day nor night, but they are never weary. Therefore I have titled my theme, "Heaven a place of restful activity." Sometimes a child thinks he wants what his parents know he will soon tire of, so they provide not for his imaginary longing, but for his real need and desire. I am quite sure that we would all tire of an eternity of pure rest. Edward Everett Hale said to his friend, "When we get there and have been there a few aeons and have had a chance to get rested a little and to look around us, I hope that I shall have the opportunity to get off with you in some secluded place and have a leisurely talk about some things that I despair of getting hold of here." Rest to him was a temporary thing; but I think that Heaven will be a revelation to us in this regard. The very atmosphere of Heaven will brace us up as soon as we get there, and we shall not need aeons of pure rest, for all our activity will be restful.

Rest therefore is not the suspension of all activity. "It is the unwearied exercise of power." We would certainly grow weary of an eternal holiday with no duty to perform.

Think of the opportunity of exploring the wonders of God's universe, and of our minds opened to greater possibilities of knowing, and then our sitting in idleness. What is meant when it is said that Heaven will be a place of rest, is, that there will be no weariness there, and no depression of spirits because of tired nerves.

All that Heaven will mean we do not know, but we do know what will not be there. There will be no pain, no sorrow, no death no night; in short, there will be nothing in that world that will injure its perfect harmony, and that will mean rest.

Heaven will be a place of restful activity because it will be a place of perfect love for "Love is rest." Jealously, envy, contention are the causes of unrest, but where love reigns there is unselfishness and loving interest. The profound philosopher Fichte said: "We only live as we love."

You remember how Paul ends his panegyric of love—the thirteenth of first Corinthians. He tells us of the three virtues that abide: "Faith hope and love, but the greatest of these is love." The dominant note in heaven's music will be love. There must be perfect rest therefore in that atmosphere.

Kipling in his beautiful cerse on the future, says:

"When Earth's last picture is painted and the tubes are twisted and dryed.
When the oldest colours have faded,
and the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—lie down for an aeon or two,
Till the Master of all good workmen shall put us to work anew!

"And those that were good shall be happy; they shall sit on a golden chair;
They shall splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of comets' hair;
They shall find real saints to draw from—Magdalene, Peter and Paul;
They shall work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

"And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame;
And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of the working, and each in his separate star,
Shall draw the thing as he sees it for the God of things as they are."

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Following the custom of several years past, the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Kearney Baptist church spent yesterday with their former president and co-worker Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street. During Mrs. Walpole's residence in Kearney she was an active worker in the Kearny church and its societies. Upon her removal here the Sewing Circle decided to enjoy an outing once a year and spend a day with their former president. The delegation yesterday numbered nearly thirty. The outing was one of the pleasentest reunions yet held, the day being given over to games, music, refreshments and reminiscent talk of the past.

The only contest on at the election as far as township offices are concerned will be between John Robison, Republican candidate, and Charles H. French, Democratic candidate, over the office of freeholder. Mr. Robison is the present incumbent and has served the township and borough faithfully for a number of years. Mr. French, the Democratic candidate, has held several local offices in the past and is a good fighter for votes. So the contest should be interesting, although the odds favors Robison, as the township has a Republican majority of about 50.

It is hardly likely that the local ball team and Clinton Avenue team will play the deciding game of the series of five games, owing to Manager Frentz and Manager Dorflinger being unable to agree on the financial end of the arrangement. The series stand 2-2.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours, morning preaching 10:45, B. Y. P. U. meeting 7:15, followed at 8 o'clock by the evening preaching service. The pastor, Rev. Franklin Mathews, will preach at both services.

William Lee has returned from Madison where he has been visiting his son Frank, who is a student at the Madison Boarding School.

Mrs. George Frentz, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Wednesday, was reported as being somewhat improved yesterday.

The local team and the Highlanders of Plainfield are playing this afternoon on the local grounds.

The weekly prayer-meeting of the Methodist church will be held in the church tonight.

The weekly meeting of the Bible Study Class was held last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Good Government Club held its September meeting in its new room last evening and found the accommodations very convenient. The room assigned to it is the large one on the ground floor. The proposed new factory building was brought up and a committee was named to forward the proposition by arousing the interest in the town and by assisting in acquiring the site. Justice of the Peace Smith addressed the club on the subject of the damage which was being done to roads and properties and urged measures of protection. The all-absorbing matter of a trolley line to connect with Plainfield was discussed in all its bearings and once again consents are to be secured and efforts are to be made to interest the Public Service Corporation on the subject.

The subjects of the sermons by the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, at the Baptist church tomorrow will be as follows: Morning, "How Precious are thy Thoughts unto me, O God;" evening, "An Acceptable Time."

Mr. Gibson Thorne, of Middletown, N. J., who has been spending the week with his brother at Chamberlain House, returned to his home yesterday.

The pastor will be the leader at the Christian Endeavor meeting tomorrow night and will introduce the regular topic, "The Problem of the City."

AT HORNETS' MERCY

200 FEET IN AIR.

James S. Curran, of Elizabeth, Clings to Church Steeple and Must Submit to Torture.

James S. Curran, electrical worker, while stringing wires from the steeple of St. Patrick's church, Elizabeth, on Thursday, was attacked by a nest of hornets. Only his sheer courage in clinging to a ledge while enduring the most intense pain saved him from falling from the steeple and being dashed to death on the pavement, more than two hundred feet below.

Curran was attacked furiously on all sides by the insects, and was in such a precarious position that he was unable to battle with them. He happened in climbing through an aperture near the summit of the spire to disturb the hornests' nest. His face and arms were terribly swollen from the bites of the insects when he descended.

Curran had to go to the top of the steeple again yesterday to complete his work.

OBSERVE ROSH HASHONAN AT LOCAL SYNAGOGUE

The celebration of Rosh Hashonan, the Hebrew New Year, was begun with impressive services at the Synagogue of the Children of Israel early last night, and continued till day break today. This new moon of the month Tishri has always been heralded by blasts upon the shofar, or ram's horn. This year, as the day falls upon the Jewish Sabbath, the horn blowing will take place tomorrow morning in orthodox synagogues.

The next holy day of the Jews is Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which will occur on October 5. This day is followed by Succoth, the Feast of the Tabernacle, on October 5. This days of fasting from Rosh Hashunah to Yom Kippur are known as the time of Yomin Neroin, or the "Awful Season," and are followed by the joyful Feast of the Tabernacles, or Booths. Services will be held in all of their places of worship today, and the Jews in their home and business life will observe it to a greater or less extent. Homes will be filled and stores will be closed. The local Hebrew stores will be reopened for business this afternoon at 5:30.

suggestion and so-called mental therapeutics do not permanently heal the sick, nor do these systems uplift the patient spiritually, while Christian Science invariably reforms the sinner and at the same time performs the healing work. It is reasonable to suppose that any minister of the gospel will be glad to endorse a system of healing which is Christly in its methods, and which includes the spiritual uplifting of the patient, rather than to endorse hynotic and suggestive treatment wherein the physical ailment is merely the object of the cure. Christian Science primarily seeks the moral uplifting of mankind, while hynotic treatment does not permanently heal or uplift its subjects. Christian Science does not teach that 'there is no sin that needs atonement.' Mrs. Eddy expressly states in her writings that there can be no atonement (i. e. at-one-ment) with God, Good, until sin has been overcome in the individual consciousness. If our critic will take the trouble to refer to Science and Health with key to the Scriptures by Mrs. Eddy, he will discover on page 497 the acknowledgment of Christ Jesus' atonement and its acceptance by Christian Scientists as one of their church tenets.

"Referring to the various quotations from Science and Health as presented by Dr. Herring, would say that it is necessary to connect them with the sentences from which they have been detached, and to read our text book in order that they may be understood.

"Thousands who have been healed of all manner of diseases (some right in Plainfield) stand ready to testify to the moral regeneration and physical healing they have received through the ministrations of Christian Science. This multitude of witnesses we consider the best evidence we can offer that Mrs. Eddy has given us the correct interpretation of the Bible since the Scripture plainly informs us, 'By their fruits ye shall know them.'

"Respectfully yours,
H. COULSON FAIRCHILD.

Planning for an Entertainment.

"The Loyal Band," Sunday-school class No. 24, of Trinity Reformed church, of which Henry Seader is the teacher, met Thursday night at the home of Mrs. William Trembath, on Chatam street, for a short business session and social time. There were about eighteen members and friends of the class present. During the business meeting it was decided to hold an entertainment in the near future. Then followed a social time, during which there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

Some of Sousa's Characteristic Poses at New Plainfield Theatre tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Little Chip" and Mary Marble are distinctly and absolutely funnier in "His Honor the Mayor," that is to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, than in any piece in which they have ever appeared. Once seen in almost any attraction they forever after become a necessity. They are different from the great majority of musical comedy fun-makers and their very originality is one of their strongest endorsements. It is no effort for them to be funny. It comes to them naturally, they revel in comedy and the audiences revel with them. As the "Mayor" and "May Flood" in "His Honor the Mayor" they have parts that call for eccentric comedy of the very highest quality and they supply it. They have been surrounded with a large and capable company at the hands of Jos. M. Gaites and the piece has been given a lavish production with beautiful scenery, costume and electrical effects and a large chorus of unusually attractive young women.

"Girls," by Clyde Fitch, which will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night with the firm name of Shuberts as producing managers, is about the best inducement the most critical theatre-goer desires, and needless to say, thousands have profited by witnessing the play at Daly's Broadway theatre, where it ran for a good part of last season and throughout the entire summer months. "Girls" is a comedy that would compel "Sober Sue" to more than smile. It is constructed along strictly original lines, and brimful with situations—that compel laughs to flow incessantly, and while this seems to be the author's objective point, he has not overlooked the sentimental or serious side of his story. "Girls" contains a pretty love story so cleverly interwoven in the plot, which is not disclosed until the end, that the interest does not lesson. "Girls" is a tonic for all ages and many a girl will profit by the good, wholesome lesson it teaches.

"The Time, The Place and The Girl" is a most striking production in many ways. It is a new and pleasing departure, and there is nothing similar to it on the stage today. It is unlike any other production, beside containing an interesting theme and a pretty love story, and there are a number of very pleasing musical numbers. The principal comedy character, "Happy" Johnny Hicks, is in the able hands of Robert G. Pitkin, and is one of the most original characters ever presented. Others in the capable company secured by the Askin-Singer Company are Josephine Park, May Bouton, Violet McMillan, Robert Ebner, Purnell Pratt, Wm. Herman West and Wm. O'Day. "The Time, The Place and The Girl" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night.

Obadiah Blurton is one of the meanest men you ever saw. Obadiah is one of the Hardscrabble folks, the community shown up so humorously in Denman Thompson and George W.

Mary Marble in "His Honor the Mayor," at New Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, September 29.

Little Chip in "His Honor the Mayor" at New Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday.

Ryer's comedy, "Our New Minister." In contrast to Obadiah the play presents in Curt Holten a grand old citizen of Hardscrabble who is all wool and a yard wide. Of course in the comedy there are lots of other Hardscrabblers of interest. They'll all be here at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. They are coming with a brand new scenic equipment. Joseph Conyers is still among them. Joseph, you remember, plays the country constable.

Chilly Location.
"Is this the only seat for the concert you have left?"
"Yes, but it's an exceptionally good one for so hot a night."

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"I think that's a good mare of yours, Mr. Porter," said Crane, sympathetically. "I only race myself in a small way, just for the outdoor relaxation it gives me, you know, so I am not much of a judge. The other horse you bought—the winner of the race, I mean, Lauzanne—will also help put you right, I should say."

Porter hesitated, uneasily. He disliked to talk about a man behind his back, but he knew that Langdon trained for Crane, and he longed to give the banker a friendly word of warning.

With a touch of rustic quaintness, he said, with seeming irrelevance to the subject: "Have you ever picked wild berries in the field, Mr. Crane?"

"I have."

"Did you ever notice that going down wind you could see the berries better?"

Crane thought for a moment. "Yes, that's right; coming up wind the leaves hid them."

"Just so," commented Porter; "and when a man's got a trainer he's nearly always working up wind with him."

"The trainer hides things?" queried Crane.

"Some do. But the outsiders walking down wind see the berries."

And the banker pondered for a minute, then he said, "Whose garden are the berries in, Mr. Porter, yours or mine?"

"Well, you've always been a friend of mine, Mr. Crane," Porter answered, evasively.

"I see," said the other, meditatively; "I understand, I'm obliged. If I thought for an instant that any trainer wasn't dealing perfectly straightforward with me, I'd have nothing more to do with him—nothing whatever."

Crane sat looking through the open window at John Porter as the latter went down the street. About his thin-lipped, square-framed mouth hovered an expression that might have been a smile, or an intense look of interest, or a touch of avaricious ferocity. The gray eyes peeped over the wall of their lower lids, and in them, too, was the unfathomable something.

"Yes," he repeated, as though Porter still stood beside him, "if Langdon tried to deceive me, I'd crush him. Poor old Porter with his story of the strawberries! If he were as clever as he is honest, he wouldn't have been stuck with a horse like Lauzanne. The horse taint is pretty strong in that Porter blood. How the girl said that line:

" 'And a hush came over the clamorous mob;
Like a babe on his neck I was sobbing.'
"She's cleverer than her father."

Crane sat for an hour. From the time the first loan was obtained upon Ringwood, Crane had coveted the place. It appealed to him, with its elm-bordered, sweeping driveway, leading from gate to old colonial residence. Its thick-grassed fields and running water made it just the place for a man who tempered his passion for racing with common sense. And it would pass from Porter's hands right enough—Crane knew that. Porter might call it ill luck, but he, Crane the banker, knew it was the lack of something, the inability to make money.

"Made music to me on Crusader." Yes, that was it. With the Porters it was jingle of spurs and stride of the horse. All very fine in theory, but racing, as he looked at it, was a question of proper odds, and many other things connected with the betting ring.

Why did the girl, Allis, with her jingling verse, creep into his mind. Crane suddenly chuckled in dry disapprobation of himself. Grotesquely enough, all at once he remembered that he was forty—that very day forty. He ran his hand over his waistcoat, dipped two fingers into the pocket and drew out a cigar.

Save for the curling smoke that streamed lazily upward one might have thought the banker fast asleep in his chair, so still he sat, while his mind labored with the quiescent velocity of a spinning top. He had won a big stake over Lauzanne's victory. The race had helped beggar Porter, and brought Ringwood nearer his covetous grasp. If Porter failed to win the Eclipse, his finances would be in a pitiable state; he might even have to sell his good filly Lucretia. He fell to wondering whether The Dutchman might not beat Lucretia. A question of this sort was one of the few he discussed with Langdon. When Crane had smoked his cigar out, he had settled the trend of many things.

That evening he talked with his trainer.

"What should win the Eclipse, Langdon?" he asked.

"Well, I don't know what'll start," began the trainer, with diplomatic caution.

"Would Porter's mare have a chance?"

"I think she would. I hear somethin' about a trial she gave them good enough to win—if I could find out her time—Porter don't talk much, an' Andy Dixon's like a clam. There's a boy in the stable, Shandy, that I might pump—"

"Don't bother, Mr. Langdon; I dislike prying into anybody's business."

The trainer stared, but he didn't know that Porter had told Crane all about the trial.

"Has The Dutchman a look in?" continued Crane.

"On his runnin' he has; he wasn't half fit, an' got as bad a ride as ever I see in my life. The race ought to be between 'em—I ain't seen no two-year-olds out to beat that pair.

"If I thought The Dutchman would win I'd buy him."

"I don't know as the owner'd sell him."

"Do you remember the buying of Silver Foot, Langdon?"

"Yes."

"He was a good horse."

"The best handicap horse in the country, an' he was sold for a song—seven thousand."

"Less than that the first time," corrected Crane.

"Yes, they stole him from old Walters; made him believe the horse was no good."

"Just so," commented Crane; "I've heard that story."

Langdon waited for the other to continue, but the banker seemed wrapped up in a retrospect of the Silver Foot deal.

"I know Billy Smith, that trains The Dutchman," hazarded Langdon; "he's a boozer."

"I'm glad of that—I mean, that you know Smith," declared Crane. "I happen to know the owner—his name is Baker. His racing is what might be called indiscriminate, and like men of that class he sometimes blunders upon a good horse without knowing it; and I doubt very much but that if he knew all about the other race—how bad Lauzanne really is; how the mare, Lucretia—well—got shut off, and couldn't get through her horses, say—of course his own trainer, Smith, would have to tell these things, you understand. In fact, if he knew the exact truth, he might take a reasonable offer for The Dutchman."

Langdon nodded approvingly. He loved his subtle master; cards up his sleeves tingled his nerves, and loaded dice were a joy forever more.

Crane proceeded to unwind the silken cord. Naturally Smith would hate to lose a fair horse out of his stable, and would, perhaps, attempt to thwart any deal; so I think you might remunerate him for his loss."

"When Silver Foot was sold, they gave him a bad trial before the sale—"

"I'm not interested in Silver Foot," interrupted Crane, "and I shouldn't like to have anything—well, I don't want my name associated with anything shady, you understand, Langdon? You are to buy The Dutchman as cheap as you can, and run him as your own horse in the Eclipse. I think Porter's mare will win it, so we needn't lose anything over The Dutchman."

Langdon started.

"But," he gasped, "there was a row over Lauzanne's race. If The Dutchman runs in my name, an' a lot o' mugs play him—it's dollars to doughnuts they will—an' he gets beat, there'll be a kick. I can't take no chances of bein' had up by the stewards."

"Wait a bit," replied Crane, calmly. "Supposing Porter's mare worked five and a half furlongs in 1:07, how would she go in the Eclipse?"

"She'd win in a walk; unless The Dutchman was at his best, when he might give her an argument."

"Well, if I thought The Dutchman could beat the mare, I'd make him win, if he never carried the saddle again," declared Crane, almost fiercely. Then he interrupted himself, breaking off abruptly.

"It will be doing Porter a good turn to—to—that is, if Lucretia wins. I fancy he needs a win. Bad racing luck will hardly stop the mare this time—not twice in succession, you know, Langdon," and he looked meaningly at his jackal. "You buy The Dutchman and be good to him."

He laid marked emphasis on the words "be good to him." The trainer understood. It meant that he was to send The Dutchman to the post half fit, eased up in his work; then the horse could try, and the jockey could try, and in spite of it all the fast filly of Porter's would win, and his subtle master, Crane, would have turned the result to his own benefit. Crane wanted The Dutchman because he was a good horse; he also wanted to have a heavy plunge on Lucretia; but with the son of Hanover in other hands the good thing might not come off.

In spite of what he had said to Langdon, there was little doubt in Crane's mind but that the son of Hanover was a better horse than Lucretia. A sanguine owner was so apt to overrate everything in his own stable, especially if he had bred the animal himself, as Porter had Lucretia. To buy The Dutchman and back him on such short ownership to beat Lucretia would have been the policy of a very ordinary mind indeed; he knew intuitively—in fact Porter's unguarded conversation had suggested it—that Lucretia's owner meant to win himself out of his difficult position by backing the little mare heavily for the Eclipse, expecting to get his money on at good odds. By owning The Dutchman, Crane could whipsaw the situation; forestall Porter in the betting by backing Lucretia down to a short price himself, and have Jakey Faust lay with a full vigor against the Hanover colt. He would thus confine Porter to stake money, and Ringwood would still be chained to his bank by the golden links he had forged on the place.

Almost insensibly, side by side with this weed of villainy there was growing in Crane's mind a most peculiar flower of sentiment, a love blossom. Strive as he would—though the apathy of his relation somewhat startled him—Crane could not obliterate from his thoughts the wondrous gray eyes of Allis Porter.

Grotesquely incongruous as it was, Crane was actually in love; but the love flower, pure enough in itself, had rooted in marvelous ground. He was 40, and the methods of that many years must still govern his actions. Instinctively he felt that he must win the girl by diplomacy; and Crane's idea of diplomacy was to get a man irrevocably in his power. If John Porter were indebted to him beyond redemption, if he practically owned Ringwood, why should he not succeed with Allis?

Langdon bought The Dutchman. What methods he employed Crane took no pains to discover; in fact, stopped Langdon abruptly when he sought to enlarge on the difficulties he had overcome in the purchase. The price was the only item that interested Crane—$7,000; that included everything—even the secret service money.

The horse acquired, Crane had one more move to make; he sent for Jakey Faust, the bookmaker. Faust and Crane had a reciprocal understanding. When the bookmaker needed financial assistance he got it from the banker; when Crane needed a missionary among the other bookmakers, Faust acted for him.

"I want to back Lucretia for the Eclipse," Crane said to the bookmaker.

"Lucretia!" ejaculated Faust. "She'll have a rosy time beatin' Dutchy on their last race. They'll put a better boy up on the colt next time, an' he ought to come home all by himself."

"Yes, a fairish sort of a jock will have the mount, I think—Westley's a good enough boy."

"Westley?" came wonderingly from Faust.

"Yes; Langdon owns The Dutchman now."

The Cherub pursed his fat round lips in a soft whistle of enlightenment. It had staggered him at first that Crane, for whose acumen he had a profound respect, should have intended such a hazardous gamble; now he saw light.

"Then my book is full on the Porter mare?" he said inquiringly.

Crane nodded his head.

"An' I lay against the Hanover colt?"

Again Crane nodded.

"It's not bookmaking," continued Faust.

"I'm not a bookmaker," retorted Crane. "And see here, Faust," he continued, "when you've got my money on the Porter mare—when and how I leave to you—I want you to cut her price short—do you understand? Make her go to the post two to one, if you can; don't forget that."

"If the mare goes wrong?" objected Faust.

"I don't think she will, but you needn't be in a hurry—there's plenty of time.

"What's the limit?" asked Faust.

"I want her backed down to even money at least," Crane answered, "probably ten thousand will do it. At any rate you can go that far."

VI.

The day of the race when John Porter went into the betting ring he was confronted with even money about his mare. He fought his way to the open of the paddock without making a bet.

"Even money!" ejaculated Dixon, when his owner told him of the ring situation; "why, they're crazy. Who's doin' it?"

"Not the public," declared Porter, "for I was there just after the first betting. It must be your friend Boston Bill that has forestalled us; nobody else knew of the mare's trial."

"Not on your life, Mr. Porter; Boston plays fair. D'ye think he could live at this game if he threw down his friends?"

"But nobody else even knew that we'd got a good boy for the mare."

"It don't make no difference," curtly answered Dixon; "it's a million dollars to a penny whistle that Boston hasn't a dollar on yet. It's some one else. There's somebody behind that d—d Langdon—he's not clever enough for all this. D'you know that The Dutchman's runnin' in Langdon's name to-day?"

"He is?"

"Yes; he's supposed to own him."

"But what's that got to do with Lucretia's price?"

"It means that we're going to be allowed to win. The other day they laid against her, an' she got beat; to-day they're holding her out, so I suppose she'll win, but somebody else gets the benefit."

"Gad! that Langdon must be a crook," muttered Porter. "I'm going to speak to my friend Crane about him again. No honest man should have horses in his stable."

"That they shouldn't," asserted Dixon. "But we've got our own troubles to-day. From what I see of this thing I'd rather back the mare at even money than I would if she was ten to one."

"I think you're right, Dixon. I'll go back and have a good bet down on her at evens."

But in five minutes Lucretia's owner was back in the paddock with the cheerful intelligence that the mare was now three to five.

"I wouldn't back Salvator among a lot of cart horses at that price," commented Dixon; "leave it alone, an' we'll go for the stake. We're up against it good and hard; somebody seems to know more about our own horse than we do ourselves."

"I think myself that the gods are angry with us, Dixon," said Porter moodily; "and the mortals will be furious, too, whichever way the race goes. They've backed the little mare at this short price, no doubt, an' if she's beaten they'll howl; if she wins they'll swear my money was on to-day, and that I pulled her in the last race."

John Porter sat in the grand stand with his usual companion, Allis, beside him, as The Dutchman, Lucretia, and the other Eclipse horses passed down the broad spread of the straight Eclipse course to the five-and-a-half furlong post.

"Surely Lucretia will win to-day, rather—don't you think so?" asked Allis; "I feel that she will."

"She's got a big weight up," he answered. "She's a little bit of a thing, and it may drive her into the ground coming down the Eclipse hill. I expect they'll come at a terrible jog, too; they don't often hang back on that course. But they'll have to move some to beat the little mare's trials—they'll make it in record time if they head her, I think."

"Isn't the horse that beat her the other day in, too, father?"

"The Dutchman—yes, but I fancy his owner is backing my mare."

"Father!"

"It wouldn't make any difference, though; she'd beat him anyway. If I'm any judge, he's short."

Allis felt a rustle at her elbow as though someone wished to pass between the seats. The faintest whiff of stephanotis came to her on the lazy summer air. Involuntarily she turned her head, and Crane's eyes peeped at her over the stone wall of their narrow lids. He was standing in the passage just beyond her father, now looking wistfully at the vacant seat on her left.

"Good afternoon, Miss Porter—how are you, Porter? May I sit here with you and see Lucretia win?"

"Come in, come in!" answered Porter frankly.

Topping the rail in the distance, just where the course kinked a little to the left, Allis could see the blur of many colored silks in the sunlight. Then it seemed to flatten down almost level with the rail, as the horses broadened out to the earth in racing spread and the riders clung low to the galloping colts, for they had started.

"There they come!" said Crane. "What's in the lead, Porter?"

Porter did not answer. A man could have counted thirty before he said, "The Dutchman's out in front—a length—and they're coming down the hill like mad."

Allis felt her heart sink. Was it to be the same old story—was there always to be something in front of Lucretia?

"Where's your mare?" Crane asked.

His own glass lay idly in his lap. Though he spoke of the race, it was curious that his eyes were watching the play of Allis' features.

"Now she's coming!" Porter's voice made Crane jump; he had almost forgotten the race. To the close-calculating mind it had been settled days before.

They were standing now—everybody was.

"Now, my beauty, they'll have to gallop," Porter was saying.

They were close up, and Crane could see that Lucretia had got to the bay colt's head, and he was dying away. He smiled cynically as he watched Westley go to the whip on The Dutchman, with Lucretia half a length in the lead. Most certainly Langdon was an excellent trainer: The Dutchman was just good enough to last into second place, and Lucretia had won handily. What a win Crane had had!

A little smothered gasp distracted his momentary thought of success, and turning quickly he saw tears in a pair of gray eyes that were set in a smiling face.

"I congratulate you, Miss Porter," he said, raising his hat. Then he turned and held out his hand to her father, saying, "I'm glad you've won, Porter—I thought you would. The Dutchman quit when he was pinched."

"It wasn't the colt's fault—he was short," said Porter. "I shouldn't like to have horses in that man's stable—he's too good a trainer for me."

"You mean it's a case of strawberries?" questioned Crane.

"Well, I know it takes a lot of candles to find a lost quarter," remarked Porter, somewhat ambiguously. Then he added, "I must go down to thank Dixon; I guess this is his annual day for smiling."

"I'm coming, too, father," said Allis; "I want to thank Lucretia, and give her a kiss, brave little sweetheart."

After Allis and her father had left Crane, he sat for a minute or two waiting for the crowd of people that blocked the passageway after each race to filter down on the lawn. The way seemed clearer presently, and Crane fell in behind a knot of loud-talking men. As he moved along slowly he presently had knowledge of a presence at his side—a familiar presence. Raising his eyes from a contemplation of the heels in front of him, he saw Belle Langdon. She nodded with patronizing freedom.

"I lost you," she said.

"I was sitting with some friends here," he explained.

"Yes, I saw her," she commented pointedly.

At that instant one of the men in front said, with a bear's snarl, "Well, that's the worst ever; I've seen some jobs in my time, but this puts it over anything yet."

"Didn't you back the little mare?" a thin voice squealed. It was the tout.

"Back nothin'! The last time out she couldn't untrack herself, an' to-day she comes, without any pull in the weight, and wins in a walk from The Dutchman; and didn't he beat her just as easy the other day?"

Belle Langdon looked into Crane's face, and her eyes were charged with a look of reciprocal meaning. Crane winced. How aggressively obnoxious this half-tutored girl, mistress of many gay frocks, could make herself! There was an implied crime partnership in her glance which revolted him. Dick Langdon must have trained in his own home. The malicious glitter of the girl's small black eyes contrasted strongly with the honest, unaffected look that was forever in the big tranquil eyes of Allis.

They were just at the head of the steps, and the tout was saying to the fat expostulator: "I could have put you next; I steered a big better on—he won a thousand over the mare. I saw Boston's betting man havin' an old-time play, an' I knew it was a lead-pipe cinch."

"It's all right to be wise after the race," grunted the fat man.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated by Plainfield People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one special kidney medicine that cures permanently and there is plenty of proof right here in Plainfield.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now states that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. J. Mottley, 546 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble three years ago and I have never had a return of it since. I am glad to confirm the statement I made in favor of this remedy then.

The endorsement to which Mrs. Mottley refers was given on August 26th, 1905, and was substantially as follows: "About two months ago I was seized with a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back part of my head. I could not rest at night and had no strength or energy to do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at Randolph's Pharmacy gave me prompt relief and I am convinced that they are a first-class remedy in every respect."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

OLD PRINCETON'S HOTTEST BATTLE.

Rages All Day Between Sophs and Freshies and the Casualties Are Many.

They were fighting from morning until night at Princeton yesterday, and they fought hard. Students of every class, with a few grads scattered here and there, mixed things up so ferociously that the whole town is tired and bruised. The occasion for the fray was the annual freshman class elections, the cane rush and general pugnaciousness, which always makes itself felt on the opening days of college.

The sophomores got the worst of things all along the line, because the rest of the college piled on the second-year men and beat them up for fair. Nobody was seriously hurt though many black eyes and facial bruises are noticeable.

The trouble started when the upper classmen tried to rush the freshmen into Dickson Hall this afternoon. The sophomores were backed up against the entrance in a solid mass, so that when the two masses met there were doings—everybody did. After a fierce tussle 1912 was wedged into the hall, where they elected their officers. Thomas Swan of St. Paul's School, was chosen president; Eddie Hart, of Exeter, vice-president, and Frank Harper, of Lawrenceville, secretary.

Then came the bloodiest scrap that Princeton has seen in years. As the "peerade" of freshman turned into University place from Nassau street sophomores were encountered and the result was startling. For fifteen minutes the battle was waged when finally the upper classmen, assisted by the proctors, broke the affair up.

But last night the cannon rush was the cue to get busy again. As usual But last night the cane rush was somewhat more bitter than formerly. The freshmen had a chance to get back at the sophs for the "horsing" they have been receiving, though 1911 is apparently overburdened with innovations. After this fight everybody went to bed—or some place else.

ACTS QUEER AT WHITE HOUSE.

William A. Rugg, aged forty-one, who said his address was No. 17 Manhattan street, Springfield, Mass., was taken into custody at the main entrance of the White House by the Washington police on Thursday morning as a suspicious character.

Rugg declared his intention of complaining to the President that an effort was being made to break up his home. A search of the man's clothing brought to light a razor, $10 in money, a piece of soap and a towel.

Rugg was examined as to his sanity by the police surgeons and sent to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane.

DIES FROM POISON TAKEN BY MISTAKE.

John Wilber Overcome While Talking and Joking With His Family at Home.

While he was talking and joking with members of his family last night, John Wilbur, 58 years old, of 57 Lock street, Newark, was seized with a sudden illness and died while his daugter was ministering to him.

It was discovered almost immediately afterward that Wilbur had drunk a portion of the contents of a bottle containing wood alcohol. Dr. Elliott the county physician was summoned. After the circumstances surrounding Wilbur's death had been explained to him he declared it to be his opinion that the man had taken the poison by mistake, and had not committed suicide.

Wilbur was a japanner and had been out of work for some months. He lived in the Lock street home with two sons and two daughters He was an Austrian by birth.

When he reached home last night he was in the best of spirits. The wood alcohol he drank had been purchased for cleaning purposes by one of Wilbur's daughters a few days ago.

TWO PORPOISES CAUGHT.

Got Tangled in Pound Net and Are Sent to N. Y. Aquarium.

Two porpoises which strayed into one of the fish pounds off Bradley Beach Thursday were caught and finally landed ashore alive. The feat was accomplished by the crew of the John Wooly Fish Pound Company. The porpoises weighed between 300 and 400 pounds each, and after their capture were sent to the New York Acquarium, where they will be kept on exhibition.

It is thought they got caught in the nets on Wednesday, for upon the arrival of the crew at the pound yesterday the huge creatures appeared exhausted, and the nets showed signs of violent strain. After no little trouble ropes were lashed to the fish and they were towed to the shore with little further difficulty, where they were placed on rollers and pulled high and dry. The Aquarium officers were at once notified, and the porpoises were shipped by freight to New York.

Rahway's Tax Rate Lower.

Rahway's taxable valuations, as computed by the Board of Assessors, totals $5,596,949; the budget calls for State school tax, $11,845.77; county, $16,136.29; city budget, $79,350; interest on road bonds, $173.73; total, $107,505.79. Total tax rate, $1.92—eight points lower than last year.

Miss Helen George presided at the piano.

Will Celebrate 200th Anniversary.

The two hundredth anniversary of one of the leading Seventh-Day Baptist churches in this country, located at Ashaway, R. I., will be celebrated on Monday. This is the "mother church" of several others of the denomination in that section and this anniversary will be one of more than ordinary interest and some of the other churches will join in the celebration. The services will begin tomorrow night and of those besides the present pastor who will be the speakers during the session, will be three former pastors, and also President W. H. P. Faunce, of Brown University, and the Hon. George H Utter, of Westerly, R. I.—J. D. Spicer.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

Home largely makes us what we are, and the homes we create reveal our ideal of life, what we aspire to be.—Rev. Rush R. Shippen, Unitarian, Atlanta, Ga.

God's Coworker.

I'd rather be a coworker with God in turning a world to righteousness than the mightiest millionaire. The Lord save us from laziness, idleness and ease!—Gypsy Smith, English Evangelist.

God's Way.

God's way in nature, God's way in history, is God's way for each of us in our own life. Let us grasp the serpent, that it may become a rod.—Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, Baptist, New York.

Most Sublime Truths.

The loftiest truths, the most sublime of all that engage human thought, are those that have God for their subject and the things of God for continued contemplation.—Rev. Dr. S. K. Spahr, Methodist, Allegheny, Pa.

C's to Avoid.

Four C's we are to avoid—criticise, condemn, crucify and then canonize. Speak to the ear while it can hear. Make living hearts beat faster with your kind word. Show gratitude while the benefactor lives.—Rev. W. C. Bitting, Baptist, St. Louis.

A Choice Blessing.

A happy marriage and a happy home are among the choicest of God's blessings on this earth, and he who regards the eternal and divine law of helpful companionship between one man and one woman will possess it.—Rev. Dr. Robert J. Kent, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

A Denoter of Character.

Amusement very often determines the full character of the individual, and just as a person can be judged by the companions with whom she associates, in like manner her character can be ascertained from the recreations.—Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, Baptist, New York.

Failures.

Earthly failure should never disconcert or daunt a man who believes in the life everlasting. Failures are a prophecy of glory yet to come. Falling short of one's highest aspirations is evidence that there is another world.—Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, Congregationalist, New York.

To Be Happy.

Remember three things: That in order to please God we can't live in strife. In order to be happy we must let love prevail. In order to prosper we must lay aside all prejudice and know no envy toward any human being.—Rev. Nelson M. Mayall, Free Will Baptist, Fishing Creek, Pa.

Most Urgent Necessity.

This is a thoughtful age. Men are brainy. All about us there is a passion for new ideas. But our most urgent necessity is not of idea, but of power. What we need most of all is not schooling, but baptism, and that is to come through faith.—Rev. R. A. McFadden, Presbyterian, Danvers, Mass.

Capital For Life's Work.

God has placed within our reach all that is necessary to insure each of us against failure in life's work. There is no lack of capital for the one who is determined to succeed. The capital is found in what is below, around, within and above us.—Rev. A. H. Herries, Presbyterian, Union City, Pa.

Aid For Sufferers.

Jesus Christ is the one whence cometh our help for the perfection of our physical and spiritual disabilities, and the supply of all our needs of whatsoever sort they may be. He who suffers and refuses to apply where aid can be had deserves to suffer, but he who comes to the fountain of supply has the promise, God shall supply all your needs.—Rev. W. S. Bertolet, Lutheran, Philadelphia.

How a Nation Progresses.

Our country rises or falls as we fulfill our duties as citizens or as we neglect them. And if history teaches us anything it teaches us that a nation lives and progresses as it is energized by moral and spiritual forces. Faith and hope and love must lie as the foundation for any superstructure of life, be it individual or national, and in our national life especially, unless we as individuals can in intelligence hold these fundamentals, the nation cannot live.—Rev. Dr. Robert Ogilvie Kirkwood, Presbyterian, Cincinnati.

To Have Cheer.

Have God and you shall have cheer. This is adequate. Nothing can undo that. Nothing can dissolve that. Nothing can fluster that. Nothing can blister that. Nothing can wreck that ship. What have you? "It is I; be of good cheer." I think it divinely desirable to be cheerful. I think it divinely desirable to have the glad heart. I think it divinely desirable to have the glad Christ. Now, that is the Jesus recipe for cheerfulness—to have the cheer.—Rev. William A. Quayle, Methodist, Chicago.

For Practical Service.

The church is beginning to wake up to the fact that it should not work to save itself, but to save society. In the best sense of the word the minister is a promoter. The church is not a club for the discussion of spiritual subjects, with the minister as the lecturer. There is a tremendous movement along a better and more helpful line than that of lecturing on theological subjects. The church is organizing for practical service. The church should not be concerned with legal or political reforms excepting indirectly. Its duty is to educate the conscience of the people. The work of bringing about social, political and economic reforms does not belong to the church, but to the church members.—Dean Shailer Mathews, Evangelical, Chicago.

TOWNE AT CONVENTION.

"Near-Bryan" Orator to Address Jersey Democrats.

Charles A. Towne, one time United States Senator, and candidate for Vice-President, and, next to William Jennings Bryan, the best speaker in the Democratic party, will address the Democratic State convention in Taylor Opera House, Trenton, next Monday at noon.

He has a varied career. He left the Republican national convention in 1896 because of the gold standard platform, he being a great advocate of the free coinage of silver. In 1900 he was nominaed for Vice-President by the People's party and by the Silver Republican party, but he declined both nominations. In that year he was appointed by Governor Lind of Minnesota to fill a vacancy as United States Senator.

Mr. Towne later moved to New York, where he was elected to Congress as a Democrat. He is now one of the leading lawyers of New York city.

"Jet" Delights Plainfield.

That pretty and clever little actress, Miss Nanette Comstock, in the title role, delighted an appreciate audience in "Jet," at the New Plainfield theatre last night. She was well supported and the production was by all odds the best comedy-drama presented here this season.

Enjoyed a Straw Ride.

The S. S. S. S. Club, of this city, enjoyed a straw ride to Springfield, last night, where they had supper. There were about twenty members of the club on the trip, which was arranged by Miss Myra Dunavan, Harrison Fahn and Daniel Applegate.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Interesting Exercises at Park Avenue Baptist Church Largely Attended.

WAS AN ALL-DAY PROGRAM.

Music and Addresses Among the Features—Sunday School Superintendent Speaks.

Rally day was observed yesterday by the Park Avenue Baptist church and Sunday-school in an unusually interesting manner, and with a large audience at each service to make the occasion a memorable one. Elaborate floral decorations added to the attractiveness of both church and Sunday-school room. In the morning at 10:30 the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn preached a strong sermon, taking for his subject, "God Investing Himself in a Man." His words were an inspiration to his audience, and the members of the church found in their pastor's discourse much to encourage them in the work of the year before them. As an offertory, the choir rendered the anthem, "O, Lord, My God."

The Sunday-school rally was held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, with Superintendent George E. Hall in charge of the program. The exercises were pleasing and included a roll call of both the main school and primary department, arranged by Mr. Hall. Music, vocal and instrumental, was a feature. Two selections were given by an orchestra consisting of the Misses Arline and Marjorie Brown, G. W. V. Moy and Arthur G. Mosher, violins; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute; Whitney Frazee, cornet; Garret T. Dunham, trombone; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol; Harry C. Runyon, piano.

There was also a cornet solo with violin obligato by Whitney Frazee and Arthur S. Mosher; a soprano solo by Mrs. E. D. Young, and a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young. The audience had the privilege of listening to a strong and helpful talk by Herbert E. Parker, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., which was an earnest appeal for a more thorough study of the Bible, and the living of a life that shall be a help to those about us.

The exercises of the primary department were interesting and included the singing of several songs, the reciting of the Twenty-third Psalm, the books of the Bible with their divisions, the Christmas Story, after which took place the following graduations:

From the cradle roll to beginners' class: Harry C. George, Benjamin F. Hadley, Jr. From beginners' class to primary department: William Finn, Ernest Naylor, Victor Chamberlain, Jean MacNab, Gladys Hadley. From primary to junior department: Clara Hadley, Virginia Gary, Irene Moy, Mary Peterson, Wesley Johnson, Arthur Dayton, Percy Stelle. From Junior departmetn to main school: Madeline Moy, Ethel Naylor, Edna Bohl, Edith Lowry, Ida Odam, Marielle Dunham, Philip Schuyler, William Watts, Randolph Stelle, Frank Gary, Fred Smith.

The primary exercises were in charge of the superintendent, Miss Elmira C. Runyon. She was assisted by George E. Hall, superintendent of the main school, who addressed the graduates in his usual happy manner, after which he presented each one with a diploma; and to the twelve graduates from the Junior department to the main school, Mr. Hall presented a Bible in addition to the diploma. These twelve graduates are now to form two classes in the main school, seven girls with Mrs. Ada Cuming as teacher; and five boys to be taught by Harry C. Runyon. The audience in the afternoon was the largest the school has had during the past five years, and the exercises were especially inspiring throughout.

In the evening at 7:45 a program of particular interest was presented as follows:

"Our Department Work." 1—Our Bible School, "Our Primary Department," Miss Elmira Runyon; "Our Adult Department," G. E. Hall; "Our Home Department," Mrs. D. M. Runyon. Our C. E. Work—"Our Junior Department," Mrs. W. S. Lowry; "Our Senior Department," C. F. Dayton. Our Missionary Department—"Our Ladies' Foreign Mission Circle," Mrs. A. E. Finn; "Our Ladies' Home Mission Circle, Mrs. C. F. Dayton. "Our Ladies' Aid Society," Mrs. Charles Steiner; "Our King's Daughters," Miss Cora Brokaw. As an offertory, the choir sang the anthem "Trust in the Lord," which was followed with an address by H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the North Plainfield public schools. A three-minute talk was given by each of the above named speakers, telling of the aim and object of their respective departments of the church and school.

FOWLER RENOMINATED AT 5TH DIST. CONVENTION

Charles N. Fowler was renominated for a seventh term at the Republican Congressional convention for the Fifth, New Jersey, district, at Phillipsburg today. As usual no one else seemed to want the honor and the marble man was given an unanimous vote.

State Senator Thomas Hillery, of Boonton, acted as chairman of the convention and A. E. Wood, of Rahway, placed Fowler in nomination. The usual cheers followed the nominating speech.

Former County Chairman Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, called the convention to order. J. W. Clift, of Summit, filled his customary position as a secretary. Former Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, and S. J. Berry, of Elizabeth, served among the vice-presidents. City Clerk James T. MacMurray, of Plainfield, and John Howe, of Roselle, were on the credentials committee but did not have to work overtime. Former Assemblyman "Bill" Hall and F. Hand, of Elizabeth, were among those who saw to it that a permanent organization was effected, while David Sarrow, of Roselle Park, and Edward Dairs, of Elizabeth, were among those on the rules' committee. Among those on the resolutions committee were Louis Kling, of Elizabeth, and H. Tracy, of Plainfield.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, who is at Denver at present, and J. I. Howe, of Roselle, were renamed as Union county's members on the Congressional committee.

In accepting the nomination which he so eagerly sought, Mr. Fowler made the customary speech.

MUCH ACTIVITY AT HOLY CROSS PARISH

Beginning Sunday the evening services will be resumed at Holy Cross church at the usual hour, 7:45 o'clock, and will be continued during the fall and winter. Progress is being made in the changes at the church for the new organ and it is hoped to have the instrument in position ready for use by November 1. The present delay is at the factory where the parts are being assembled.

Rev. A. G. Warner, the rector, has completed arrangements for the services of a member of the Deaconess' Training School in New York to teach a parents' Bible class at the church every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. A similar class will be taught by the rector for the young men of the parish. There are now twenty-six young men enrolled, between the ages of sixteen and twenty one.

The Woman's Guild will hold its first fall meeting on Tuesday, October 6, and on Monday, October 5 the Junior Auxiliary will resume its winter activities. The Altar Chapter will meet for the first time this season in the parish house at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. A new graded system of text books has been introduced in the Sunday-school, and the growth in that department of church work has increased fifteen per cent. over that of last year. The teachers and officers of the school will meet every Wednesday night after this week to discuss plans for the work. The church choir, with eight probationers, is now holding regular rehearsals under the direction of H. Raymond Loder, organist and choir master. The Athletic Club is planning to hold a minstreal performance this winter and T. M. Muir, of the Gold Medal Minstreal Company, has kindly consented to assist the boys at their rehearsals which will begin soon.

Stallion Registration.

The Stallion Examining and Registering Board has announced that a public examination of all stallions and jacks intended or offered for use during the coming year will be held for Somerset county at Somerville on Saturday, October 3, at 10 o'clock in the morning. This is for the purpose of complying with the new law which went into effect Sept. 1. The penalty attached for failure to comply with the provisions of this law imposes a fine of $50 for the first offense and $100 for the second and each subsequent offense.

James Davis Returns.

The smiling countenance of James Davis is again seen at the office of the Plainfield Cab Company on North avenue. Mr. Davis has been in the livery business in New Brunswick for a year past. He assumed the duties of manager of the cab company this morning.

—Robert Pierce, real estate broker, has sold Henry Wrage's house and lot on Walnut street, Dunellen, to John Taylor, of Spottswood.

DEATH OF EBEN S. YOUNG

Oldest Resident of North Plainfield Passes Away in His Ninety-Fourth Year.

WAS A VICTIM OF PARALYSIS.

Secured the First Franchise Ever Granted for a Surface Railway on Broadway, New York.

Following an illness of four weeks brought about by a paralytic stroke Eben S. Young, who was probably the oldest resident in North Plainfield, died Saturday afternoon at the home of Stephen Beeching at Watchung, where he was spending the summer when stricken. He had been sinking gradually for several days and his death had been expected.

Mr. Young was born at what is now Ossining, N. Y., on January 4 1815, and despite the age to which he lived retained all his mental and physical faculties until the paralysis affected him. He came to North Plainfield to live with his son, David K. Young, of Craig place, six years ago, retiring then after an active business life that had few equals. He journeyed to New York city by barge when he was a small boy and while still a young man became proprietor of the old Sixth avenue stage line that ran during the days of the Crystal Palace and which was forced out of business by the horse cars. Directly afterward he secured the first franchise ever granted for a surface line on Broadway but lost it after a fight in the courts brought against him by A. T. Stewart and Lispenard Stewart, who realized as well as he did of what great value it would eventually prove to be.

After losing his rights to the franchise, Mr. Young engaged in the grocery business in New York at Green and Mercer streets under the firm name of Britton and Young. In a few years the concern was one of the best known in the metropolis and supplied all the wealthy families in the downtown district. At one time, Mr. Merrall, of the wholesale firm of Ackor, Merral & Condit, was one of his clerks, and other well known New York business men of the present day secured their start with him. At eighty-eight years of age he was still catering to the trade and retired only at the earnest solicitation of his family.

Mr. Young's memory was perfect and his knowledge of early New York life and residents was frequently relied upon to furnish facts for chronological stories. He was also consulted by wealhty New Yorkers in tracing their ancestry and his word was accepted as final. During his residence in the borough, Mrs DeLancey Nichol visited him three times for this purpose. He also remembered Plainfield when it was a village with two lanes and he delighted to tell the journey he had to take to visit here. He went by boat to Elizabethport and then proceeded by train over a single track wooden "stringer" railway. The road only went as far as Somerville and there was one train a day each way.

Mr. Young was extremely temperate in his mode of living and he ascribed his longevity to it. He was affiliated with no organizations and spent most of his spare time in long walks, rising at a certain time each morning and retiring regularly at night. Since living in the borough he frequently attended service at the First Presbyterian church. He is survived by a wife, two sons, David Young, of the borough, and James Young, of California; also a daughter, Miss Mary Young, of New York.

The funeral will be held at David Young's home on Craig place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be private.

Stricken at Breakfast Table.

While seated at the breakfast table this morning, after the departure of her husband and son for New York Mrs. George M. Breck, of Woodland avenue, was stricken with apoplexy. A maid hastened to the assistance of Mrs. Breck and in the meantime, Dr. G. W. Endicott, the family physician was summoned. Later in the day her condition was reported to be serious.

FREE-BORN AMERICAN LOSES HIS INDEPENDENCE

William Myers, a Scotch Plains resident, came to Plainfield Saturday night and got badly soused up on joy water. He was declaring himself in loud terms at North and Watchung avenues when Patroiman Nolan came along and ordered him to move on.

"Huh," said Myers, "I don't have to. I'm a free-born American citizen, and I can do as I please." And he gave a series of imitation warwhoops to show that no bluecoat could say him nay.

That's where he made a mistake. The patrolman wouldn't disput anyone's birthright but he refused to stand for yells of the Scotch Plains variety. He grabbed the free-born American citizen and hustled him to Sycamore street so quick it made his head swim.

Myers was extremely penitent and totally devoid of the spirit of '76 when arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. He promised to go home and be good if sentence was suspended and the magistrate took him at his word.

Mrs. Eastburn's Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Robert Eastburn, of New Brunswick, while taking a ride in her new 45-horse power iMtchell, Friday afternoon, had a narrow escape from being killed. She, in company with a chauffeur, was spinning along the Metuchen road and just as an attempt was made to pass a Berliet car, a rear tire on the Mitchell car exploded, and Mrs. Eastburn lost control of her machine. The car upset and pinned the woman beneath it, while the chauffeur was thrown about twenty feet. Both were rescued unharmed, but the machine was a wreck. It was brought to Martin's garage in this city for repairs.

N. A. C. Takes Double-Header.

CITIZEN HIS OWN COP

Nicholas was Delegated to Chase an Intruder and Put Him Under Arrest.

LANDED HIM IN A CELL.

But, Jehosophat! What an Awful Time He Had After the Prisoner Tried to Pull a Knife.

"How to be your own cop, or lifting a souse to the lockup at 3 a. m." might be used as the title for a story of personal experience by Charles Nicholas, who boards with a family at No. 231 Watchung avenue. He went through the ordeal early yesterday morning and the trouble he had in getting a booze-laden Polak to the Sycamore street jug made one of the funniest stories the cops have given out in a long time.

The family with whom Nicholas resides was awakened at 3 o'clock on the Sabbath by someone prowling around the premises and as he was the only man in the house he was delegated to investigate. He hustled into his street togs and going outside located a rummy vainly trying to get his bearings. Nicholas steered him to the street but the fellow deliberately turned around and came back in the yard again. He was a good-sized native of Warsaw or some other place in Poland and he insisted in broken English that he was going to make his bed on the front porch. Nicholas said he wasn't as long as the folks gave him authority to remove all obstructions and he told the stranger so in a few words.

The argument waxed strong after several minutes duration and Nicholas finally decided to get a cop but there was none in sight, so he decided to act as a bluecoat himself. He grabbed the foreigner by the coat collar and started him down Watchung avenue, getting along nicely until the corner at East Fourth street was reached. There the Polak suddenly shoved his right hand toward his hip pocket. Nicholas has read of how a certain element carries a knife or stiletto for emergency use and he was positive his prisoner was reaching for a weapon.

The amateur cop declared war then and there and he biffed the Polak at the base of the skull and tripped him over at the same time. As a matter of course, the prisoner resented this treatment and grappled with Nicholas, the two of them rolling over and over in the street. The captor was positive he would be stabbed if he let go while the capture one in his befuddled condition couldn't understand why he had been slugged and tripped up. Nicholas finally won out by getting the Polak on his back an sitting on him but he wasn't any better off than he was before. He clung to the fellow's hands to keep him from getting a knife and decided to play a waiting game until some one happend along.

Luck was with Nicholas as after five minutes of strenuous hand holding Percy Wellington ... chanced by on his way home. He was asked to beat it to police headquarters and complied, returning in a few minutes with Captain Frederickson. Nicholas was relieved of his charge but he was still so fearful of a weapon being drawn that he compelled the Polak to shove his hands up and keep them there. He walked back of him to headquarters and only relaxed his vigil when the captain got him into the cell room and went through his clothes. Instead of a knife or gun being found, a half pint of rum was the only thing brought to light.

The foreigner was allowed to sober up and late yesterday gave his name at John Skevelsky, of Bound Brook. Nicholas said he wouldn't press any charge against him despite the strenuous half-hour or so he had put in and Judge Runyon sent the Polak home with a warning to give Plainfield a wide berth on his booze fests.

Praises the Hospital.

Madame Olstramare, M. D., of Tenillet, Paris, who has been attending the International Congress of Tuberculosis session at Washington, visited Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago and commented on the splendid hygienic system maintained, particularly in the wards, which she declared surpassed many of the hospitals she had visited in the larger cities. Dr. Olsrtramare has been the guest of Mrs. J. H. Koch, of Berkman street.

Approaching Wedding.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Aaron Anderson Van Derveer, son of Mrs. Aaron A. Van Derveer, of Somerville, and Miss Florence Allen Ackor, of Watchung. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents, in Plainfield, Wednesday afternoon, October 7, at 5 o'clock.

BOY BADLY HURT BY BREAKING OF TREE LIMB

Louis Rhodier, the seventeen-year-old son of Albert Rhodier, of Spooner avenue, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, late Saturday afternoon, suffering from severe injuries received by a fall from a chestnut tree on West Eighth street, near Hobart avenue. Both legs were broken just above the ankles and the left arm was fractured near the elbow. The boy also suffered greatly from shock and it was at first supposed that he was fatally hurt. It was stated today that he would recover.

Rhodier and several companions were gathering chestnuts and thought to get better results by climbing the trees. He was clubbing the branches high above the ground when the limb he was standing on broke suddenly and dropped him straight down. He landed directly on his feet and then dropped over, falling on the arm after the legs had been broken.

The ambulance was called to take the boy to the hospital but he refused to go at first and was removed to his home. When his father learned the result of his injuries he insisted that Muhlenberg was the place for him and the youth finally consented.

LOCAL OPTION PROGRESS REHEARSED BY BURKE

That local option has many champions in Plainfield was shown by the reception given J. Frank Burke the State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last night, where he thrilled a large congregation as he rehearsed the progress of the temperance movement in this and other States. He paid particular attention to the time worn argument that there has been drunkenness since the time of Noah and will be until the end of time.

There were few if any total abstainers a hundred years ago, said Mr. Burke, who told how common the use of liquor was then among even the ministry. Today total abstainers are demanded in corporations and government. Today, one half of the population of this country he declared lives in total abstinance territory and this was accomplished by agitation. There is at present a strong wave of popular disapproval of saloons in all but six states. In New Jersey, a saloon may get a license if he has but twelve signers to his petition.

When the local option bill was introduced in the Legislature two years ago, said Mr. Burke, it was prophesied that the sponsor for it would not be returned to Trenton. It transpired, however, that the man who introduced the bill was re-elected while the man who fought bitterly to kill it, Randolph Perkins, of Union county, was not nominated again. New Jersey is but one of five States where no opinion can be expressed by the voters as to whether they want to banish the saloon.

Mr. Burke declared that the saloon is intrenched in New Jersey and that its stanchest friend is the political machine. The recent primaries he said demonstrated all this, but he declared that the fight would go on until success crowned the efforts of those who were waging the fight for local option. Mr. Burke pleaded with the congregation not to have A. F. Kirstein returned to the Legislature because of his opposition to the movement.

PLAINFIELD YOUNG MAN KILLS A MICHIGAN BEAR.

R. B. Duyckinck, a Plainfield young man who lives on Crescent avenue demontrated his prowess as a hunter, one day last week, by bringing down the first bear killed in Southern Michigan, this season. The animal was a big fellow of the black variety and weighed 140 pounds when dressed.

Mr. Duycinck is at present foreman of a sand mill plant at Mason, Mich., near Houghton, and spotted Bruin in the early evening as he was nosing about not more than 400 feet from one of the buildings. He quickly procured his gun and in a few minutes had cornered Mr. Bear and put him out of business. The shaggy animal showed fight when Mr. Duyckinck first went after him and might have done some damage if the bullet hadn't found a vital spot.

Several bears have been seen in the vicinity of the sand mills and numerous hunters have been after them but without success. Mr. Duyckinck will have the skin of his capture sent on to Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Van Emburgh, of East Second street, entertained Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, yesterday.

PROBLEMS THAT VEX EXCISE COMMISSION

Chairman C. J. Fisk Explains Difficulties in Solving the Question Satisfactory to the Entire State.

SUBJECT FULLY EXPLAINED.

Proper Licensing Power, Fee, Proportion of Places and Restrictions Discussed—Scores Druggists.

Having conducted a thorough investigation into excise matters throughout the State, the Excise Commission appointed by Governor Fort began a three days' session at Trenton at noon today. At this conference Mayors, prosecutors and other members of governing bodies of various municipalities gave their opinions as to the best way of regulating excise matters.

When the meeting convened, Mayor Fisk, of this city, as chairman of the Commission, addressed the governmental officers. He said:

"A solution of the liquor problem has been a subject of great adjutation almost since the beginning of civilization, and has occupied the attention and been thought over and investigated not only in this country but in other countries, by men noted for their deep thinking and good judgment and having the best minds of the time in which they lived. This Commission was appointed to try and solve the question in this State, if such a thing were possible. One of their duties was to investigate, to take evidence and find out conditions as they existed in all parts of the State, and probably the most important was to examine the existing laws and make a report, not only on the conditions as they found them, but accompanied by such suggestions or new legislation as would correct existing evils. It may seem an easy thing to some people to sit down and draft a law that would accomplish this purpose. But the more the Commission has studied the subject the more complicated it becomes. The members of the Commission, while probably at this time are better informed on the general conditions in the State than most any one else, they feel that the local authorities should be consulted in regard to their opinions as to what would be best for their respective municipalities or localities.

"The investigations of the Commission has shown that there is not only a great difference of opinion, but there is also a great difference in the conditions in various parts of the State, owing to the geographical location, the nature of the people and the nature of the industries. While owing to my knowledge of conditions, knowing my own city, knowing the character of the population, knowing what they want, I would be able to draft a law that I feel sure would meet with the approval of the people in Plainfield, this same law might be totally inadequate for Jersey City with its large cosmopolitan population; Hoboken, with the large German population and great shipping industry; Paterson with the great number of operatives in silk mills, Orange and West Orange with an entirely different set of operatives, and employees in the manufacture of electric apparatus and hat manufactory; the city of Newark and adjoining boroughs, with their large business interests, and various manufacturing industries and our great extent of seashore resorts, extending from Cape May to the Atlantic Highlands. Some of them with a very small population and with a larger population during certain parts of the year that would make the population of these places, particularly Atlantic City almost equal at times with the population of our larger cities.

"We find that there are something over two hundred municipalities regularly incorporated and under a government controlled by a Mayor and Common Council. Two of these, Jersey City and Newark have a population of over 250,000; one, City of Paterson, has a population something over 125,000, while Camden, Trenton, Elizabeth and Hoboken have a population between 60,000 and 100,000. About 100 others have a population ranging between 2,000 and 50,000, while there are 100 boroughs having a population of less than 3,000, and a great many have less than STUMPED.

I've matched her silks, I've bought her waists
And hosiery and things like that;
She says I have such splendid tastes,
Why, I have even bought her hat.
Embarrassed I have never been
While shopping since our happy marriage;
But I've no nerve to enter in
A dicker for a baby carriage.

I've quibbled with a female clerk
About the price of corsets, and
I've looked upon it as my work—
I've always been composed and bland.
The purchasing of women's hose,
Is not a task one should disparage;
But what a nerve he has who goes
Right in to buy a baby carriage.

I'm stumped at last, I must admit,
And I'm plainly ill at ease;
My placid cheeks are flushed a bit,
And I'm shaky at the knees.
I'm flustered now and certain quite
That I shall lose my gift of gab,
Oh! this will be my greatest fright
To dicker for a baby carriage.

GRANDMOTHER'S JEWEL BOX IN EVIDENCE.

Some day when grandmother is feeling especially cheery, coax her to show you her jewel box: If you find stowed away one of the "jewelry sets,' consisting of a huge brooch and two long earrings in three or more sections, use all your wiles to have her give it to you.

Some of these old pieces are exquisite in design, flowers wrought in gold and studded with garnets, seed pearls or solid rows of tiny seed pearls or garnets. The gold, too, has a lovely warm tint hard to find nowadays.

Once in your possession, take them to a good jeweler and you will probably find you can have made at small cost a neck ornament that will be the envy of all who see it.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Mosquitoes are so thick at Tuckerton that residents are unable to enjoy their porches at night, and pickers have been driven from the cranberry bogs.

After hearing testimony on the remonstrance against the granting of a saloon license to Willis Herbert, at Fish House, Judge Joline, in Camden, Saturday continued the case for a week. Andrew H. Tippen objected to the granting of the license, because Herbert's bulldogs kept him awake at night and because his son was recently bitten by one of the animals.

Papers in the suit for $20,000 instituted against the Erie Railroad Company by Mrs. Mary Helmech, whose husband, Joseph Helmech, was killed by an Erie train at the intersection of Harrison street and the railroad in Passaic on October 22, 1907, were filed at the Passaic County clerk's office Saturday. Helmech was driving across the tracks when struck and died from his injuries the following day.

Mrs. Jepp Howard Davies, for two years supervisor of drawing in the Atlantic City public schools, suddenly was taken ill Thursday afternoon upon returning from the High School and afterward was removed to the City Hospital, where an operation was performed that was followed by her death. Mrs. Davies was a native of Savannah, Ga., and had been in the North for some years as teacher of drawing.

Reeves Hammitt, a retired farmer, who is manufacturing a sweet potato planter at Jefferson, walked out of the factory last Saturday morning and mysteriously disappeared. The search for him was vigorously kept up until last evening, when he was located in the Philadelphia Hospital. How he came to be there is a mystery to himself as well as his friends and relatives, for he seems to have no recollection of anything that occurred since he left here.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Charles Moldenke, of Watchung, has purchased a handsome new automobile.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, has returned from a visit in Sullivan county, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Rowland, of this city, have been visiting at the home of John M. Rowland, of Bound Brook.

Mrs. A. Schaab and Mrs. G. A. Gay, of New York, are visiting at the home of Mrs. J. H. Koch, of Berckman street.

Letter carrier Charles MacMurray, of Grandview avenue, returns to his position tomorrow after a fifteen days' vacation.

J. A. Smith, of the firm of J. A. Smith & Brother, grocers, who has been detained at home by illness, is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Vail, of Roseville, N. Y., who have been spending the summer at Watchung, have returned home.

Miss Edna Linbarger and Miss Ethel Foreman, of Bound Brook, have returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

Miss Helen Stahlberger, a teacher in the North Plainfield High School has recovered from a few days' illness, and resumed her duties.

A. M. Griffen., of Willow avenue, who has been the guest of Augustus O. Trust at East Arcadia, S. C., for three weeks, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Brown, of Sycamore avenue, have returned from Bradley Beach, where they have been spending several weeks.

William Maxwell, formerly of Grove street, has leased J. M. Bettman's residence on Willow avenue, and will take possession October 1.

Mrs. William Griscom and daughters, of Sycamore avenue, who spent the summer at Orrs Island, Me., are now visiting in Boston. They will return home next week.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. A. E. Shattuck has been called to the pastorate of the Bound Brook Congregational church, and has accepted and will be installed at a later date.

Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, of this city, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district, occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church, Bound Brook, yesterday morning.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, has been quite ill for several weeks and has been unable to attend to his pastoral duties.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's German Lutheran church, will meet at Mrs. Taylor's home, Grandview and Westervelt avenues Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The twenty-third annual convention of the Somerset County W. C. T. U., will be held at the South Bound Brook Reformed church Wednesday. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Mrs. D. P. Peeke, county president, will deliver her annual address in the morning. Mrs. Emma Bourne, State president, will also speak, and Mrs. Isabella Demarest, State corresponding secretary, will make the evening address.

The form depends on the style of the set and must be left more or less to the discretion of the jeweler.

One girl had a charming big pendant made from such a set by seperating the sections of the earrings and attaching them to the brooch by tiny gold chains. This was worn on one of the gold chains that most children possessed a generation ago.

Miss Helen Martel, of this city, has returned from a few days' visit with relatives at Bound Brook.

Miss Louise Bowman, of Jersey City, has been the guest of Miss Daisy Elsberg, of Willow avenue.

Mrs. John Derst, of Savannah, Ga., is visiting her brother, George Hartfelder, of Whitewood avenue, the borough.

That was not the first occasion in which Mr. Dryden was the victim of a machine smashing.

The Ananias roll card is becoming more bulkier and tiresome than the Congressional Record.

Captain Robert Kirkland's candidacy for the shrievalty appeals to all who desire a business-like administration of affairs in that office.

The Elephant has transported both Foraker and DuPont to the state of "innocuous desuetude" while the Jackass has kicked Haskell into "political oblivion." So there you are.

It has come to a sorrowful pass when the man who has discharged the duties of the most exalted office on the earth "so nobly" stoops to the level of a curb political hananaguer. "Silence is golden," sometimes, but never with Theodore.

Were the Democrats able to obtain Henry H. Ishman's consent to become their candidate for Congressional honors, they would have a most worthy man as their nominee. Unfortunately for them, however, the Elizabethan positively declines to allow his name to be used in that connection.

If our memory serves us right, a humble little Federal job-holder is forbidden by law to meddle in politics, but when it comes to the great office of President of the United States, more sacred even than that of chief justice of the nation, there appears to be an exemption. And some people wonder why there are socialists!

Mrs. Michael Finnerty.

Mrs. Julia Finnerty, wife of Michael Finnerty, died Saturday afternoon at her home on Prescott place. She had been ill a long time. She is survived by three children, two girls and a boy. The funeral was held in St. Mary's church this morning, Father Bogan officiating, and burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Taken Ill at Depot.

Mrs. William Pearce, of Roselle was suddenly taken ill at the North Avenue station, Saturday night, and had to be removed to one of the depot rooms. Patrolman Payne called Dr. Pittis and the physician ordered the woman's removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. She returned hom yesterday.

A Wedding Anniversary.

WILL TRY TO BREAK F. C. HEWITT'S WILL

An action will be begun to break the instrument when the will of the late Frederick C. Hewitt, the philanthropist, is offered for probate at Owego, N. Y., tomorrow. The contestant, it is said, will be Mrs. Stephen Arnot, of Elmira, sister and only surviving near relative of the testator. She is nearly eighty years of age, an invalid and reputed to be worth more than $2,000,000. Her brother left her nothing in his will, but bequeathed $40,000 to her daughter, Mrs. Fannie A. Whitney, of Rochester. It has not been announced on what grounds the contest will be brought.

Under the provisions of Mr. Hewitt's will, the Netherwood Fresh Air Home bequethed $100,000, and the Little Day Missionary Society, of New York, $200,000. These bequests will be void in case the will is broken.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Twelve Presidential electors were named at the Democratic State convention at Trenton today. Among them is Henry H. Isham, of Elizabeth, who will represent the Fifth district comprising Union, Morris and Warren counties.

Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton, acted as chairman of the convention composed of 1,336 delegates. After choosing electors, the Democrats listened to a speech by former Congressman Charles A. Towne. The electors at large are Assemblyman Alexander and former Senator Terhune.

Frank H. Smith, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, will return on Wednesday from a six weeks' stay at Deerland Lodge, Long Lake, in the Adirondacks.

Under the auspices of members of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee, there will be a meeting of Democrats at Debele's Hall, on Chatham street, Thursday night, at which time it is proposed to organize a club for the coming campaign.

The North Plainfield Republican Club will meet at Saengerbund Hall, tonight, when President B. A. Hegeman will appoint various committees. Among the committees to be appointed are ways and means, auxiliary, finance and one on banner.

THE FOOL WISH.

Of all the wishes that one hears
What makes me really very wild
Is when a man of fifty years
Says, "Would I were again a child!"
I'm fifty, but I woul not care
To have my boyhood back again.
In fact, the prospect's apt to scare
When I recall the birch and cane,
The lessons, and the lines I had
To write in Latin and Greek—
I must have been extremely bad,
With oh! what quantities of cheek!

The opportunities I missed,
When I was starting out in life.
The girls I flirted with and kissed,
The one I—didn't—make my wife!
Such things and half a hundred more
I think of with no trace of joy,
Nay, I most heartily deplore
I ever was a little boy!
So now I've given life a test,
I hate to hear that fool refrain,
Though some may wish it, I'll be blest
If I would be a child again!
—La Touche Hancock, in New York Independent.

Rector Peck to Go South.

It is reported that Rev. A. S. Peck, who has been curate of the Church of St. Edward the Martyr 109th street and Fifth avenue, ha resigned to accept a rectorship of a church in Tennessee. Mr. Peck was formerly rector of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, resigning last spring following a call to the New York church.

An October Wedding.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. John Valiant, of Myrtle avenue, for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Ellen Valiant to Donald Ashbrook McGee, Saturday afternoon, October 17, at four o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal church. A reception will follow at the home of the bride on Myrtle avenue.

work. As a fitting climax to the evening's program and the exercises of the day, was the earnest talk by Mr. Krebs, who spoke on "Co-operation." He pointed out in his forceful manner the necessity of co-operation in Christian work, and cited several instances of the great good resulting from co-operation in the business world, impressing upon his audience the urgent need of united effort in the work of the church and Sunday-school. Pastor Finn was in charge of the evening service.

Among Americans touring in Europe whi signed the register at the office of the New York Herald on Friday was Mrs. L. W. Serrell, of West Seventh street.

EXCISE PROBLEMS THAT VEX

1,000 inhabitants. In addition there are the various townships with a scattered population representing the vast agriculture interest of the State. In some places the licenses are granted by the Mayor and Common Council, in others by an Excise Board elected by the Common Council, in others by an Excise Board appointed by the Mayor, in others by an Excise Board elected by the people, and in others, under a certain act, by an Excise Board appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, and finally in a great number of places licenses are granted by the judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

"This opens up one of the important questions for discussions: 'Where shall the licensing power be placed?' We find, without any reference to the population or the character of the population, that the license fees in the State range from $100 to $1,000, and in some places doing business in the same localities one pays a license of $150 and another pays a license of $500, with really no apparent reason for the difference. This is another question that is open for discussion—the amount of the license fee. We find that the number of saloons varies from one saloon for less than 100 inhabitants, men, women and children to one saloon for 2,000 inhabitants, and in certain parts of the State, particularly Cumberland county, Ocean Grove and Asbury Park, in Monmouth county, no licenses are graned.

"This opens up another question as to the number of licenses for licensed places to be allowed, and this is a matter where there is a great difference of opinion. In regard to the enforcement of the law, we find very few places where the law is strictly enforced. We find other places where there is no attempt made to enforce the law. It is better to have no law than to have a law that is disregarded or is not enforced. The matter of drafting new laws or new legislation or amendments to present statutes, is a serious matter, and one that should not be undertaken lightly or without a great deal of thought and serious consideration. An evil cannot be corrected by legislation unless such legislation is for the interest of the people and has the approval of the people. It makes no difference what laws we have, there will always be lawbreakers, and a law, never mind what the conditions, can never be enforced unless we have honest officials with the determination to see that the law breakers are brought to justice; men that respect their oath of office, and are willing to do their duty in regard to the enforcement of laws, without considering their own political interests or the political interests of any party.

"No party will ever succeed in the long run, that depends upon lawbreakers and violators for the support of their candidates. While the Mayor of a city is the chief executive officer, and responsible for the enforcement of all laws, in large cities particularly, it seems to be in some instances almost impossible to control the employees of all the various departments who he is dependent upon to see that his orders are carried out, the laws enforced and the guilty parties brought to justice.

"Tis opens up a question of the enforcement of the law 'how is the best way and what provisions shall be made for the enforcement of the excise or liquor laws.' Another and important question is the question of restrictions. The Crimes Act provides that no liquor shall be sold without a license. We find that this is violated not only in gambling houses but there are a large number of houses of ill repute, a large number of clubs, originated principally in places where there are no licenses, for the purpose of supplying drink, and in licensed places for the purposes of supplying drinks and liquor during prohibitory hours. Two, the law provides and make it a misdemeanor to sell liquor to minors. This we find is constantly violated, particularly in summer resorts or cafes, where they allow men to bring young girls who are under age, for the purpose of treating them to liquor. When the attention of certain officials and certain owners and proprietors of cafes were drawn to this matter, the answer we received was that these people were not minors they were girls. It should be distinctly understood that a minor is a person under 21 years of age, whether a male or a female. Another provision of the Crimes Act is in regard to Sunday selling. The act provides that no liquor shall be sold or given away or served in any licensed place on the Sabbath, commonly called Sunday, or on an election day or on a day when the State or municipality election is being held. The first part of this provision, we find almost universally violated. In some places to a greater extent than in others. In some places the officials make a pretence of having the law obeyed, by seeing that the front door is closed, but paying no attention to the side or back door. In other places we find that the hotels are constantly violating the act by supplying liquor to the guests of the hotel with meals and in other places we have found no attention, whatever, paid to the law and the saloon, concert halls, etc. running wide open. In making this statement I refer to no particular place, for the condition of affairs has been found in several different parts of the State. If my information is correct, and I have no doubt it is is still being carried on in some of our municipalities. While these various conditions all seem just and proper, it must be borne in mind that a condition that is not enforced weakens a law, and it would be better that all restrictions be left out than to have a restriction that is not enforced. This opens up the question of proper restriction. Another subject that is agitating the people of the State at the present time is the question of giving the people the right to say whether licenses shall be granted or not be granted.

"This question of local option has and as it now stands, has nothing to do with the question of Sunday selling. The matter of Sunday selling is a matter that stands by itself and must betreated separately from the other. In raising these various questions it must not be taken that the Comission or the members of the Commission have decided on, or expressed any opinion in regard to the proper solution. But the questions are raised for the matter of a free and open discussion. Another question is the matter of licensing drug stores.

"At the present time the durggists in this State are not acting in a proper manner and are selling at all times including Sundays, intoxicating liquors or concoctions that are drawn in place of intoxicating liquor, without any licenses, and some restrictions should be enacted that would regulate this matter. In this connection you could mention Peruna various malt extracts, various flavoring extracts, ginger, vanilla, etc., various patent medicines, that have little medicine about them at all. Mixed drinks from the soda water fountain contain a flavoring that is principally alcohol, and right here in regard to soda water fountains, it might be mentioned that this is being done by a number of so called 'estaurants or temperance refreshment bars.

"The general public are so blind to this that even members of temperance socities indulge in this class of refreshments without really knowing what they are drinking. There may be other matters and questions that will be brought up during the next three days' discussion, but those mentioned seem to the Commission to be the most important and we trust that there will be a free and open discussion on all of these various questions that will throw as much light as possible on the whole subject, and aid us in reaching a conclusion that will be o benefit to all the people of our State.

Tomorrow the ministers and leaders of the local option movement and all temperance bodies will be heard, while on Wednesday the brewers and any one interested in excise matters in their behalf will attend. The commission is desirous of giving everybody a chance to present suggestions and ideas.

"The Music of Nature."

Miss Grace Karr, of Putnam avenue, entertained her piano pupils Saturday afternoon by giving a lecture on "The Music of Nature," in connection with which Miss Margaret Carey, a pupil, rendered "Silent Night," with variations. There were about thirty pupils and friends present. The last Saturday in October, Miss Karr will give a lecture on "The Influence of the Music of Nature Upon Wild Animals."

Mary Marble in "His Honor the Mayor," at New Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, September 29.

A Scene From "Girls" at New Plainfield Theatre Thursday, October 1.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The chorus of "His Honor the Mayor," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, with "Little Chip" and Mary Marble as the stars is said to be one of the best and brightest features of the production. There are no old women in the ranks. It is a chorus of young, pretty graceful girls who can dance and sing. Better still it is a chorus that does not do the work mechanically. Every member enters into it with dash and spirit. All of the ensemble effects are fine and executed with military precision. The Pony Ballet is conceded to be the very best and prettiest on the stage today, by every one.

Little Chip in "His Honor the Mayor" at New Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday.

"Girls," the offering at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night is a satire on the bachelor girl so prevalent in these times. There has been an unusual increase in the number of spinsters, according to the census reports in recent years. Two brilliant German writers, taking advantage of this state of affairs, have evolved a comedy that is full of uproarious situations. The piece has been received with great popular and critical acclaim in New York and comes to Plainfield with a splendid acting company and a costly production, which has been provided by Sam S. and Lee Shuberts, the producing managers.

Another of the Chicago products, backed up by a New York and Boston reputation, in the musical entertainment line, is to be offered to Plainfield theatre goers Friday night, when "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," will be the attraction. This offering has been designated as "a comedy with music and a reason," and comes with a somewhat distinct record—that of having the longest run of any production presented in the Windy City. "The Time, the Place and the Girl," is another collaboration of that prolific trio, Joseph Howard, Will M. Hough and Frank R Adams, who have been responsible for "The Umpire," "The Girl Question," "The Land of Nod," "The Isle of Bong Bong," "The Honeymoon Trail," "A Stubborn Cinderalla," and others.

The Hardscrabble folks make you laugh as you never laughed before. If you saw 'em the last time they were here, you can still raise a snicker when you think of some of them, especially Skeezicks, or old Mrs. Tattleby, or Darius Startle. Of course you know that the Hardscrabblers are a community of hide-bound New Englanders that Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer so amusingly depict in their great comedy, "Our New Minister." It will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?
Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the
BOYNTON
The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER.

Skirts of black satin with the high Directoire girdle can be purchased ready made in the shops. Topped with one of the new black net blouses, trimmed with black satin bands and with the new, long light sleeves, a fashionable costume is quickly and easily made with little trouble of shopping or dressmaking.

Dress skirts all show the influence of the sheath furore. The circular gored model will be the popular development. Skirts slashed on the side are numerous, the opening filled with plaits or trimming of some kind.

High-boned collars are seen on dresses and waists. Street suits, coats, even evening wraps, all have high collars. Everything has a collar, some even approaching the old-time "chocker." The proper finish for the dress and waist collars is the wide, full ruche.

Opera hoods are shown in Paris made of ribbon. Clever fingers will soon be fashioning them here.

Revers and sleeve cuffs to suits are unlined, the limp effect being now the thing. Revers often fall quite limply, forming folds. Basques of jackets are weighted so that they will stay down without looking stiff. Hems of skirts are lined with heavy but quite limp linen.

Tucked net is popular for guimpes Some nets are so woven as to simulate hand tucking.

The hinestone horseshoe brooch is being supplemented with those of coral, turquoise and jet.

Wool cheviot waists in soft cheek effects with stripes in a decided color are smart.

Charming for wear with tailored suits are the waists of dyed nets in colors to match the suit. They are tucked and have the new long, tucked sleeves and just a touch of soft, rich color in the way of Persian bands for trimming.—Philadelphia Press.

German Synod in Brunswick.

The German Synod of the Reformed church of the East, which has just closed its sessions at Baltimore, has decided to hold its meeting next year in New Brunswick, at the invitation of the Rev. M. H. Qual, of that city.

"What's all that clamor?" asked the traveler approaching Manhattan.

"That, suh," replied the porter, "is the people of New York braggin that they have abated useless noises, suh."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"I wan: the stable didn't have a penny on Lucretia last time; an' what do you suppose made her favorite today?" questioned the tout, derisively. "It took a bar'l of money," he continued, full of his own logical deductions, "an' I'll bet Porter cleaned up $20,000. He's a pretty slick cove, is old 'Honest John,' if you ask me."

The girl at Crane's side cackled a laugh. "He's funny, isn't he," she said, nodding her big plumed hat in the direction of the man-group.

"He's a talkative fool!" muttered the banker, shortly. "The steps are clear on the other side, Miss Langdon; you can get down there. I've got to go into the paddock; you'll excuse me."

In the paddock Crane soon encountered Langdon.

"He didn't run a very good horse, sir," began the trainer.

"I thought otherwise," replied Crane, measuring the immediate vicinity of listeners.

"I had to draw it a bit fine," declared Langdon, with apologetic remonstrances.

"Running second is always bad business, except in a selling race," retorted his master.

"I've got to think of myself," growled Langdon. "If he'd been beat off, there'd been trouble; the stewards have got the other race in their crop a bit yet."

"I'm not blaming you, Langdon, only I was just a trifle afraid you were going to beat Porter's mare. He's a friend of mine, and needed a win badly. I'm not exactly his father confessor, but I'm his banker, which amounts to pretty much the same thing."

"What about the horse, sir?" asked the trainer.

"We'll see later on. Let him go easy for the present."

"I wonder what he meant by that," Langdon mused to himself, as Crane moved away. "He don't make nobody a present of a race for love." Suddenly he stumbled upon a solution of the enigma. Well, I'm d—d if that wasn't slick; he gave me the straight tip to leave Porter to him—to let him do the plannin'; I see."

VII.

Porter was an easy man with his horses. Though he could not afford to work out his theory that two-year-olds should not be raced, yet he ran them at longer intervals than was general.

"I'll start the little mare about once more this season," he told Dixon. She's too good a beast to do up in her young days. The Assassins made good three-year-olds, and the little mare's dam, Maid of Rome, wasn't much her first year out—only won once—but as a three-year-old she won three out of four starts, and the fourth year never lost a race. Lucretia ought to be a great mare next year if I lay her by early this season. She's in a couple of stakes at Gravesend and Sheepshead, and we'll just fit her into the softest spot."

"What about Lauzanne?" asked the trainer. "I'm afraid he's a bad horse."

"How is he doing?"

"He's stale. He's a bad doer—doesn't clean up his oats, and mopes."

"I guess that killing finish with The Dutchman took the life out of him."

"I don't think it was the race, sir," Dixon replied; "they just pumped the cocaine into him till he was fair blind drunk; I give him a ball, a bran mash and Lord knows what all, an' the poison's workin' out of him."

"I never heard of such a thing," commented Porter. "A man that would dope a two-year-old ought to be ruled off, sure."

"I think you oughter make a kick, sir," said Dixon, hesitatingly.

"I don't. When I squeal, Andy, it'll be when there's nothing but the voice left."

"Well, sir, I'm thinkin' Lauzanne's a deuced sight worse than a dead horse; he'll cost more tryin' to win with him."

"I dare say you're right, but he can gallop a bit—"

"When he's primed."

"No dope for me, Andy. I never ran a dope horse and never will—I'm too fond of them to poison them."

"I'll freshen him up a bit, sir, and we'll give him a try in a day or two. Would you mind putin' him in a sellin' race—he cost a bit."

"He couldn't win anything else, and if anybody wants to claim him they can."

"I thought of starting Diablo in that mile handicap; he's in pretty light. He's about all we've got ready."

"All right, Dixon," Porter replied. "It may be that we've broke our bad luck with the little mare. I've an idea Diablo'll be a good horse yet. You can't make a slow horse gallop, but there's a chance of curing a horse's temper by kind treatment. I've noticed that a squealing pig generally runs like the devil when he takes it into his head."

"Diablo's a squealing pig if there ever was one," growled Dixon.

They reached the track stable, and walked on till they stood in front of Lauzanne's stall.

"He's a good enough looker, ain't he?" commented Dixon, as he went into the stall and turned the horse about. "He's the picture of his old sire, Lazzarone, an' a d—d sight bigger rogue. Lazzarone won the Suburban with blinkers on his head, bandages on his legs, an' God knows what in his stomach. He was second in the Brooklyn that same year. I've always heard he was a mule, an' I guess this one got it all, an' none of the gallopin'."

"How does he work with the others?" queried Porter.

"Runs a bit, an' then cuts it—won't try a yard. Of course, he's sick from the dope, an' the others are a bit fast for him. If we put him in a sellin' race, cheap, he'd have a light weight, an' might do better."

Porter walked on to Lucretia's stall, and the trainer continued in a monologue to Lauzanne: "You big slob! You're a counterfeit if there ever was one. But I'll stand you a drink just to get rid of you; I'll put a bottle of whisky inside your vest day after to-morrow, an' if you win p'raps somebody'll buy you."

Luzanne did not answer—it's a way horses have. It is doubtful if his mind quite grasped the situation, even. That neither Dixon, nor Langdon, nor the jockey boys understood him he knew—not clearly, but approximately enough to increase his stubbornness, to rouse his resentment. They had not even studied out the pathology of his descent sufficiently well to give him a fair show, to train him inteligently. They remembered that his sire, Lazzarone, had a bad temper, but they forgot that he was a stayer, not given to sprinting.

Lauzanne knew what had come to him of genealogy, not in his mind so much as in his muscles. They were strong, but sluggish, not active, but non-tiring. Langdon had raced Lauzanne with sprinting colts, and when they ran away from him at the start he had been unequal to the task of overhauling them in the short two-year-old run of half a mile. Then the wise man had said that Lauzanne's courage was at fault; the jockeys had called it laziness, and applied the whip. And out of all this uselessness the colt had come with a soured temper, a broken belief in his masters.

Porter's trust that his ill luck had been changed by a win was a faith of short life, for Diablo was most emphatically beaten in his race.

And then came the day of forlorn hope, the day of Lauzanne's disgrace, inasmuch as it de-graduated him into the selling-plater class.

Bad horse as Langdon knew Lauzanne to be, it occurred to him that Porter had planned a clever coup. He had an interview with Crane over the subject, but his master did not at all share the trainer's belief.

But after Langdon had left Crane's thoughts dwelt on the subject they had just discussed.

"From a backer's point of view Lauzanne is certainly bad business," he mused; "but the public will reason just as Langdon does. And what's bad for the backers is good for the players; I must see Faust."

"You had better make a book to beat Lauzanne," Crane said to Jakey Faust, just before business had commenced in the ring that afternoon.

The Cherub stared in astonishment.

"You don't own him now, do you sir?" he blurted out, with unthinking candor.

"I do not."

"He's dropped into a soft spot—he rates best in the percentage card."

"Figures sometimes lie," commented Crane.

"Every handicapper tips him to win."

"They're all broke because of their knowledge."

"The books'll mark him up first choice."

"That's why it will be worth while playing the field to beat him."

"He's in with a gang of muts to-day, an' he beat some cracker-jacks last time out."

"You were hypnotized that day, Mr. Faust; so was the judge. Lauzanne didn't beat anything."

"Didn't beat—what the h—l—didn't the chestnut get the verdict?"

"He did, but—" and Crane looked at Faust, with patient toleration of his lack of perception.

The Cherub waited for an explanation of these contradictory remarks. But he might have waited indefinitely—Crane had quite finished. Then it came to Jakey Faust that there was nothing left to do but fill the Lauzanne column in his book with the many bets that would come his way and make much money.

Crane watched Lauzanne go lazily, sluggishly down to the post for his race. The walk of the chestnut was the indifferent stroll of a horse that is thinking only of his dinner.

"They've given him nothing," the banker muttered to himself; "the heavy-headed brute won't try a yard. But he'll fight the boy when he tries to ride him out."

The whisky that Dixon had surreptitiously given Lauzanne had been as inefficacious as so much ginger beer, and in the race Lauzanne drew back out of the bustle and clash of the striving horses as quickly as he could. In vain his jockey used whip and spur; Lauzanne simply put his ears back, switched his tail, and loafed along, a dozen lengths behind his field.

In the straight he made up a little of the lost ground, but he was securely out of the money at the finish. Fate still sat and threw the dice as he had for many moons—a deuce for John Porter and a six for Philip Crane.

VIII.

It was late autumn; the legitimate racing season had closed. In August Porter had taken his horses back to Ringwood for the winter. He had been beaten down at every point. The year had been but a series of disappointments to the master of Ringwood.

After Lucretia's win in the Eclipse Porter did not land another race. Lucretia caught a cold and went off. He tried Lauzanne twice again, but the chestnut seemed thoroughly soured. Now he was back at Ringwood, a dark cloud of indebtedness hanging over the beautiful place, and prospects of relief very shadowy. If Lucretia wintered well and grew big and strong she might extricate him from his difficulties by winning one or two of the big races the following summer. About any of the other horses there was not even this much of promise.

Thoroughly distrusting Lauzanne, embittered by his cowardice, Porter had given him away—but to Allis. Strangely enough, the girl had taken a strong liking to the son of Lazzarone. And when the stable had been taken back to Ringwood, she had asked for Lauzanne as a riding horse.

"I'm going to give him away," her father had replied. "I can't sell him—nobody would buy a brute with such a reputation." This word brought to Porter's mind his chief cause of resentment against the chestnut. The public having got into its head that Porter was playing coups, generously suggested that he was pulling Lauzanne to get him in some big handicap light.

"I won't feed such a skate all winter," he declared, angrily.

"Well, give him to me, father," the girl had pleaded; "I'm certain that he'll make good some day."

As Allis rode Lauzanne she discovered many things about the horse; that instead of being a stupid, morose brute, his intelligence was extraordinary, and, with her at least, his temper was perfect.

Langdon's horses, so silently controlled by Philip Crane, banker, had been put in winter quarters at Gravesend. Crane's racing season had been as successful as the master of Ringwood's had been disastrous. He had won a fair-class race with The Dutchman—ostensibly Langdon's horse—and then threw him out of training and deliberately planned a big coup for the next year. The colt was engaged in several three-year-old stakes, and Crane set Langdon to work to find out his capabilities. As his owner expected, he showed in a severe trial gollop the true Hanover staying power.

Although Crane had said nothing about it at the time, he had his eye on the Eastern derby when he commissioned Langdon to purchase this gallant son of Hanover. It was a long way ahead to look, to lay plans to win a race the following June, but that was the essence of Crane's existence, careful planning. And, after all, given a good stayer, such as he had in The Dutchman, the mile-and-a-half run of the Derby left less chance than any other stake he could have pitched upon. The result would depend absolutely upon the class and stamina of the horses. The Dutchman's races as a two-year-old would not warrant his being made a favorite, and Langdon, properly directed, was clever enough to see that The Dutchman was at a comfortable price for betting purposes.

From the first Crane had felt that Ringwood would pass out of its owner's possession, and he had begun to covet it. The Lauzanne race had been Langdon's planning altogether. Crane, cold-blooded as he was, would not have robbed a man he had business dealings with deliberately. He had told his trainer to win, if possible, a race with Lauzanne, and get rid of him. That Langdon's villainous scheme had borne evil fruit for John Porter was purely a matter of chance. There was a Mephistophelean restitution in not striving to wrest the Eclipse from Lucretia with The Dutchman.

And now, in this year, had come the entirely new experience of an affection—his admiration for Allis Porter. It conflicted with every other emotion that governed his being. All his life he had been selfish—considering only Philip Crane. Love for this quiet, self-contained girl, unadorned by anything but the truth, and honesty, and fearlessness in her big steadfast eyes, had come upon him suddenly and with an assertive force that completely mastered him.

When love comes to a man at 40 he is apt to play the game very badly indeed. But Philip Crane was not given to making mistakes. So he sat down and planned it all out as he planned to win the Brooklyn derby months later. And all the time he was as sincerely in love as if he had blundered into many foolishnesses. All the gods of Fate stood ranged on his side; Allis' brother was in the bank, more or less dependent upon him; Ringwood itself was all but in the bank; he stood fairly well with John Porter, and much better with Allis' mother, for already he had begun to ingratiate himself with Mrs. Porter.

In actuality there were just two things that stood in the way—two things which his position and wealth could not obviate—his age, and the Porter pride. If Porter had not been dubbed "Honest John" early in life, he might have been saddled with "Proud Porter" later on. The pride had come up out of old Kentucky with all the other useless things—the horse-racing, and the inability to make money, and the fancy for keeping a promise. Something whispered to Crane that Allis would never come to him simply out of love; it might be regard, esteem, a desire to please her parents, a bowing to the evident decree of fate.

IX.

Mike Gayner had become attached to the staff at Ringwood this winter as a sort of assistant trainer to Porter. Dixon only trained the Ringwood horses during the racing season, Porter always supervising them in winter quarters. The autumn found Mike quite "on his uppers." An arrangement was made by which Mike's disconsolate horses were fed at Ringwood, and he took care of both strings. This delighted Allis, for she had full confidence in Gaynor's integrity and good sense.

The early winter brought two visitors to Ringwood—Crane, who came quite often, and Mortimer, who went out to the farm a couple of times with Alan.

George Mortimer might be described as an angular young man. His face, large-featured, square-jawed, and bold-topped by broad forehead, suggested the solemnity Allis had found so trying. Of course a young man of his make-up was sure to have notions, and Mortimer's mind was knotted with them; there seemed no soft nor smooth places in his timber. That was why he had reasoned with the butcher by energetically grasping his whip the evening that worthy gentleman had expressed himself so distastefully over Allis Porter's contribution to the Rev. Dolman's concert. Perhaps a young man of more subtle grace would have received some grateful recognition for this office, but the matter had been quite closed out so far as Mortimer was concerned; Alan tried to refer to it afterward, but had been curtly stopped.

George Mortimer's chief notion was that work was a great thing, seemingly the chief end of man. Another notion almost equally prominent, was that all forms of gambling were extremely bad business. First and foremost in this interdiction stood horse-racing.

Quite paradoxically, if Allis Porter had not given "The Run of Crusader"—most certainly a racing poem—to the little church, this young man probably would have never visited Ringwood. Something of the wide sympathy that emanated from her as she told of the gallant horse's death struck into his strong nature, and there commenced to creep into his thoughts at odd intervals a sort of gratuitous pity that she should be inextricably mixed up with race horses.

With all these cross purposes at work it can be readily understood that Mortimer's visits to Ringwood were not exactly rose-leaved. Allis, with her fine intuition, would have unearthed Mortimer's disapprobation of racing—though he awkwardly strove to hide it—even if Alan had not enlarged upon this point. This knowledge constrained the girl—even drove her into rebellion. She took his misunderstanding as a fault, almost as a weakness, and shocked the young man with carefully prepared racing expressions; reveled with strange abandon in talks of gallops, and trials, and work-outs, and breathers; threw ironmouthed horses, pullers, skates and divers other equine wonders at his head until he revolted in sullen irritation. In fact they misunderstood each other finely.

By comparison Crane's vists to Ringwood were utopianly complacent. Strangely enough, Mrs. Porter, opposed to racing as she was, came quite readily under the glamor of his artistic unobtrusiveness. He had complete mastery over the science of waiting. His admission to the good lady of a passing interest in horses was an apology; there seemed such an utter absence of the betting spirit that the recreation it afforded him condoned the offense.

It stood in the reason of things, however, that Mortimer, in spite of his uncompromising attitude toward racing, should be touched by its tentacles if he visited at Ringwood.

His first baptism came with much precipitancy on the occasion of his fourth visit to the Porters. He had driven out with Alan to spend his Saturday afternoon at Ringwood. Alan had some barbarous expedition of juvenile interest on hand; the unearthing of a woodchuck, or it might have been a groundhog, in a back field; but Allis would not become a party to the destruction of animal life for the sport of the thing. She had a much better program mapped out for Mortimer. Some way she felt that if he could see the thoroughbred horses in their stalls, could come to know them individually, casually though it might be, he would perhaps catch a glimmer of their beautiful characters. So she asked Mr. Mortimer to go and have a look at her pets. Alan would have none of it; he was off to his woodchuck or groundhog.

"I'm glad you don't want to go and kill anything," she said, turning gratefully to Mortimer when he refused Alan's invitation, saying that he preferred to look at the horses. "I'll show you Diablo and Lucretia and Lauzanne the Despised—he's my horse, and I'm to win a big race with him next year. Gaynor is down at the stables and I'll give you a tip"—Mortimer winced—"if you want to stand well in with Mike, let him suspect that you're fond of horses."

At the stable door they met Mike Gaynor. Mike usually vascillated between a condition of chronic anger at somebody or something and an Irish drollery that made people who were sick at heart laugh. Allis was as familiar with his moods as she was with the phases of Lauzanne's temper. On Mike's face was a map of disaster; the disaster might be trivial or great. That something was wrong, the girl knew, but whether it was that a valuable horse was dead, or that a mouse had eaten a hole in a grain bag she could only discover by questioning Gaynor, for there were never degrees of expressed emotion in Mike's facile countenance; either a deep scowl or a broad grin were the two normal conditions.

"What's the matter, Mike?" questioned Allis.

"Mather, is it?" began Gaynor, "it's just this, Miss Allis, if yer father thinks I'm goin' to stand by an' see good colts spiled in their timper just because a rapscallion b'y has got the evil intints av quld Nick himself, then he's mistook, that's all."

"Who is it, Mike—Shandy?"

"That's him, Miss. He's the divil on wheels, bangin' thim horses about as though he was King Juba."

Allis saw that Gaynor was indeed angry.

"I'll speak to father about him, Mike," she answered; "I won't have the horses abused."

"Mark my words, Miss Allis, Diablo'll take it out of his hide some day. The b'y'll monkey wit' him once too often; then there'll be no b'y left."

"May we see the horses, Mike—are they having their lie-down, or anything?"

"Not yet, Miss; they're gettin' the rub-down now; don't ye hear Diablo bastin' the boards av his stall wid that hind foot of his?"

Y.M.C.A. AN EASY MARK

Clinton Avenues Have No Trouble in Defeating Manager Listman's Team.

SCORE WAS SIX TO ONE.

Second of a Series Both of Which Dorflinger's Nine Wins With Little Difficulty.

The Clinton Avenues had a comparatively easy time of it Saturday afternoon, defeating the Y. M. C. A. by a score of 6 to 1. It was the second of a series of contests between the teams for the city championship the first one on Fourth of July being won by the Clinton Avenues by a score of 7 to 1. Those who witnessed the game on Saturday were impressed with the fact that the association boys are a little out of their class with Manager Dorflinger's colts. The Clinton Avenues got almost twice as many hits and in fielding they displayed superiority.

The contest was robbed of considerable interest at the start when the Clinton Avenues scored five runs, and they tallied their sixth run in the eighth. The association team was shutout until the eighth inning when a hit, an error and the fact that Craig was hit by Randolph, combined to give them one lone run.

Scott started the game, but he did not last the first inning, when Peacock was called into to occupy the slab. Clinton Avenue had its eye on the ball and it was not until after the second inning that Peacock succeeded in stopping the hitting. He then held his opponents safe until the eighth. As a result of the contest it is hardly likely that another one will be arranged this season between the teams. The score:

FALL HANDICAP PLAY AT COUNTRY CLUB

Considerable interest was shown in the weekly play for the Fall Handicap cups, Classes A and B, at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday, and low scores were the rule. In Class A, S. D. Lounsbury, with a net score of 73, Arthur Murphy with a 76 and Stuart H. Patterson with a 76 were the point-winners. In Class B four players figured in the points, L. H. Van Buren winning the first three with a 74, and three other contestants dividing the remaining three points.

The best scores for the day were as follows:

ClassA—S. D. Lounsbury, 82, 9-73; Arthur Murphy, 85, 9-76; Stuart H. Patterson, 91, 15-76; W. Lester Glenney, 81, 4-77; W. T. Glenney, 84, 6-78; R. G. Morse, 93, 13-80.

Class B—Laurens H. Van Buren, 99, 25-74; C. W. King, 104, 27-77; L. H. Gates, 108, 27-81; George S. Clay, 105, 24-81.

Following the golf play the weekly dinner-dance was held in the evening at the clubhouse, and was largely attended by the members and friends. Music for dancing was furnished by Gloeckner's Orchestra, of Elizabeth, and the program was one of the best of the season.

RESULTS IN CHALLENGE TROPHY COMPETITION

The play for the challenge trophies at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, resulted in two very close matches, especially the one between C. B. Morse and L. R. Thurlow for trophy number three. Mr. Morse won out on the eighteenth hole, by 1 up, after being five down earlier in the game. The play for the challenge trophies resulted as follows:

For trophy number one, E. E. Gano, challenger, defeated W. R. Faber, holder, by 2 up and 1 to play; for trophy number three, C. B. Morse, holder, defeated L. R. Thurlow, challenger, by 1 up; for trophy number five, Dr. A. W. Anderson, holder, defeated R. V. Carpenter, challenger, by default.

The matches for Saturday will be as follows: For the Hydewood Park cup, W. C. McNaughton, challenged by E. E. Gano; for trophy number two, W. R. Faber challenged by C. B. Morse; for trophy number four, L. R. Thurlow challenged by Dr. A. W. Anderson.

These scores were posted for the President's and Golf Club cups:

Dr. A. W. Anderson, 95, 9-84; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 92, 5-87; C. B. Morse, 102, 13-89; E. E. Gano, 95, 6-89; J. B. Betts, 112, 23-90; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 97, 7-90; W. V. Byard, 103, 10-93; Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 106, 11-95; Rev. L. R. Howard, 118, 20-98; L. R. Thurlow, 103, 4-99; W. C. McNaughton, 110, 3-107.

PLAINFIELD SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS METUCHEN 2 TO 1.

The Plainfield Soccer Club played the Metuchen F. C., Saturday afternoon on the South Second street grounds. Two forty minute halves were played. In the first half neither side scored, but in the second the Plainfield eleven scored two goals to Metuchen's one. S. Sutton, the outside left, scored the first, and B. Englinton, the outside right, the second. Both teams put up a good game, and the result was in doubt until the end of the match. The Plainfield team lined up as follows: Goal, A. Stevenson; fullbacks, F Craig, L. Gould; halfbacks, J. Craig, G. McComb, S. Turner; forwards, J Jamieson, S. Sutton, W. Nixon, B. Eglinton, S. McNiece. A. Cowley was the referee and F. Cross the linesman.

HOLY CROSS CLUB FORMS TWO FOOTBALL SQUADS.

The Holy Cross Church Club met Saturday night and received reports from the special committee regarding the football squads. There will be two teams, the first averaging in weight about 141 pounds and the second team averaging in weight about 110. At present there are about fifteen candidates for the first team and fourteen applications have been received for the second squad. Ira Vail, as manager of the first squad has thus far scheduled three games, two with the Bound Brook High School, the first to be played on the Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, October 24, at 3:30 o'clock. The other game scheduled is with the Waldrons, of East Orange, to be played here on Election Day afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Other games are being scheduled with the Plainfield High School and the North Plainfield High School. Teams averaging the weights of the local teams are requested to communicate with the managers. The squads are out for practice two nights a week on the Cricket Field, and under the direction of Coach Frank Emmons, a speedy eleven will be organized.

BASEBALL.

The bachelors of the Watchung Hunt Club defeated the benedicts, Saturday afternoon by a score of 12 to 3, seven innings. The contest was a screaming farce.

HIS DEATH KILLS WIFE

Two Hours After Husband Dies, Mrs. Ellis R. Meeker Succumbs to Shock.

A FORMER ASSEMBLYMAN

Mr. Meeker Well Known Politically —Mrs. Meeker a Sister of Alexander Gilbert.

An hour after Ellis R. Meeker, a former Assemblyman and prominent Republican of Elizabeth, had been stricken with paralysis and expired, his wife, Alice Gilbert Meeker, died of shock. She had been ill several days with heart trouble, while her husband had but recently recovered from a severe attack of neuritis. He was out yesterday and Saturday, and seemed to have regained his health. When he returned home tonight he did not complain, and seemed to be in his normal condition. Suddenly his family were alarmed to see him reel over from the table and collapse. Before a physician arrived he had expired. The news was broken gently to his aged wife, and although sympathetic friends and relatives endeavored to console her, it was of no avail, and she passed peacefully away at 6:30 o'clock. They will be buried side by side.

Mrs. Meeker was a sister of former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, who is now at Denver, Colo., on business.

Mr. Meeker was widely known in the State, particularly as the father of the anti-spring election bill, the passage of which abolished municipal elections in the spring. In 1902 he was a candidate for Mayor against Patrick J. Ryan, but was defeated. He was the son of the late James N Meeker, and is survived by three brothers, Theodore, William H. and the Rev. Jonathan Meeker, of Orange, a son and three daughters. He was an uncle of S. Merchant Meeker former journal clerk of the Senate. Of late years Mr. Meeker had been engaged in the real estate business at Elizabeth, prior to which he conducted a publishing house in New York. He resided at 46 Elm street, Elizabeth.

Mr. Meeker was born in Newark August 7, 1848, and was interested in the building of yachts, launches and gas motors for the propulsion of vessels and automobiles. He conducted a boat building plant in Chicago prior to and during the World's Fair, received first premium on his exhibit of launches and a concession from the directors for the carrying of passengers about the waterways of the exposition. Mr. Meeker's paternal ancestors were among the earliest settlers of the State, and th name appears in the first and second list of eighty associates called "The Elizabethtown Associates." On the maternal side it is found tha Thomas Beech, an original immigrant from England, took the oath of fidelity in New Haven in 1654.

Mr. Meeker was a member of the Masonic fraternity and an exempt fireman. Before his election to the Assembly in 1900 he never held public office, but had always been an energetic Republican in the ranks as well as in the Republican Central Committee of Elizabeth and Union County Executive Committee. He was re-elected to the Assembly by plurality of 4,888 over John Lam merding, the highest candidate on the Democratic ticket. In 1900 h served as chairman of the committe on reform schools for boys and as member of the committees on bil revision, incidental expenses, riparian rights and industrial school fo girls.

Rainfall a Blessing.

Following an unusually long dry period this section was visited by a welcome rainfall last night. While it was not as heavy or of as long duration as the country needs, it was nevertheless a blessing. Last night's rainfall amounted to .92 of an inch and the fall for the month was .04 of an inch more than during the same period last year. During the early part of last night the rain was accompanied by considerable lightning and heavy thunder.

Laying a Concrete Sidewalk.

A substantial concrete sidewalk is being laid in front of the residence of F. E. Woodruff, on Duer street, and also in the door-yard leading to the front and side veranda, which, when completed, will add to the attractiveness of the house.

Louis Rhodier Improving.

Louis Rhodier, the young man who fell out of a chestnut tree on Saturday, breaking both legs and an arm, was reported at the hospital today as improving. His chances for recovery are excellent.

—Mme. B. V. Vreeland has opened her establishment for the fall and winter season. ***

COLLEGE ATHLETES ARE GOOD CHRISTIANS

Lucius H. Biglow, a former resident of this city, a graduate of John Leal's School, and a graduate of Yale, class '08, and now head coach of the Yale football squad, was the principal speaker at the men's meeting of the West Side Y. M. C. A. in a big tent at Fifty-seventh street and Eighth avenue, New York, Sunday afternoon. He said among other things, that three-quarters of the college athletes whose work amounts to anything say their prayers at night before going to bed. He saw in this a favorable sign for the increasing purity of athletics.

Biglow's subject was "Clean Sport and Its Relation to Character Building.'

"The big man at college today," he said, "is not the one who can drink everybody else under the table. The truest and strongest man is not necessarily the one who follows the crowd and does what every other man thinks is the best thing to do. Nowadays college morals are on a higher plane. Some of the best men of the colleges are those who go in for sports, and a fellow who does so must be a clean man.

"An old time follower of athletic sports who has followed every football game for the last twenty years recently told me that he had discovered it to be a fact that no man who was good on the field was everything but good when he got off the field and entered his life work. We who have watched football and the other branches of college sports have had reason to learn that the man on the eleven or on the track who has a good religious backing is the man in whom every one has confidence.

"You would be surprised to find how many athletes there are who at night say their prayers before they go to bed. Fully three-quarters of the athletes I know whose work amounts to something and in whom their team mates have implicit confidence say their prayers, whether they be alone or in training quarters with other men."

Dave Fultz, the former Brown University captain and New York American baseball player, and Ray Ewry, the Olympic champion broad jumper, also talked on clean sport.

GOT ROUGH DEAL AT TRENTON FAIR RACES

Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy and Letter-carrier Leslie Tingley, both of whom had their horses entered in the races at the Trenton Fair, yesterday, returned home last night disguested with the treatment accorded them by the management, especially Secretary Coleman, who had charge of the races. They declare that for some unknown reason, their horses were barred out of the races in which they were entered.

Mr. McCarthy entered "Bowery Lass," in several races, and Mr. Tingley's "Polly Watt" was advertised to start in a number of events. The owners claim that the purses, advertised as $150, were cut down to $60, and that they refused to run their horses under those conditions. They declare that they complied with every condition imposed by the racing committee and cannot understand why they should be given such treatment. The races their horses were entered in were held up for a couple of hours in an effort to settle the dispute, but to no purpose.

Afterward Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Leslie informed Secretary Coleman that they expected the association to stand their expenses for the care and keeping of their horses while at the fair, and they were instructed to make out their bills and send them to the association. This they will do. "Bowery Lasss" and "Polly Watt" are both registered as required by the National Racing Association and the owners say that they can see no reason why their entries should not have been permitted to start in the races as scheduled. The matter will probably be taken before the National Racing Association for settlement.

Look Out for Woman Solicitor.

The people of Plainfield and especially those interested in The Day Nursery, conducted by the City Union of The King's Daughters, are warned to be on the lookout for a woman who is going about the city and vicinity soliciting for the Day Nursery. The King's Daughters engage no solicitors for any purpose whatever and no one has been authorized to seek money for this charity.

Date for "Li'l Mose."

The date for the presentation of the musical comedy, "Li'l Mose," at the New Plainfield theatre under the auspices of Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., is Monday, October 26. The seat sale began this morning through members of the lodge committee.

P.H.S. PUPILS AROUSED

Petition the P. S. C. to Provide Better Service on Arlington Avenue Line.

VERY POOR AT PRESENT.

Principal Travell Interested in Movement to Improve Trolley Lines' Connections.

The pupils of the Plainfield High School are aroused over the poor service that the new schedule of the trolley lines gives them for reaching school in the morning. The present time table compels pupils who live in Dunellen to take the 7:35 o'clock trolley in order to be sure to reach the high school at 8:25 o'clock. The failure of the main line car to connect closely with the Arlington avenue car compells a wait of eight minutes at the trolley station.

Fifty-six pupils were counted on the cars this morning, a number sufficient to fill comfortably an entire car without other passengers.

In Newark and elsewhere the Public Service Corporation run special cars for high school pupils, and it is argued that there seems no good reason why the same consideration should not be shown to pupils of the Plainfield High School. Last year Principal Travell secured from the Public Service Corporation the service of an extra car on rainy days. For some weeks the Dunellen Board of Education has been making efforts to secure better car service for their pupils who come to Plainfield but thus far without result.

The following signed petition has been extensively signed by pupils living in the lower part of the city and in Dunellen and is being sent to the district manager of the trolley service:

"We, the undersigned students of the Plainfield High School, being greatly inconvenienced by the present schedule of the trolley system which does not provide a speedy service to the High School, with good connections with the Arlington avenue car, and being compelled by the present schedule to take the car leaving Dunellen at 7:35 o'clock in order to be certain to reach the high school before 8:25 o'clock, do respectfully and most earnestly petition the Public Service Corporation to run every school day (for high school students), a large special car that shall furnish speedy through service from Dunellen, to reach the high school not later than 8:22 o'clock."

KEYS AND BENNETT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS

Former State Senator John Y. Keys, of Somerville, was named at the Democratic State convention, at Trenton yesterday, as the party's Presidential elector for the fourth district. Peter Bennett, of Elizabeth, was selected for the Fifth district, and A. S. Alexander, of Hudson, and Thomas F. Ferrell, of Gloucester, were chosen as electors-at-large.

Addresses were made by State Chairman James R. Nugent, who called the convention to order and introduced former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., who was the convention's presiding officer. An address was also made by William E. Ryan, of New York, who took the place of former United States Senator Charles A. Towne.

Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, was selected as vice-president and secretary of the Somerset county delegation. M. W. Scully, of Somerville, was the chairman. Dr. C. H. Thiers, of North Plainfield, was put on the credentials' committee, while John McCullough, of North Plainfield, was on the permanent organization committee. Keys' name as an elector was placed before the convention by Mr. Linbarger.

Killed a Valuable Dog.

"Teddy" Thorne, the valuable pet terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne, of South Plainfield, was run over and killed by an automobile yesterday afternoon. The speeding of autos through that village is making it dangerous for children as well as grown-ups and the Good Government Club is setting a close watch for offenders who, upon conviction will be severely dealt with.

W.L.MANNING WITHDRAWS

Says Mayoralty Nomination was Without his Knowledge and He'll Not Run.

HIS DECISION FINAL

Did Not Know of His Nomination Until He Read of Democratic Primary Results in This Paper.

As a result of an announcement made by his opponent for the mayoralty, Mayor Fisk may now confine all his worrying to the excise problem's solution. Walter L. Manning, the nominee of the Democrats, having declined to continue as a candidate.

Mr. Manning says that his name was placed on the Democrat ballot at the primaries without his sanction or knowledge and that he will not wage a campaign for the office under any circumstances. He appears to be rather incensed over the liberties taken with his name by his party.

"The first thing I knew about this nomination," said Mr. Manning to a representative of The Daily Press today, "was when I read of it in your paper. I was never asked to become a candidate and had I been I would not have consented. I do not take kindly to the nomination at all, particularly as it was made without my knowledge. You may say for me once and for all, I am not a candidate for the mayoralty."

COMPULSORY EDUCATION LAW MUST BE ENFORCED

Dr. J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, superintendent of schools in Union county, has issued orders through the County Principal's Association that the compulsory education law must be enforced rigidly. Dr. Savitz has reminded the school principals of these provision of the law:

"Every parent, guardian, or other person having control of a child between the ages of seven and seventeen years inclusive, shall cause such child to regularly attend a day school in which, at least, the commonschool branches of reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, English grammar and geography are taught by a competent teacher, or receive equivalent instruction elsewhere than at school, unless such child is above the age of fifteen years and has completed the grammar school course prescribed by the State Board of Education, and in addition thereto is regularly and lawfully employed in any useful occupation or service. Such regular attendance shall be during all the days and hours that the public schools are in session in the city, town or district in which the child resides, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Board of Education of the school district in which such parent, guardian or other person resides, that the bodily or mental condition of such child is such as to prevent his or attendance at school. If such child be within the age of seventeen years and has completed the grammar school course, and is not regularly and lawfully employed in any useful occupation or service, such child shall attend the high school or manual training school in said city, town or district in which such child resides, if there is a high school or manual training school in said city, town or district; if there is no high school or manual training school in said city, or town or district, said child shall be transported to a high school or manual training school as provided in section one hundred and nineteen of this act."

PARALYSIS FATAL TO MRS. ANNA E. HUDNUT.

Mrs. Anna E. Hudnut, widow of John T. Hudnut, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of Stephen Staats, of West Second street, where she made her home. She was stricken with paralysis last Tuesday and had been sinking steadily since that time.

Mrs. Hudnut was seventy-two years old and was a native of Hunterdon county. During her residence here she was a member and regular attendant of Trinity Reformed church and was actively engaged in the work of the Ladies' Christion Work society. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John F. Wakefield, of Manning avenue, and a son, Charles Hudnut, of Newark.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Wakefield's home Thursday morning at 10:30 and burial will be at Flemington.

CLUB FOR 1ST VOTERS

Young Republicans in North Plainfield Plan for Strong Campaign Organization.

MASS MEETING ON OCTOBER 8.

Borough G. O. P. Club's President, B. A. Hegeman, Announces All His Committees.

Plans have been made by the North Plainfield Republican Club, of which former Mayor B. A. Hegeman is president, for the formation of the First Presidential Voters' Club which promises to have a large membership. At a meeting of the club last night, President Hegeman appointed Donald McGee as chairman of a committee for the proposed organization. He also named as coworkers with Mr. McGee, William Nischwitz, Richard F. Keefer, Ernest Powlison, George Hooley and Harold Hegeman.

These are other committees appointed by the President:

SAD HOME-COMING FOR MISS MARY BRECK

After a three months' absence abroad for the benefit of her health, Miss Mary Breck, of Woodland avenue, returned last night to find that her mother, Mrs. George M. Breck, had died suddenly during the day. As told in yesterday's issue, Mrs. Breck was stricken with paralysis while seated at the breakfast table in the morning and passed away at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At the time she was stricken, Mrs. Breck was alone in the house with her maid, her husband having started for Boston to greet the daughter when the steamship arrived. Her son, George Breck, had gone to New York to his business. The maid summoned Dr. G. W. Endicott, the family physician, but from the first there was no hope for Mrs. Breck's recovery.

Mrs. Breck had not enjoyed the best of health during the last year or two but as recently as Sunday she was able to take a short walk. She was an attendant at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and had lived in this city for five years coming here from Metuchen. Mrs. Breck was formerly Miss Elizabeth Ogden, of Pittsburg. Following a private service at the home, the remains will be taken to Pittsburg tomorrow night, where interment will be made in the family plot.

Runaway Narrowly Averted.

One of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's rigs while passing the corner of Grant avenue and West Front street, yesterday afternoon, in charge of William Myers, a clerk, narrowly escaped disastrous consequences. The dropping of a nut allowed one of the wheels to come off. This frightened the horse, and in an attempt to pacify the animal, he went down on all fours and floundered about in an effort to run away. John Roberts, of Duer street, happened along on his bicycle, and with quick presence of mind he grabbed the horse and held it until Mr. Myers could take charge. The latter, and a companion, were thrown out of the wagon, receiving slight bruises. The wagon was slightly damaged.

NEWLYWED ENTERTAINS THE TIMBO SOCIAL CLUB

The members of the Timbo Social Club voted last night that Henry J. Wierenga has got to give a wedding reception every year. They arrived at this conclusion two hours after they had assembled to enjoy his hospitality in honor of his marriage, an event that was solemnized at Newark last month. The bridegroom stole away quietly and none of his associates in the popular organization were aware of the step he had taken until he was on his honeymoon and the affair he arranged for them was in compensation for his neglect in sending invitations for the ceremony.

There were nearly 100 of the Timboites on hand in the club rooms on North avenue, last night, and there was "plenty doing" from the time the janitor opened the doors. When the gathering was completed, the blushing host was brought forward while "Bill" Jukes gave an original address of welcome. In reply, the newly-made benedict gave a straight from-the-shoulder speech on married life that caused the numerous eligible bachelors to turn green with envy and second his declaration that single harness is hard going. It's dollars to punched Canadian dimes that a dozen or more of the younger Timboites will be engaged before the year is over. There were other addresses by "Eddie" Bellis, George Johnson, "Jack" DeNise, "Joe" Friede, Archie Davie, and "Uncle Dave" Carney.

Throughout the evening, music was furnished by Harry Wetton's orchestra, from Elizabeth, and the vocal work was led by members of T. Muir's Gold Medal minstrel troupe. At midnight, Chef Erwin Neighbor and a score of assistants began serving several tons of real food, thousands of cigars and millions of cigarettes. If anybody went away hungry it was because their gastronomic apparatus was out of order before they left home. The menu comprised "Portugese" sandwiches, Ash Swamp celery, Randolph Road chicken croquettes and Jackson flat oysters on toast. Ten gallons of Watchung spring water was brought in at 8 o'clock. It was all imbibed but 40 quarts.

LOST CHILD HOLDS UP MAIN LINE TROLLEY CAR

Frank Salamander, an Italian living at 629 South Second street who moved here from Trenton a week ago, reported to the police at 1:30 yesterday afternoon that his seven-year-old daughter, Madeline, had been missing since 9:30 in the morning. All the officers on duty were instructed to be on the lookout for her but she was not located until nearly 5 o'clock. She was then turned over to Patrolman Charles Flynn by Inspector Hugh Higgins, of the street railway, who announced her as a child the Public Service employes had on their hands and didn't know what to do with.

The little girl understands but few words of English and wandered awa from home, finally ending up at Eas Fifth and Richmond streets. Ther she decided to take a trolley ride an clambered aboard a Newark-bound car. The conductor thought she wa with some women who got on at th same time and didn't know any different until the got off at Westfield and left the child behind. When h tried to learn something about he she simply shook her head and talked in Italian. The car was stoppe at Garwood where several Italian section men were at work an through them he found that her home was in Plainfield but she couldn't tell what street she lived on. There was nothing for the conductor to do but take her to Newark with him and bring her back and this was done.

On the return trip, it was thought she might belong in the vicinity of Fifth and Richmond streets, where she got on, and the crew lost a half hour trying to locate the house. They finally abandoned the search and gave Madeline over to Inspector Higgins. The latter in turn took her to Patrolman Flynn, the officer immediately recognizing her from description as the missing girl. She was returned to her home after an absence of eight hours.

Dr. Probasco an Usher.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of th city, was one of the ushers at the wedding of Miss Estelle Eugenie Anderson, and Edward Richard Perkins, which took place in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church Wednesday night, September 23. It was a brilliant social function and was attended by a large number o guests. The groom is a vice-president of the New York Life Insuranc Company.

BARN AND AUTO BURNED

Loss of $4,000 Occasioned Through Cleaning Preparation Catching Fire.

MACHINE OWNER BURNED.

Building the Property of Percy H. Stewart and Located on Plainfield Avenue Near Eighth Street.

Damage amounting to $4,000 was occasioned by a fire in the barn on the premises at 721 Plainfield avenue, owned by Percy H. Stewart, shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. The building was practically destroyed while an automobile valued at $2,000 was totally wrecked. The machine was owned by Oliver A. Reed, chauffeur for Mr. Stewart, and was the one he used at one time in soliciting patronage at the North avenue station. The loss in each case is covered by insurance.

The automobile was a big covered affair and the owner started to clean the engine at noon today with a patent preparation. He was smoking at the time and it is supposed that fumes from the preparation became ignited in this way. Reed was startled by a burst of flame directly in front of him and within a few seconds it seemed as if the blaze was everywhere. He sprang to the barn door to open it and get the auto out but it stuck on its rollers and stopped him. He was compelled to stand by helpless while the fire spread with great rapidity.

An alarm was turned in from box 36 but by the time the apparatus arrived, the building was burning from top to bottom. Chief Doane had his men lay in three lines of hose and they soon had the blaze under control but there was practically nothing left when the recall sounded. It was evident that the fumes from the preparation had spread to every part of the structure and gave the flames their big start.

Mr. Reed's hands were quite severely burned when the blaze first broke out. A defect in the mechanism caused the fire gong to give but one blow when the alarm was pulled.

YOUNG MEN FORM A LOCAL TRIBE OF INDIANS.

Another secret social society has been formed by young men of the West End, the members have chosen as a name for the organization, "Pawnee Tribe, No. 7, of Indians." The tribe meets once a month at the home of one of the tribesmen and has a jolly time. Every week-end the tribe expects to camp out, leading the simple life. In accordance with this plan, the first week-end jaunt was taken Saturday. The members left Plainfield with a good supply of provisions and blankets and walked to Stirling and returning from there to Washington Rock, where a camp was established for the night.

One of the members, who is an expert chef, prepared a fine corn-roast, which the hungry tribe enjoyed thoroughly. A treat of this kind is promised every week. The following tribesmen enjoyed Saturday's trip: Fay Tomlson, Bertram Smith, Clinton Firstbrook, Harvey Stewart and George Gage.

Central Baptists to Meet.

The Baptist churches of this city will be well represented at the annual meeting of the Central Baptist Association to be held at New Brunswick on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. On Tuesday night, October 6, there will be a pastors' conference. The delegates will be entertained Wednesday night at the home of members of the church, while dinner and supper on Wednesday and Thursday will be served in the lecture room of the Baptist church.

Confection Concern Bankrupt.

Reynolds & Company, a corporation operating stores in this city, Trenton, Wilmington and Chester, has gone into the hands of a receiver. On Friday, Vice-Chancellor Walker, at Trenton, granted the petition for a receiver and appointed Harry R. Wilson, of Trenton, to take charge of the business. For several years, the corporation has done a successful business at the Babcock building in West Front street. Mr. Walker has restocked the local store.

The Clinton Avenues have reserved their stella attraction of the season for Saturday, when they will cross bats with the famous New Brunswick team. The Middlesex county aggregation has been cleaning up everything in sight this season, and the management promises to present its strongest lineup with Rowland and VanVecthen. In the lineup will be found Harkins, who plays first base. He is the son of Harkins of other days, who used to worry the old Crescents. Drew Case, who is also a twirler of ability, will occupy left garden, and every other position will be filled with a player of strength in fielding and hitting. This attraction will cost the Clinton Avenues more than the usual guarantee, but they feel sure that the fans will appreciate their efforts and turn out in big numbers and swell the receipts. Rowland has the reputation of striking out fourteen and fifteen men in a game, but the locals may lower the record Saturday. The Clinton Avenues will have their regular team on the diamond.

The Y. M. C. A. team has closed the season. Manager Listman deciding to play no more games this season. The team has made a good record winning the Spalding trophy and the State Y. M. C. A. League championship. Arrangements are now underway for the annual dinner to the team. This will be given at the association building the middle of October, at which time each member of the team will be presented a gold medal in honor of his acheivements on the diamond. There will be several speeches and a general good time. Manager Listman will probably be the toastmaster.

The Clinton Avenues have two more games scheduled before closing the season, the one with New Brunswick on Saturday and the final contest with the Nationals of Perth Amboy on Saturday, October 10. After that plans will be perfected for the annual banquet to the team.

There is a faint possibility that Clinton Avenue may get a game with Bound Brook to wind up the season. Negotiations are now pending, and it is practically up to Manager Newhouse, of Bound Brook, to decide the matter.

Mike Donlin is not only a stalwart hitter but he is one of the most dependable of sacrifice hitters.

There's no reason whatever to worry over Marquand and Durham. It isn't always the poor pitchers who make the poor starts.

Six pitchers stand out clearly as the best of the year by their season's work—Mathewson, McQuillen, Joss, Young, Walsh and Johnson.

Two pitchers did the iron man stunt last week and landed two victories in one day. They were Summers of the Detroits and Reulbach of the Cubs.

Eight games with the Phillies this week, but if the New Yorks can win the same proportion of games that they have been doing there isn't much to fear.

Wilson of the Highlanders didn't do well on his third appearance in fast company, but if a young pitcher is a good pitcher it often does him good to get a dose.

Earl Moore, cast loose by two American League teams, made good in his first game in the Eastern League and so far as one game goes justified Billy Murray's judgment in taking him out of the Eastern League.

There aren't as many good bunters as there ought to be. "The trouble with most bunters," says John Ward was was an expert at the trick, "is that they want to start and bunt at the same time. The right way to do is to bunt, then run."

The Newarks made their farewell appearance of the season Sunday by defeating the All-Stars, a team made up of semi-professionals, at Newark. Before the game field sports were indulged in. Clyde Engle won the 100 yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds, and he also won the accurate throwing contest. Tom Hughes won the fungo batting contest, his drive being 360 feet. Ray Demmitt proved the long distance champion of the team, he heaving the ball 113 yards 1 foot. In the bunt and run contest Engle, Mullen, Mahling and Kelly all tied covering the distance between home plate and first base in 3 4-5 seconds

GOLF.

The standing to date for the Oakmont cup, at the Park Golf Club, the competition beginning on Labor Day and ending on Election Day, is as follows: Dr. A. W. Anderson, 9 points; W. V. Gano, 8½ points; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 8; W. E. Lough, 7; Leon R. Thurlow, 7.

Week-end rival attractions are presented for the consideration of local golfers in the immediate future. Most important is the annual tri-city contest at Garden City between Philadelphia, Boston and New York, on Friday and Saturday, while on the same days the East Jersey Golf League members will compete at Deal in their annual championship tournament.

So far as the interest in the fair for the Lesley cup is concerned it may be said that the teams this year will be stronger than ever. The Massachusetts team has been selected by the executive committee of the association, subject to the approval of the captain, and a somewhat similar plan was also adopted by the Metropolitan Golf Association. In Philadelphia the selection is usually left in the hands of three or four of the acknowledged leaders.

Since this contest became a tri-city affair, in 1905, through the admission of Boston, all honors have been carried off by the metropolitan team. Last year the conditions were changed slightly, the old-fashioned foursomes being substituted for the four-ball at Boston's request, but the result remained the same.

The annual championship tournament of the East Jersey Golf League at Deal on Friday and Saturday will begin with an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, the first eight to earn the right to continue for the title, while those constituting the next three eights will also qualify for prizes. The first match round will begin on Friday afternoon, the semi-finals and finals to be run off on Saturday. A thirty-six-hole medal play handicap is also on for Saturday.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of Warren chapel, will hold its first fall meeting on Tuesday, October 6, and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, the superintendent, hopes that all the members will be present and return their mite boxes.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Republicans of Dunellen will reorganize the club at that place tomorrow night, at a meeting to be held in Ratter's building.

General E. Burd Grubb, the Republican candidate for Governor in 1889, is the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Second district to oppose John J. Gardner, of Atlantic. The nomination by the Democratic district convention Saturday was one of the most singular in the history of New Jersey politics.

Former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, is being urged to accept the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Fourth District, now represented by Ira W. Wood, Republican. The district is made up of Mercer, Somerset and Hunterdon counties. When Mr. Katzenbach ran for overnor last November he carried Mercer county and swept Hunterdon, but lost Somerset by the close margin of 163. His plurality over Fort in the territory that makes up the Congressional district was 1,553.

In an interview yesterday ex-Governor Stokes declared that fraud was resorted to in Vineland to defeat Assemblyman Buck for renomination. He says two districts which gave 348 votes for Fort gave 902 against Buck Tuesday.

If the plans of the Taft and Sherman Republican Club of East Orange work out properly Governor Hughes, of New York, will be the guest of honor at a reception to be held by the club on the night of Monday, October 12. The only question is whether the Republican National Committee can spare the New York Executive on that date.

The Lawyers' Democratic league is the latest auxiliary to get into the State political field to aid Bryan and Kern and all their running mates. The league organized by electing the following officers: Chairman, Warren Dixon, of Jersey City; secretary, J. Bayard Kirkpatrick, of Newark, and treasurer, Police Judge Charles F. Herr, also of Newark. A committee of three will be appointed to prepare a constitution and bylaws, and there will be a vice-chairman appointed for each county in the State. The league is intended to be a permanent institution.

The business men's bureau of the national Democratic committee, of which Nathan Strauss is chairman, has taken up the job of getting after New Jersey business men for Bryan and Kern. Plans for organizeing a New Jersey Business Men's Bryan and Kern association, have been discussed, and the work of enrolling manufacturers and merchants for Democratic nominess will be begun at once. Those already interested are Edmund A. Whittier, of East Orange; Dean Fellows Platt and J. Spencer Smith, of Bergen county; former Assemblyman Archie Alexander, of Hudson; former Assemblyman Edward H. Wright, Jr., of Newark, and Charles H. Ingersoll the watchmaker, of Trenton.

Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, who wanted the Democrats to vote for him as United States Senator to succeed John F. Doyden, who has just returned from a foreign trip, will immediately join in active work in the Bryan campaign.

Governor Fort has promised County Clerk John Rotherham, of Hudson county, that he will open the campaign in Hudson county. The exact time will be left entirely to the convenience of the Governor, but it is expected it will be within the next ten days.

The contest for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 6th District is now in a fair way to be settled. It has apparently narrowed down to two men—General Charles E. Burrowes, of Bergen, and Prosecutor Henry Hueston, of Sussex. General Burrowes has a little the better of the argument and will probably win. The Democrats will will renominate Representative William Hughes.

In Wisconsin no particular significance is attached to the presence of Senator La Follette at the Byran Meeting in Madison last evening, for Byran and La Follette are old frineds and have been associated in various affairs. So close is their acquaintance that at one time it was reported that they proposed to organize a new party and run for office together.

It is not believed that La Follette will permit his admiration for Byran to abate in any degree his support of the Republican party, and it was announced today that he would in a few days take the stump for Taft in Wisconsin.

YOUNG NUT PICKER'S FALL PROVES FATAL.

John Bowles, a high school student at Paterson, died in the General Hospital yesterday from injuries received on Sunday by falling out of a chestnut tree. His back was broken by the fall.

Sunday was the real beginning of the nutting season and there were many accidents. Henry Jarvis, son of a policeman, who was to have been married tomorrow, had his fiancee, Miss Marcella McCourt, with him when he fell out of a tree and got a broken leg, besides other injuries. Miss McCourt got help and had him taken to the hospital.

James Savasten, of Paterson, had both arms and several ribs broken by a fall, and John Steigner has been unconscious for nearly twenty-four hours from injuries received by falling from a nut tree. All are in the General Hospital.

Newark's first accident of the chestnutting season occurred late yesterday afternoon at Lyons avenue, in the southern part of the city. A limb broke, and Edmond Hawes, 12 years old, of 150 Shaw avenue, fell to the ground. His skull was fractured, and he is near death in the City Hospital.

Foreigner Creates Disturbance.

Chief Marshal Weiss was summoned to a residence on Rockview avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon to arrest a foreigner who had been engaged to cut the lawn grass and who came around intoxicated. He became abusive to members of the family and threatened to kill one of them with a scythe. He was locked up and will be given a hearing tomorrow. He said he was Joe Gunn, of Cottage place.

VanNess Hearing Adjourned.

The hearing of "Count" J. K. VanNess in the borough court, this morning, was adjourned for one week. The defendant's wife reported that he was too ill to appear.

To One Drunk—$5.

Henry Hawkins, colored, known as "Hundred to one shot," was fined $5 in the borough police court, this morning, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

WHERE THE STYLES ARE ALWAYS NEW,

MRS. C. H. ARNOT CONTESTS WILL OF HER BROTHER.

When the will of the late Frederick C. Hewitt was offered for probate in the Tioga County Surrogate's office, Owego, N. Y., yesterday, objections to the instrument were filed by Mrs. Charlotte H. Arnot, of Elmira, sister and nearest relative of Mr. Hewitt. She charges that the will was improperly drawn and executed; that the deceased was mentally and legally incapable of making a will because of unsound mind and undue influence, and that the will is ineffective and illegal in respect to the clause whereby the Metropolitan Museum of Art is made the residuary legatee of the estate.

December 15 is the date selected for the first hearing on the contest and if Mrs. Arnot's efforts are successful, the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, of this city, as well as the Little Day Missionary Society, of New York, will lose $100,000 and $209,000 respectively bequeathed to them.

Henry Haurand Is the Plainfield Agent for Rienzi Beer.

If you are going to have a social function at your home and want to serve your guests with a pure, high grade beer, free from billiousness or after effects, call up Henry Haurand and order a case of Rienzi, the famous Rochester beer of the Bartholomay Brewery Co.

Henry Haurand's address is 168 Somerset street. Call up 'phone No. 229, and he will deliver your order without delay.

Rienzi is not an ordinary beer. It is brewed after the most approved process. It has that rich, ripe flavor that gratifies the most particular taste.

Rienzi is pure and wholesome. It is a great stimulant for jaded appetites, and a bottle at bedtime will induce sleep, and quiet the overworked nerves.

Order Rienzi, the right beer; the wrong beer is dear at any price.

THE FORUM.

For Primary Law Change.

Editor, The Daily Press:

May I suggest through your paper an amendment to the Primary Election law whereby a voter will not be called upon to declare himself in any manner when about to vote.

In other words, should not the law be such that the voter on entering the polling place be asked such questions only as are asked a voter at the general election. That all tickets, whether Democratic or Republican, or otherwise, be handed him and that he be allowed to vote the one he wishes.

That one ballot box be provided, and all ballots voted be placed in this box and canvassed as at a general election.

It is a known fact that a number of voters did not vote at the last primary election for the reason that they did not care to declare themselves as members of any party. Why should not these independent voters have the privilege of selecting the party that favors their views without the necessity of the public be coming cognizant of their choice.

I believe with some such amendment to the law nothing further could be wished for.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In "His Honor the Mayor" Julian Edwards has done some of the best work of his career. His two songs, "Magyar Maid (Come Where the Wild Vine Clings) and "Sweet Tokay," are among the most beautiful ballads he has composed. Mr. Aarons' music, too, has won wide popularity, notably his "A Little Girl Like Me" and "I'll Travel the Links With You." "His Honor the Mayor" will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

"Girls," the Clyde Fitch comedy that enjoyed a prosperous season at Daly's Broadway theatre, New York, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night. Sam S. and Lee Shubert are the producing managers, which is a guarantee of the excellence of both play and presenting company. "Girls" is a comedy pure and simple, written along novel lines involving the taming of a trio of bachelor girls, who under the influence of a strong minded leader, become confirmed manhaters. At the opening of the piece two of the girls have already begun to weary of their solemn oath to ignore the sterner sex, stand alone, and assert the independence and equality of woman. But the ring leader in the conspiracy of the petticoats still holds sway over them both until the eventual occasion when a man enters the sacred precincts of the studio and—horrors—refuses to go until he gets ready. Then the defection spreads with terrible rapidity and within the three weeks, covered by the last two acts, each of the three "man-haters" has become an affianced bride. While laughter remains supreme through the entire unfolding of the plot, there are times when more tender emotions are aroused, and girls will find much to their liking in this stage story, known the world over as "Girls."

Manager Counihan of the New Plainfield theatre takes great pleasure in announcing that arrangements have been completed with the Askin-Singer Company whereby the music play, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," the great musical and dramatic success, will be produced in Plainfield Friday night. This is the same attraction that appeared over 465 times at the La Salle theatre, Chicago, holding several records—the Chicago record for having "sold out" for more performances than any other attraction ever produced in Chicago, the world's record, inasmuch as every seat for every performance was sold out twenty days in advance. The company is headed by the well known comedian, Robert G. Pitkin, as "Happy" Johnny Hicks, and assisted by such well known artists as Josephine Park, Violet McMillan, Wm. Herman West, May Bouton, C. G. Scribner, William O'Day and others.

There is more in the art of acting than shows at first blush. To study the varied country types in Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer's comedy of Hardscrabble folks, "Our New Minister," one could readily believe that every character shown was being presented by an out and out rustic, bona fide to the manner born. Yet it is a matter of record that every member of the company has won distinction in most of the diversified fields of the drama. A striking contrast that comes to the surface with this reflection is that of Joseph Conyers, the country constable of the comedy, who won considerable favor in New York not so many years ago for his conception and interpretation of "Wun-Hi" the chinaman in Augustin Daly's Musical Company, "The Geisha." "Our New Minister" is coming back on Saturday next, October 3, and the same strong cast will be seen as before.

The coming of "The Devil" to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night is being looked forward to with keen anticipation by the theatre-goers of Plainfield. By arrangement with Henry W. Savage, Alfred E. Aarons is enabled to present to us the only version authorized by the famous Hungarian, Author Franz Molner, and to which Mr. Savage possesses the exclusive rights. At the Garden theatre, New York, this production caused a bigger sensation than any dramatic presentation in the history of New York theatricals. The clamor for seats amounts to almost a riot. There is hardly any doubt that Plainfield will give to this celebrated play a crowded house.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the House of Assembly concurring), That the following amendments to the constitution of this State be and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the Secretary of State:

1. Strike out paragraph 3 of section I, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

3. Elections for members of the Senate and General Assembly shall be held every two years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, and every second year thereafter; and the two Houses shall meet separately on the second Tuesday in January in each year, at which time of meeting the legislative year shall commence.

2. Strike out paragraph 1 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator from each county in the State, elected by the legal voters of the counties respectively, for four years.

3. Strike out paragraph 2 of section II, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

2. As soon as the Senate shall meet after the first election to be held in pursuance of this constitution they shall be divided by the Senate as equally as may be into two classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year, so that one class may be elected every second year and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, the persons elected to supply such vacancies shall be elected for the unexpired terms only; provided, that the Senators having the longest period of time still to serve at the time of making said division shall be entitled to the longer terms.

4. Strike out paragraph 1 of section III, Article IV, and insert in place thereof the following:

1. The General Assembly shall be composed of members elected by the legal voters of the counties, respectively, every second year, beginning on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten, who shall be apportioned among the said counties as nearly as may be according to the number of their inhabitants. The Legislature shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten, and at its first session after each United States decenial census hereafter, and not oftener, divide and arrange each county of this State into a district or districts for the election therein of a member or members of the General Assembly. Each Assembly district so constituted shall contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory in a compact form, but no county, or part thereof, shall be joined with any other county, or part thereof, in any such district; provided, that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed sixty.

The Court of Last Resort, by whatever name known, is hereby invested with exclusive original jurisdiction and with full power, under such procedure as it may by rules prescribe, to review any division and arrangement made by the Legislature into Assembly districts of the counties of this State for the purpose of determining whether such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, is in accordance or in conflict with this section, and, if in conflict herewith, to adjudge the same, or such part thereof as may be in conflict herewith, null and void. In case said court shall determine such arrangement and division, or any part thereof, to be null and void the Legislature shall proceed to make a new arrangement and division, entire or partial, as the action of the court may require.

5. Strike out paragraph 3 of Article V and insert in place thereof the following:

3. The Governor shall hold his office for four years, to commence at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January next ensuing the election for Governor by the people, and to end at twelve o'clock noon on the third Tuesday of January four years thereafter; and he shall be incapable of holding that office for four years next after his term of service shall have expired; and no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term.

6. Strike out paragraph 6 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

6. Clerks and surrogates of counties shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly. They shall hold their offices for six years.

7. Strike out paragraph 7 of section II, Article VII, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Sheriffs and coroners shall be elected by the people of their respective counties at the elections for members of the General Assembly, and shall hold their offices for four years, after which four years must elapse before they can be again capable of serving. Sheriffs shall annually renew their bonds.

8. Add to section 2 of Article VII, three paragraphs to be known as paragraphs 12, 13 and 14.

12. All elections for Governor, members of the Senate and General Assembly, sheriffs, coroners, county clerks and surrogates of counties and all other officers now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of the whole State or of any county thereof, shall be held every second year, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. All elections for justices of the peace and all and any municipal officers, as distinguished from State and county officers as hereinbefore provided, now or hereafter necessary to be chosen by the electors of any city, borough, town, township, village or subdivision thereof, or any municipality of this State, except counties, shall be held every second year on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, beginning anno domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

14. Except as herein provided with relation to the office of Senators, all officers filling any elective office at the time these amendments take effect shall continue in the exercise of the duties thereof according to their respective commissions or terms of office, and until their successors may be elected and qualified under the provisions of these amendments, and all officers whose terms of office would expire after these amendments take effect and prior to the election and qualification of their successors in office, at the election for the respective offices first held under the provisions of these amendments, shall continue in office until their successors can be elected and qualified, at the election for such office or offices to be held next after these amendments take effect, according to the provisions hereof.

The Legislature shall pass all necessary laws to arrange the terms of office of all statutory elective officers so that said terms may be in harmony with these amendments, and to carry into effect the provisions hereof.

These amendments, if adopted, shall take effect and go into operation on the first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Supreme Court, as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI. of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The Justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 9.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the ayes and nayes taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months prior to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county, to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State:

Amend by striking out paragraph seven, section four, article four, and insert in place thereof the following:

7. Members of the Senate shall receive, annually, the sum of one thousand dollars, and members of the General Assembly shall receive, annually, the sum of ten hundred dollars during the time for which they shall have been elected and while they shall hold their office, and no other allowance or emolument, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever. The President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the General Assembly shall, in virtue of their offices, receive an additional compensation, equal to one-third of their allowance as members.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"There's a filly for yer life," exclaimed the trainer rapturously, as he opened gently the door of Lucretia's box stall. "There's the straightest filly iver looked through a halter," he continued, putting his arm with the gentleness of a woman over the brown mare's beautiful neck. "Come here, ould girl," he said coaxingly, as he drew the haltered head toward the visitors.

Mortimer looked with interest at the big, comfortable box stall, littered a foot deep with bright, clean, yellow straw. How contented and at home the mare apeared! It seemed almost a complete recompense, this attentive care, for the cruelty he imagined race horses suffered.

"You don't tie her up?" he asked.

"Tie her up!" ejaculated Mike, a fine Celtic scorn in his voice, "I'd rather tie up a wife—if I had one."

Lucretia's black nozzle came timidly forward, and the soft, velvety upper lip snuggled Allis' cheek.

"She knows ye, Miss," said Mike. "That's the way wit' horses—they're like children; they know friends, an' ye can't fool thim. Now she's sizin' ye up, Mister," as Lucretia sniffed suspiciously at Mortimer's chin, keeping a wary eye on him. "She'll know if ye like horses or not, an' I'd back her opinion agin 50 min's oths."

Allis watched with nervous interest the investigation. Lucretia seemed turning the thing over in her mind, trying to think it out. There was some mystery about this newcomer. Evidently she did not distrust him entirely, else she would have put her ears back a trifle and turned away with a little impatient warning shake of her delicate head. She always turned in that cross manner from Shandy, the stable boy. She had also discovered that the visitor was not completely a horseman; she did not investigate his pockets, nor put her head over his shoulder, as she would have done with Mr. Porter or Mike, or even with one who was a stranger, as was Mortimer, had she felt the unmistakable something which conveyed to her mind that he was of the equine brotherhood.

"Lucretia has found you out," said Allis presently. "You do like horses; she knows it."

"Oh, I like animals, I don't deny," Mortimer answered, "but I know very little about them—nothing about race horses."

"Mike frowned and looked disparagingly at the visitor. "He must be a quare duck," he muttered to himself.

But with startling inconsistency he explained: "There's many like ye, sir, only they don't know it, that's all; the woods is full av thim. Would ye like to give the filly a carrot, Miss?" he added, turning to Allis. "I'll bring some."

When he returned Allis gave one to Lucretia, then they passed to the next stall.

Diablo's head was tied high in a corner of the stall, for Shandy, the boy, was hard at work on him with a double hand of straw, rubbing him down. The boy kept up a peculiar whistling noise through his parted lips as he rubbed, and Diablo snapped impatiently at the halter-shank with his great white teeth as though he resented the operation.

Mortimer gazed with enthusiasm at the shining black skin, that glistened like satin, or watered silk. Surely there was excuse for people loving thoroughbreds. It was an exhilaration even to look at that embodiment of physical development. Somehow or other Mortimer felt that though the living creature before him was only a horse, yet nature's laws were being adhered to, and the result was a reward of physical perfection and enjoyment of life. He began to feel that a man, or even a woman—it was the subtle presence of the woman at his side that made him involuntarily interject this clause into his thoughts—yes, even a woman of high moral attributes might find the most healthy form of interested amusement in watching the superb development of horses that were destined for no other purpose than to race and beget sons and daughters of the same wondrous stamina and courage and speed.

As Shandy swept his wisp of straw along the sensitive skin of Diablo's stomach, the latter shrank from the tickling sensation, and lashed out impatiently with a powerful hind leg.

"He's not cross at all just," explained Mike; "he's bluffin', that's all. Shure a child could handle him if they'd only go the right way about it."

Then he leaned over and whispered in an aside to the visitors—"Bot' t'umbs up!" (this was Mike's favorite oath). "Diablo hates that b'y an' some day he'll do him up, mark my words."

"Here, Shandy," he cried, turning to the rubber, "loose the black's head an' turn him round."

Mortimer almost shrank with apprehension for the boy, for Diablo's ears were back on his flat, tapering neck, and his eyes looking back at them, were all white, save for the intense, blue-shimmered pupil. To Mortimer that look was the incarnation of evil hatred. But the boy unsnapped the halter-shank without hesitation, and Diablo, more inquisitive than angry, came mincingly toward them, nodding his head somewhat defiantly, as much as to say that the nature of the interview would depend altogether upon their good behavior.

"See that!" ejaculated Mike; "see how he picks out the best friend the stable's got."

Diablo had stretched his lean head down, and was trying to nibble with gentle lip the carrot Allis held half hidden behind her skirt. There was none of Lucretia's timidity in Diablo's approach; it was full of an assumption of equality.

"They're all like that when Miss Allis is about," explained Mike; "there never would be a bad horse if the stable b'ys worked the same way. Tie him up, Shandy," he added. "Even the jockeys spoil their mounts." Gaynor continued in a monotone: "the horses'll gallop better for women any time—they treat them gentler, that's why. Miss Allis'd take Luzanne, or the black, or the little mare, and get a better race out av thim than any jock I've seen ridin' hereabout."

"Mike," exclaimed Allis, "you flatter me; you almost make me wish that I were a jockey."

Union County Court of Common Pleas.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments for Street Improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Thomas J. Hughes, Harry B. MacDonald and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the twentieth day of May, 1908, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinances of said city specified in said order, (said ordinances being also hereinafter specified) said improvements being the macadamizing of Park Terrace, from the easterly curb line of Belvidere Avenue to the westerly curb line of Berkeley Avenue;

Berkeley Avenue, from the southerly curb line of Park Terrace to the southwesterly curb line of Leland Avenue;

Webster Place, from the southerly curb line of Putnam Avenue to a point 183 feet north of the northerly side line of Watchung Avenue;

Berckman Street, from the southeasterly crosswalk of South Avenue to the northwesterly crosswalk of East Seventh Street;

Richmond Street, from the southerly crosswalk of Putnam Avenue to the northerly crosswalk of Watchung Avenue;

Kensington Avenue, from the southerly crosswalk of Watchung Avenue to the macadamizing already constructed on Prospect Avenue;

Division Street, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fifth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Sixth street;

John Street, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Seventh Street;

West Second Street, from the southwesterly curb line of Liberty Street to the northeasterly curb line of Plainfield Avenue;

Randolph Road, from the centre line of Arlington Avenue to the bridge over Cedar Brook;

Arlington Place, from the southwesterly curb line of Park Avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Arlington Avenue;

Cottage Place, from the northeasterly curb line of Washington Street to the southwesterly curb line of Richmond Street;

Park Lane, from the easterly curb line of Woodland Avenue to the westerly curb line of Belvidere Avenue;

Elmwood Place, from the southeasterly curb line of West Front Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Second Street;

College Place, from the southeasterly curb line of West Eighth Street to the northwesterly crosswalk at West Ninth Street;

Denmark Road, from the present macadam on Berkeley Avenue, southeastly 381 feet;

Sycamore Street, from the southeasterly curb line of East Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of East Fifth Street;

Hillside Avenue, from the present macadam at Evergreen Avenue to a point 540 feet south thereof;

West End Avenue, from the northwesterly crosswalk at West Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

under the ordinances of said city entitled

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved Dec. 15, 1905;

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 5, 1906;

"A Supplement to an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits,' approved July 5, 1906," approved April 1, 1907; and

"An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved May 16, 1907;

which ordinances were adopted under and by virtue of the act of the legislature entitled, "An act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and maps prepared by the city surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the cost of the whole work under said ordinances, the portions assessed upon the city at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the city at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that the said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the Twelfth day of October, 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the court can attend to the same, at the court house in the city of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.

The Garments

Our present collection of tailored suits eclipses, both in variety of choice and actual beauty, anything that we have attempted in seasons gone. The Directoire made and its charming modifications of course prevail, while the materials, the trimmings and the exquisite colorings form a combination of excellence which you will find impossible to resist. The costumes and wraps are likewise the loveliest of their kind and reflect in every detail the extreme good taste and exclusiveness for which this great store is renowned. . . . .

NEWARK MANAGER AFTER "CLIF" RANDOLPH.

Clifford Randolph, who has been pitching such fine ball for the Clinton Avenues for the past two years, has received a contract from Manager Stallings, of the Newark Eastern League Club, and although he has not made up his mind whether to sign it or not, the chances are strongly in favor of his doing so. He will be in no particular hurry in fixing his signature as there is plenty of time. If he decides to join the Newarks next spring he will be given a thorough tryout and every opportunity to make good.

By many fans Randolph is conceded to be the best local twirler in Plainfield and his fine work in the box has clearly demonstrated this. He has won a majority of his games, and he has faced some of te best teams in his class in the State. It has been the opinion that Randolph would not remain with the Clinton Avenues longer than this season. He promised to do that, but would not give any decision beyond that time. If properly handled he should have no trouble in traveling in Eastern League company and his friends here expect that he will land a good berth.

Local Birds Win Many Prizes.

The Orpingtons from the Sunswick Poultry Farm, at South Plainfield, received these prizes at the Allentown Fair: Nine firsts, six seconds, four thirds and one fourth prize. They also were awarded thirty-six ribbons, the $50 challenge cup for a Buff, the special for a Buff, two gold specials for whites, the $50 challenge trophy for black, as well as the fine cup presented by the Allentown Fair Association for the best bird in the entire show, there being more than three thousand exhibited.

ENDEAVORERS' PROGRAM

Three Days' Session at Atlantic City Will Include Important Meetings.

STUDY CLASSES' SESSIONS.

New Jersey Christian Endeavor Societies to Deliberate on October 7, 8 and 9.

For the three days of the twenty-second annual convention of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union a varied and interesting program has been prepared. The convention will be held at Atlantic City, opening Wednesday, October 7, and closing on Friday night, October 9. Details are in the hands of committees from the Atlantic City C. E. Union, the city union of Atlantic City and the program committee, of which Rev. Dr. P. T. Pockman, of New Brunswick, is chairman.

The sessions will be held on the steel pier. Members of the reception committee wearing badges will meet all trains arriving in Atlantic City between 8:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. each day of the convention. Delegates are requested to make themselves known to members of this committee, who will see that they are directed to the headquarters of the registration committee at the First Baptist church, Pacific avenue, where badges may be secured and from which delegates will be escorted to the auditorium on the pier. There will be no registration fee charged this year.

Both the Central and Pennsylvania roads have granted a reduced rate of one and three-fifths on the certificate plan. For persons in this vicinity the amount saved is so trivial as to be of no advantage.

The program for the three days include several addresses by prominent men, though there are not so many of such addresses as in previous years. Instead there are study classe in committee work, a question box, open parliaments and other features which will make it in a measure a school of methods. It will be a "working" convention.

The provisional program follows

Wednesday, October 7.

HOPE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS DELIBERATE

The teachers of Hope Chapel Sunday-school met last night at the home of the superintendent, G. H. Condict on Central avenue, to discuss plans for the year and, in particular, to arrange for the Rally day services to be held next Sunday. A plan of giving banners to the classes having best records in atendance and in bringing in new members was adopted. A committee was appointed to arrange for welcoming and enrolling the new members who might come on Rally Day. Many other matters of interest to the school were discussed, and a most enjoyable social evening followed.

Beside the Rally services of the Sunday-school, Hope chapel will have special rally day services in the church next Sunday, both in the morning and the evening. The evening service will be conducted by the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society. The service will not differ greatly from that usually held Sunday evenings, except that the young people will do most of the speaking, and will be in charge. The song service will be especially emphasized.

Sunday will be the seventh anniversary of Rev. L. R. Howard's coming to Hope, which gives additional reason for special features at the church services. In the seven years of Mr Howard's pastorate many changes have taken place at the chapel. One hundred and ninety-one have been added to he church roll, and one hundred and eighteen lost therefrom, making a net gain of seventy-three There have been one hundred and twenty-two baptisms, seventy-seven weddings and one hundred and twenty-one funerals. In the buildings there has been some notable changes an addition practically every year. A great variety of clubs and classes have been organized, many of them continuing still, and many others having been kept up to meet a special need, or as long as competent leaders could be had for them, and then disbanded. The object has been to be doing all that could be done for the community, with the resources at command, all of the time.

Following is a list of some of the organizations in active existence at the chapel and the officers:

Ladies' Aid Society, president, Mrs Robert Hanghliter; Ladies Missionary Society, president, Mrs. G. Herbert Condict; Ways and Means Committee, chairman, James Penny; Y. P. S. C. E., president, Miss Bertha Jones; Junior Boys' Club, leaders, George Whyte and James Penny; Boys' Club, president, Clinton Firstbrook, leader, G. H. Condict; Young Men's Club, president, Frank M. Rimmer; Men's Club, president, Thomas Hendry; Church choir, leader and organist, Mrs. L. B. Howard. Superintendent of Sunday-school, G. Herbert Condict; assistant superintendent, Ira W. Travell.

The Sunday-school has fifty-one teachers to look after its needs and yet the call is out for more teachers.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AT RUTGERS.

Herman Newmark, of this city, has just entered the freshman class at Rutgers College, after only one year of work in the Plainfield High School. He was graduated from the Stillman Grammar School just a year ago. During his one year in the high school he did extra work, taking six subjects instead of four. He studied other subjects during the summer, and this fall passed all his entrance examinations, except solid geometry and physics. This is the record time through the high school to college.

Harry Srager, who is now a senior at Rutgers, entered college after two years' high school work, and Isidore Kunzman this year goes to college without entrance conditions, with thre years of high school work in his preparation. Many other pupils have made college entrance in three years; very few in two years, and only the one in one year's time.

Will Discuss Many Topics.

The October meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the rooms on Park avenue, tomorrow night. The following subjects will be presented for discussion: Adoption of revised constitution, plans for year's work, postoffice site, exhibition of a new adding machine by representatives of a company desiring to locate here, the trunk sewer project and transportation to and from South Plainfield and Metuchen. It is earnestly requested that all members and any others interested will attend.

"An Old Town by the Sea."

"An Old Town by the Sea," will be the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given at Hope chapel, Friday night, October 9, at 8 o'clock by Rev. L. R. Howard. A nominal admission fee will be charged.

COUNIHAN AT WAR WITH BILL POSTING CO

W. J. Counihan and M. J. Shannon, proprietors of the Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy, and the Newark Bill Posting Company, are at war and the first real battle will be fought in the district court there tomorrow. The former claims that the Newark company tears down bills which they post, while the latter avers that the theatre people damage their lithographs and post on their boards.

Saturday night there was trouble over posting on the boards at Reardon's store and an arrest followed. The theatrical men's counsel in court yesterday told of the war between his clients and the Newark company and said that Messrs. Counihan & Shannon were the only people in the east who had nerve enough to buck the Newark company and start a plant of their own.

Mr. Stricker said that the Newark Bill Posting Company were doing all they could to get even and had even sent letters to theatrical companies that the Perth Amboy bill posting was not done properly. The counsel also stated that at least twelve of his clients' billboards since the present trouble had been maliciously defaced.

The question as to whom has a right to the privilege of the boards in question will be threshed out tomorrow, and the case of the Newark Bill Posting Company for trespassing and malicious mischief, was adjourned until after the district court case, as the result of the criminal charge depends on Judge Lyon's decision. The police court case was set for 8 o'clock Friday morning.

DR. MITCHELL GOES TO CHICAGO CHARGE

Rev. Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell a former pastor of the First M. E. church, this city, but more recently pastor of the First M. E. church, of Cleveland, where he performed a great work, has assumed the pastorate of St. James' M. E. church, Chicago, succeeding Bishop Quayle. The new charge is one of the largest and most important in the West.

Dr. Mitchell's pastorate in Cleveland has been longer than that of any other Methodist minister in the city. The first half of it was spent in the old First church, Euclid avnue and East Ninth street. The building of the new structure and removal to the present location, marking memorable epochs in his work.

On Thursday night, September 24 the members of the Cleveland church gave Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell a farewel reception. The edifice was thronged with people all of whom extended their best wishes to the pastor and his wife in their new field of labor.

Dr. Mitchell was pastor of the First M. E. church, this city, from 1888 to 1892, and he was eminently successful in his work here.

ALEXANDER IRVINE TO SPEAK AT Y. M. C. A.

Alexander Irvine, author, preacher and teacher, will be the speaker at the first men's meting of the fall series to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "The Influence of Books on Character." The remarkable results which have attended Mr. Ivrine's work as a Sunday evening speaker at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth avenue, New York, mark him as one of the religious leaders of the time. His preaching has attracted to this church one of the most cosmopolitan congregations in New York.

Highly criticised at first Mr. Irvine is now regarded even in the most conservative circles as a leader in the forward movement going on in the city churches. Mr. Irvine is a frequent contributor to the standard magazines. The current number of "Success" is featured by his article on "A Church Battling for Progress." Special music will be furnished at Sunday's meeting by the association orchestra under the direction of M. A. Korff.

John E. Watson a Benedict.

Local relatives and friends were notified by letter today that John E. Watson, of Grant avenue, and Miss Nancy Stair, of Fonda, N. Y., had been married Monday. The young couple are now on their honeymoon but will return to Plainfield within the next few days. The announcement came as a great surprise as Mr. Watson gave no hint of his intentions when he went away.

Junior Class Elects.

These officers were elected by the Junior Class of the Plainfield High School, yesterday: President, Harry VanZandt; vice-president, Howard Runyon; secretary and treasurer, Miss Margaret VanZandt.

SOCIETIES PLAN PARADE

Many Catholic Organizations to Be in Line for Mt. St. Mary's Dedication.

REVIEW BY BISHOP M'FAUL.

Societies at Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and Other Places Will Send Big Delegations.

At a joint meeting of committees from Catholic societies in Plainfield, North Plainfield and surrounding towns, held in T. A. B. hall, last night, final arrangements were made for attending the dedication ceremonies of Mount St. Mary's College on October 18. All the organizations will be present in a body and will participate in a parade in the city and borough previous to marching to the "Picture Lands," where the new building is located. Appropriate music will be engaged by the local societies and those coming from other places will bring their own.

The organizations that were represented at last night's meeting and which will have practically their entire membership at the ceremonies, were the following: Watchung Council, No. 552; Division No. 4, A. O. H., St. Mary's T. A. B. Society and St. Mary's Holy Name Society, of Plainfield; St. Joseph's Holy Name Society, of North Plainfield; The Polak and Italian societies, of Plainfield, North Plainfield and South Plainfield; and all the Catholic societies at Somerville, Bound Brook, Raritan, Perth Amboy, Westfield and Cranford, and delegations from the Knights of Columbus at Elizabeth and New Brunswick.

The parade will form at St. Joseph's church in the borough and after marching through several streets will proceed to the college. The societies will be reviewed there by Right Rev. Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, who is to be in charge of the dedication. Other prominent dignitaries in the dioceses of Newark and Trenton will be in attendance. The societies will be addressed by the bishop before the return to Plainfield is commenced.

The college building is practically completed at the present time and has been occupied for several weeks. It is one of the handsomest buildings in Somerset county and the total cost of erection will be close to a quarter of a million dollars.

PURE COMEDY PREVAILS IN "TIME, PLACE, GIRL."

A large advance sale is reported by Manager Counihan for "The Time, The Place and The Girl," the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre for Friday night. It is a comedy drama set to music, with its acting possibilities enhanced by half a dozen unique but thoroughly consistent characterizations.

For instance there is the philosophical young "sport" with a mine of wisdom expressed in clean and down-to-date slang, the nurse, worldly-wise but withal a gentle woman; the proud and petulant heiress who is tamed by the sport; the Italian laborer who provides much sentiment; the coal heaver who is "just going to be married," and the classy man-about-town whose wild oats are harvested as gamely as they were sown freely.

With these types cleverly exploited the production keeps safely out of the conventional rut. It is distinguished by comedy rather than clowning, though a bit or two of burlesque are interpolated to heighten the comedy.

Odd Fellows to Entertain.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., will hold its first entertainment for the fall and winter tonight. The lodge plans to hold one entertainment every month and only the best talent from the metropolis will be engaged. All Odd Fellows will be welcome. The entertainment committee comprises A. J. Ford, chairman; D. C. Patterson and Geo. R. Laird.

Endeavor Union Meeting.

A special meeting of the congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held Thursday evening, October 1, at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. Plans for the State convention and the fall rally meeting will be discussed. An announcement of importance in regard to the Union county Union will be made.

East Second Street Improvement.

Woolston & Buckle, who own the property at 132 East Second street, adjoining the Hand stables, have planned to tear down the house now encumbering the lot and erect a large brick structure to be occupied as a livery by Harry McDonald. The old building was purchased today by Alex Kane and he has contracted to have it razed by October 15.

NEW JERSEY MISSIONARY INSTITUTE TO MEET HERE

The North Jersey Missionary Institute which has heretofore held a three days' institute in North Jersey, has planned this fall to have a series of one day institutes in six different cities in this part of the State, the general management and scope to be the same. The cities decided upon are Paterson, Jersey City, Newark, Orange, Elizabeth and Plainfield. The date for the meeting to be held at the First M. E. church, this city, is Friday, November 13.

The First M. E. church was favored because of its central location and Miss Harriette R. Halloway, executive secretary for Plainfield, has asked the officers of the church for the privilege of holding the institute there. The session will convene about 2 o'clock in the afternoon with an intermission at 6 o'clock for supper to be served at the Park Club. An evening session will be held for two hours work, followed by steropticon or moving pictures.

The membership is to be drawn from the churches of Plainfield and possibly, if they desire, Dunellen. Sunday-school officers and teachers; officers and members of Young People's organizations, Women's Missionary Societies and all other similar organizations are desired, while pastors of churches will be welcome. The purpose of the institute is to deepen and arouse the missionary motives and aims, especially among the younger members of the church and to help promote increased study of missions.

ENTRIES ANNOUNCED FOR SATURDAY MEET

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club will hold a matinee race-meet at the driving park, Saturday afternoon, when a card of four races will be given. Suitable prizes will be offered in each event and the club will charge a nominal admission fee. Arrangements have been made to have stages meet all trolley cars on Park avenue, thus affording easy access to the park.

The four classes have all been filled with well-known horses and fine sport is assured all who witness the races. There will be one running race, which has been so popular with the patrons of the park. The entries are as follows:

Class A—Lady Onward, William Gross; Jos McGregor, George Forgerson; Zipp, William Huda; Ivan hoe, William Huff. Class B—Who Is It, John Osborn; New Haven, F W. Suydam; Tom Sharkey, William Gross; Fred V., Frank Irving; Oracle, Charles C. Brower; Maud C., R L. Edwards. Class C—Lady Sidnut C. S. Smith; Benjamin Butler, Henry Uhrahahn; Sidney Ieland, J. B. Guttridge; Asia, Phil. Jenner; Katie M. Al. DeNise. Running race—Bowery Lass, Cornelius McCarthy; Polly Watt, Leslie Tingley; Slippery Elm Thomas Brantingham; The Conscript, Marcus Hoyt; Bah Squada, Harry Evans.

WOMAN IMPOSTER CAUGHT BY THE POLICE.

Patrolman Charles Flynn this morning caught the woman who has been going about the city bogusly soliciting contributions for the Day Nursery. She was arrested after he had recognized her from the description furnished and learned that she had asked for money in two East Front street stores.

The woman was taken to police headquarters. She at first denied being an imposter but afterward broke down and admitted that she is the person who has been getting money on the Day Nursery plea for several weeks. A book found on her had "Day Nursery" inscribed on the front and it contained the names of a number of people with the contributions they had made. They amounted to $9 in all.

The woman had no excuse to offer for her action. She said she had a husband and was not in needy circumstances. She would have been locked up but the Day Nursery officials refused to press a complain against her when they were notified.

The woman was taken before Judge Runyon this afternoon and released after he had told her but for the fact that she was in the hands of charitably disposed women she would be held for the Grand Jury.

—Neuman Brothers' store is headquarters for fruits and vegetables. An exceptional big assortment tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, of Lyons Farm, are enjoying a month's pleasure trip to Montana and California. On their return they will stop at several places of interest before reaching home.

MISS JESSIE CAMPBELL BRIDE OF WM. H. THORN

One of the prettiest fall weddings of the present season took place at the home of Mrs. Alexander Campbell, of East Second street, yesterday afternoon, when her daughter, Miss Jessie Scott Campbell, was made the wife of William Henry Thorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guillermo Thorn. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and was witnessed by fifty relatives and friends. The bridal party stood before a bank of plants and ferns in the parlor, surmounted by the English and American colors, the bride being a former resident of Scotland. A profusion of dahlias, tastefully arranged, formed the decorations in the parlor, dining room and hall.

Miss Campbell was given in marriage by her brother, David Campbell, and was attended by Miss Helen M. Apgar, of East Front street, as bridesmaid, and Mrs. Walter Buchanan, of Newark, sister of the groom, as matron of honor. She was gowned in white chiffon batiste, trimmed with point lace, and carried bride roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Apgar's gown was of pink chiffon over white filet lace and Mrs. Buchanan wore brown silk trimmed with filet lace. The former carried pink carnations and the latter white.

The groom's attendant was Arthur Campbell, brother of the bride, acting as best man, while the ushers were William Campbell and Elmer Squier. As the bridal party was assembling, the Lohengrin chorus was rendered by Miss Theresa Kahrmann. The ring ceremony was used.

With the words pronounced that made the young couple man and wife, they were showered with congratulations during a reception that followed. While the wedding supper was being served, the bride cut a wedding cake that had been baked and sent to her by a school chum in Scotland. It was a very large one but despite its bulk was delivered in Plainfield without a break. The cake was greatly admired and everyone sought a piece as a souvenir.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorn left early in the evening for a trip to the Catskills, getting away from the house in a perfect deluge of rice. On returning they will reside at 208 Jackson avenue, Netherwood, where a furnished home awaits their coming.

Both young people are widely known in the city and borough, a fact that was attested by the great array of presents they received. It included a dinner set of 150 pieces given by the clerical staff at the local postoffice of which the groom is a member. The bride presented her attendants with gold and pearl brooches while the best man and ushers received pearl stick pins from the groom.

HARVEST HOME SUCCESS AT THE S. A. BARRACKS.

The harvest festival services just concluded at the Salvation Army hall have been very successful. The hall was tastefully decorated by Captain A. Hopkins and his workers with an appropriate display of flowers and fruits, etc., which had been generously donated. The services were attended by appreciative audiences.

Miss Emily C. March, the evangelist of this city, will conduct a great evangelistic service in the hall next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Baptists to Convene Here.

The East New Jersey Baptist Sunday-school Association will hold its annual convention at the First Baptist church on Tuesday, October 20. There will be three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening and the women of the entertaining church will provide dinner and supper for the visiting delegates. About 250 members of the association are expected to attend the convention and a particularly strong program is now being prepared which will treat every phase of Sunday-school work Several religious speakers of prominence will also take part in the convention

Mrs. E. C. Brokaw Injured.

While Mrs. Edward C. Brokaw, of Grove street, was seeing a friend off on the trolley at West Front street and Central avenue yesterday afternoon, a rig owned and driven by Mrs. I. C. Reed, of Warrenville, came along and one wheel of the wagon passed over Mrs. Brokaw's foot, slightly injuring it. Friends, who happened to be near, assisted Mrs. Brokaw to her home. Mrs. Reed afterward explained that she did not see Mrs. Brokaw until it was too late to prevent the accident.

Street Committee to Meet.

The Councilmanic street committee will hold a meeting on Thursday night to prepare some business to be presented at the October meeting of the Common Council.

ATTERBURY JOLTS THEM

Plainfielder's Liberal Ideas Shock Prohibitionists at Excise Hearing.

DEMANDS FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Bishop Line's Solution of Liquor Problem Is High License and Strict Regulation.

Albert H. Atterbury, of this city, who was born at the "Hermitage," on West State street, Trenton, and who yet holds large land interests there, created a sensation when he addressed the State Excise Commission at Trenton yesterday. He has long been noted for his liberal views concerning municipal affairs. Not long ago he made a bold stand for Sunday golf playing at the Plainfield Country club.

Mr. Atterbury advocated local option, but in illustrating his points he nearly took away the breath of the prohibitionists. He began by declaring that the commission, while having listened to much testimony, had heard no new things.

Local option, he said, would bring peace and quiet. He said he had recently visited Niagara Falls on a Sunday and found the bars all wide open, yet there was no evidence of crime, vice or disorder. He declared that Coney Island, where the same conditions exist, is as respectable and orderly on a Sunday as any similar resort in the country.

Mr. Atterbury contended that the cause of conditions of affairs in Atlantic City, Hoboken and Paterson was that an unpopular law was being evaded.

"If it is wrong to sell liquor on Sunday, why," asked Mr. Atterbury, "is it not wrong to sell it on Saturday?"

He argued that municipalities should regulate their own affairs and spurned the idea of a State Excise Board, saying such a body would lean toward one of the political parties.

Mr. Atterbury thought the idea of sending militia to Atlantic City to keep the bars closed a huge joke.

"Who would guard the soldiers while they were guarding the bars?" asked Mr. Atterbury, and even the prohibitionists smiled when he added:

"Think of sending a military company of Germans from Hoboken down there on that kind of duty."

Mr. Atterbury contended that the reason grand juries do not indict is because the law is unpopular. He urged local option as the only rational substitute for the law, "the enforcement of which is saturated with bribery, perjury and corruption."

Soon after completing his address Mr. Atterbury left for home. Had he remained until the end of the session he would have heard answers to his argument that would have convinced him that he had shocked many of his hearers.

Dr. H. A. Cotton, medical director of the State Hospital, in Trenton, who had been asked by the commission to express his views as to the part liquor plays in insanity, delivered an address which was one of the most interesting features of the day. Incorporated in it was a paper, contributed recently by the physician to the American Journal of Insanity, entitled "Alcohol as an Etiological Factor in Mental Diseases."

In reply to Mr. Backes, the physician said that "third rail," or highly adulterated whiskey, was more pernicious in its effects than pure whiskey. He declared that the man who was not strong mentally was more likely to become insane by drinking than the man of higher intellect. Whiskey, he said, lowered the thinking power and that its effect generally was bad except when taken in medicinal doses.

Dr. Cotton suggested to the commission that a law protecting patients discharged from hospitals from the temptation of drink would be a good thing.

"And if we have prohibition," thundered a tall man with long whiskers, "we will need no such law."

Bishop Edward S. Lines, of the Newark Protestant Episcopal Diocese was the chief speaker. He said in part:

Bishop Lines's Views.

Bishop Edwin S. Lines, of the Newark diocese of the Episcopalian church, in his address to the board, said:

"My only right to present any opinion before you is my great interest in the subject and because I think it one of the great moral and public questions of the time. I have lived all my life among those engaged in the liquor business. I have ministered in their families for many years, and I have had as deep interest in them and their children as in any other of my parishioners. I have tried to appreciate their point of

Misses' Suits at 15.00

MANY WOULD ASK YOU $25.

We would be justified in advertising these suits as worth $25 for they have every element of goodness that would enter into suits at that price—cloths, trimmings, tailoring and style. But we make these suits leaders of the stock at the popular price of $15

Made of splendid Herringbone Serges in green, brown, navy, wine, smoke and black; with ¾-length coats, semi-fitting; collar, sleeves and pockets braid or satin trimmed; lined with gray satin; skirts in the newest models; sizes 14 to 18, large enough for small-sized women; perfect fitting; beautifully finished suits, for only ... $15

Boys' School Suits

The modern boy likes to be as neatly dressed as do the men; some of them are even more particular—and who objects to a tidy-looking boy? What parent will not encourage them to be well dressed?

"Our Own" Boys' $5 Suits are here in a wide variety of styles so that you can equip the boy in the style that pleases him best.

Yoke Norfolk Suits are included in this line—the only suit of the kind offered in the city for as little as $5.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church, is arranging a "Five and Ten Cent" sociable, to be held on Thursday, October 8. The numbers five and ten, will enter into all the events of the evening.

Willie Schenck resumed school today after an absence of a couple of weeks. He fell from his father's hay mow, and severely injured his head.

At the prayer meeting in the Baptist church last night, the pastor spoke on "The Story of the Bible."

William Voorhees, of Brooklyn has returned home after visiting at Chamberlain House.

The New Brunswick team which will meet the Clinton Avenues on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, will lineup as follows: VanVecthen, c; Rowland, p; Harkins, 1b; O'Rourke, 2b; Hickey, ss; Grey or McQuade, 3b; Dru. Case, lf; Harding, cf; Nolan, rf—captain. With this strong lineup the locals should have their hands full in defeating the Middlesex county club. The Clinton Avenues will lineup as usual, with Randolph and Serry as the battery. Boelzley will play in the outer garden. It will be quite an expense to bring New Brunswick here and for that reason the Plainfield team expects generous support.

The Rahway team has disbanded for the season, having concluded its schedule of games. It was expected that the club would play Clinton Avenue here on Saturday, but owing to the serious illness of Armstrong, one of its best players, this was found impossible.

Another local team to close the season is Scotch Plains. This aggregation has had a successful year of it and while it is regretted that Manager Frentz could not see his way clear to play Clinton Avenue the deciding game, perhaps an opportunity will be given next season to defeat the down-the-line boys.

Next week will wind up the National and American League seasons, after one of the most exciting races in the history of the game in this country. If the Giants win the pennant it will be a well deserved honor.

The Newark Eastern League Club has withdrawn its protest against certain games played by Baltimore in which it was charged that the latter used an ineligible player.

At the dinner to be given the Giants by the Friars on Sunday night, there will be speeches by Mathewson, Tenney, Mayor C. G. McClellan, Digby Bell and others.

DeVore, the clever fielder on the Newark Eastern League Club, has joined the Giants, and is occasionally used as a pinch hitter and to run bases for the regular players.

There are many fans who believe that President Pulliam will eventually award the disputed Giants-Chicago game to the former. This opinion is based on a sense of fairness.

FOOTBALL.

The Holy Cross football squad set up its goal posts on the Cricket Field yesterday afternoon, and put in an hour's good practice. The boys are showing up well and promise to make a good record on the gridiron this season under the direction of Head Coach Frank Emmons.

C. K. Garretson, manager of the Somerville A. A., would like to arrange games with team averaging 140 pounds. Communications should be addressed to C. K. Garretson, 49 West High street, Somerville.

Outside of the local school football teams, Plainfield will probably not be represented on the gridiron this season. In past year's the Alis or Orange F. C., have furnished good games, but there are no signs of such a team this season.

LIBERAL BEQUESTS OF JAS. R. SAYRE, JR.

The will of James R. Sayre, Jr., which was offered for probate in Newark yesterday, bequeathing $50,000 to the Newark Young Women's Christian Association, $40,000 to the Hospital for Women and Children, $30,000 to the Newark Christian Refuge, $30,000 to the New Jersey Temperance Society, and $20,000 each to the Newark Female Charitable Society, the German Theological Seminary of Newark, the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church, and Newark Presbytery. The German Presbyterian church of Sayreville, N. J., recives $18,000.

The testator's personal bequests aggregate nearly $1,000,000. James S. Higbie receives $200,000, and there are more than a dozen bequests ranging from $50,000 to $20,000.

The executors and trustees are James S. Higbie, David H. Merritt and James P. Dusenberry.

All for Just One Kiss.

Paterson, Sept. 30.—When Robert D. Luccia, a butcher, being, it is said, not quite responsible, tried to kiss Miss Julia Purcell, on Main street, last evening, the was pummelled by Daniel Barbour, Miss Purcell's escort; scratched by Miss Purcell, jeered by a crowd, with cries of "Lynch him," and arrested. He was fined $25 in the police court.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Judge Swayze granted an order yesterday for a recount of the primary day vote of Philip W. Grece, of the Fourth district of the Tenth ward, Jersey City, who ran for the Republican nomination for Assembly on the New Idea ticket. Grece claims that the vote received by George L. Record, who was the New Idea candidate for the Congressional nomination, was larger than was reported by the election board.

Benjamin F. Howell, of New Brunswick, was renominated for a seventh term in Congress yesterday afternoon by the Republican convention of the Third District, held at Asbury Park. There was no opposition. Senator Brown, United States Senator Kean and Judge Gaskill, of Ocean, delivered speeches.

The Seventh Congress District Democratic convention will be held in Central Hall at Bloomfield tonight when it is expected E. W. Townsend ("Chimmie Fadden"), of Montclair, will get the nomination as the opponent of R. Wayne Parker, the present Congressman. Former Senator Jas. Smith, Jr., and others prominent in the party are expected to take part.

After a stormy session, lasting five hours, the Republican convention for the Sixth Congress district last night nominated Thomas Foxhall, of Passaic. Each of the three counties in the district had candidates. Passaic county nominated Thomas Foxhall, of Passaic, and George H. Burke, of Paterson. Bergen county named Charles Burrows, of Rutherford, and Major McClave, of Edgewater. Sussex county nominated Judge Huston. Nine ballots were taken before a choice was reached. Foxhall's opponent will be Congressman William Hughes, who was renominated today by the Democrats in convention at Newton.

The Democrats of North Plainfield will meet tomorrow night in Debele's Hall on Chatham street for organization. The call for the meeting has been issued by a committee comprising Walter C. Linbarger, Robert Trewin and George Kirch and all persons interested in the formation of a Democratic club are invited to attend.

Charles N. Fowler has been renominated for Congress by Fifth district Republicans. My! What an opportunity for a good, honest Democrat!—Trenton True American.

General Nelson A. Miles and Admiral Schley will take the stump through the Hoosier State for Bryan and Kern, according to advices reaching Chicago today from La Porte, Indiana.

Public funeral services for Rev. George Reed were held in the Tabernacle, Ocean City, yesterday. Rev. N. J. Wright presided and Rev. Dr. Brunyate delivered an address.

Two more glass furnaces were put into blast at the South Millville works of the Whitall Tatum Company yesterday morning, and a large continuous tank resumed at the upper works.

FALL RECEPTION AT THE LOCAL Y. W. C. A.

The home of the Young Women's Christian Association at 212 East Front street, will be open to the public tomorrow afternoon and evening from 3 until 10 o'clock. Welcome is extended to the public to take this opportunity to see the rooms, the gymnasium, as well as to meet the teachers and obtain information about the classes which are about to open. Members of the association are invited to renew their interest in the winter's work and particularly to bring their friends tomorrow night. Non-members as well are invited to take this opportunity of seeing just what the association has to offer to the young women of Plainfield.

The chairmen of the various committees will be present and ready to answer questions. Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows will be in charge of the refreshments. Miss Elsie Goddard will assume her duties as chairman of the Religious Work committee, and tell of the very attractive Bible classes which will be offered this winter. It is desired that many young women may enter classes for Bible study.

Mrs. W. A. Conner, the chairman of the domestic science department, will be ready to answer questions about the courses in cooking and household economy. She will tell how fortunate the association is in securing as teacher of these courses, Miss Mary Farrell, a graduate of Drexel Institute and lecturer in the University of Pennsylvania. She is an exceptionally fine teacher with good experience and attractive personality. There will be morning, afternoon and evening cooking classes in plain and fancy cooking.

Miss Ethel Titsworth, chairman of the millinery and dressmaking departments, will be at the rooms to tell of this work. Miss Isabel Scarborough comes well recommended as an experienced teacher in practical dressmaking. Morning, afternoon and evening classes will be offered for both beginners and advanced pupils. Miss Edith Capron, who has successfully conducted classes in millinery in Jersey City, is well prepared with training and experience to teach the morning and evening millinery courses. Here is an opportunity for young women to learn to earn or save money by making their own hats.

Native French and German women will have charge of instruction in these languages. Evening classes in English will be offered to foreign speaking young women. Miss Helen Brown, chairman of the language committee, will be in charge of this department. The embroidery classes will be continued under the able direction of Miss Amy Lough, who will be present to meet those interested in needle work; afternoon and evening classes will be offered. The Glee Club will continue with William Holmes as leader and another successful year is anticipated. Registration of twenty-five is necessary for this course.

The gymnasium will be opened both in the afternoon and evening, with members of last year's classes present to show something of the work in this department. The gymnasium has been fitted up with new apparatus, ladders, pulleys and weights, and it is now a well-equipped and well ventilated little building. Tomorrow evening several members of the North Plainfield High School class will give some of the Swedish Folk dances in native costume. Membership in the association allows one to use the library with its six hundred volumes; the sitting rooms and reading rooms; and to attend any social affairs at the home.

Opportunity to register in any classes or to join the association, and a pleasant social time will be given to all who drop in tomorrow afternoon or evening.

PARTY INTERESTED IN "TRUE AMERICAN" SALE.

Democratic leaders, gathered at Trenton yesterday for the State convention, discussed the fact that the True American, long considered the leading Trenton organ of the party in that section of the State, is to be sold at public sale by the receiver, on October 27, a few days prior to election.

Edward L. Katzenbach, a brother of the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate last fall, is the receiver, and some of the leaders think a plan should be devised to keep the paper in line for the Democracy. The receivership proceedings are of a friendly nature, having been instituted by State Committeeman Chas. H. Gallagher, one of the preferred stockholders in the company.

Crimes Commission in Burlington.

Governor Fort's Special Crimes Commission began an investigation yesterday into Burlington county affairs. It is said that the commission has inserted its probe into the conduct of the Mont Holly Fair. The directors of the fair association and other friends of the society have been drawn as grand jurors, and as a result it is not likely that an indictment for gambling will be found.

Baby Smothered In Its Bed.

Mrs. James Cecil Conover, of South Elberon, left her two-months-old baby alone for two hours Monday asleep in bed. Upon her return she found the child smothered to death. Its head had slipped under one of the mattresses.

9:10—Roll call and consecration service, by State president.

Adjournment.

It is probable that a new president and a new secretary will be elected though strong effort is being made to persuade the present officers to continue. John T. Sproull, of Arlington, has been president for five years, during which time he has done splendid service "for Christ and the church," in New Jersey. In these five years he has traveled 15,000 miles in the interests of the work visiting societies and local unions making addresses and organizing.

Miss Ida B. Stephens, of Hacketts town, has been the efficient secretary of the State union for many years doing a prodigious amount of work Hundreds of Christian Endeavorers in New Jersey, many directly and others indirectly, have been greatly helped by Miss Stephens's consecrated personality and her executive ability.

That these two leaders have expressed a desire that their names be not presented to the convention at Atlantic City has become known to some of the workers, and much regret is felt. There is a possibility that for the work's sake they will reconsider the matter. The report of the nominating committee, Rev. Adelbert Chapman, of Hackensack, chairman, will be awaited with interest.

The district secretaries' conference with Miss Stephens on Wednesday morning promises to be an important session. The entire morning, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, will be given to it, and A. J Shantle, State Secretary for Pennsylvania, will assist Miss Stephens. Local and county union leaders are invited to meet with the secretaries for this conference.

The meeting on Wednesday evening will be of a distinctly evangelistic character, and the address will be made by William Phillips Hall, of Hall block signal fame, and who is known as the "business man's evangelist." Frank H. Jacobs, the well-known gospel singer, will be present at this service.

Dr. Pockman is anxious that the convention shall be of benefit not only to the visiting delegates but to the churches of Atlantic City as well. It is expected that the attendance will be large.

President Sproull has issued a letter to societies urging attendance upon the convention and making an earnest appeal for individual service and unselfish devotion in the work of the churches this winter.

ATTERBURY JOLTS THEM

view as regards their business and the question of Sunday selling.

"As far as one can see there will be in the great cities with which we have to do, places where beer and spirits are publicly sold. The suppression of them by prohibition would probably lead to the formation of clubs which could not be controlled, and which would be more demoralizing than saloons. My own idea is that the true policy of the State is to limit the number of licensed places for the sale of beer and spirits in some proportion to the population—say one to 500—which is, I think, the rule in Boston.

"The licensing authority should be in some way separated from politics, so that the giving of licenses would not be something to be fought for at every election. It would seem as if right-minded men of both political parties might agree to this for the sake of their own interests, without regard to political policies.

"One does not like to see the courts overloaded with such duties as giving licenses or appointing excise boards, but the courts seem to be the authority toward which all the people look for fairness and regard for the public good, rather than to city officials."

"Then the purpose should be to keep the business in the hands of he responsible men who are law-abiding and who do not associate evil things with the business."

Work has begun yesterday on the long-promised country road from New Egypt toward Lakewood, six miles of which will be built now. Contractor Butcher is using every available man and team to push its completion before cold weather begins.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Frederick Doriot, last night shot at a man who had broken into his house at Westville, but the man escaped.

The large new factory of the American Tube and Vial Company at Millville is completed, and will be started in a few days.

The fourth-class postmasters of the State will meet in Trenton tomorrow morning. Addresses will be made by Mayor Madden, Congressman Gardner and others.

Moore Brothers' glass factory at Clayton will begin operations Thursday. Pierce & Co.'s plant is already running, and the outlook is for a very prosperous season.

T. W. Rowe, of Toledo, O., secretary of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, was in Millville yesterday to adjust some differences between the workmen and one of the large glass firms.

The certificate of incorporation of the Boar dof Trade of Wildwood-by-the-Sea has been filed in the office of the Cape May county clerk, with sixty trustees chosen from all parts of Five-mile Beach.

The second floor and attic of a building at 153 Michigan avenue, Paterson, owned and occupied by the family of Peter Schaub, a grocer, was gutted by five yesterday afternoon. The loss will reach $2,300.

Rev. Walter S. Maines, who has accepted the pastorate of the Second Reformed church, Paterson, to succeed Rev. Dr. Theodore W. Welles, now pastor emeritus, will be installed next Thursday evening.

At the risk of her own life, Emma Sharp, twelve years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp, of Salem, jumped into the deep Salem creek and rescued her nine-year-old companion, Alice Tussey, from drowning.

High winds last night did considerable damage to decorations along the line of the carnival which began in Camden yesterday, to be continued until tomorrow night, under the direction of the Business Improvement Association.

Threats of bodily injury have been made against Daniel Barbour, of Paterson, who went to the assistance of a girl when she resisted the efforts of an Italian to kiss her while on Main street, that city, last Sunday night.

Trenton May Test Theatre Law.

Proprietors of theatres and moving-picture shows in Trenton propose, it is said, to ignore the act of last winter which prohibits children under sixteen years old from attending such places of amusement when not accompanied by adults because of the decision of Vice-Chancellor Garretson in a New Jersey case that the act is unconstitional. The vice-chancellor contends that the new law is in conflict with the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution in that it exempts day schools, Sunday-schools and churches. It is likely that a case to test the act in a higher court may be instituted soon.

Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, has gone to East Orange, to visit her daughter.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The regular preparatory and missionary meeting will be held at Warren chapel tonight.

An attractive program will be presented at the meeting of the Men's Club of Warren chapel, Friday night.

The members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will tender a reception to Rev. and Mrs. Edward Shaw in the parlors of the church tonight.

The Men's Club, of the First Baptist church, will hold its first fall meeting Monday night, October 12, when plans for the winter will be discussed, and a nominating committee will be appointed to select officers.

During the making of repairs at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church the congregation will meet Sunday mornings at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, an arrangement having been made with the officers of the latter denomination.

"Wild Scotchman" in Frisco.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—After a quarter of a century spent in voluntary exile of the south seas, Thomas Fleming, the original of Stevenson's character, "The Wild Scotchman," arrived here yesterday on the schooner Aerotus, and today arrayed in garments of a fashion he had scarcely seen before, he proceeded to get acquainted with electric cars and other evidences of an advancing civilization. Fleming is a trading agent at Arne Island, one of the Marshalls group, located 150 miles from the nearest white neighborhood. When a boy of fifteen, he left his home in Paisley, Scotland, to sail the seas, and eventually he settled at Arme, where he has remained for twenty-five years. He made the acquaintance of Robert Louis Stevenson years ago, when the author visited the island. Fleming is accompanied by his wife.

John Kriney, of Clinton avenue, is slowly improving from an attack of typhoid fever, under the care of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco's new house on West Seventh street, is nearing completion and he expects to take possession within a short time.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Plainfield People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and disorders.

Plainfield evidence proves this statement.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 West Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull, heavy bearing down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stooping or lifhting, my back became very lame and though I used plasters, they relieved me only for the time being. Finally, on the advice of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and used them. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Well, bopt' t'umbs up! Ye'd av made a good un, Miss, an' that's no disrespect to ye I'm sayin'."

Mortimer smiled condescendingly. Allis' quick eye caught his expression of amused discontent; it angered her. Mike's praise had been practically honest. To him a good jockey was the embodiment of courage and honesty and intelligence; but she knew that to Mortimer it simply meant a phase of life he considered quite outside the pale of recognized respectability.

They visited all the other stalls, eight of them, and listened to Mike's eulogies on the inmates. Coming down the other side of the passage, the last occupied box stall contained Lauzanne.

"Miss Porter'll tell ye about this wan," said Mike, diplomatically. "He's shaped like a good horse, and his sire, old Lazzarone, landed many a purse an' the Suburban, too—won it on three legs, fer he was clean gone in his pins, I'll take me oath to that. He was a good horse—whin he liked. Perhaps Lauzanne'll do the same some day, fer all I know."

There was such a tone of doubt in the trainer's voice that even Mortimer noticed it.

"Yes, Lauzanne is my horse," volunteered Allis. "I even ride him in all his work now, since he took to eating the stable boy."

"And you're not afraid?" asked Mortimer.

For answer the girl slipped quietly into the stall, and going up beside the chestnut, who was standing sullkily with his head in the corner of his box, took him by the ear and turned him gently around.

"He's just a quiet-mannered chap, that's all," she said. "He's a big, lazy, contented old boy," and she laid her cheek against his fawn-colored nozzle. "You see," she explained, "he's got more brains than any of the other horses, and when he's abused he knows it."

"But he's grateful when he's kindly treated," commented Mortimer.

"Yes; that's why I like horses better than men."

"Oh!" the exclamation slipped from Mortimer's lips.

"Mike thinks Lauzanne is a bad horse," the girl said, changing the subject, "but he'll win a big race this coming season. You just keep your eye on Lauzanne. Here's your carrot, old chap," she said, stroking the horse's neck, "and we must go if we're to have that drive. Will you hitch the gray to the buggy for us, Mike?" she asked of Gaynor, as they came out of the stable, "we'll wait here."

As Mike started off there came to their ears a sound of turmoil from Diablo's box; impatient kicks against the boards from the horse, and smothered imprecations from the boy.

"Here that fiend!" the girl exclaimed, and there was wrath in her voice.

"He does seem a bad horse," concurred Mortimer.

"I didn't mean Diablo; it's the boy. It's all his evil doing. Oh, I've only one glove," she exclaimed. "I know where it is, though; that mischievous rascal, Lauzanne, nibbled it from the front of my jacket; I saw him do it, but forgot to pick it up."

"Allow me, Miss Porter; I'll get it for you."

"No; please don't!" with emphasis. As he started back, she laid a detaining hand on his arm. "I'd much prefer to go myself; Lauzanne distrusts strangers and might make trouble."

As the girl entered the stable, Mortimer sauntered on in the direction Mike had gone.

Allis opened the door of Lauzanne's stall, passed in, and searched in the straw for the lost glove.

X.

The noise of strife in Diablo's box had increased. There came the sound of blows on the horse's ribs; a muttered oath, and suddenly a scream of terror from the boy, drowned in an instant by the feorcious battle cry of the enraged stallion. Mortimer, thirty yards away, heard it, and felt his heart stand still; he had never heard anything so demoniac in his life. He turned in such haste that his foot slipped on the frozen earth, and he fell heavily.

At the first sound of blows Allis had started angrily toward Diablo's box. She was at the door when Shandy's cry of terror rang out. For an instant the girl hesitated; what she saw was enough to make a strong man quail. The black stallion was loose; with crunching jaws he had fastened on the arm of Shandy, in the corner of the stall, and was trying to pull the boy down that he might trample him to death. But for a second she faltered; if ever quick action were needed, it was now.

"Back—back, Diablo! back!" she cried, as pushing past the black demon she brought her hunting-crop down with full force between his ears.

Whether it was the sound of his mistress' voice, or the staggering blow, Diablo dropped the boy like a crushed rat and, half rearing, looked viciously at the brave girl.

"Quick! through the hay window!" commanded Allis, standing between Shandy and the horse, and drawing the whip back over her shoulder, ready to give it to Diablo full in the throat should he charge again.

Cowed, the boy clambered through the opening. Enraged at the sight of his assailant's escape, the horse gave another scream of defiance, and sought with striking forefeet and spread jaws to pull down this new enemy. Not until then had Allis thought of calling for help; her one idea had been for the boy's safety.

Like a flash the full peril of the situation dawned upon her. She had seen two stallions fight, and knew that their ferocious natures, once roused, could only be quelled by a force stronger than she possessed. Yes, surely she would be killed, her young life trampled out by the frenzied animal. Incoherently but altogether these thoughts filled her mind; also the knowledge that Mike was beyond hearing.

"Help, Mortimer!" she called.

He heard it as he reached the stable door. Even then he would have been too late had not other rescue come more quickly.

In rushing from Lauzanne's stall Allis had left the door swinging on its hinges. At the first cry of defiance from the black stallion Lauzanne had stretched high his head and sent back, with curled nostril, an answering challenge. Then with ears cocked he had waited for a charge from his natural enemy. When the mingled call of his mistress and Diablo's bugle note came to him, he waited no longer, but rushed across the passage and seized the black horse by the crest just as he was overpowering the girl.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Few, if any, regular theatregoers have not heard of "Girls," the famous Fitch comedy that scored so heavily at Daly's Broadway Theatre where it ran during the summer months, a feat remarkable in itself, for it has been years since any comedy outlived the heated term in the metropolis. Sam S. and Lee Shubert, who staged the production and spent a vast amount of money on it, came in for no little amount of praise from the press, public and fellow managers alike; and now that the play has gone on tour the same amount of interest is being awakened again, and the demand for the play is so great that several companies would be required to meet it. That we are to be favored with the attraction is now an assured fact. The date as announced will be tomorrow night and no doubt the demand for seats will be greater than the supply, and standing room will be the location many will be forced to accept.

Call to mind the musical comedy successes of yesteryear, and see how few have survived. They flit gaily in, spend their butterfly time and then gradually flicker out. "The Time, the Place and the Girl," which will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Friday night, was first produced in Chicago over three years ago, is still very much in the limelight and should prove this season's most potent drawing card. This gem of a musical play is the joint work of that prolific Western trio Adams, Hough and Howard, and by many it is considered their masterpiece. It comes to us with Chicago New York, Boston and Philadelphia praises, and any attraction that can please the jaded theatre goers of those four cities of widely differen tastes must have merit indeed.

"The Time, The Place and The Girl" is a gem in its class, combining as it does a logical and well developed story, which could carry it as a straight comedy. Add to that the brilliant dialogue and catchy music and we have perfect entertainment. In "The Time the Place and the Girl," the characters are consistently drawn, and the offering free from all trace of exaggeration. There is much genuine fun throughout the action, a bit or two of pathos, and music that is irresistibly tuneful.

Small boys and big boys who may figure on going fishing in violation of the law had better watch out. There's a constable coming to town who doesn't let much get by him that looks like a breach of the statutes. Most everybody in town saw this valiant preserver of the peace when he was here last. He is one of the Hardscrabble folks, one of the community that Denman Thompson put on the stage in "Our New Minister," the successful play written by him and Geo. W. Ryer. If you saw the play when it was here recently you will know the constable by his whiskers; if not those, then by his badge. He will be seen with the rest of the Hardscrabblers at the New Plainfield theatre on Saturday matinee and night, October 3.

The much talked of European and New York success "The Devil," which by arrangement with Henry W. Savage will be presented by Mr. Alfred E. Aarons at the New Plainfield next Monday afternoon and night is one of the most intensely interesting plays that has ever been offered for the delectation of American theatregoers. It tells the story in a unique and absorbing manner, of the intrigues of his Satanic Majesty impersonated in Dr. Miller, to bring to an unhappy culmination a romance involving Olga Hofman, a banker's wife and Karl Mahler an artist. The Devil appears in the first act in the person of Dr. Miller, as an evesdropper to a conversation between Olga Hofman and the painter concerning their mutual desire to shake off a love affair of long standing. From that moment he becomes part of their lives, whispering evil words in the ears of each, arranging clandestine meetings and arranging situations designed to bring them together so that they will forget all else save themselves and break the ties which hold them. Never in the history of New York has there been such breathless interest as has been shown by the audiences who have witnessed the play at the Garden Theatre. It is no exaggeration to say that "The Devil" has aroused more enthusiasm and comment than any play that has been seen in New York in many, many years.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Jersey Central commuters are wondering whether the railroad on which they ride each day will put on a 2 a. m. or a 2:30 a. m. train from Jersey City to Dunellen after the McAdoo tunnels are put in operation under the Hudson. When a person is told that all night trains run out on Long Island at half hour intervals the query is natural: "Why is not the same service given to persons living in New Jersey?" The Erie has a 3 a. m. train, and most of the railroads shut down all train service after 12:30. Even Newark is shut off from New York by train after 1 a. m., when the last train leaves the Central terminal in Jersey City. The Central operates a train at 1:30 a. m., but it makes its first stop at Bound Brook. The 1 o'clock train from New York on this railroad is a local, and goes to Dunellen. Theatregoers who dine after a performance have to hurry to catch the 1 o'clock train, and to be compelled to wait until 4 a. m. in the event of missing the boat is a serious matter. Complaints have been heard frequently about this condition, and commuters, especially men who are employed nights in New York, have been talking of petitioning the company for a train to Dunellen at 2 o'clock. At any rate, they hope for improvements to meet the increased facilities which will be afforded to Newark when the new tunnels are opened.—New York Tribune.

DINNER TO CLOKE.

Will Be Given Today by Colleagues on Riparian Board.

William Cloke, recently appointed by Governor Fort as State Commissioner of Reports, and who has resigned from the State Riparian Commission, of which he was a member for many years, will be tendered a dinner at the Hotel Sterling at Trenton this afternoon by the Riparian Board in honor of his long service thereon, and his new position.

Governor Fort has been invited and there will be a few other guests. Mr. Cloke was vice-president of the board, the Governor being president, ex-officio. Commissioner Robert Williams, of Passaic county, has been made vice-president in place of Mr. Cloke. The dinner follows a meeting of the board at which Mr. Cloke's resignation will be accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Rowland, of West Seventh street, have returned home from their summer outing.

Miss Marion Herr and Miss Florence Herr, of Flemington, who have been visiting relatives in town, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Smalley, Jr., who recently sold their farm on Greenbrook road, reserving twelve acres upon which they will erect a modern home for their occupancy, have decided to board this winter. Their new house will be started at once by Alex. Milne, the contractor.

GOLF.

A foreign publication declares that the new penalty of loss of stroke and distance for lost ball and out of bounds at match play is absurd, because it is, in almost every instance, eqpivalent to "lost hole." The criticism continues as follows:

It is so nearly the absolute equivalent of "lost hole" that it would be difficult to state in figures what the difference is. Practically, it means in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, that the verdict of loss of hole is only delayed, to the general congestion of the green, by the player going back to play another shot and continuing to play toward the hole. What, then, is the advantage of making a new penalty, which has nothing to recommend it and has many objections, for the sake of a fractional and practically inoperative difference in punishment?

Of course, it is perfectly clear whither we are tending. The next thing will be that the stroke and distance penalty will be found too "severe," and both "lost ball" and "out of bounds" will be loss of distance only or loss of a stroke, and tee up on the course as near as possible where we "think" the ball is.

"Then, after that, all rough ground, gorse, bents, etc., and everything that could hide a ball or give it a bad lie will be removed. Then we will have some patent kind of carpent which will provide a perfectly flawless surface for putting greens, and some patent kind of American bunker will be invented to give everybody who gets into it absolutely the same lie and stance.

"When there has been rain overnight we shall be as particular as the cricketers as to slipping or getting our feet wet, and greens committees will decide, if there is the least pool of casual water anywhere that the course is unfit for play. There will be no stymies and no 'honor' and nothing to disturb or confuse the calculations of the card and pencil mathematicians. In this way we shall certainly arrive in time at a very simple code and a very simple game, but the game will not be the royal and ancient game of golf."

A glance over the foreign records for the last few months shows how little difference there is between the present leaders in professional golf. There is practically nothing to choose in open competition or tournament where all are engaged between Braid, Vardon, Taylor, Massy and Herd. At present Braid is probably the most likely winner, but it is never odds on him or any of the others. And yet these five present a practically unbreakable phalanx, when all are playing, against the many hundreds of first class professionals. George Duncan is about the only one of the younger brigade who has ever made much impression on them. The rise of Duncan is one of the features of the foreign season now passing, and must invest next year's professional golf with greater interest.

DUNELLEN REPUBLICAN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Republicans of Dunellen held a re-organization meeting last night, when a club was formed for the campaign. The meeting was held in the Ratti building on North avenue, which will be the headquarters of the organization. There was a large attendance of Republicans and much enthusiasm. Judge Rene R. P. von Minden, candidate for the Assembly, made a speech, setting forth the issues of the campaign, especially as they relate to the party in this part of the State.

The club elected these officers: President, W. S. Frederick; vice-president, W. A. Sanford; treasurer, J. Newton Apgar; secretary, Abner S. Coriell. The various committees will be appointed at the next regular meeting, Thursday night, Oct. 8.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The social gathering planned by the members of Judge W. N. Runyon's Sunday-school class at Hope chapel has been postponed from Friday night to Friday night, October 9.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, will conduct the mid-week meeting this evening in Vincent chapel, and will deliver the first address in a series on "The Lord's Prayer," the special topic being "Our Father."

MRS. MARGUERITE SMITH DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Marguerite Smith, widow of Earl H. Smith, died at 10 o'clock this morning at her home on East Fifth street, near Richmond. She had been ill a long time and for the past six weeks had been confined to her bed.

Mrs. Smith was a native of New York city but moved to Scotch Plains twenty years ago. Her husband died in July, 1902, and for the past three years she has lived in Plainfield. She was a member of All Saints church, Scotch Plains; the Women's auxiliary to Antietam command, U. V. U., and Howell division No. 97, Sons of Temperance. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Dora Smith, and a brother, Alexander S. Robert, of Jersey City, also several nieces and nephews.

The funeral arrangements have not been made as yet but burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Co. K. to Resume Drills.

Co. K will begin its regular weekly drills on Monday night, October 5, and it is requested that every member be present at that time. Blue uniforms will be worn. The officers hope that each man will try and make a record for attendance this season and the members are urged to be on the drill floor every drill night at 8:15. The non-commissioned officers will provide an entertainment for members of the company only on Monday night and refreshments will be served.

Charles Shupp Breaks a Leg.

Charles Shupp, aged twenty years, of Westfield, fell from his horse which he was riding at that place, yesterday afternoon, and sustained a fracture of the right leg. The accident happened in a peculiar manner. Mr. Shupp being thrown from the horse's back by the breaking of the saddle. He was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital in a carriage by some friends. He will be detained there several weeks. Mr. Shupp is employed by William Hutchings, of Westfield.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P. will hold a progressive euchre party and quoit match at its meeting tomorrow night. The members are requested to meet at 7:30 o'clock. It is expected that members of the Somerville and Bound Brook lodges will attend. Prizes will be presented the winners in he euchre play.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Mali, of New York, after a summer in Europe are occupying their country home on East Front street.

William Abbott, of West Eighth street, who has been detained at home with an attack of typhoid fever, is improving slowly.

Thomas Taylor, who formerly had a home near Washington Rock, has returned to this city for the winter and is located on Somerset street.

John E. Townsend, of Fourth and Richmond streets, has returned from a visit through New York State, including Poughkeepsie and Albany.

C. Linn Davis, of West Winfield N. Y., who is connected with the Utica Observer, has been the guest of H. H. Owen, of East Fifth street.

Miss Gladys Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Peck, of Myrtle avenue, sailed yesterday for Europe, where she will spend a few months.

Fred Gaskill, who was one of the three valedictorians at the head of the Class '06, Plainfield High School has recently taken a position as supervising principal of the public schools in Moosic, Pa

Mrs. Thomas Beard and children, of West Seventh street, left today for Montreal, Canada, to spend part of the winter with Mrs. Beard's mother, and where she hopes to regain her health. Mr. Beard will reside temporarily in New York, the residence here having been rented to A. W. Martin, of New York, until April 1.

SCARLET FEVER WORST FOE OF CHILHOOD

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucytides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have levelled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this, the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessors, and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantites, and, as a result, many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—The Delineator.

White Ribboners in Convention.

The twenty-third annual convention of the Somerset County W. C. T. U. is being held today in the Reformed church at South Bound Brook. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will be held. Mrs. D. P. Peek, of East Millstone, county president, is presiding, and among the speakers is Mrs. Emma Bourne, State president. The usual reports of the various departments were presented at the morning and afternoon sessions.

Funeral of Eben S. Young.

The funeral of Eben S. Young was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his son, David K. Young, of Craig place. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring was in charge and the gathering of relatives and friends in attendance included several of his former business associates in New York. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Murderer Confesses; Gets 30 Years.

The trial of Joseph Macciocia for the murder of Rocco Cromoni at Milford on June 14 ended yesterday at Flemington, when Macciocia changed his plea of not guilty to non vult. Judge Reid accepted the new plea and sentenced him to thirty years in the state penitentiary.

Injured Man Leaves Hospital.

William Ohlander, the carpenter employed on a new house on Martine avenue, and who received injuries in a fall from a scaffold a few days ago, was discharged from the hospital, yesterday and returned home. His injuries consisted of a slight sprain of the back.

APPLIED ASTRONOMY.

He took me out to see the stars,
That astronomic bore;
He said there were two moons near Mars,
While Jupiter has four.

I thought, of course, he'l whisper soon
What fourfold bliss 'twould be
To stroll beneath that fourfold moon
On Jupiter with me.

And when he spoke of Saturn's ring,
I was convinced he'd say
That was the very kind of thing
To offer me some day.

But in a tangent off he went
To double stars. Now that
Was most suggestive, so content
And quite absorbed I sat.

But no, he talked a dreary mess
Of which the only fraction
That caught my fancy, I confess,
Was "mutual attraction."

I said I thought it very queer
And stupid altogether,
For stars to keep so very near,
And yet not come together.

At that he smiled, and turned his head;
I thought he'd caught the notion.
He merely bowed good-night, and said
Their safety lies in motion.

HER CROWNING GLORY.

She stood before the mirror
In flowing robe de nuit,
"What could be more alluring,"
She cried, "than what I see:
A figure soft and rounded,
A face of beauty rare,
A neck of snowy whiteness,
A crown of golden hair!"
She paused and added sadly,
"Uneasy lies the head
That wears a crown!" She doffed it—
And made a break for bed!

AMERICAN CORN HAS CIRCLED THE GLOBE.

In a trip around the world just completed Gurdon W. Wattles, of Omaha and Los Angeles, has found 131 products of American corn, ranging from hasty pudding in Japan to glucose confectionery along the banks of the Danube; from breakfast food in Belgium to the starch in the butlers' ruffles in dear old London. At a commercial exposition in London Mrs. Wattles reports seeing 128 products of American corn, most of which were manufactured west of Buffalo. In almost every European country he found scores of demonstrators from America introducing some new product of Indian corn. It is his opinion that more than 80 per cent. of the products used in foreign countries are either manufactured in the United States or made from corn grown here. Austria-Hungary is said to rank next to the United States.

Rebuking a Queen.

One of the ladies in waiting to the late Queen Victoria had a very bright little daughter about 4 years old, and of whom the Queen was very fond. The Queen invited the child to have lunch with her. Of course, the mother was highly pleased, and charged the little girl to be very careful about her table manners and to be very polite to the Queen.

The little girl came home in high glee, and the mother asked her all about the luncheon. "Were you a very polite little girl? And did you remember to do all I told you at the table?" acked the proud mamma.

"Oh, yes; I was polite," said the little girl, "but the Queen wasn't."

"The Queen wasn't?" said the mother. "Why, what did she do?"

"She took her chicken bone up in her fingers, and I just shook my finger at her, like you did me, and said, 'Piggy, piggy, piggy!'"—Philadelphia North American.

SIMPLICITY DESIRED IN FINE LINGERIE.

Lingerie does not require elaborate trimming to be beautiful. In fact it is not in good taste.

A superfluity of trimming on stout women's lingerie is not desirable on account of its fluffiness, yet the plump tpye usually likes dainty underwear quite as much as slender women, and so a description of a charming yet suitable model for the former will be interesting.

This combination corset cover and skirt, cut in princess style to fit the figure by means of gores, should be stunning. These gores are joined together with a narrow beading, a deep flounce added with a row of beading and beading trimmed the low neck and the sleeves, a narrow lace ruffle forming the finish.

When all the beading is threaded with palest pink ribbon it will be one of the prettiest garments imaginable
